This Friday night our terrific new team will get a chance to show its stuff. Longwood is meeting Roanoke College at Roanoke for the opening game of the season. Maybe I'm just a little prejudiced but I'm placing my bet on Longwood. What about you?

How many practices do you have in volleyball and basketball—or should I ask that question? Remember that the time is drawing near for Class Games. Of course, I know it's close to exams, but there is always time for a little recreation. The time will creep up on us all too soon, and then there won't be the opportunity to get in any more practices. You can't imagine your team down there in the gym without enough players can you? They may be in just such a predicament if you aren't there. Now is the hour! Get your practices in as soon as possible. Those points toward the color cup mean an awful lot when the time arrives!

The Associated Students Memorial Union Building is one of the favorite on-the-campus haunts of students at the University of Washington. That's because the Union Building is a friendly place, always full of the busy atmosphere of college life. There is always plenty of ice-cold Coca-Cola, too. For here, as in university gathering spots everywhere—Coke belongs.

PIONEERS BEGIN NEW YEAR IN A NEW STYLE

The Pioneer basketball squad lost no time in resuming court play last week after the 14 day Christmas vacation. The locals, after only one day, faced Ferrum, Crewe, and Lynchburg on successive nights. The lay off, paradoxical as it may seem, must have been highly stimulating because this week's performances have revealed not just a new year but a new kind of team as well.

In games previous to the holidays the local quintet was able to work together only in spurts. Seldom was there any consistency or dependability in these better moments. Now it seems to be quite different. Last week the men dropped two close games to Ferrum and Lynchburg and beat Crewe in a sound manner.

PEACE INSERTS MISSING LINK

In the Ferrum game, Johnnie Peace, who has been difficult to get to score, broke loose on a 12 point barrage and garnered enough rebounds to permit a successful Pioneer combination continually producing points with surprising regularity. This seeming'y was all that the Pioneers and Johnnie needed. The Ferrum "fast break" attack out ran the locals eventually and began to gather momentum towards the last but the Pioneer improvement had been staged. The next night the Pioneers faced Crewe for a third time after winning and losing one. The score, 47-16 in favor of Longwood.

PIONEERS SHOCK LYNCHBURG

After playing previously at Lynchburg and losing in a very undignified manner, the Baby Hornets were expecting another forty point victory. The locals lost in Lynchburg 72-30. This time however, the Pioneers played a very different brand of ball and surged out in front 6-2. The scores at the quarter and half were tied. The third quarter found the Hornets out in front by one point and they grimly held that one point advantage preciously. A foul shot put the Lynchburg crew out in front by two points at the very end. The score 42-44 Lynchburg, a game in which the lead changed continuously. The game, though lost, was a definite moral victory for Longwood. It signifies not only moral revenge but places the finishing touches on "peaks of confidence" which has been developing rapidly in the Fraser camp the past week. Something Longwood has sadly lacked.

Lynchburg Downs Pioneers 44-42 In Recent Thriller

21 Girls Named To Varsity Squad

As a result of two weeks of tryouts, names of the girls chosen for the varsity basketball team have been announced.

The squad includes, Jean Baber, Marian Beckner, Clara Borum, Helen Castros, Mary Crowder, Jean Hodges, Juanita Hudson, and Edith Kennon. Eleanor Koch, Shirley Livesay, Anne Lynch, Lucy Mann, Mason Moore, Maxine Patterson, Rachel Peters, Jean Ridenour, Patsy Sanford, Betty Tyler, Dolly Vaughn, Sue Webb and Roberta Wiatt make up the remainder of the squad.

According to Shirley Livesay, manager of the team, practices for the varsity squad have been scheduled at 4:50 p. m. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons.

Livesay To Manage '51 Basketball Team

Shirley Livesay has recently been chosen manager for the women's varsity basketball team, according to an announcement by Anne Lynch, president of the A. A.

The women will open their season this Friday at Roanoke against Roanoke College.

Team Splits Wins With Crewe, Ferrum

In the most thrilling contest of the year, Lynchburg JV's nosed out the Pioneer basketball team 44-42 last Thursday night in the campus gym. The Pioneers had previously lost to Lynchburg 72-30 at Lynchburg. The game climaxed a greatly improved showing that the men's basketball team clearly displayed since returning from the two week holidays. The lead changed repeatedly throughout the contest with never more than 5 points separating the two teams.

The big guns for Longwood were Les Smallwood and Jerry Shevick each with 14 points, but the defensive and offensive work of Johnnie Peace at center, who also collected 7 points, spelled the closeness of the score and which very nearly created a terrific upset. Lynchburg's tallies were evenly distributed.

In other Pioneer basketball games during the week, Ferrum won not so easily 78-57 and Crewe went down decisively 47-16 at the hands of the locals. The Ferrum game started in a speedy tempo and remained so throughout the contest. The Pioneers scored as never before but the Ferrum team staged a fast break that broke the Pioneermen down in the last quarter. Les Smallwood topped the scorers for Longwood with 19 points followed closely by Jerry Shevick and Johnnie Peace with 18 and 12 points respectively. Smallwood copped 20 points in the Crewe game to lead Longwood, but tallies were evenly distributed as the Pioneermen rode high.

Farmville Alumnae Meet At College To Hold Program

Science Professor Speaks About Trip

The regular program meeting of the Farmville Alumnae chapter, of which Mrs. Hallie Hillsman Eastwood is president, was held Thursday January 4 in the audio-visual room of the College Library.

During the meeting Dr. Dabney S Lancaster, President of the College, reported that the Jarmar organ has been completed and is ready to be installed. He also stated that it is hoped that the auditorium-music building will be completed and the organ installed for the Homecoming to be held next October.

A letter asking the Farmville chapter to join with other Longwood alumnae in making donations for a memorial to the late Miss Grace E. Mix, supervisor of the training school kindergarten for many years, was read during the process of the business meeting. The memorial would be in the form of a portrait for the College library and books for the kindergarten. The chapter voted to make a donation, leaving the amount to be fixed by a selected committee.

Miss Elizabeth Burger, Longwood science professor, spoke to the group. She showed slides and told of her trip to France and Switzerland. A social hour followed with Miss Ruth Gleaves pouring punch. Cookies, nuts and mints were served.

Mrs. Ruth Coyner, alumnae secretary, has announced that the annual "Alumnae Bulletin" has gone to press and that she hopes to begin mailing copies near the first of March.

Shirley Anne Grogan was married to Cpl. Frederick H. Duncan, Jr., on December 21. The ceremony was performed at the Mt. Vernon Methodist Church, in Danville.

Students Brave Cold Tramp To Hear Lecture from Prof

by Dot Boswick

At various times during the week a good percentage of the student body goes tramping out through the cold, icy air on their way to the new science building to enjoy another lecture in geography under the instruction of none other than Mr. Charles Lane. Mr. Lane, better known as Chuck, is one of our new, young and available additions to the faculty. He comes to us from the University of Georgia where he taught geography for the past two years.

Mr. Lane has quite a list of colleges to his credit. He attended Vanderbuilt for two and a half years, and then the University of Tennessee, where he assisted in Air Corp training in meteorology. Here, he completed his B.S. in '44 and his masters in geology in '45. In September of '45 he continued his graduate work in geography at Clark University in Massachusetts. For the last three summers he has been doing field work in the Cumberland mountains of Tennessee. He gave Longwood College a try by teaching here during the summer session of 46 and we're mighty glad he liked it well enough to come back again this year.

Chuck originally hails from Knoxville, Tennessee. He has two brothers, one who teaches biology in a junior college in Mississippi, and the other who is a public accountant in Tennessee.

Hobbies aren't in Chuck's line at present. Most of his spare time is spent working on his doctorate thesis for North Western University, which he hopes to complete by summer. He finds enjoyment in most any type of sport, particularly football and baseball. He hopes to try out the Longwood golf course next spring and might even consent to take on some of Longwood's tennis players for a few sets when the weather warms up.

Here's something to boost our ego and make our heads swell—Chuck much prefers Virginia to Georgia. He likes the attitude of Virginians and thinks that they are more courteous as a whole than the people he has associated with in any other region. Chuck thinks that Longwood is just fine too, but wistfully wishes it were co-ed. His theory is that men stimulate more class discussion; girls, see what you can do about that!

All in all though, Chuck has found the Longwood faculty most congenial to work with and everyone very willing to help make his new home as pleasant as possible.

Episcopal Group To Hold Vespers

Union vespers will be held this Sunday night at 7 o'clock in the Episcopal Church. Members of the Canterbury Club will be in charge of the program.

Union vespers are held four times each year under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. The Baptists were in charge of the vesper service in November. It will be held next semester by the Presbyterian and Methodist groups.

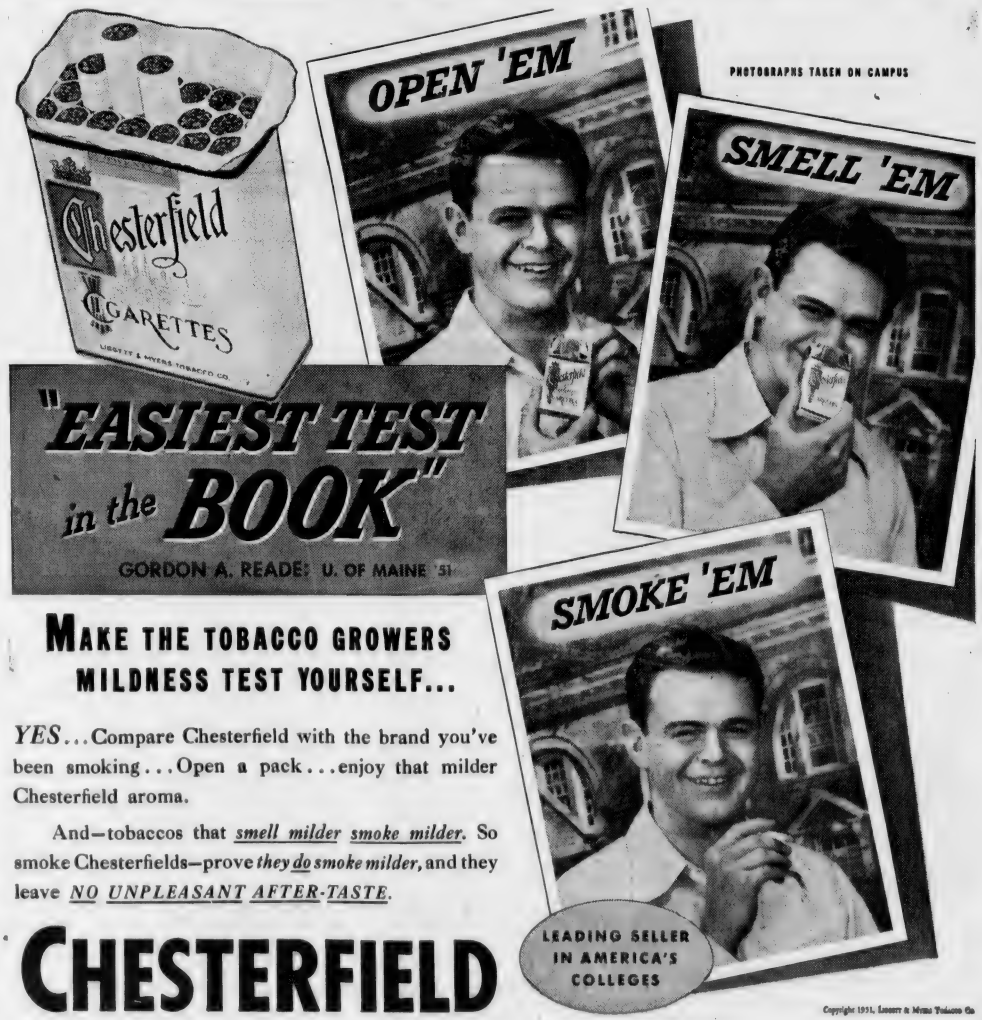
LC Library Displays Best Books of 1950



Books selected by W. T. Scott as best books of the year 1950 are now on exhibit in the Library. An article by Scott, "The Literary Slumming-up," appeared in the December 30, 1950, issue of the "Saturday Review of Literature".

In this article, Scott states that in all literary fields he believes that 1950 was a better than average year. Some of the books selected for display and based on the article were John Hershey's "The Wall," Robert Penn Warren's "World Enough and Time," Conrad Richter's "The Town," and Winston Churchill's "The Hinge of Fate."

Beginning January 20 an exhibit of paintings by local artists will be shown in the browsing room of the library. This exhibit is being sponsored by the Farmville Woman's Club and will last until January 31.

Mr. French Announces Opening of Annual Drive For Infantile Paralysis

'March of Dimes' Sets Open Goal

The annual "March of Dimes" campaign to provide financial aid for Infantile paralysis opened on his campus yesterday, according to an announcement by Mr. Raymond French, head of the College drive.

"An open goal has been set for this year's drive due to the smaller enrollment," Mr. French stated. In the past two years, the College has failed to meet a goal of $200.

Canvassing for the drive, which will close January 31, will be done by the respective classes each night from 10 to 11 p.m. Boxes in the shape of an iron lung will also be placed in the main hall of Ruffner, in the rotunda, and in the Snack Bar and Tea Room.

Use of Funds

The funds from the drive will be used to aid the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and its local chapters to provide financial aid, equipment and skilled workers for the thousands of children and adults who will be victims of the dread disease this year. Also, the money will be used for research in the treatment and prevention of polio and the payment of professional personnel.

"I hope that everyone will contribute freely to this drive, because funds are so badly needed in this state," Mr. French urged. He added, "We were hit so hard in Wythe County alone that the state is in dire need of financial help."

Mr. Raymond H. French who will head the March of Dimes campaign on the Longwood campus.

Council, Stu. Gov't. Give Special Rules

Special rules to go into effect during the week of examination have been announced by both the House Council and the Student Government Association.

Freshmen and sophomores are being allowed to keep their lights on for studying until midnight this week, provided they are quiet Bobby Pollard, president of House Council, has announced.

During the week of January 21 through 26, all students will be allowed unlimited late lights.

Strict quiet will be enforced on all halls at all times from 11 p. m. Sunday, January 21 through 7 a. m. Friday, January 26. One call-down during this time will subject the offender to a week's campus effective at the time of the call-down.

During the week of examinations freshmen will be allowed to go down town anytime during the day until 6 p. m. without signing out, according to an announcement by Helen Agnew, Student Government president.

Both freshmen and sophomores may attend the movies at night without taking a movie cut, Helen added.

President To Attend Accreditation Study Meeting In Alabama

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster will leave the College Friday, January 19 to attend a three day meeting at the University of Alabama. The meeting will be a school to study for accrediting colleges for teachers.

Four of these schools are being held in different sections of the United States. Dr. Lancaster is representing Virginia at the regional meeting for the southern states.

Dean Sets Date For Registration As January 27

Faculty To Submit Term Grades Wed.

All students who failed to complete their schedules for the spring semester during the week of January 8-12 must complete them on Saturday, January 27, according to an announcement by Dean William W. Savage.

No classes will be held on that date and registration for all new students entering the College for the first time next semester will be conducted from 8:30 a. m. until 1 p. m.

No student will be allowed to enter classes at the beginning of the second semester unless his schedule has been completed, approved by the Dean, and turned in at the office of the Dean of the College.

Faculty members have been requested to submit semester grades to the Registrar's office by Wednesday, January 31. However, they have been asked to report the names of those students who failed their courses to the Registrar by 10:00 a.m. on Monday, January 29.

Classes for the second semester will begin at 8:05 on Monday, January 29.

All students' records of fines and overdue books must be closed with the library before January 22 in order to obtain semester grades.

Rotunda To Begin Editorial Try-outs

With the February 7 issue of the paper, the Rotunda will begin tryouts for editor-in-chief, managing editor, business manager, and staff positions for the 1951-52 newspaper year, according to Jean Smith and Mary Leigh Meredith, co-editors.

Mary Jo Smith as present managing editor of the paper will be in charge of the tryouts which will be held during the month of February. During this time, the members of the staff who have signed up with the editors may try out for any position they desire. Each person trying out for a new position will assume the regular duties of that position for one week.

Appointment of editor-in-chief business manager, and managing editor will be made by the Publications Board during the first part of March. The Publications Board will be made up of the advisors of the various campus publications, the present editors-in-chief, and an impartial student representative.

The new editor will appoint her staff the week following the Publications Board announcement.

Members of the editorial and business staffs alike are urged to try out for an advanced position during this period. Members of the student body, not on the staff of the Rotunda at present, are requested to sign up.

Mrs. Watkins To Go To Handley School

Mrs. Mary Watkins, executive secretary to the College, will go to Handley High School, in Winchester, Virginia, Friday, February 2 to represent Longwood at the high school's College Day program.

Dean William W. Savage will attend Danville High School's College Day program February 16 as the College's representative.

Frosh Class Elects Hill Production Chairman

Lyn Hill, freshman from Norfolk, was elected chairman of freshman production at a recent meeting of the class. Blanton Ferguson was elected assistant chairman of the production which will be given Friday, March 16.

June Johns was chosen to be in charge of publicity and Eleanor Koch will act as head of the ticket committee.

Waverly "Lyn" Hill graduated from Maury High School in 1950. Interested in dramatics, Lyn has participated in productions since her grammar school years. She wrote and directed plays while in high school and took a leading part in the senior play. Since coming to Longwood, Lyn has helped in planning and producing programs at the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Assistant chairman of the production, Blanton Ferguson, graduated from Thomas Jefferson High School in Richmond. At T. J. she was director of Junior Stunt night and art editor of the annual. Blanton was also a member of the Student Senate, National Honor Society, and Quill and Scroll.

June also graduated from Thomas Jefferson High School where she worked as a member of the business staff of the Jeffersonian for two years. Another Richmond girl, but a graduate of Glen Allen High School, Eleanor Koch served on the editorial staff of the school annual. She was a member of the basketball team for three years.

Longwood Publishes College Guide Book, 'Going To College?'

"Going to College?", a twenty-two page booklet published by Longwood College is being distributed to Virginia high schools in an effort to guide college-bound students.

Included in the booklet are several photographic scenes of the buildings and campus of Longwood. The topic "Do Colleges Differ?" is thoroughly discussed from several phases. Among these are "Faculties," "Accreditation", "Size", "Location", "Buildings and Equipment", "Courses of Study", "Admission Requirements", and "Financial Assistance for Students". It is pointed out to the college-bound high school student the importance of knowing as much as possible about the college of his or her choice. The booklet is designed to be of value to any boy or girl planning to go to college and not only to prospective Longwood students.

Each item is discussed as it applies to colleges in general. Then the situation concerning each item at Longwood is briefly outlined and discussed.

The second section of the booklet, entitled "How?" gives suggestions as to how the college-bound boy or girl may obtain additional information about the college of his choice.

"Some Suggestions" titles the third section of the booklet. In this section is included some hints and advice to the new college student.

Dean William W. Savage has asked that any Longwood student or faculty member who wishes to have this booklet sent to some high school student who has not already received the booklet, leave the name and address in the office of the Dean of the College.

Student Govt. Calls Meeting of College To Hear Proposals

Pastor To Speak In Thurs. Assembly

Topic To Be 'New Birth'

The Reverend Mr. John Wynn Myers, minister of the Farmville Methodist Church, will speak to the student body in assembly Thursday.

The topic of Mr. Myers' talk will be "New Birth." His address will be based on Jesus' talk with Nicodemus. Mr. Myers said that he planned to bring into his talk some of his college experiences, his philosophy of life, and his ideas on the process of growth and maturity.

Mr. Myers is the son of a Methodist minister and is a native of Virginia. He was born in Courtland and attended college at the University of Virginia, Emory University, in Atlanta, Georgia, and Randolph-Macon College.

While in college Mr. Myers was active in dramatics, the glee club, and the debating society. This is Mr. Myers' fifteenth year as a minister and his third year in Farmville. Before coming to Farmville he served in Methodist Churches in Bedford County, on the Eastern Shore and in Norfolk.

Co-editors Announce Results Of Try-outs. Add Seven To Staff

Following an eight week's try-out period, several members of the student body have been appointed to permanent positions on the staff of the Rotunda, Mary Leigh Meredith and Jean Smith, co-editors have announced.

Fifi Carter a freshman from Hopewell, has been made a permanent member of the news staff, along with Helen Tanner, sophomore from Richmond; Celeste Bishop of Danville; and Janet Wiggins, of Arlington.

Jean Jinnette has been made a permanent member of the feature staff, and Eleanor Koch has been added to the women's sport's staff.

Lyn Leffel will be added to the permanent advertising staff of the business department.

Standards, Council Make Suggestions

The student body will be asked to consider two very serious proposals tonight at a called meeting in the Methodist Church, Helen Agnew, president of the woman's government association announced today.

The recent recommendation by the Student Standards committee to the effect that no student may serve more than one term as a class officer and the proposed Honor Council will both be considered at the meeting tonight.

The Student Standards recommendation was made at a recent meeting of the committee and was announced in last week's Rotunda. According to Margaret Thomas, chairman of the committee, Student Standards recommends that the ruling, if passed by the student body, go into effect immediately. Under the ruling those students now holding class offices would not be allowed to run for reelection.

Helen emphasized the fact that as it now stands the resolution is no more than a recommendation. To become effective it will have to be passed by the student body.

Honor Council

The selection of an Honor Council, a council elected separately from the Student Council, was proposed last week in a letter to the editors from the Student Council.

An Honor Council would deal only with cases involving infractions of the Longwood Honor Code; lying, stealing, cheating, and falsification of records.

The primary advantage of such a two body government as the installation of an Honor Council would be to make for a smoothly functioning organization according to Helen. Also the Student Council feels that under such a system more capable students would be able to serve in responsible positions and that the very existence of a separate Honor Council would serve to strengthen the Honor System at Longwood.

Aside from the consideration of these two measures at the meeting tonight recommendations for modification in rules and regulations generally will be accepted.

Hopes, Fears, and Failures Of UN Expressed by Speaker

The hopes, fears, and failures of the United Nations were discussed at a Longwood College assembly Thursday—the fifth anniversary of the first meeting of the General Assembly in London, Jan. 5, 1946.

"The United Nations has taken a defeat in Korea," Thomas Jefferson Hamilton, chief of the New York Times United Nations staff, told the students, who met in the Methodist Church.

Then Mr. Hamilton asked several provocative questions—Do we fight on in Korea? Should we have economic sanctions against China? Should we recognize Red China? Should we scrap the United Nations because these things have happened in Korea?

After covering activities in the United Nations for more than four years for the New York Times, Mr. Hamilton had some encouragement to bring to the people and students of Farmville.

"If we stay behind the United Nations, I think that we can rebuild the hopes that we had for it when it was formed in San Francisco," he said. "We must stay with our allies, also. By allies, I mean the members of the North Atlantic Pact."

Propaganda Work

This reporter's stories about the United Nations have won high praise in this country and Canada. A graduate of the University of Georgia, Mr. Hamilton studied at Oxford under a Rhodes Scholarship. He majored in modern history. He began his newspaper work with the Atlanta Journal, served on the Associated Press staff in London, and reported news from Spain after the Civil War. He worked on propaganda in France and the Pacific area for the navy during the war.

"A lot of us, I'm afraid, think that the United Nations is on the downward road," the speaker

Students Need to Examine Own Hearts; Then Donate

Hands are again outstretched to us for help in the 1951 March of Dimes. Posters, news items and collection boxes have appeared everywhere in an effort to remind the students of their obligation. How are we to respond to the pleas of the present campaign? Can we pass up the small card-board "iron lung" because we need cigarettes? Do we avoid looking closely at the poster picture of a youngster wearing braces and a courageous smile, because "its pathetic?"

Do we, in the last moments, finally scrape up a dime, drop it grudgingly in the box, and spend the rest of the day feeling self-satisfied? If such is the case, we need to hear the delighted crow of a ten year-old as he takes his first wobbly steps. We need to examine the thoughtful, remembering eyes of a pretty college girl, as she tells of the helplessness and the pain. We need to examine then our own hearts—and perhaps our own fears.

Having lost its most dramatic and forceful leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1945 the March of Dimes has not, however, lost any of its implications to those who know polio intimately. We, at Longwood, are especially reminded of these implications as we think back to the black days of July August September, 1950. We learned that polio chooses any home, poor or rich. We learned also that polio enters suddenly, violently, and without knocking. And we learned that polio is an expensive guest.

Illustrative of the feelings of a past polio victim was a recent interview with Dr. Marvin W. Schegel, Associate professor of

Let's Face It...

Let's face it. Periodically, and especially at examination time, our Honor System is put to the supreme test. There is nothing however, so disturbing about that. No tradition, no institution, of our college is worthwhile unless is it worth fighting for. The more effort and pain that is required to maintain a tradition means that tradition is the finer and higher.

There's no use in fooling ourselves. Some of us, indeed all of us to a degree, are going to be tempted in the coming days. There will be the student who feels she must make such and such a grade to satisfy her parents. Another needs grades to bring her average up so that she may stay in college. Another needs grades to enable her to retain some cherished office. These will be the harsh realities of student life in the coming week.

What does it boil down to, however? We may fall to temptation, and accomplish our immediate purposes. But what will we accomplish in the ultimate end? No parent will feel compensated by desired grades for his daughter at the expense of that daughter's honesty. And don't think that one's parents won't eventually find out. If we do it to achieve our purpose of staying in college, that college life will lose its savor and joy. If we do it to retain an office we will know in our hearts that we have failed in an obligation and the retention of the office will become a shame to ourselves rather than an honor. And for whatever purpose we break our honor we will have damaged the most cherished tradition of our College and will have deprived ourselves of self respect.

There is one further harsh reality of which we must remind ourselves in these coming days. If we truly love our Honor System, indeed if we truly love our weaker sisters, we must accept the arduous task of reporting any infractions of the system we may observe. That does not mean we have to make snoopers of ourselves but it does imply the stern duty of reporting any cases that are forced upon our attention, report them to the offender, to the Council, and then keep our mouth tightly and forever shut.

The very occurence of this editorial may imply a distrust of our Honor System. This discussion may have been couched in too frank and harsh terms. Not at all. We have in our hands in these coming days two beloved things—our individual self respect and the Honor System of Longwood College. Let us fare forth to fight for them, to the death if need be.

Important Decisions To Be Made...

The recent recommendation made by the Student Standards committee will be presented to the students tonight for their opinions and whatever action upon the matter they deem desirable. The recommendation is in the form of a resolution which states that no student may serve as a class officer more than one term.

This proposal has been made by Student Standards in the hope of encouraging more student participation in class activities and to prevent one student from being continually elected to the same office from force of habit upon the part of the class.

Among the objections to the proposed plan is the terrific waste of experience that will occur. Each class will be served by sixteen different officers, each one of which will be new to her job. Then too, since it is only idealistic to think that every Longwood student is a leader, some junior class will be faced with the prospect of either a second-rate or no president for their senior year. It is a well known fact that in a college as small as Longwood a great deal of specialization is found among student attitudes toward extra-curricular activities toward the end of the junior year. Those with journalistic tendencies have turned toward the publications, the drama-minded toward the Dramatic Club, and so forth. The responsible job of leadership in any one of the many organizations requires a definite amount of training and talent; the senior class presidentship is far from being the least responsible position — will there always be a student available and suitable for that office who has not served as a class officer at any time before?

The second matter to be discussed tonight at the student body meeting will be the proposed addition of an Honor Council to the Student Government Association.

The two-body system that would be created by the addition of an Honor Council to the present set-up would in some ways facilitate the handling of government affairs and would provide more opportunities for capable students to serve the College and the student body in responsible positions. On the other hand, for a college as small as Longwood, the two-body system might prove cumbersome.

The meeting tonight has been cited as extremely important by the president of the Student Government Association—it is the duty of each and every member of the student body to be present tonight to take part in the decisions which will be reached.

Quiet, Please...

The week looming on the horizon of every student at Longwood will be a trying one. It will be an important one to all of us; everything we do will contribute to the grades that will signify what we have accomplished this year. The House Council, in realization of this, has made additional rules to benefit the students during exam week.

Freshmen and sophomores are being allowed to keep their lights on for studying until midnight during the week prior to examinations, providing they honor the rule by maintaining strict quiet during the extra hour. During the week of exams all students may keep lights on as late is necessary.

These rules allowing the Longwood student extra study time must be followed by one that, while it is not as pleasant, is just as important. Strictest quiet must be enforced on all halls at all times from 11 p. m. Sunday, January 21 through 1 p. m. Friday, January 26, or the rules allowing extra study time cannot be effective. One week campus will be the penalty for an infraction of the above rule, becoming effective immediately the call-down is given.

We urge that each student give fullest consideration and co-operation to the House Council rules and that she be thoughtful of those who are studying for exams, at all times. Good luck!

Stecking My Neck Out

by Joanne Steck

Well "the" time is nearing when everybody goes into seclusion and comes out supposedly crammed, and I do mean "crammed" full of knowledge. In short, exams are looming over the horizon.

Also—want everybody to give a great deal of serious thought to the election of May Day queen, maid of honor, and what have you. We do want to be well represented.

Hope everybody liked the sophomore production. We, the sophomores, enjoyed putting it on, with sort of a nostalgia because it's the last one we'll ever do. In short, we're hurt—we can't display our talents anymore, except maybe circus. Only real reason I'm sorry it's over is — now I don't have a good excuse for not hitting the books anymore than I do!

Heard some of 'em talking about how easy it's gonna be next year—all you gotta do is tack a piece of crepe paper on the gym wall and charge admission. I'm sure the upperclassmen appreciate the thought!

Tell you — I would hate to be the one who decides who will get the nice rooms in the new building. I guess you'll just have to be not a spoke, but a wheel with a capital "W".

Have you all seen the new Longwood bulletin they're sending out? They're really nice and well written if I do say so. It's a credit to our school. I tell youse you can't do anything with Longwood when we get in gear. Yes sir, boys!

Hate not having the Rotunda to read for the next two weeks, but I will have a rest and maybe by that time I will have enough to make this column a decent length. Right now I'm specializing in quality rather than quantity.

Good luck on exams and if you're anything like me you'll need it!

Question: Do you think that the exam period should be lengthened to assure students of not more than one exam a day, even at the expense of lengthening the school term?

Donna Staples: I believe a week is plenty of time for exams.

Kathyrn Terry: No!! 'Cause you aren't going to study but just so much and more than a week would just wear you out.

"Poppy" Reid: One week of exams is enough!!!

Emma Mae Pittard: Of course not! Is there anyway to get rid of the week we already have?

Mary Jane Stansbury: Heavens No! Why draw those horrid things out any longer?

Betsy Gravely: Yes!! You can lengthen it ten years as far as I'm concerned

John Cook: I definitely feel that one exam a day would be an excellent procedure to follow, even though the school term may have to be lengthened.

Jane Tick: Lands no! The school term is long enough without lengthening it. Anyway it would give me time that I would spend playing.

Branchy Fristoe: Why should the school term be lengthened? They have two week exam periods at other schools and don't lengthen the school term.

Joye Humphries: Frankly, I'd like to have a two week period so I wouldn't have more than one exam a day.

Barbara Robertson: No, it's bad enough as it is.

Betty Hoffman: I think it's a good idea for those who need to study, but who wants to study?

Elva Jean Hurst: I think it's a good idea to lengthen the exam period because when the exams come one right after the other, you don't have time to study.

Gloria de Silva: I think the school term is long enough already.

Charlotte Robertson: No, I don't think the exam period should be lengthened, because I'm in a hurry to get back to Maryland.

Billie Rose Spivey: Definitely not! We have to go to school too long now as it is. What do they want to do, kill us?

Mary Jane Tyus: I think there should be a reading period before the exam period and the exam period should be lengthened.

Edith Walker: Yes, I think the exam schedule is too crowded now.

Rena Hayes Peterson: No, because if you don't already know the material by exams, you won't no it later. It's all a matter of organization.

Shirley Atkinson: No, I don't want to go to school any longer than I'm going now.

Novella Goode: No, I'd rather get it over.

Connie Blankenship: The shorter, the better

Rachel Peters: No! Most people don't have enough subjects to cover a longer period.

Edith Kenron: I don't think too many people strain through exams anyway, unless they're like I am.

Millie Lewis: I think that the addition of a reading period would benefit the students more than stretching out the exam period.

SPORTS FACE GRADUAL TURNOVER TO WAR TIME BASIS

American sports are once again readjusting their teams for a war time basis. Almost all college teams are directly and immediately effected. The selective service laws which are now being rigidly carried out are grabbing numbers of men from the squads of small college teams. Large college teams will be able to carry on as they have in the past only temporarily or until their five or six reserve teams dwindle down to one or possibly two. The professional ranks are also feeling keen losses in the farm club systems where most of the younger men usually are until they can gain enough experience to attempt to make the top grade.

ONE FAIR 4-F NOW WORTH TWO DRAFTABLE ALL-AMERICANS

The shift is being made in the scouting programs primarily at the present time. This usually is the future of the sports. The emergency now existing will be felt most heavily in a year in the professional ranks. The scouts are slowly turning their eyes from the draftable All-Americans and are looking rather for the best 4-F that they can find to fill their camps. The top baseball league, American and National, will probably not feel the draft seriously for several years except in the loss of the occasional sensational rookie that pops up periodically. The Minor Leagues, on the other hand, have 300 men to be absent in the coming year. Majors usually consist of older, more experienced men. They now are veterans, married, or over age in the greatest majority. Though the sport will remain stagnate, it will at least not be any worse for a while.

SPORT FUTURE IS BRIGHTER THAN ITS PRESENT

With a possible UMT program or something similiar, there would exist the heaviest drain of manpower right at first and then as the men are discharged after serving their period of service, there would finally be an eventual return of students to the campus. The problem then is to keep the doors open now. If many college doors are forced closed now, when the students do return, jam-packed conditions will parallel those that existed in 1945 and 1946. In this situation everyone suffers; students, faculty and players.

SITUATION CRITICAL IN LONGWOOD MEN'S CASE

After considerable effort on the part of so many to make Longwood co-educational, the future of the men's sports or even existence of such does not look too bright. It may be difficult to front the Legislature with a bill in '52 for co-education at Longwood when there may be no men left here in '52 to formulate a backbone for it. The men have worked hard (and women also) in an effort to make a fine record in all ways here. Already this year the basketball team went on without some that did not come back, thanks to Uncle Sam, also, of course, there were some that did not enroll that were planning to do so.

There has been constant effort made in order that teachers might be trained here where the cost is at a minimum. It was hoped that the sports department could be enlarged to include a men's athletic director with a sound physical education department. Men in education whether they are excellent sports players or not are frequently called on to coach teams. It is a vital necessity that men in teacher training get a good background in the knowledge of all sports for these reasons.

Longwood Varsity Starts '50 Session With 53 - 32 Win

Home Squad Leads Throughout Game

The blue and white clad girls of the Longwood varsity basketball team defeated the six from Roanoke College last Friday on Roanoke's home court. The cage squad from Longwood led the way throughout the entire 50 minutes of play to rack up 53 points against Roanoke's 32.

With Rachel Peters as captain the Longwood squad took their first opponents in an easy stride. At the end of the first quarter Roanoke trailed to the tune of 12-6. The Longwood six brought their score to 26 allowing Roanoke 12 by the end of the half. During the third quarter Roanoke added six points to their score while Longwood piled up seven to bring the score to 33-18.

Forwards for the Longwood team were Clara Borum, Betty Tyler, Rachel Peters, Patsy Sanford, Lucy Mann, Shirley Livesay, and Eleanor Koch.

Guards for the L.C. squad were Jean Hidenour, Marian Becker, Edith Keenon, Sue Webb, Clara Borum, and Maxine Patterson.

Students To Elect May Queen, Court, Tuesday, Jan. 30.

The 1951 Longwood May Queen, her maid-of-honor, and her court will be elected on Tuesday, January 30, according to a recent announcement by Hilda Lewis and Marian Higgs, co-chairmen of the festivities.

The election will be held in the main recreation hall immediately after supper. At that time the girls receiving the highest number of nominating votes during nominations last Thursday will be presented to the student body. After the presentation of the candidates, ballots will be distributed and all voting will be done at that time.

The results of the election will be announced in the Rotunda on February 7.

The 1951 May Day pageant will be held in the amphitheater at the College Estate on Saturday, May 5, and will be followed by the traditional May Day dance in the College gymnasium that night.

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education, will direct the pageant which this year will be centered about the polka and its development through the years.

Orchesis, the modern dance group, will sponsor the May Day dance and members of the group will take a prominent part in the pageant.

The freshmen physical education classes will shortly begin work on some of the May Day numbers.

Shevick Leads With 11 Points

The Longwood Pioneers took their second win in four starts in the new year last week by turning down the respectable Farmville Town Team 42-32 in the college gymnasium. The Farmville club possessed about the same strength as last year's squad which edged the locals 2-1 in a three game series.

The Farmville club showed considerable skill over the college team but Longwood used their height to great advantage and set up an extremely effective zone defense which grabbed rebound after rebound for the locals. Both teams were off in their playing as well as their shooting, however, and the game was not as exciting potentially as the two teams should produce.

High point man was Jerry Shevick of the Pioneers who netted 11 points. Closely behind Shevick came practically the whole Pioneer team with Smallwood getting 9, Peace and Williams tying with 8 and Orange with 6. Baldwin of the Town Team was second with 10 points.

Periods Change For Dance Class

The American Square Dance class, physical education 330, which was scheduled to meet on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays at 3:05 p. m. will meet only on Tuesdays and Thursdays according to an announcement by Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education.

The class which will study the regional forms of American dance will also take a prominent part in the May Day festivities Mrs. Landrum added.

Mrs. Landrum urges that all students who can work the class into their schedule and who would like to take part in May Day sign up for this class as soon as possible.

"Even if you can take the class only until May Day and wish to do so without credit, I want and need you," Mrs. Landrum added.

Sportin' Around

by Lou Jamison

It certainly looks like all of us won our bets on last Friday's basketball game with Roanoke College. The final score was 53 to 33, in favor of Longwood, of course. Have you ever seen Longwood roll up a better score? All of the twelve girls who went to Roanoke with the team got a chance to play in the game too.

One of our freshmen really displayed the Longwood spirit at the Roanoke game. Pat Sanford, high scorer for Longwood, rolled up a total of 27 points. Just about this time last year I watched Pat play for Farmville high school. I thought she was terrific then, and she's really keeping up the good work. Congratulations, Pat! You did a fine job.

Exams, exams—a rose by any other name would smell as sweet (or be as much work at any rate.) But remember, you have the rest of this week to get in those practices for class games.

President To Speak To Danville Jaycees

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster will speak to members and guests of the Danville Junior Chamber of Commerce at their Twelfth Annual Founder's Day Banquet Wednesday, January 17. The banquet will be held in the Hotel Danville Ballroom.

Mr. Fred T. Bridges, Jr., will act as toastmaster for the banquet. The invocation will be read by Dr. John K. Roberts, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Danville. Mr. Sidney D. Peck, president of the Danville Jaycees will welcome and introduce guests, afterwhich Mr. Willie S. Bass will give a "Report for the Year 1950."

Dr. Lancaster, the evening's speaker, will be introduced by Dr. John C. Simpson, president of Stratford college. The program will be terminated by the presentation of the Distinguished Achievemnt Award by the Jaycees.

No Rotunda

Due to the examination period, there will be no Rotundas published January 24 or January 31. The next Rotunda will be issued February 7, under the direction of Mary Jo Smith, managing editor.

Juke Box Dance

A juke box dance sponsored by the business and editorial staffs of the Rotunda will be held Saturday night in the main recreation hall.

The dance will be held from 8 until 12 p.m. and admission to the dance will be ten cents per person.

Local Artists Display Work In Library Browsing Room

11 From Farmville Include Paintings

Paintings and pastels by local artists are now on display in the browsing room of the College Library. The exhibit will remain up until Wednesday, January 31.

The exhibit represents 11 Farmville artists. These artists are among a group which meets on Friday evenings with Mrs. Shelton Whitaker.

The display, which includes landscapes, still life, and other forms of painting, was unveiled last Wednesday at a meeting of the Farmville Woman's Club.

Among the artists contributing to the exhibit are Mrs. George Johnson, Mr. H. L. Ranson, Mrs. Jack Bruce, Mrs. John W. Molnar, Mrs. H. V. Lancaster, Dr. John G. Graziani, and Mrs. E. H. Paulson.

Also included in the display are paintings by Mrs. Mary Ellen Chapman, Mrs. Shelton Whitaker, Mrs. Mary Crawley, and Mr. James Crawley.

March of Dimes

history. "All of us have a special interest in the disease right here at school. Polio can strike anywhere. Next time it might strike one of you," said Dr. Schlegel who contracted the dread disease himself at the age of one. Wytheville, he pointed out, the starting point of the March of Dimes campaign, is an excellent example of the devastating effects of a polio epidemic. Of prime importance to a polio victim, Dr. Schlegel emphasized the need for proper social adjustment. Aside from the mental and physicial rehabilitation, the convalescent must learn to live among people who cannot know his past experiences, and people who are unwisely solicitous.

Having been stricken by polio ten years before Roosevelt began the March of Dimes. Dr. Schlegel was also mindful of the ignorance of the past. "I remember our old family doctor didn't even know what was wrong," he said. Crutches and braces have been improved and the Sister Kenny treatment has prevented distortions caused by binding.

Another past polio victim, Jan Van Horn, was enthusiastic and willing to give her opinions about the campaign. Stricken at the age of fifteen, she remembers vividly the mental and physical reactions produced by polio. "Everytime I go where they're collecting, I feel as if I should give as much as I can possibly scrape together for the unfortunate ones," sh said, "for I was so lucky. You know, when God helps you, you want to help the rest of the world." Could the outstretched hand say more?

Hour To Present Sophomore Talent

Production Songs Will Be Featured

Excerpts from the sophomore production "Quartet" will be featured on the Longwood Hour this Thursday, broadcast over WFLO at 4:30 p. m.

Marjorie Hall, Barbara White, Nancy Lawrence and Sarah McElroy Harvie will star in a resume skit of the Wizard of Oz, according to Barbara Caskey and Joanne Steck, co-directors of the production.

Among the songs featured in this skit will be "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," sung by Sarah Harvie; "If I Only Had A Heart," sung by Nancy Lawrence; "If I Only Had A Brain," sung by Marjorie Hall; and "If I Only Had the Nerve," sung by Barbara White.

"The Merry Old Land of Oz," "Follow the Yellow Brick Road," "We're Off To See the Wizard," and " Ding Dong, the Witch Is Dead" will be sung by the entire group.

Also featured will be Nancy Driskill singing a portion of "Tit-Willow" from the "Mikado," and Betty Collier singing "Can't Help Loving That Man" from "Showboat."

Dean Makes Study With State Group On Financial Aid

Dean William W. Savage is at present working on a study of financial assistance to freshmen in conjunction with the State Claim Cooperation with Colleges of Virginia Congress of Parent Teachers Association.

The statistics concerning financial aid will involve all freshmen enrolled in colleges that are members of the Virginia Association of Colleges.

The information will be compiled into a directory and made available to Virginia high schools colleges, and PTA groups. Tentative publishing date for the directory has been set for next month.

Copies of the booklet may be obtained by interested persons at cost. According to Dean Savage this will be the first directory of this nature published in Virginia

Group to See Fred Waring

A group of Longwood students will journey to Richmond on February 8 to attend the Fred Waring concert being given at the Mosque.

This trip is one of several sponsored each year by Miss Jessie Patterson of the music department. The students who will attend the concert will leave for Richmond immediately after supper that night and will travel on a special chartered bus.

Fred Waring will have all his Pennsylvanians, seventy in number, with him for his performance. In addition to his orchestra, he will bring his famous glee club, his choir, and his specialty performers. In short, the entire cast of his well-known television-radio show will appear with him at the Mosque.

Miss Patterson also announced that a second group will attend the performance of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo to be held at the Mosque on Saturday, February 10.

P-TA Work Shop Will Meet Here

A workshop for the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers, made up of representatives from the various organizations over the state will meet here January 22 through 25. The workshop will be conducted by Dr. Abner Robertson of Richmond who is executive director of this organization.

Mrs. Hunter Barrow of Dinwiddie, president of the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers will assist Dr. Robertson in the directing of the workshop. The meetings of the organization will be held in the Student building.

However, he called the United Nations' action in Korea, "the first effective, collective defense against aggression in the history of the world." He said that one of the primary objectives of the United Nations was the cooperation of the big fellows to prevent aggression in the world.

"Sometimes when you try to prevent a small war, you might start a big one," the speaker said.

Record So Far

He called the career of the United Nations "reasonably successful." For instance, in the case of Rusian troops in Iran, Mr. Hamilton said that the United Nations didn't have forces to make the Russian troops withdraw, but the public debate in the United Nations created world interest in the situation. Russia withdrew her troops.

Two of the principal failures of the United Nations are no control of atomic weapons and lack of military forces, Mr. Hamilton explained.

Then, Korea.

"I think it was the correct thing to do in Korea," he said, "but for one thing, MacArthur sent his troops right up to the Chinese border."

Future Actions

And as for future action against China, Mr. Hamilton said that he thought the most that the United Nations will do is to appeal again to China to cease fire in Korea.

"You cannot compel a great power to do anything,' Mr. Hamilton said.

But just as part of the United Nations moved from Lake Success to its new home in a 39-story skyscraper made of glass in New York City, there are bright hopes for the United Nations

If we stay behind it, perhaps we shall see peace, a higher standard of living, and hope for the people of the world, Mr. Hamilton concluded

Drama Clubs To Give 'As You Desire Me' Murphy Will Play Lead

Director Gives Try-out Results

The cast of the play 'As You Desire Me" to be given in the small auditorium on March 30 and 31 at 8:30 p.m. by the Longwood Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs has been announced by Mr. Alec Finlayson, director, as a result of tryouts which ended Monday night.

The lead, the Strange Lady, is to be played by Anne Murphy. As the eighteen-year-old bride of Bruno, she was caught in the Austrian invasion and lived in a state of complete shock for ten years. Bruno discovers her dancing in Berlin and a long legal case results in which he tries to prove that she is a missing heiress. The plot of the play evolves around the mystery concerning the Strange Lady's indentity.

The part of Carl Salter, a happy-go-lucky but successful writer who falls in love with the Strange Lady, will be played by Charles Talley.

Bruno, the husband of the Strange Lady, is to be portrayed by Bucky Morton.

Understudies will be Doris

Smith Edits Paper In First Tryouts

Tryouts for editor-in-chief, managing editor, business manager, and staff positions for the 1951-'52 newspaper year began with today's issue of the Rotunda. Mary Jo Smith, present managing editor of the paper, is acting as editor-in-chief, with Ginny McLean, present news editor, as managing editor.

Acting as news editor for this week's issue of the Rotunda is sophomore Janet Wiggins. Jean Jinnett and Lou Jamison are heading the feature and sports departments respectively. The position of social editor is being filled by Fifi Carter, while Helen Castros is acting as exchange editor.

Sally Brickman is author of this week's news column; Barbara White, of the humor column; and Betty Jane Stoots of Campus Cogitations. In the business department, Celeste Bishop is serving as manager, Mason Moore head of advertising, and Mary Ann Evans is in charge of circulation.

Tryouts will continue during the month of February, during which time members of the staff who have signed up with the editors may try out for any position they desire. Each person trying out for a new position will assume the regular duties of that position for one week. Members of the student body who are interested in newspaper work may write or learn to write for the editorial staff or work on the business staff of the paper simply by speaking to any member of the Rotunda.

General Secretary Of Peace Union To Speak Thurs.

World Citizenship Will Be Discussed

On February 8 Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, General Secretary of the Church Peace Union (a Carnegie endowment), will speak at assembly on a topic pertinent to the world situation, "World Citizenship—East and West." The talk will be based on his personal experiences during thirty years of travel over a large part of the world.

Dr. Atkinson is an authority on world affairs. He has just returned from an extended visit in Europe where he met with a number of leaders in conferences in France and Switzerland.

The speaker is a Californian by birth and was formerly a professor of sociology at the Atlanta Seminary. He has traveled extensively throughout the world. From 1919 up to the outbreak of World War II he spent practically six months of each year in Europe developing the World Alliance, visiting established councils, and forming new points of contact with the religious and educational institutions of many countries. In 1929 and 1930 he traveled extensively through India, Burma, and the Far East.

Dr. Atkinson is a world figure in the field of international relations as well as a leader in the effort to preserve and strengthen our national unity. His comprehensive picture of European thought regarding the current international crisis should enable him to enlighten all who hear him speak.

Rev. Evans Will Speak To Students Next Week

To Lead College In Religion Week

The Reverend F. H. Evans, guest speaker for Religious Emphasis Week, will be welcomed to the Longwood campus by the faculty and students on Monday February 12, with an informal reception in the student lounge.

Throughout the coming week Dr. Evans will expand the topic, "The Future Is In Your Hands." He will speak to the student body in chapel Tuesday, and in assembly on the following Thursday. Dr. Evans will also be holding discussion groups in the Student Lounge Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 7 p. m., and a study group in the Y' Lounge on Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 p. m.

Attend W. & L.

Born in Amherst, Virginia, Dr. Evans has attended Washington and Lee University and George Washington University. He served with the United States Army Ambulance Service and with the French Army in the First World War, and later held a position with the government in Washington.

Dr. Evans was graduated from the Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, Virginia, in 1924, and took another year at Union Seminary in New York. He has been rector of St. Paul's Memorial Church in Charlottesville, Virginia, since September 1947.

He has also served as rector of churches in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, New Haven, Connecticut, and Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

Dr. Evans will be entertained in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster during his stay on campus. He will be available for individual conferences as desired by the students.

Old Faithful Views Tryouts With Experience, Knowledge

by 'LITTLE' SMITH

For years now I've been sitting here in this same spot (oh, I get pushed from the desk to the floor and from the floor to the desk, but it's all the same), and I've seen enough people come and go from this cluttered publications office to write a small sized history.

Yes, I've seen them come, throw their cigarettes, coke bottles and old copy around me for four years, pound on me till my poor ribbon is literally in shreds then leave without even a farewell peck on my battered ole keys. It's usually the same old story — fresh, bright-eyed, eager freshman start bounding into the office early in the year, and boy, do they give me a beating—most of them don't know their asdfg's from their ikph's.

With a gleam in her eye and an ulterior motive, the one who signs her name editor-in-chief surreptiously invites these young journalist-aspirants to "come down and work with us on Tuesday night" and those who respond to this call really get initiated into the world of journalism with a bang. You've never heard such a racket. They seem to disregard the English language entirely on those chaotic nights and adopt a patois familiar to themselves. 'Give me a 2-24 lead with a 2-14 drop and be sure to bold that sub!" the one called editor will scream. "I've proofed the galley, but I can't think of an ear," another one of these maniacs will complain and all the while they cuss me and threaten me and flick ashes in my mechanics and spill coke all over my worn platen.

The bright-eyed newcomers always leave from their first Tuesday night bout with a glassy stare and dazed expression, but in a couple of weeks, they're usually back spouting off the same yiddish with studied casualness.

As soon as the March sun starts steaming in the windows and warming up my clammy keys, I start expecting some drastic changes, 'cause I've been around here long enough to realize that before long I'll be losing some of my four-year old belaborers. The departing ones suddenly assume a sad "has-been" attitude and treat me with a new-found tenderness. But the remaining ones—whew! They begin to adopt an awed expression that is often tinged with a note of fear, and they begin to pound on me like I were a healthy young Royal portable.

I'm expecting that change pretty soon now, and while I really will miss the old ones (I've

Jones, Mahood Will Reign As May Queen, Maid of Honor Over 1951 Spring Festival

CHARLOTTE KING JONES who will reign as queen of the 1951 May Day festivities.

ROMINE MAHOOD who will serve as maid-of-honor to the 1951 May Queen.

Polka To Be Theme Of Annual Pageant

Charlotte K. Jones, senior from Salem, will reign as queen of the 1951 May Day celebration at Longwood College, according to an announcement by Hilda Lewis and Marian Higgs, co-chairmen of the annual festival. Romine Mahood, senior from Emporia, will serve as Charlotte's maid of honor.

The May Day queen and her maid of honor were elected by the student body after the presentation of candidates February 1. A court of sixteen Longwood beauties was chosen at the same time.

Senior Members

Representing the senior class on the May Day court will be Sue Brewbaker from Roanoke, Betsy Gravely from Martinsville, Ann Kemp from Richmond, Ann Lynch from Tazewell, Frances Minter from Axton, Issae Velasquez from Ponee, Puerto Rico, and Charlotte Williams from Richmond.

Junior members of this bevy of beauties will be Ann Motley from Sharps, Jean Ridenour from Richmond, and Frances Turner from Cheriton.

From the sophomore class will come Kitty Hamlet from South Hill, Ann Murphy from Danville, Margaret Steele from Roanoke, and Margaret Taylor from Suffolk.

The freshman class will be represented on the May Day court by Margaret S. Jones from Norfolk and Sylvia Reames from Petersburg.

Polka Theme

The 1951 May Day pageant will be presented on Saturday, May 5, in the amphitheater at the College Estate. The theme of the 1951 festivities will be centered about the polka, its history and forms.

Miss Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education, is faculty advisor to the May Day pageant.

The annual May Day dance will be presented in the College gymnasium on Saturday night following the pageant. Orchesis, the campus modern dance society, will present the dance which will feature a figure by the May Day queen, her maid-of-honor, and her court.

Connelly Chosen As A A E Princess

Will Represent LC At Engineering Meet

Helen Connelly, senior from Blacksburg, has been chosen to represent Longwood College on a court of princesses at the Second Annual Engineering Conference of the Association for the Advancement of Engineering of Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

The conference is to be held in Blacksburg on the VPI campus February 23 and 24. It will terminate in a ball featuring the coronation of a queen to be selected from the court of princesses.

The court of princesses will represent the various women's colleges in the state of Virginia.

Helen is a member of the Cotillion Club, Pi Delta Epsilon, and the Association of Childhood Education. She is business manager of the Rotunda and president of her social sorority, Kappa Delta.

Student Body Hears Dr. Ruskin's Speech In Assembly Tuesday

Dr. John W. Ruskin, minister of the Belmont Methodist Church, Nashville, Tennessee, was the speaker at the assembly held yesterday, February 6. His talk, "How Do You Meet Emergencies" was in connection with the Religious Emphasis Week being held at the Methodist Church Monday through Friday of this week.

Dr. Ruskin is a native Georgian and the son of a Methodist ministery in Va. He was minister of the famous Mt. Vernon Place Methodist Church for fourteen years. Last year he went to Nashville, Tennessee to become the minister of Belmont Methodist Church.

This church is located near the campuses of Vanderbilt and Peabody Universities. He has, therefore, had a great deal of experience with college students and is in great demand as a speaker on college campuses.

Dr. Ruskin will be speaking at the Methodist Church every evening this week at 7:45, and all students are cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Juniors Set Ticket Sale For Thursday

Tickets for the Junior dance to be held in the College gymnasium February 17 from 8 to 12 p. m. will be sold to Juniors and seniors on Thursday and Friday, February 8 and 9. They will go on sale to the rest of the student body Monday before the dance. Stag tickets are priced at $2.40 and drag tickets at $1.20.

Pete Weaver and his band, the Virginians, of Emporia, will play for the dance, according to May Henry Sadler, music chairman. Members of the class sponsoring the dance will receive favors during the evening.

Under consideration by the students of Longwood is a proposal made by the junior class for raising money for the March of Dimes at the dance. It has been suggested that the girls ask their dates to contribute a dollar to the drive rather than buy a corsage. In place of flowers, they will receive a souvenir hand or wrist corsage. The proposal has been put in question form to the student body. Next week's issue of the Rotunda will carry the results.

A party for Juniors and their dates will be held at the Longwood Estate after the dance. The Longwood Combo will provide music for the party and a plate planned by Miss Grace Moran, will be served to the couples. The plate will consist of ham biscuits, chicken salad sandwiches, cheese roll and crackers, hors doeuvres, mexican wedding cake and fruit punch.

Hour To Give Music Appreciation Series

The Longwood Hour over WFLO will present for the coming eight weeks a series of music appreciation programs. The programs, under the direction of Dr. Molnar, began last week when the Polovetzian Dances of Borodin were played.

This week at 4:30 the first movement of Shubert's Unfinished Symphony will be presented. After the eight week series the Longwood Hour will be extended from fifteen minutes to a half-hour.

Conduct of Students Forces New Ruling

No student will be allowed assembly cuts based on his average, according to an announcement by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster at the last chapel period. Only those students presenting their reasons to Dr. Lancaster before being absent will be excused.

Dr. Lancaster, speaking to a small representation of the Longwood student body, said that he felt it was fundamentally important that a student body meet together at least once a week. This, he said, is not a method of punishment for non-attendance, rather a way to insure at least one weekly meeting of Longwood students.

Think of The Future...

Next week is Religious Emphasis Week. This has a rather foreign sound to many of us. To others it means just another speaker at assembly on Thursday.

But it is much more than this. And this year it should have a very special significance to all of us. The theme for the week is "The Future Is In Your Hand." When thought about seriously, it is of a necessity realized that the future is in our hands.

What are we going to do about it? Certainly, thinking about it and getting advice such as will be so freely offered by our fine speaker, Reverend F. H. Evans, can be most helpful in enabling us to make decisions as to just what we can and should be doing.

Throughout the week Mr. Evans will be holding bull sessions and discussions for our benefit, and to help us in that all important job of preparing for and facing the future. We feel sure we speak for the entire student body when we extend a sincere welcome and thanks to Mr. Evans.

He will challenge us. Perhaps he can be of real help to us, and he certainly will want to be. So bring him your problems. Be doing some 'future' thinking in preparation for next week. Let's give him and our 'Y' your support by giving ourselves the benefit of every one of the meetings and discussions.

Cuts Cut...

The placid, rather self-satisfied student body of Longwood College received quite a jolt when they heard reports of Dr. Lancaster's announcement at the last regular assembly. Those students that weren't there to hear it first hand, that is. Excessive cutting made it necessary to make attendance altogether compulsory, with NO cuts allowed, to get students to meet together once a week for a program that could prove beneficial to them, if they only permit it.

Part of our money is spent each week by the College in an attempt to bring an interesting speaker or program here. Still Longwood students are complaining—why must we listen to boring speakers—perhaps those speakers wouldn't be nearly so boring if students would listen with two ears rather than one. After all, we the future citizens, should be willing to learn something about the world in which we live.

True, not all will agree that a "no cut" regulation will do the job, and for good reasons. There were those students who didn't take cuts, but simply walked in one door and out the other. There may continue to be skips, too; how well can regulations stop this practice? Some felt they were lucky to cut more than twice and still not "get caught" because the checking wasn't thorough enough. Will the checking become more efficient? If not, students will go right on missing assembly and the new regulation can have little effect. All in all, it will be left up to the student to show that he can revive himself and show that he is willing to learn through programs provided for his benefit. Let's wise up and show that we're alive and mature enough to be trusted with cuts .

Lend a Hand...

At a meeting of the junior class to discuss the coming festivities, a suggestion was made that instead of receiving a corsage for the dance, each girl carry a souvenir hand bouquet or wrist corsage provided by the junior class. The girls would ask their dates to contributea dollar of the money he would have spent for flowers to the March of Dimes drive. In many places this year, the goals set have not nearly been reached; Longwood is no exception.

What student could go to the dance Saturday night, knowing that he had done something very worthy, and not have a much better time? Here's chance to combine fun and frivolity with an important work. Let the Juniors know Longwood students are all for it, and then look forward to a special week end.

Letter of Introduction

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to introduce to the students of Longwood and to their fellow countrymen a noteworthy visitor who has travelled extensively throughout the United States and Europe. Oddly enough, this visitor has been with us for nearly a year, but, as yet has remained unrecognized or unadmitted.

At Longwood this September, our Visitor was as yet unknown to the majority of the students. He arrived with the students, and, as time wore on, his dominant personality influenced the actions of many without their knowledge. The students, however, began to show the effects of this stranger's presence. On the radio, news commentators gained importance over music programs.

Students listened to the progress of the Korean war, trying to understand. They followed the program of draft bills with concern written on their faces, and winced at the increased numbers who were leaving home as a result of an act of Congress.

After Christmas, we returned to school to find our friends married or engaged to boys destined for the draft or Korea. There was an air of frantic, hurried living pervading our lives. To many, this meant short engagements; to others it meant immediate marriage. The Visitor was hard at work. Now there was a suggestion of escaping our surroundings—more movies, dazzling week ends, faster parties—false hilarity.

At the same time, our Visitor was at work in homes and in Washington. Men were seeking for someone other than themselves to blame for the bloodshed and confusion. Truman was the most obvious and erring scapegoat. Others lost confidence in MacArthur and whisper campaigns ran rampant.

Taft and Hoover reflected the influence of our Visitor in another way. They advocated isolationism. Withdraw, they cried, from another inevitable war. Take refuge behind our own defenses. Make America a Gibralta and to hell with the rest of the world.

There was no defense, however, against the Visitor working day and night in the minds of people. Atom bomb was pitted against Atom bomb. Rumors sprang up about hoarding. The House Un-American Activities worked overtime; the "subversive list" grew. At the attempt to assassinate Truman, there was no stopping our Visitor.

In a letter of introduction, it is also necessary to include the subjects's hopes for the future. His power over the minds of men abated before their confidence in Eisenhower. Once, in San Francisco, this Visitor had weakened considerably. His power lies in his ability to dominate the minds, the emotions, and the actions of all men. His work is insidiously thorough. His enemy is faith in God and man and personal self-confidence. His name is — FEAR.

SALLY BRICKMAN

Hello Joe

by BARBARA WHITE

Dear Comrades,

I am making my weekly report to the Kremlin from that great American institution, Longwood College. I am getting along very well, but there is so much that I do not understand. I have succeeded in undermining the morale of three fourths of this college by giving ukuleles to the other fourth. It is driving them crazy! Nobody works now: they just play and sing the Tennessee Waltz, which is first on the Hit Parade—whatever that is.

How they grade here in America! It is completely beyond my comprehension. If a student does well, he gets an A or B; if not, he gets a D or F. Why? In Russia when one does well, he is rewarded with a picture of Stalin; otherwise, Siberia. A picture of the Dean might be an incentive to deserving Longwood students!

Saturday night the Freshmen gave a "Sing." The name Freshmen doesn't mean a thing. They aren't fresh and they aren't men. In the "Sing" there was no singing. These Americans!

In vain I have endeavored to teach the students Communism. But no! All they want to do is save their money and have a college of their own someday where there will be neither studying nor examinations, and three or four Hampden - Sydneys. However, I shall not give up, O Comrade!

Everyone is terribly upset about assembly "cuts." It seems that no one will be allowed to "cut" anymore. I don't know why they want to "cut" this thing called assembly. Generally bloodshed is so uncommon here. I am anxiously waiting to see what will happen.

Two of the classes here are showing some signs that are most favorable. They are wearing Red. Often they have mass meetings and sing songs about the mighty color.

This is all the news for this week. I hope to report more progress very soon, and I beg that the Kremlin consider carefully my important position in influencing important people before further considering me for the Salt Mines.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

Campus Cogitations

Question: Would you like to carry a souvenir corsage to the Junior Dance in place of the usual flowers and have your date donate a dollar to the March of Dimes? (Refer to editorial)

Bobbie Roby: Yes, I think it's a wonderful idea.

Joyce Cheatham: The March of Dimes campaign is worth more than a corsage of red roses, even though I would like to have one.

Ginny Wentz: Sure, I'm willing.

Adrian Jennings: Yes.

Joyce Hamlet: Give to the March of Dimes.

Virginia Petts: Contribute to the March of Dimes.

Lucy Jane Morton: A noble idea, I assure you.

Ginny McLean: The money would be doing a lot of good where otherwise it would be wasted.

Mary Denny Wilson: Yes, I think it is a great idea for a worthy cause.

Sylvia Reames: Yes, I would.

Sue Oliver: I think it's an excellent idea.

Dot Reed: If a girl has to have a corsage, he shouldn't mind giving money for the cause anyway.

Lee Wingfield: Why not give a less expensive corsage and contribute to the cause, too.

Mary Ann Oliver: I like Lee's idea.

Mary Palmer: Sacrifice anything for the March of Dimes; we know how much it helps other people, maybe us, someday.

Margaret McGuire: I think so, still an orchid is mighty pretty.

Maxine Dize: I think its one of the best ideas I've ever heard.

Dolly Lonas: I think it's a good idea for the money would go for a much better cause.

Nancy Woolridge: I think anyone would be more than glad to sacrifice a corsage for such a wonderful cause.

Liz Stone: Sounds OK to me.

Advent of New Semester Inspires New Resolutions

by JEAN JINNETT

You know, every year around January 1, most of us sit down with pen in hand and write out a long list of resolutions (all of which we promptly proceed to break). Well, sit back, comrades, and unfold those monstrous ears of yours, because I've had what you call a real 'brain' storm. I've decided to make myself some new semester resolutions.

It all started when grades came out, see? Take it from me, there's absolutely nothing quite as depressing as to ramble nonchalantly around to the P. O. (No need to hurry — brains like you always make the Dean's List.) Well, like I started to say, I pulled out that document of all documents, and was I in for a big surprise! Holy Cow! 'D' on history; 'D' on English; 'D' on psychology; 'A' on speech (I practiced that darned northern accent enough!); and 'C' on modern dance (I never could manage to create much except a disturbance).

My first impression of this revolting development was that someone must be trying to play a joke on me—Incidentally, that, in my opinion is an extremely feeble attempt at humor. However, being acquainted with the efficiency of our registrar's office, I became disgustedly aware that these revoltingly depressing grades represented one semester's work for me at dear old Longwood.

"So," you say, "What am I trying to prove?" Well, I'll tell ya, I'm not writing this because I feel sorry for myself (Which I do — extremely), but because I want you to see what neglect and too much play can do to a person of normal intelligence (and I do mean normal).

Yes sir, boys! I'm severing, for the time being, all connections with the Hose Club, S. P. N. S., Third Floor Annex Choir, and all other inspiring extra curricular nonsense until I make some decent grades, and I'd strongly advise you to do the same.

From here on in, my schedule goes like this: when you've finished classes, start your homework; when you've finished that (if anyone ever happens to), get to work on those extra curricular activities. Allow one-half hour per day for ukelele practice and fifteen minutes for Tea Room or Snack Bar. There are 24 hours in a day—this schedule takes care of 32 of them. Of course, eating, sleeping, etc., will take care of a small part of this leisure. Then, if you have any time left, (a normal, well-rounded, efficient person should have approximately 11 hours per day remaining unused), I highly recommend that you begin studying for next June's exams.

Sportin' Around

by LOU JAMISON

The time has come for all good men to come to the aid of their class. Shortly after March 9, class games will begin, and from the looks of things, there won't be many people playing. What's wrong girls? All you need is eight little practices to play on your class team. Now there is only one short month left to get those practices, so get on the (volley) ball! The times you can practice have been listed on the A. A. bulletin board in great big letters. Just take a glance the next time you go to the post office; then came down to the gym. We'll be waiting for you with open arms.

This Friday we're in for a treat! We get to see our basketball team play Madison College — and beat them we hope — right in our own gym. Let's all come down to cheer for our girls.

Is there anyone in all of Longwood College who is interested in sports and writing too? I guess this is like asking for a ten-pound gold brick or something equally unreasonable. I'm sure all of you girls who are interested in sports would feel very much "put out" if you were to read a Rotunda without any mention of sports in it. Right now we have a situation facing us that might turn out to be as bad as that. We have offered and are offering you girls the opportunity to speak through your paper — the opportunity to put the sports articles in the paper that you think belong there. All that has happened concerning this is that the sport staff has been ignored up to now.

It takes very little effort and time to write one article a week. If you'd like to see more and better sports stories in the Rotunda, put forth the ability you have and write them. I should be only too happy to have any girl who is really interested in this write articles for the paper and eventually become a member of the sport staff. (editor's note: This goes double for the boys!)

Men Pledge Honor Code

Approve Changes In Constitution

The Men's Student Government gave its new Honor Code full support recently by each of its members affixing his signature to the document. This is the culmination of months of effort to develop a functioning honor system among the male students of Longwood College. After much deliberation, the honor code committee, with the cooperation of Dr. C. G. G. Moss and two representatives from the Women's Student Government, decided that the men should accept the women's Honor Code excluding the social restrictions.

In a recent meeting, the Men's Student Government approved several changes in its constitution and the ratification of the Honor Council to be composed of the members of the Executive Council.

CHURCH NEWS

Westminster Fellowship

The Westminster Fellowship held their monthly dinner at Hampden-Sydney Sunday night. Samuel Brust, a Brazilian student at the Union Theological Seminary, in Richmond was their guest speaker.

Wesley Foundation

Mr. Paul Howard, medical student at the University of Virginia, will talk to the Wesley Foundation at their meeting on Sunday night. His topic will be "Prayer and Christian Beliefs."

Beginning a series of sermons on Courtship and Marriage, Rev. Myers spoke last Sunday night on Dating. The sermon gave points on dating and the stages of development of the people who are dating. That each date should be planned well was a main point brought out in the talk.

This series will continue for the next three weeks.

BSU

The Baptists are observing Vocational Emphasis Week at this time. Bringing to a close a series of meetings pertaining to this subject will be a panel forum on Thursday at 7 p.m. led by Lucille Peak, student director, Mrs. Rosa Inge, and Miss Annie Torrence.

The subjects under discussion will be teaching, secretarial work, homemaking, and full time religious work. All of this is to be climaxed by a Life Commitment Service on Sunday, February 11 at the regular 8 o'clock worship service in the Baptist Church. It will be conducted by Rev. Bruner.

Canterbury Club

The Canterbury Club had as their speaker for Sunday night, Miss Catherine Barnaby, who has just returned from missionary work in China.

Longwood Library Exhibits Costume Of 19th Century

The Longwood College library is holding an exhibit of nineteenth century costumes in illustrations. The exhibit, a loan by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, is being held in the Browsing Room from February first through fourteenth. Two prints are also on display in the Rotunda.

In the latter part of the eighteenth century, France had become the fashion center of the world and also a center of social upheaval culminating in the French Revolution. Throughout the changing years which followed the Revolution there were also changes in fashion. The different costumes reflected the changing ideas and conditions of the nineteenth century.

In 1789, the year of the Revolution, severity was shown in dress. During the directory, the last five years of the eighteenth century, a little grace was added to the simplicity. Fashion showed an extravagance under the empire of Napoleon; and with the fall of Napoleon and the return of the exiled nobility, a return of the old fashions and ideas resulted. During the reign of Louis Philippe, the romantic movement influenced the fashion in which vanity and exaggeration were the keynote. The last of the monarchic styles was at its height during the second Empire when fashion tried to equal the grandeur of the first Empire.

An interest was lost in fashion during the Franco-Prussian War in 1870; and when the interest revived, more emphasis was put on the individual. The costume reflected the intellectual and financial advancement of the lower classes. In the last of the century, with the growing importance of women in world activities, there was a demand for utility in costumes.

The fashion prints are of all the changing fashions. Depicted are the extravagant coiffures, the full evening dress and the street dress of the reign of Marie Antionette. Also included are the mourning dress, the archery dress, the hunting dress, the riding habit, the dress for visiting a dentist, the bathing costume, and other unusual outfits plus the more usual street and evening clothes of the century.

Registrar Announces Seven Attain All A's

Seven students hold a straight A record for the fall semester, according to a report by Virgilia I. Bugg, registrar.

Those students are Celeste Wise Bishop, Danville; Vera Marie Bryant, Boykins; James Edward Orange, Farmville; Carolyn Stokes Overby, Chatham, Virginia Mildred Spencer, Scottsville; Mary Patricia Tuggle, Wytheville; and Janet Maragret Wiggins, Arlington.

Pioneers to Battle Medicos On Richmond Court Tonight To Meet Danville VPI Thurs.

Longwood Varsity To Meet Madison

Girls' Team Seeks Defeat Of Rivals

Longwood College varsity basketball team will meet players from Madison in the school's gymnasium at 4 p. m. Friday, February 9.

Although last year's varsity was successful over Lynchburg and Roanoke colleges, they were defeated by the Madison team. The strength of this year's team is reported to be as great or greater than last year's. With the aid of high scorer Pat Sanford, the Longwood girls hope to be able to put a stop to Madison's winning streak.

At the game, a silver offering will be taken up. This offering will be turned over, by the Women's Athletic Association, to the March of Dimes drive being extended into the month of February. Since Longwood did not obtain the goal set for this year, some of the college organizations have planned programs to raise the total contributions of the students and faculty members.

A men's varsity game to be played in the near future will also collect a silver offering to be contributed to the campaign. Mr. Raymond French, chairman of the drive on campus, has urged that all students attend the games and contribute to the March of Dimes.

Orange, Overbey Retire From Squad

The Pioneers will face the Medical College Medicos tonight on their opponent's court in Richmond. In view of the upset in the previous game with the Medicos on the Longwood court, the outlook tonight is not considered bright, according to many of the players. However, the recent defeat of the Medicos by the Hampden-Sydney Tigers 92-54 and the increased skill of the Pioneer team boost the hopes for a chance at victory. Until the upset by the Tigers, the Longwood team has been the only team to hold the Medicos down to less than eighty points.

The Pioneers will challenge the V.P.I. Extension at Danville on the Longwood court Thursday night. This is their first clash with the Danville team.

The Longwood Pioneers will clash with the Farmville Town Team next Thursday on the Longwood court with the gate receipts going for the Polio Fund. Their recent encounter with the Farmville team resulted in a close win for the Pioneers. Last year the Farmville team made a comeback from their loss to the Pioneers with a win over the Pioneers before the season was ended. This game should show whether they can do the same thing this year.

The Pioneers suffered a loss in the retiring of their co-captain center, Ned Orange and forward, Bill Overbey. Both had to retire from the game for the present because of circumstances beyond their control.

No Dust Collecting In P.O. Box 168! Fascinating Mail, Packages Instead

"It's 9 a. m. and my post office box is, as usual, crammed to the hilt—ahhh—it's wonderful to be a newspaper." No student at Longwood ever receives such a fistful of mail as that deposited daily in Box 168, the Rotunda's own private box. And such a variety of letters, papers, circulars, packages, etc. Never a dull moment for the lucky editor who gets to open the Rotunda's daily quota.

Why just yesterday a dynamic statement from Capitol Publications Inc., assured us that "The record business is assured of a banner year in 1951," and a magazine agency confided to us that it offered the lowest priced magazines subscriptions in the U. S. Exciting, isn't it?

The Committee for Economic Development sent us an exciting account of its past, present and future last week—If anyone has any idea just what this fascinating committee is, please let the editors know—this scintillating bit of info got filed in that round cabinet on the floor in the publications office before we got to wondering.

A beautiful glossy print of the latest thing in cleats for football shoes was sent us perfectly free and gratis just yesterday—it's really beautiful—drop around to the office and see it sometime. It seems these cleats (we read this one) are a radical improvement which will insure the player of better getaway, greater maneuverability, and surer stops. Reckon we ought to order some for the Longwood eleven?

Our old friend, the temperance clipsheet, a weekly visitor in Box 168 informs us that "the effect sought and found from the use of beer is due to ethyl alcohol, and nothing else." Such pertinent facts as these brighten all our dreary days.

"The Linotype News" came forth with the startling announcement that the Frederick (Okla.) Leader has just completed installation of a new Master Model 32 Linotype. With such vital communiquies life just wouldn't be the same.

These interesting tidbits are just a sample of the pertinent information that can be gleaned from the Rotunda box alone. A careful reading would prove to be an education in itself.

Eight Finish Work Toward Degrees

To Return In June For Graduation

Eight students are listed a February graduates according to Virginia I. Begg, registrar. These students have completed the study necessary for their Bachelor degrees and will return to Longwood to receive their diplomas at the Spring graduation exercises.

Denie Calvo from Mayaguez Puerto Rico completed her work toward a B.S. in education wit a major in physical education. Denise plans to return to Puerto Rico now that her work is completed. John Randall Cook from Crewe also finished the study necessary for a B.S. in education with a major in English. John was on leave of absence from the N. & W. while getting his education. He has returned to them until next fall when he plans to begin his teaching.

Ruth Gills of Ballsville completed her courses for a B.S. in business education. She is now working for the army in Bloomington, Indiana. Rena Mae Hayes Patterson finished the required work for her B.S. in education with a dual major in history and social studies. Mrs. Patterson is now teaching in Norfolk county

Another student terminating her work for a B.S. in business education was Geraldine Huckstep of Gasburg. Geraldine is now teaching commercial courses at Averett College. Danville Martha Kitchen from Suffolk finished her course toward a B.S. in education with a major in English. Martha is now teaching the second grade in Alexandria.

Also listed with the February graduates is Mrs. Minnie Pridgen from Farmville. She completed her work toward a B. S. in education with a major in physical education and is now at home in Charlotte Court House. Lester Smallwood of Boydton concluded his work for a B. S. in education with a major in math. Lester was called into the Navy immediately after completing his study.

President's Council Plans For Dedication

At their regular meeting last Friday, the Presidents Council discussed plans for the dedication of our new flag.

Planned for the near future is a service which will begin with a call to attention by a bugler. After the raising of the flag, which will take place of the old one over the rotunda, the entire student body will give the pledge of allegiance and sing The Star Spangled Banner.

The College also has a new flag to be used for special occasions on the pole on the front lawn of Ruffner Hall.

The council also decided to change the manner in which entertainment is presented at the birthday dinners. Beginning with the President in February, each class will have charge of the entertainment for one dinner. The class president will appoint an entertainment committee and this committee will work with Jean Carter Watkins, who is in charge of dinner room music.

Alumnae Secretary Attends Convention At Duke University

Mrs. Ruth Coyner, alumnae secretary, recently attended a meeting of District Three of the American Alumnae Council in Durnam, N. C. Duke University was host to the three day conference at which representatives of the colleges and universities of Virginia, North Caroina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, and Kentucky discussed problems and alumnae work in general. Special consideration was given to the keeping of office records, publishing a magazine, organizing clubs, and raising funds. While in Durham, Mrs. Coyner met with about fifteen Longwood alumnae for a social in the home of a former Longwoodite, Miss Evelyn Barnes, assistant to the Dean of Women at Duke.

Mrs. Coyner announced that she plans to visit the High Schools of Mathews and Gloucester counties February 8 to speak to students interested in Longwood. While in Gloucester county, she will also attend a meeting of the local alumnae chapter being held that Thursday.

New Chapter Organized

Longwood alumnae of Northern Neck, Virginia, rcently met to organize an alumnae chapter for their area. Officers of this newly organized chapter are president ,Mrs. Robert B. Delano, of Warsaw; vice-president, Mrs. John P. Beale of Kinsale; secretary, Miss Helen Hardin of Tappahannock; treasurer, Mrs. Paul Welch of Downings; and historian, Mrs. Arthur Packett of Warsaw.

Officers Elected

At their last meeting the Culpepper Alumnae Chapter elected new officers. They are Mrs. R. E. Jones, president; vice-president, Miss Kate Perry; secretary, Mrs. R. E. Fincham; and treasurer, Miss Mary G. Bolen.

The Martinsville Alumnae Chapter also has a slate of newly elected officers. They elected Mrs. W. M. Shaw, president and Mrs. J. F. Hodnett, secretary.

The husband of Mrs. Dan Sharpe, past president of the Raleigh, North Carolina Alumnae Chapter, has been called back into service. Mrs. Sharpe and her two children have gone to Arkansas to be with Capt. Sharpe at Camp Chaffee. Mrs. R. A. March will fill the vacancy left by Mrs. Sharpe by serving as president of the Raleigh chapter until their spring election.

The author, Pirandello, won the Nobel Prize in 1943 for his outstanding work in literature. According to critics, his plays seem fragmentary or experimental at first but reveal their solid substance on closer study; they survive after their novelty has worn off because there is always enough human passion, heart, and blood in them to carry the speculative burden with which they are weighed. "As You Desire Me" is a brilliant attempt to find a statement and a form for presenting some of the more illusive psychological and philosophical questions so peculiarly a part of our modern intellectual world.

Tickets for the play will be $.45, $.60, and $1.00, and may be purchased at the door.

Frosh Portray Tribulations Of Exam-Hounded Students

by JOANNE STECK

Yes sir, boys! The Frosh came forth again Saturday night with their various and sundry talents to the stage, to make a terrific hit of their annual competitive sing. Their originality and cleverness were really unique (if that's the word for it), and the Sophs, Juniors and Seniors will have to scratch their graying heads to beat them, cause you know the winner will receive five dollars.

The first scene portrayed the state of mind and body of the average student on the night before exams — playing canasta, reading love stories, playing the uke., etc. — anything, in fact, to put off studying. And then there was the "brain" who poured over her books—the typical brain who practically chewed, swallowed, and completely digested every book she owned plus some odd thousands composition books full of notes.

The next day—a view of the classroom, and an example (sorry to say) of what is probably the typical teacher. There was the usual confusion of everyone scrambling through her books to find out whatcha shoulda known in the first place. The brain, calm and reserved, sat confidently through this turmoil on account of she already knew it all.

Then—the final blow! In the last scene, grades have just come out! Such screams of delight and joy as never before experienced, cause you see, all made the Dean's List—that is, all except the brain.

Only thing fishy about the entire skit—the moral of the thing, — that he who studies never passes. This is not always true. You see, I've found out that knowing a little bit about what's in them thar books helps sometimes, whether you realize it or not. It don't always pay to trust your luck too far. Nevertheless, congrats to Frances Marker and the entire freshman class for a fine piece of entertainment.

Eight Matriculate For Second Term

Eight new students have enrolled for the second semester here, the Registrar announced this week. There are two seniors and six freshmen. In additon to these eight new students two former day students have entered this semester as boarding students.

The seniors are Mrs. Mary Isley from Hampton who is completing work for her degree in elementary education and Mrs. Ruth Jones Hamilton from Chatham who is returning to Longwood to complete her degree in sociology.

Fresh Transfers

The freshmen transfers include Betty Ryan, a home economics major from Lovingston, who transferred from Mary Washington, and Patricia (Pattie) Redd, a physical education major from Falls Church, who transferred from the University Hospital in Charlottesville where she was in nurse's training.

Among the new freshmen are three transfers from Radford College: Audrey Johnson, a home economic major from Columbia, Betty Jane Newsome, a business major from Lawrenceville, and Emma Wilson, a business major from Staunton.

Fay Greenland is entering as a freshman. She is from Norfolk and graduated from Granby High School there in January.

Martha Alice (Bebe) Wilson, a junior, and Kathleen Gilliam, both former day students, have entered this semester as boarding students.

College Represented

President Dabney S. Lancaster will represent Longwood at the Thirty Seventh Annual Convention of the Association of Virginia Colleges this week end in Roanoke. He will serve on a committee assigned to report on "Financial Barriers to Higher Education for Qualified Virginia High School Graduates."

Topics which will be discussed during the convention are "Improving The Quality of Instruction at College Level," "Educational Testing Service," "Audio-Visual Education at the College Level," and "Status of College Professors."

Coffee To Be Held For New Students

After-dinner coffee will be served tonight after dinner in the student lounge for all new students.

At this informal social given in honor of the new students, coffee, cake, mints, and nuts will be served. The guests will be entertained by Ginny Spencer, Bobbie Pollard, and Ann Burnett.

The guests of honor are: Ruth Jones Hamilton, Mrs. Isley, Betty Jane Newsome, Peggy Hood, Betty Frances Ryan, Audrey Johnson, Patricia Carol Redd, Kathleen Gilliam, Faye Greenland, Emma Wilson, and Bebe Wilson.

Dr. and Mrs. Lancaster will act as host and hostess. They will be assisted by Dean and Mrs. Savage, Miss Gleaves, Mrs. Tibbs, Mrs. Eastham, Miss Hammer, Helen Agnew, Ann Lynch, Bobbie Pollard, Betsy Gravely, Virginia Spencer, and Mary Denny Wilson.

Frosh Give First Competitive Sing

The first annual Competitive Sing was presented by the freshmen last Saturday. Under the direction of Frances Marker, the freshmen started off the class competition by giving a skit sing, a take-off on a typical exam week at Longwood.

Barbara English, Virginia McLaughlin, Liz Browning, and Marilyn Thompson took part in the skit. Also participating were Ellen Porter and Dolly Vaughan.

Sponsored by the 'Y' and under the general Direction of Nell Dalton, ' Sing chairman, the competitive sings will continue for the next three weeks, given by the sophomore, senior, and junior classes, in that order.

Jean Partridge Chairman

The sophomore sing which will be presented this Saturday night will be directed by Jean Partridge who has done much work on the Sophomore class's productions and circuses.

The judges of these sings consist of one member from each class and three faculty members who were selected by the 'Y cabinet.

An award of five dollars will be given to the class whose skit is judged best by the judges.

These Competitive Sings are annually sponsored by the Y.W.-C.A. They are judged for originality, number of participants, presentation, and theme.

Longwood Students Contribute $129 To March of Dimes

The College contributions to the "March of Dimes" have reached a total of $129, as revealed by Mr. Raymond French, head of the drive on the campus.

The drive, which opened on January 15, has been contributed to by the children at the Training School, where a collection of $1.35 has been received to date, Mr. French also pointed out.

In an effort to raise more money for the "March of Dimes," a silver offering will be taken up at the girls basketball game this Friday night, February 9. The boys' team will have a game at a later date and also collect money for this cause.

Although it began during the middle of January, the drive will be continued throughout the month of February because it has fallen behind in so many places.

"I hope that everyone will continue contributing freely to this drive because funds are so badly needed in this state and everywhere," Mr. French urged.

Dr. Evans Leads College In Assembly, Sessions During Religious Week

Speaker Enumerates Qualities of Religion

In the launching of Religious Emphasis Week at Tuesday's chapel, the Rev. F. H. Evans spoke to the student body on the Week's theme, "The Future Is In Your Hands." The rector of St. Paul's Memorial Church, Charlottesville, Va., is the highlight of this year's Religious Emphasis Week at Longwood and was welcomed here at an informal reception Monday evening at 7:00 p.m. The central theme of the week will also be expanded in Dr. Evans' later group discussions.

In Tuesday's speech, Dr. Evans enumerated the essential qualities of religion in human experience; the abilities to live with ourselves, to live with others, and to live in the context of the world. These qualities are found in the two Commandments: "Thou shalt love thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength," and "Thou shalt love thy neighbor." "Losing one of these means becoming narrow and hampered," warned Dr. Evans.

Admits Failures

"When we say to you 'the future is in your hands', we are beinge realistic but presumptious." said Dr. Evans. "It is an admission of my generation's failures."

"Religion is the basic experience of man in his relationship to God and to his fellow men," stated Dr. Evans. One of the failures of religion in this respect is organized religion, a church divided in which we do not even know the difference between the divisions. Such division and ignorance has led to uncertainty and apprehension, and has failed to give us coherent answers. The failure of the Russian Orthodox Church was that it identified itself with the powerful instead of the needy.

Turning to the United States, Dr. Evans pointed out that our strength was that our religion was felt to be on the side of the rebellious in the Revolution. By the Declaration of Independence, the country was founded on faith in God and in man and the importance of the individual. However, our tragedy lies in the lip-service we gave to the big words and our failure to serve our ideals. "We have had other gods," Dr. Evans declared. "Science became God." "But," he continued, "the scientists, themselves, see the need for something more than science."

"The revolution in the individual occurs when he sees his relationship with other people." said Dr. Evans. There is the "difference between life and death" and "the breaking of the ego shell." Our relationships make us the sum total of these people with whom we are in relationship," he maintained. Dr. Evans defined love as "the most positive form of life." The meaning can refer to the extremes, from debauchery to the union of the Saint with God. However, it is still possible, with our limited minds and narrow hearts, to touch and feel the Eternal.

In tracing the increasing failure of the church, Dr. Evans pointed out that Judaism, in its relationship with God, was limited to the race. The early church, with complete freedom, "out-thought, out-lived, out-loved, and out-died" those outside the church. Christ restored their relation to God. The people discovered in Christ "the extent to which God would go." They dis-

Forthcoming Play Brings New Talent To College Stage

Footlights Feature Murphy, Wilson

Mr. Alec Finlayson, director of the Longwood Dramatics Club, revealed recently that many of the members of the cast of "As You Desire Me" to be presented March 30 and 31, are appearing in a college production for the first time, although they have had some previous experience in dramatic work.

Ann Murphy, who will play the leading role, has previously played the leading female role in high school productions. "The Man Who Came To Dinner"; a part in the play, "Nine Girls"; and a part in "Our Hearts Were Young And Gay". She also played the lead in the Dramatics Club apprentice play here last spring. Anne is a sophomore from Danville, a member of Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority, Orchesis, Cotillion Club and the Commercial Club. She is also a member of the National Thespians.

Betsy Wilson, who will play the part of Mop, is a senior from Hopewell. She is a member of the National Thespians and works with the City Point Players in Hopewell. Betsy is a member of the Cotillion Club and was elected Circus queen this fall.

Betsy Hankins will play Barbara. She is a sophomore from Richmond, a member of the Cotillion Club, and co-social chairman of the Dramatics Club. In high school, Betsy played the leading role in "Nine Girls", a part in "First Dance", and the part of Mr. Hardcastle in "She Stoops to Conquer". Betsy was chosen actress of the year at St. Margaret's School, her senior year there.

Another apprentice who has had previous experience in dramatics is Mary Ann King. Mary Ann, a freshman from Smithfield, will play Inez. She is a member of the Smithfield players.

Kitty Moore, another freshman, will play the part of the Demented Lady. Kitty was active as the director of most of her high school plays. She also served as prompteress for the year for "Madwoman of Chaillot".

Association Selects Dean of Longwood Secretary-Treasurer

Dean William W. Savage was elected secretary-treasurer of the Association of Virginia Colleges at their thirty-seventh annual conference which met in Roanoke last Friday and Saturday.

Composed of the thirty-six white colleges in Virginia, the association had as representatives of Longwood at this conference President Dabney S. Lancaster, and Dean Savage.

Dr. George M. Modlin, President of the University of Richmond, was elected to fill the position of President of the association. He was secretary-treasurer during the last term of office, and is succeeded by Dean Savage in this position.

The vice-president of the group for the coming year will be Dean James G. Leyburn of Washington and Lee University.

Fall Semester Dean's List Recognizes 84 Students

Average Grants Unlimited Cuts

Eighty-four students attained the necessary average for Dean's List for the first semester of the current college year, according to Miss Virginia Bugg, College Registrar.

Through the Dean's List, the College recognizes students for superior scholarship, the required average being 2.25 or B-plus. Fourty-seven names were listed for the spring semester of the 1949-50 session.

Dean's List students for this semester are Nancy Adkins, Richmond; Helen Agnew, Burkeville; Patricia Altwegg, Hilton Village; Georgia Bailey, Brookneal; Flora Ballowe, Farmville; Hilda Bauserman, Luray; Allie Beale, Branchville; Celeste Bishop, Danville; and Mildred Blessing, Tazewell.

Other recognized were Joyce Marie Booth, Farmville; Vera Bryant, Boykins; Irene Bunting, Roanoke; Mildred Carter, Sutherland; Elizabeth Anne Collier, Richmond; John Randall Cook, Crewe; Minta Hopkins Critzer, Pulaski; Phyllis Culpepper, Suffolk; Nancy Driskill, Roanoke; Edith Duma, Portsmouth; Frances Everett, Bon Air; Jeanne Farmer, Newport News; and Lauralee Fritts, Ninevah.

Orchesis Bids 11 To Apprenticeship

Orchesis, local modern dance organization, issued apprentice bids to eleven students yesterday, according to an anouncement by Marian Beckner, president of the club.

Those receiving bids were Lou Beavers, of Richlands; Nan Bland, Tappahannock; Barbara Dodd, Lynchburg; Anne Boswell Roanoke; Margie Hall, Richmond; Kitty Hamlet, South Boston; Winston Johnson, Franklin; Donna Kunkler, Norfolk; Ann Moody, Glen Allen; Pat Tuggle, Wytheville; and Charlotte Williams, Richmond.

Students must have completed at least one semester of modern dance to receive a bid to the organization. They will be initiated after an apprenticeship during which time they must participate in two major dances.

Committee Studies Graduate Work Plan

A plan for a state-wide cooperative program for graduate work has been under consideration and discussion for the past two years, according to Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster. This plan has been approved by the faculties and boards of all colleges except the University of Virginia. Colleges would work with the Univesity of Virginia, Virginia and Mary College, and the University of Virginia, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, William and Mary college, and the University of Richmond (colleges already offering the graduate courses) in an arrangement to provide twelve semester hours of graduate work at any one of the four.

According to Dr. Lancaster, this plan would not necessarily approve work in all departments of the colleges interested in offering the graduate courses.

'Beaux and Arrows' Theme Selected for Junior Dance To Be Held Saturday Night

'Sermon In Song' To Be Presented In Thurs. Chapel

Mr. Mitchell Cites Need For Music

Mr. Hobart Mitchell will present a "Sermon In Song" to the student body in assembly tomorrow, February 15.

Mr. Mitchell has developed "Sermon In Song" as a means of expressing his religious convictions through his talents of singing and writing. His program will consist of the 91st Psalm and the 23rd Psalm, followed by "Lord, God of Abraham," and "It Is Enough." "I Know de Lord's laid His Hands on me," "Listen to the Lambs," and "The Lord's Prayer," will also be included in the service.

This artist began his singing career as a boy chorester in Grace Church Choir School in New York City and he has been close to sacred music during much of his life.

Radio Artist

Following college graduation, Mr. Mitchell launched his career in novel fashion by setting out on a two-year vagabond journey around the world with a knapsack and his music as his only baggage. As he crossed the country from New York to Texas, he made a series of radio appearances. In Mexico he sang in recitals as well as on the radio. He crossed the Pacific as a sailor and sang at an artist's soiree in Harbin, Manchuria and at the Grand Hotel in Peiping.

After his journey, he worked on an M. A. in American literature at Columbia University and spent six years teaching English at New York University. While in New York he began singing programs in hospitals and institutional homes. He came to realize how badly people need music. Out of this came his study of musical therapy when he was stationed at the University of Rochester Medical School during the war. He developed a project to have music schools benefit both the sick and students by presenting student music programs in various institutions.

In 1946 a minister in Rochester, New York, needing supply ministers for the summer Sundays of his vacation period, asked Mr. Mitchell to sing a half-hour program of sacred songs. Out of this experience grew the "Sermon In Song."

Mr. Mitchell has given his "Sermon In Song" to many college chapels all over the country and has always been received with enthusiam.

Dinner To Celebrate Washington's Birth

The February birthday dinner which will carry out the theme of George Washington's birthday will be held in the College dining room Wednesday, February 21.

The menu for the banquet consists of a tomato juice cocktail baked ham, new potatoes with butter sauce, broccoli and Hollandise sauce, Waldorf salad sweet mixed pickles, hot rolls and coffee. Birthday cake with frozen strawberries will be served for dessert.

Committee Draws Plans For Council

Plans for a bi-council Student Government were drawn up by a committee last week to be presented to the student body at a meeting next Thursday night, Helen Agnew, president of the Student Government Association, revealed last night.

The committee, with Charlotte Williams serving as chairman, was formed as a result of a student body meeting last month. At that time it was decided that plans for an Honor Council for Longwood would be drawn up and presented to the student body for their approval or rejection.

Working on this committee were Mary Leigh Meredith, Betty McRee, Becky Mann, Ginny McLean and Blanton Ferguson. Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss, adviser to Student Government, acted as adviser to the group.

Research into the governing bodies of other schools was made and the constitutions of a number of student government associations in the state were studied in an effort to draw up a plan for an Honor Council at Longwood.

The head of the nominating Committee for the forthcoming major elections will also be chosen at next week's Student Body Meeting.

Choirs To Sing At Washington Lee

The Longwood choir and the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club will leave here Thursday, March 1 to travel to Arlington where they will sing with the Arlington Symphony Orchestra at a program being conducted at the Washington - Lee Senior High School.

The Longwood group will sing "Ave Verum" without accompaniment, followed by the Glee Club singing "Gloria Excelsis" by Mozart with an orchestral accompaniment written by Dr. John W Molnar, director of the Longwood Choir. The two choirs will then join in rendering "Worthy Is The Lamb" and the "Amen Chorus" from Handel's Messiah.

Under the direction of Mr. Bernard Rosenthal, Arlington Symphony Orchestra conductor, the Longwood choir will sing the "Polovetzion Dances" from Borodin's "Prince Igor." Mr. Rosenthal will then conduct his orchestra in the "Oneron Overture" and Tchaikowsky's "Fourth Symphony."

Dr. Molnar, in speaking of the concert, said that he expects it to be a great success and a real experience for the choir members.

The combined choirs are scheduled to present a concert in Richmond on May 9, with the Richmond Symphony Orchestra. Also included in their work this semester will be the annual spring concert to be presented at Longwood and Hampden-Sydney, and the presentation of several numbers at the graduation exercises in June.

Queen of Hearts Will Be Featured

"Beaux and Arrows" has been selected by the junior class as the theme for their dance being held this Saturday night in the College gymnasium from 8 to 12 p.m. The theme will be carried out in the color scheme used for decorating the gym.

During the dance, a queen of hearts and four attendants will be announced and presented to the crowd. The girls were selected as a result of secret voting by the junior class. Their names will not be revealed until the night of the dance. Members of the class sponsoring the ball will receive favors, also to be kept secret until Saturday night.

The junior class has requested, after observing the favorable response of Longwood students, that the girls attending the dance ask their dates to contribute a dollar to the March of Dimes drive instead of buying corsages. Upon the payment of the dollar, the girls will receive a souvenir wrist corsage or hand bouquet being provided by the juniors.

Receiving Line

Jean Ridenour, junior class president, will head the receiving line for the dance. Following her will be Becky Mann, treasurer; Inex Hughes, secretary; Betty Scott Borkey, vice-president; and Pat Tuggle, dance chairman. The receiving line will also consist of Dr. and Mrs. Marvin Schlegel, class sponsor; Miss Elizabeth Burger, sister class sponsor; Dr. and Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster, Dean and Mrs. William W. Savage, and Dean Ruth Gleaves.

Miss Vera Baron, Dr. and Mrs. Robert T. Brumfield, Dr. and Mrs. Merle Landrum, Dr. and Mrs. John W. Molnar, Miss Rebecca Brockenbrough, Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss, Dr. and Mrs. George W. Jeffers, and Miss Olive T. Iler have been asked to chaperone the dance. All faculty and administration members have been invited to attend the dance.

As was previously announced, Pete Weaver and his band, The Virginians, of Emporia will provide the music for the "Beaux and Arrows" dance this Saturday night. Tickets are now being sold

Production Chairman Announces Selection Of Committee Heads

Lyn Hill, chairman of the forthcoming Freshman Production, has announced the selection of several committee heads.

Anita Belle Bagley, from Suffolk, is chairman of the dance committee. Eleanor Koch, of Richmond, will serve as ticket chairman.

Working as head of a committee on scenery will be Nancy Adkins, also of Richmond. Pat Altwegg from Hilton Village will be in charge of the make-up.

The direction of music will be in the charge of Mary Evelyn Bennett of Rocky Mount. Ann Dickenson, also from Rocky Mount, will serve as costumier chairman. Ina Desportes of Richmond will be in charge of lighting.

The production is to be held on Friday night, March 16 in the College Rec. The tickets will go on sale before the Production at the price of 35c.

Uphold Honor System . . . .

There is a recognized need for some strengthening of our honor system. It can never be perfect, of course, but it can be greatly improved. This fact is recognized by the faculty as well as the students.

Perhaps the formation of an Honor Council, a small group of people devoted to the cause of emphasizing complete personal honor among the students of our college, would be a contributing factor.

At the request of the Student Government Council and the student body, a study of the governing systems of other colleges and universities has recently been made to find out if they have a student honor system, and if so, just how it is organized.

It is impossible to say how well one works. People on the individual campuses would be able to say little more than that they have a "good" honor system or "not-so-good" one.

It is noted, however, that on almost every campus where the students are considered completely honorable and are trusted to do all written work in an honorable fashion, without the watchful eye of faculty, some form of Honor Council, set aside with the specific assignment of encouraging and enforcing honesty in the student body, is a part of the governing system.

Such a council has been suggested, discussed, and planned. It will now be up to us, the students, to decide just what to do with these plans.

Consider it carefully. Think of how it might help you. Think of the far-reaching effects it could have in strengthening our college. And be sure to attend the student body meeting next week, with open eyes, and an open mind.

Quiet, Please...

The subject is old, and perhaps the approach is old, but the idea behind it is still important and vital to the progress of Longwood. How can a college or any organization grow without the perfection of minor details within that organization?

How many students attending Longwood would not be embarrassed or shocked in their own home if someone insisted upon chattering, running about the room or whispering and giggling during the grace, or if everyone began noisily sitting down and grabbing food before the grace was finished? Wouldn't they feel at least a small pang of shame or guilt even if guests were not present? And if they were in someone else's home when such a thing occurred, wouldn't they be inclined to feel that the family's up-bringing had been very poor indeed?

Ridiculous as it seems the actions of many Longwood students indicate that there must be quite a few negative answers. Frequently, it has been necessary for the Dean of Women or another administration member to ask for "quiet please" before the blessing can be said. Also too frequently, the students have made it necessary for a request that they wait until the blessing has been finished before they pull out their chairs to be seated for the meal.

Although there are probably some matters of importance that can best be discussed during the dinner hour when that certain person is finally available, there are many others that prove to be nothing but gossip fests. Surely these could wait until the "chatterers" found themselves seated comfortably in the snack bar or a dorm room. Meals were provided to eat, not to sit and get cold and unappetizing, which could easily prove to be one of the reasons for complaints about dining hall food.

The hour for dining should be here, as it is in most homes, an hour for relaxation rather than one for bustling about creating a general disturbance. Longwood is our home for almost nine months of the year, and since our home is what we make it, it seems only right that we should want Longwood to be ideal. When the bell rings for silence, let's bow our heads and be silent in respect for others if not for our own prayer of thanks.

As Time Changes

By CELESTE BISHOP

Medical history is being made in Chicago by Mrs. Dorothy Mae Stevens, the twenty-three year old Negress who was found last Thursday morning frozen solid. Her condidtion was almost identical with that of rigor mortis, but by the energetic and anxious efforts of the doctors, she was snatched back from death. By Sunday her temperature had risen to only a couple of degrees above normal (100.8) from the lowest ever known in medical experience (64 degrees).

But, most amazing of all the facts reported about her, was that after approximately 48 hours, she was able to wiggle her fingers and toes, thus giving physicians hope that amputation of her limbs would be unnecessary. The return from the frozen status would evidently be a long, dangerous, and painful one, for as it has been noted in Mrs. Stevens' case, there was much cause to worry about whether she would live. A lot of her skin tissue also, has been destroyed, but her physicians seem confident that this can be corrected by grafting.

Is it possible then that man, if he improves and quickens his methods of freezing and thawing, can transform a human being into ice and have him remain there for a period of time in a state of suspended life, and thaw him out at a future date to observe the changed world, a living Buck Rodgers or Flash Gordon? Is it possible that one could undergo such a treatment; and just what would the results be? Mrs. Stevens is giving the men of science a part of their answer. Research can do more in the field of improving methods and finding the importance of results. Is it worth it?

King Farouk of Egypt, has officially announced his plans to wed Narriman Sadek, a 17 year-old commoner. The 31 year-old ruler has known Narriman for about a year and a half, probably having seen her but few times. Taking her from her intended husband, Zaki Hashem, a UN economist, apparently was no larger task for King Farouk than divorcing his first wife because no heirs to the throne were produced by that marriage. Divorces of this type don't please the American people much, but in Egypt anything is possible with the royal Cleopatra setting the precedent. If this union brings the awaited heir, maybe King Farouk can make this marriage last.

Girls of America have found plenty to worry about. With the passage of the draft bill by Congress legalizing the drafting of 18 year olds, young women are beginning to realize the possibilities of a manpower shortage again. However, Congress says few will be drafted the first year: only those needed to fill the quota after the 19-25 year old men have been called. Then only those closest to 19 will be called for 24 months service minus leaves. Keep your chins up, girls!

Korny Korner

by Jean Jinnett

Good evenin, boys! This is your local radio station WSPNS. It's two p. m. again and this is Jughead Jinnett bringing you that all time favorite weekly program Korny Korner, consisting of gripes, tips, compliments and comments, and sponsored by the ever popular Kruddy Krackers Korporation. Speaking of our sponsor, the makers of our delicious product are making a three day offer especially for YOU. Just send in 353 box tops from any of our KKK products, and we'll send you absolutely free, yessir, boys, I said absolutely free of charge, Mrs. Kruddy's own recipe for making a delicious new soup which consists mainly of old tomatoes and turnips. Don't miss this startling offer!

I received a letter yestiddy from a friend of mine who's a study'n for her decree in lazyology up there at Driftwood College in Farmerstown, Viginny. It seems them gals really have themselves a time. Always doin' sumpin' constructive, like cuttin' the bell rope, paintin' flag poles, skippin' classes, blowin' out fuses, flirtin' with them men what are destructin' a new buildin' next to Annex, in fact, anything what'll keep 'em busy. Like I told this friend of mine when I answered her letter, I'm mighty proud to hear that they manage to stay busy all the time, on account if they didn't, they'd git in some sort of trouble surer' n heck.

I also hear the sophomores up there at Driftwood got together and put on a real show last Satiddy night. My friend writes that that class of '53 is really on the ball.

She says that she is really larnin' a heap up thar and that she likes college fine, except that she's a-gittin awful confused about numbers. You see, they have chapel numbers, laundry numbers, tank suit numbers, post office numbers, table numbers, room numbers, (some of 'em even play the numbers racket). Well, my friend got her numbers slightly confused the first coupla' weeks up thar (who wouldn't?). It seems she found herself sittin at the Dean's table, wearin' a size 48 tank suit, gettin' a return laundry consisting of 4 pairs of men's shorts and gosh knows what else, gettin' letters from all sorts of folks that she ain't even met yit, and sleepin' in the maids' closet.

Well, whattaya know, folks, here it is almost 2:15 and time for me to sign off. My, how time does fly, when you're in good company.

Don't forgit our special offer, folks. Mrs. Kruddy's own original turnip soup recipe free. All you do is send in 353 Kruddy Krackers box tops plus three dollars to cover mailin' and insurance. See you good folks agin' next week same time, same station, This is Jughead leavin' you again with the proverb of the week, sent to us this week by the good Mrs. O. Watta Deadbeat of Sne'l, Virginia. I hope all you folks listen to and profit by this proverb:

"It's true that you can't make 'Hey' while the sun shines, but have you noticed that we've been a-havin' an awful lot of rainy days lately?"

Bye now.

To the Editor of the Rotunda
Longwood College
Farmville, Virginia

Dear Editor:

Just for the records I would like to correct an untrue statement which appeared in the Feb. 7th issue of the Rotunda. In that recent issue, it was stated that Lester Smallwood, a recent February graduate, was called immediately back into the service of the Navy. He isn't in the Navy nor has he been called any place. He is now teaching mathematics at Great Bridge High School in Norfolk and expects to continue for some time.

Respectfully yours,
Lester H. Smallwood, Jr.

Campus Cogitations

Question: How did you go about getting a date for the Junior Dance?

Margaret Taylor: I asked Joe!

Ann Keith Hundley: It pays to have a friend who has a friend at Tech.

Ann Jones: What date!?

Sarah Ann Jones: I'm pinned to him.

Frances Graube: At the point of a gun, he said yes.

Clare Krienbaum: I asked my brother.

Sadie Cregar: There I was on my knees and .....

Mason Moore: He just called and said he was coming.

Sally Smith: I wanted him to come 'cause he's my honey.

Barbara Blackman: I had him, but he slipped away.

Winnie Dunnavant: Asked him on the way to Lynchburg—good old Lynchburg.

Sylvia Reames: I caught him the week end after exams in Roanoke.

"Liz" Crockett: It pays to have a popular roommate.

Maxine Dize: I just ordered him to come. I go steady.

Nancye Gillie: I'm so rude, crude and unattractive that I don't have a date!

Patsy Sanford: He has to come home to the dentist, so I'm gonna snag him.

Betty Abbitt: My roommate has cousins at Tech — Yes sir, boys!

Charlotte K. Jones: I told him it was free!

Bebe Wilson: It took a lot of nerve.

Betty Scott Borkey: It wasn't easy!

Betsy Gravely: I didn't.

Margaret Turner: I told him I'd pay for it.

Kaki McCready: Mississippi is a long way away.

Harriet Butterworth: He asked me.

Local Fraternity Orientates, Initiates Six New Scouts

by Forest Pillow

Six new members were added to Tau Theta Pi fraternity last Wednesday night, following a week of rather undignified acts. Bids had been issued immediately preceding the Christmas vacation to all of the male students who were not members, but only six of them, Lester Trout, Walter Slusher, John Peace, Eric Robinson, Thomas Griffin, and Forest Pillow, braved the consequences of accepting. They were pledged in a ceremony just before the Christmas vacation and were informed at that meeting of the rigid requirements they would have to meet: they must know the Greek alphabet-alpha, beta, gamma, delta, et cetera (no, et cetera is not a Greek letter); they must be able to recite the complete names of all of the fraternity's charter members and officers at the request of any member; and they must carry out any other orders given them by a member (the last one was the most difficult!)

The worst part came on the Friday night following exams. The climatic initiation ceremony was held in the fraternity room (Oh, if you only knew what took place behind those closed doors!!) A written examination was given on the principles and the charter members and officers of the fraternity, the Greek alphabet, and numerous other things from odd sources (e.g., How many sides does a stop-sign have?) After serenading Joan of Arc in the Rotunda, the pledges were permitted to leave.

The first regular meeting was held last Wednesday night in the fraternity room. The pledges had to take the exam again that night because they had made such bad grades on the previous one that the fraternity did not see fit that they should join with such little knowledge of the organization. After the business meeting, the fraternity gave a party at Slayton's for the new members.

Pioneers To Meet Farmville Squad

The Longwood Pioneers will clash with the Farmville Town team on the Longwood court Thursday night, with the gate receipts going for the Polio fund.

This game will be the second between them this season, the Pioneers having won the first with a good start-off for the series.

The Longwood team will suffer the absence of Ned Orange, Bill Overbey, Bob Williams, and Lester Smallwood, all of whom contributed greatly in the first Longwood - Farmville game. It will be a test of Pioneer strength to battle under these heavy odds.

The Spectator

By JIMMY THOMPSON

PIONEERS YIELD TO VPI EXTENSION OF DANVILLE

The Danville extension of V. P. I. defeated the Pioneers last Thursday night, on the home court, by the wide margin of 66-39. This loss was due mainly to the lack of reserves. There were only seven men to don uniforms, and although they played a bang-up game, it was plain that these few men could not stand up to par with an opposing squad consisting of fifteen men. This has been the main drawback of the Pioneers all season.

MARCH OF DIMES TILT

Tomorrow night the Pioneers will again attack the strong Farmville Town Team for the benefit of the March of Dimes. This game, to be played in the Longwood gym, promises to be a close one. The two teams have met four times in the past two seasons with the Pioneers taking two of the games. No admission will be charged, but everyone is urged to come out and support the school team. And Charlie Hop urges "Don't forget to bring that dime for the March of Dimes."

STATES LEADING SCORERS

Emerson Johnson, Hampden-Sydney's tall center, now holds the highest average of points made per game for this season. In fifteen outings, Johnson has thrown in 153 field goals and 63 gratis throws for a total of 369 points and an average of 24.6 points per game. His closest competitor is this group is Grant Hudson of Lynchburg, who has an average of 23.7 for fifteen outings.

However, the state's leading total point-maker is Tex Tilson of V. P. I., who has run up 466 points in 24 tilts. Jay Handlin follows close behind with 441 points.

JACKETS PULL INCREDIBLE UPSET

The Randolph-Macon Yellow Jackets did the unbelievable Saturday night when they upset the highly favored American University of Washington by the close margin of 50-49. The Jackets have a very slim chance of making the Mason-Dixon tournament match March 8, 9, 10, but their hopes were greatly raised with this victory. There are six more conference games on their slate this season, and they would have to take all six to be assured of a tournment berth.

Jack Whitcomb, the team's leading scorer, garnered his thousandth point in this game, covering a three year span of playing and was awarded the game's basketball as a token. His over-all total was brought to 1,016 points.

Team Suffers First Defeat As LC Girls Yield to Madison With Final Score of 40-37

Sportin' Around

by Lou Jamison

Well, it looks like Madison has done it again. Last Friday's basketball game with Madison college was really a heart breaker. Everyone had such high hopes for this game to break our old losing streak with Madison. Things were running smoothly for us as we jumped 2 to 4 points ahead of our opponents. The crowd, which was one of the largest I have ever seen at an afternoon game in the gym, really had its heart and especially its voice in the struggle. Then in the last quarter Madison jumped ahead to end the game in victory beating us by 3 points.

The annual swimming meet will be held sometime in March we hope. The definite time will have to be announced later as the girls participating in the meet must vote on the date most suitable to them. Jean Ridenour told me that it will probably be the last week in March but also said that it might not be at all unless everyone who intends to swim gets in her eight half hour practices.

We couldn't let a little thing like that stop us, could we? Its so easy to swim for a half hour twice a week. Extra practices will probably be scheduled too, for those girls who are unable to attend the regular recreational swimming periods. Please take advantage of these practice periods, and above all listen to announcements about the meet, and attend meetings when they are held.

My hat is off this week to all of those girls I see down in the gym during basketball and volleyball periods. At last the good old Longwood spirit is shining through. From the looks of the gym, class games are really getting close. Some class is going to have a mighty fine team too! Which one?

Council

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster will speak briefly to the students at this meeting concerning the elections of the leaders in the school for the coming year.

Spectator's Donate To March of Dimes

The Longwood College varsity basketball team was defeated by Madison College with a score of 40-37 in the school gymnasium last Friday, February 9.

Longwood scored first and managed to stay ahead in the first half, Madison, however, forged ahead in the third quarter. The score see-sawed back and forth between the Longwood six and the Madison team until they reached a tie in the fourth quarter. Madison finally broke this tie to give the final score of Madison 40 - Longwood 37.

Entering the game for Longwood were forwards Ann Lynch, Rachel Peters, Betty Tyler, Patsy Sanford, and Lucy Mann. Guards who played in the game were Marian Beckner, Jean Ridenour, Sue Webb, Clara Borum, and Juanita Hudson.

A collection for the March of Dimes Campaign was received at the door before the game.

LC Dance Instructor Will Visit Schools; To Teach Techniques

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education, will visit five high schools in this area this week end and next week to teach a few of the basic techniques of modern dance.

Among the high schools which Mrs. Landrum will visit are Victoria, Kenbridge, Buckingham Central, Chase City, and South Hill.

This week questionnaires are being mailed to the principals of the fourteen high schools expected to participate in the annual Dance Day to set the date for the exhibition.

The principals are being asked to select either March 16 or 17 for the Dance Day program to be held at Longwood. In addition to the five high schools named above those high schools which are expected to be represented include Amelia, Appomattox, Blackstone, Burkeville, Charlotte Court House, Crewe, Cumberland, Farmville, and Worsham.

The 1951 Dance Day will be the third annual Dance Day to be presented at Longwood. The Dance Day is held to bring dance in all of its forms, social, modern, and folk, to as many high schools as possible in the area about the College.

LEGGETT'S

Srs. to Give Third Sing February 17

The senior class will present the third in a series of competitive sings Saturday, February 17, after dinner in the small auditorium. According to Virginia Westbrook, chairman of the sing, the class will present a talent show.

Last Saturday night the sophomores entertained with a skit typifying a Saturday night with Longwood girls and Camp Pickett soldiers. The sing, under the direction of Jean Partridge, consisted of a scene at a Camp Pickett dance, Saturday afternoon on Main street, and Saturday night in the Student Lounge.

Donna Kunkler, Lou Jamison, Betty Tyler, Joanne Steck, Mary Frances Graube and Nancy Purdum played the parts of Pickett soldiers, while Anne Murphy, Betty Jo Jennings, Nancy Driskill, Harriet Minechan, and Ginny McLean portrayed typical Longwood girls. Mary Jane Tyus took the part of Mrs. Grace Slayton and Barbara Carter, Mrs. Gwenn Tibbs.

After the last sing, a prize of five dollars will be presented to the class presenting the most original and interesting sing.

Library Receives Photostat Gifts

The Longwood College library has been the recipient of two gifts from Fraser of the Motley Construction Company, Mr. Fraser, whose wife is an alumna of Longwood, has taken a great interest in the college.

The first gift is a photostat of a map of Mexico City, dated April 16, 1847. This map, copied by Mr. Fraser's grandfather, directed General Scott's march on that city. Mr. Fraser also has given a photostat of the letter which his grandfather wrote to his uncle explaining the map.

The other gift consists of photostats of five letters written by Woodrow Wilson to Mr. Fraser's father, Dr. A. M. Fraser, who was minister of the Presbyterian Church in Staunton, Virginia, birthplace of Wilson. Two of the letters were written when Wilson was president of Princeton.

Tea To Be Held At Longwood Estate For Student Visitors

Students from the high schools of Northern Neck, Worsham High School, in Prince Edward County; and from Maury High School, Norfolk, will visit Longwood for the week end of February 17 and 18. The girls will have opportunity to spectate at the Junior Dance.

A tea, which will be held at Longwood estate, is planned for them Saturday afternoon. Miss Ruth Gleaves, with the help of representatives of the student body, will act as hostess, and buns and tea will be served.

The visitors will have rooms in the freshman dormitory.

covered His love. On the eve of the Reformation, the terms of definition, creed, and authority had failed to meet spiritual needs. Then men turned to their Bibles and expressed freely their relationship with God. However, Dr. Evans declared, "Protestantism separated men . . . and there lies the tragedy."

"Protestantism, Catholicism, Judaism, all failed the three great purposes of religion," he said. "The fascination of Communism lies in its offer to men a community." But it is without God. Men will accept, in this case, half a loaf. "Our own civilization," Dr. Evans stated, "claims worship of God but acts as if it doesn't." These two groups, asserts Dr. Evans, must recognize their failures before it is too late.

In conclusion, Dr. Evans suggested that when the future is in your hands, "where you put your hands will make the difference." "Seek to find a religion that makes it possible to put heart, hand, mind and will into the heart, hand, mind and will of God. He suggested also that we "find peace and understanding in Christ, a love that goes to the end and that is resurrected in the Eternal."

Instructor Announces Leading Dance Roles Of '51 Orchesis Recital

Personality Types To Be Portrayed

Solo leads for the 1951 Orchesis recital have been announced by Mrs. Emily Landrum, modern dance instructor. The recital will be presented in the near future.

Erma Poarch will dance "Country Stroll" from the "Folk Walk" to music by Keeny. In this dance she portrays the happiness of youth and its observing ways. "Doodle Dancers," a section of the recital in which the dancers show that a person can be typed by the form of doodling he does, will follow the "Folk Walk." Marian Higgs will dance "I, who am sentimental — the dreamer." "I, who am genial, jovial and jolly — the extrovert" will be portrayed in a duet by Margie Hood and Jean Ridenour.

Following them will be Mary Jane Stansbury dancing "I, who am restless, pensive, — the extremist."

"The Wise in Heart," from the novel of the same name, which is the story of a dominating, repressive mother and her six children who grew up in her shadow, afraid of her, and Monie, the daughter who defied her, will be danced by several members of the group. Marian Beckner, president of Orchesis, will portray the mother, and Anne Murphy, the daughter Monie. Clara Borum, Peggy Harris, Margie Hood, Erma Poarch, Conway Rice, and Mary Jane Stansbury will dance the parts of the six children.

Another solo "It Must Be Abstract," will be danced by Edith Duma who has done the choreography for both this dance and the duet in which she takes part. "Phobias," a dance of two parts, will follow "It Must Be Abstract." "Dromophobia" consists of a crazy "dame" danced by Marian Beckner and the "cop" portrayed

Total of $309 Puts College Above Goal In Polio Drive

Junior Campaign Contributes Half

Mr. Raymond French, chairman of the March of Dimes drive on the Longwood campus, has announced that a total of $309 has been contributed by the College. This amount exceeds all former contributions made by Longwood and has aided in putting the drive over the top for Prince Edward county.

As a result of a special campaign sponsored by the junior class at their dance this past week end, $142 was added to the College donation. Mr. French, concerning the contribution, stated, "I am very pleased with the results of the special drive which was partly responsible for putting Longwood on top."

Other aids came through the Women's Athletic Association which collected $16 during some of their home basketball games and the Men's A. A. donating $10 received through a silver offering at their last game. The remaining amount, $141, was contributed by the students, faculty and administration of the College.

Mrs. Landrum Calls Thursday Meeting For May Day Court

Mrs. Emily Landrum, modern dance instructor, has requested that the May Day Queen, maid of honor, and court meet with her at 4 p.m. Thursday in the gymnasium. The meeting is being held prior to the dress showing Friday.

The hour of the showing will be announced later to the queen and members of her court.

Student Body Selects Wilson Chairman of Nominations For 1951 Major Elections

Scholarship Loans Offered by State

Elementary Majors Favored By Grants

Longwood students may now begin applying for State scholarship loans according to Mrs. Mary Likes, secretary to the College president. Applications will be taken until July 1, 1951.

The State is offering two types of scholarships one of which is the regular term scholarship which is a loan of $300 per year for the juniors and seniors preparing to teach in the public elementary schools. They may also be obtained by those preparing to teach agriculture, art, business education, foreign languages, health and physical education, home economics, industrial arts library science, mathematics, natural science, music and speech and auditory correction in the public high schools.

These scholarship loans will also be granted to sophomores majoring in elementary education. A limited number may be obtained by freshmen.

The second type of scholarship available through the State is the summer school loan scholarship which offers from $60 to $100, according to the number of weeks that the summer school is in session. This type of loan will not be granted for summer sessions of less than four weeks.

Longwood President Selected Chairman Of Accrediting Group

President Dabney S. Lancaster was made chairman of the Accrediting committee of the American Association of Teachers Colleges during the meeting of that group which he and Dr. John P. Wynne attended last week.

As chairman of the committee, Dr. Lancaster automatically becomes an ex-officio member of the executive committee. The accrediting committee is set up to decide whether American colleges meet the standards required for entrance to the association.

Dr. Lancaster attended the conference in Atlantic City N. J., where he served on a committee to report on "The Financial Problems of High School Graduates." During the meeting, many problems of current interest and importance to American colleges were discussed.

French Circle Plans To See Foreign Film

Le Cercle Francais has announced that it will present the foreign movie, "The Eternal Return," on Friday night, April 6. The movie is a modern interpretation of the medieval romance "Tristan and Iseut." Tickets will be sold to the entire student body in advance.

This organization has also announced that it will present a sing on March 3. A planning committee composed of Betsy Hankins, Catherine Stevens, Nancy Driskill, Mason Moore, Madeline Bizot, Maria Jackson, and Dolores Hoback has been chosen.

Pan-Hellenic Dance-Date Announced

The annual Pan-Hellenic Dance featuring Pete Weaver and his Virginians, will be held in the college gymnasium on Saturday night, March 10, it was revealed recently by Anne Joyner, general chairman of the dance.

Committee chairmen for the dance as announced by Sue Brewbaker, Pan-Hel president, include Pat Taylor, in charge of publicity; Pat Tuggle, chairman of the refreshment committee; Lillian Shelton, in charge of the music for the dance; and Mary Frances Graube and Betty Hancock, chairmen of the clean-up committee.

With decorations of a mixed color scheme, the dance will also feature a no-break dance for each sorority. A joint intermission party will be held in the Student lounge and the Y lounge.

A receiving line consisting of the Pan-Hellenic Council members, Miss Vera Baron, adviser to the council, and several members of the faculty and administration will form in the gymnasium to welcome the girls and their dates to this annual intersorority function, it was also revealed by the committee in charge of the dance.

Besides the reception in the Student lounge, the individual sorority rooms will be open for visiting during intermission.

The dance is open to all sorority girls without admission, and special invitations will be issued to a number of other girls by the sororities.

Library Features Youthful Painting

On Tuesday, February 27 at 3 p. m. Miss Annie Lee Ross of the Longwood art department will discuss the paintings on exhibit in the Browsing Room. The exhibit, which has been sent to the college by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, is a group of paintings done by children from the ages of five and a half to thirteen.

The purpose of this exhibition which will be on display until March 2, is to demonstrate and to give an understanding of children's art. The paintings for the exhibition were selected for the measure in which they help to give this understanding.

The subject matter consists of things drawn from childhood experiences, persons and objects which are important and significant to all children such as faces, figures, animals, airplanes, trees, etc. Children will emphasize certain details and omit others. To the adult such pictures may appear strange but to the children they appear quite normal.

According to the booklet accompanying the exhibit, these paintings can be considered art because the children have recreated their own experiences in tangible and ordered form after the experiences have been subjected to the workings of the emotions and the mind. In form and color and space relationships, the pictures of children are often considered quite beautiful.

Williams Presents Plan of Bi-Council

Betsy Wilson, senior from Hopewell, was elected as chairman of the nominating committee for the 1951 major elections at a call meeting of the student body held last night. Charlotte Williams, chairman of the honor council committee, presented to the student body a plan for a bi-council system of government.

Helen Agnew president of the student body presided over the meeting held in the Methodist Church last night. Helen opened the meeting by introducing President Dabney S. Lancaster who spoke to the student body on the importance of active, wide-awake participation in elections. Dr. Lancaster reminded the students that it is important to both the College and the community that each student carefully and impartially study one another and select as officers those students who are best suited to fill the office.

Bi-Council Plan

The bi-council plan of student government presented by Charlotte calls for an honor council and a student council as separate bodies. The proposed honor council shall have as its purpose to investigate, to try, and to pass judgment upon any person guilty of any infraction of the Honor Code.

Under the proposed system the student council shall deal with all cases of a social nature, and actively promote loyalty to the College.

The entire bi-council system as presented to the student body last night by Charlotte appears on page two of this issue.

Helen announced that a written vote, by the entire student body, will be taken on the bi-council system tomorrow. Students may cast their ballots at the table in the hall in front of the office of the Dean of the College.

Heads Publication Board

Betsy, who was chosen to head the nominating committee for major elections will also serve as the chairman of the board of publications. The board of publications, composed of the editors-in-chief and the advisors of the three College publications, will choose the editors and business managers for the publications.

New Colonnade Issue To Appear In March

The next issue of the Colonnade will be published early in March, according to Edith Duma, editor. The second prize short story of last fall, "The Persecuted," by Cleo Holliday will be featured. Illustrations of the story have been made for the Colonnade by Roberta Browning.

Two other short stories slated for this issue are "Jealously," by Helen Agnew, and "The Spell," by Catherine Stevens. Drawings by Joan Prichett will constitute the center spread. Other plans have not been completed.

Contributions may be made at any time, and, according to the editor will be greatly appreciated—for this issue or the next. The Colonnade box is located under the bulletin board in the hall nearest the post office.

Dean Savage Publishes Article Entitled "Many College Graduates Must Work"

"MANY College Graduates MUST WORK" is the title of an article on the Longwood guidance program by Dean William W. Savage. The article appears in the February issue of the "Virginia Journal of Education."

This article was prepared as an answer from Longwood to an editorial in the October 1949 issue of the Journal. The editorial contended that the schools and the parents were failing to give youngsters the vocational guidance necessary.

"Our present student personnel program has been in operation only three years. As yet, we make no claim for its effectiveness except that we believe its purposes are sound and that there has been a definite increase in the thought that our students are giving to their careers . . ." said Dean Savage of the Longwood program.

Outlines Program

In the article Dean Savage gives a brief outline of the entire guidance program at Longwood. Included in this program are the admission program, the guidance available to freshmen during orientation week and when registering for classes, and the system of assigning each student a faculty advisor for his freshman and sophomore years.

Also a part of the Longwood guidance program is the theme work done in the freshman English classes. During the first semester each student writes his autobiography; during the second, he develops a comprehensive paper on the career for which he is preparing. Thus the student becomes more familiar with his vocational choice, and the papers are placed in the students personal folders where they are utilized by their advisers and other faculty members.

DEAN WILLIAM W. SAVAGE, who authored "Many College Graduates Must Work.'

In addition, a regional supervisor of the State Department of Education is attached to the College staff. She counsels students who are referred to her by their advisers and she instructs in courses in guidance offered in the college. Her counseling activities are devoted primarily to assisting students in their choice of vocation.

Vocational Information

Vocational information is made available through the College both to the College students and to boys and girls of high school age in the schools of Virginia.

The Longwood Library maintains extensive vertical files containing several thousand publications dealing with careers in many different fields.

The College has published several booklets during the past few years for high school boys and girls. Among these are "So You're a Senior", published in 1947, which was designed to assist high school graduates in choosing their college. In 1948, the College issued the booklet, "Will College Prepare You for a Career?" which attempted to give concise information on the career opportunities in each field in which Longwood offered major study.

A series of mimeographed bulletins entitled the "Longwood Career Bulletins" was begun in

We Want Cuts

Orchids to the students of Longwood for their attendance at and conduct during the last four assemblies. It seems that little more could be wished for by students, faculty and administration members. Yet there is, among the students at any rate, a decided dissatisfaction. And with good reason.

Most students of college level are considered to be of adult and mature minds, or at least of maturing minds, and responsibility along with trust is placed upon their shoulders. This, it seems evident, is not the case at Longwood. We the students have been placed in a position where we MUST, rather than where we understand that it's only right that we should attend the College assemblies.

Are the students being taught a lesson? Perhaps. But it is plainly evident that the majority of us do not think so. Instead, we are rebelling—rebelling against this small taste of authoritarianism. We feel that we are no longer children of immature minds that need to be told, "You must do so and so, and to see that you do, your privileges shall be taken away." We are growing men and women that need a "talking to" perhaps, or need to be reasoned with quite seriously. Yet, we can cease growing and remain only partly mature if, in matters of importance or of less significance, we are forced to depend upon the rules and regulations set up for us, rather than with us or by us. The modern trend of progressive education is self-development of responsibility and good judgment with democratic guidance, and not authoritarianism.

Because we overcut classes once in a while, we are not deprived of the class cuts but are simply deprived of the privilege of leaving the College for one or two week ends. Why shouldn't we be trusted with such cuts from the weekly assembly? Agreed, there are some students who will take advantage, to the extreme, of such a privilege. They can be chastized in a manner that seems suitable for adults. There are others who have not and would not misuse assembly cuts; why should they be made to conform to a rule that was meant for the students who abused their privileges?

The students of Longwood have heard much concerning honor and honesty of late. We are trusted in the classroom without being constantly observed by a professor. We have been told time and again that an honor system cannot work unless partakers in that honor system are upon their honor in every phase of life. Prove to us that we have honor. We Want Assembly Cuts.

Let's Get Acquainted

Major elections are almost here. It's time to think. How can the students of Longwood choose the girl who can and will best fulfill the duties of an office when they don't really know the girl — her qualifications or her plans and purposes for carrying out the duties she will perform? The honest answer to this question is, "they can't."

We may say: "It isn't my fault; I wasn't given a chance to know the candidates or discover their qualifications or willingness to accept the responsibilities of the office." But it is our fault. It's up to us — the voters — to demand this opportunity. Wouldn't it be better if each candidate were given the chance to speak or have someone else speak for her concerning her qualifications and plans for performing the duties of the office for which she is running? Couldn't we be more intelligent voters if such campaign speeches were given?

The girls we choose will govern us, for better or for worse, for the coming year and the quality of these leaders depends upon the voters. Only by demanding and receiving the right to know what we are doing can we be assured of the best officers — officers who will give us government the way we want it. It's all up to the individual student of Longwood and to the student body as a whole. Let's get to work and gain for ourselves a way of knowing for whom and for what we're voting.

In Regards

STALIN, MOSCOW

Regarding your interview with a Pravda correspondent, February 16, I should like to comment. Your words were "just the same old malarkey" to Senator Hickenlooper; however, they provoke thought and questions for Longwood students and their countrymen. Two thoughts, in particular, strike home — alleged American patriotism and fading faith in the ideals of the United Nations.

Let's take American patriotism apart first you imply that American soldiers and people don't know or don't like what they're fighting for? That hits home, college and industry. You must have heard us saying at home: "Its none of our affair. Why do we sacrifice for some unknown Koreans?" You must have sensed that at college, a girl will date an unshaven tie-less Character in college jeans before she will accept an eighteen year-old in khaki.

You have, undoubtedly, read about the "sick leave" for the Railroad workers, which slowed down ammunition shipments. You read more recently about 70,000 strikers in the woolen works. They wanted more pay. Their present wages only average $1.42 an hour. Wool is needed. After chipping Korean ice off an exposed limb, one battles gangrene and amputation.

You second point: "The United Nations Organization is taking the inglorious road of the League of Nations . . . burying its moral prestige and dooming itself to disintegration." What has the U. N. done for Pakistan? for India? Men's faith in the U. N. is comparable to students' faith in an efficient and progressive College Administration.

After the partition of India in 1947 and the formation of independent Pakistan, the possession of Kashmir became a problem. Both wanted her. Since, Kashmir, (the size of Montana, with a population of 4 million) has been a hot potato tossed between Pakistan, India, and the U. N. Both India and Pakistan sent troops to Kashmir; both obeyed the U. N. "cease-fire" order. However, when the U. N. Security Council took up the problem in January, 1948, it was unable to find a solution. It is still unsettled in 1950. What has the U. N. done? Pakistan feels insulted and ignored. She cannot strengthen her own economy until she can withdraw her troops. What faith has Pakistan in the U. N. as a protecor of smaller nations? Consider her geographic position in relation to Russia!

Stalin, you struck at the core of our nation, the patriotism of our soldiers and people. You struck also at the core of the U. N., faith in its power and its ideals. You are a clever, unscrupulous strategist. You have watched, encouraged and used man's greed, selfishness, fear, and confusion. Now you point them out. You are a God-less psychologist, counting on man's ignorance, immoralities and confusion as instruments for your own success.

SALLY BRICKMAN

Hello Joe

By Barbara White

This past week at Longwood College has been a most interesting one. I have at last learned to play that great American game, bridge. For a long time I had heard people yelling, "Will anyone be a fourth at bridge." It made me very sad that I could not join them, because it is an excellent chance to spread our Communist propaganda. Now for hours each day, I hold a hand of cards and say "pass." I always try to bid the red cards, Comrades.

Saturday night, the Juniors had a dance. Some of the girls seemed unhappy because it was a "girl break" affair. I really don't see what difference it makes who breaks; just so everything is demolished before the evening is over.

A great many of the girls who went had blind dates. I guess that is so the boys can be spared the agony of looking at these girls. Yet, it is a shame that so many American men are blind.

After the dance I heard several of them talking about these blind dates. Most of them said, "Oh well, at least he was a good dancer." It is so marvelous the way these Americans can even teach blind men to dance.

There has been a great deal of illness lately. I, myself, have been trying to become ill enough to get into the infirmary. It would be so easy to teach Communism to those who are sick and cannot think straight.

The college had dedication services this week for the new flag. There were so few people there that I truly believe they are on our side. I haven't resigned myself to the salt mines yet.

The Garden Clubs of Virginia are meeting here this week. There was a mad rush of preparation for their arrival. A new building was quickly finished to accomadate them, all the floors were waxed and the furniture polished, and, above all, O Comrades, we have had dessert for lunch every day during their stay here.

This is all of any importance that has happened lately.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

CHURCH NEWS

Presbyterian

Students of Longwood and Hampden-Sydney conducted the regular church service at the church last Sunday night, February 18. Pat Lee presided over the meeting.

Joan Pershing gave a talk on student participation in the work of the Farmville Westminster Fellowship. Meigs Newkirk, senior from Hampden-Sydney, spoke on the challenge to Christain youth. The program was given in observance of a day of prayer, set aside by the World Student Christain Federation.

Baptist

This is Freshmen week in the Baptist Student Union. The offices from preacher to student secretary are being filled by members of the Freshman class.

Miss Nicky Kajita, a Japanese student now doing graduate work at Baylor University in Texas, will speak at the Baptist Student Center on Thursday and Friday night at 7 o'clock. A graduate of Blue Mountain College, Miss Kajita is regarded in religious groups as an excellent speaker.

Plans are now being made for the local retreat on March 7 and 8.

Episcopal

A discussion group will be held this Sunday at the regular Canterbury Club service.

The following observations will be made throughout the Lenten season: There will be a meditation period on Tuesday at 12:45 in the Episcopal Church; on Wednesday at 7:15 a.m. during Lent Holy Communion will be held, followed by breakfast in the Parish House.

Methodist

The Methodist Student Youth council conference will be held here March 3 and 4, according to a recent announcement by Ann Lee Weber who is in charge. The theme will be "God Designs: Youth Builds."

The Latest Fad!

MODEL BI - COUNCIL SYSTEM

The executive and judical powers of the Student Government Association shall be vested in two councils — an Honor Council and a Student Council.

THE HONOR COUNCIL

The Honor Code shall be signed by new students in gate, to try, and to pass judgment upon any person quilty of any infraction of the Honor Code in regard to cheating, stealing, or lying, or any other act of dishanesty.

It shall be the duty of the Honor Council to see that the meaning of and the responsibility under the Honor System are presented to the students throughout the year by means of lectures, addresses, articles in college publications, individual instruction to students, and in other ways as may be convenient and necessary.

The Honor Code shall be signed by new students in the presence of the Honor Council.

Council Membership

Members of the Honor Council shall consist of the following: A chairman chosen by the student body from the senior class; a secretary to be selected by the Honor Council from its members; one senior in addition to the chairman; two juniors; two sophomores; one freshman; the President of Student Government as an ex-officio member.

Students are on their honor to report any acts of dishonesty to the Honor Council.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

The purpose of the Student Council shall be to deal with all cases of a social nature, and to actively promote loyalty to the college among students.

Members of the Student Coucil shall be the following: the President of Student Government, who will preside over the Council; the vice-president of Student Government; the secretary of Student Government; the treasurer of Student Government; the President of House Council; the President of the Y. W. C. A; the President of the Athletic Association; two members form each of the classes; one town-girl representative; the chairman of the Honor Council as an ex-officio member. (This makes a total of 17 members, including 16 voting members.)

Advisers To Councils

The choice of an adviser shall be determined by the respective councils each year. They could possibly have the same adviser.

The purpose of our social regulations is to maintain the reputation of the student body and the good name of the College. Loyalty in the College will be shown by the reporting of any infractions of the social regulations of the student body to the Student Council.

Cases of indecision as to which council shall deal with a case shall be referred to the chairman of the Honor Council, the President of Student Government, and the faculty adviser or advisers.

Music Appreciation Furthered As Newest Fad Hits Longwood

by Joanne Steck

The newly famed 'uke' has brought out talent heretofore unknown (thank goodness) in the entertainment world. Some of the strummers are really on the ball, and who knows, they may go far (away from here, let's hope). Some of 'em can strike chords that are very intricate—chords never before (and, let's hope, never again) heard by human ear.

Yes sir, boys! Around here, you're just liable to hear anything from "Farther Along" to "Two Russian Lovers," and I mean the lyrics and song bursting forth from various rooms really gives Ye Ole Longwood a feeling of good will and cheer.

But then, who's to complain? What would college be without its fads, crazy ideas, dreams and what have you?

Yep, seems the uke has at last achieved great and presumably lasting fame. It has suddenly and completely taken charge of the minds, thoughts, interests, and desires of Longwoodites, and, if it doesn't stop, me thinks we shall all lose what minds we have. Now don't get me wrong, comrades, the uke is a fine instrument, full of stability and genuine principle, understanding in the entertainment world, and all that—BUT at the rate it's going now, it won't last long. Let's all hope the old saying, "Everything good comes to an end" will hold true to form.

You see, we all love ukes. In fact, we eat, drink, and sleep ukes. Only one does get rather tired of closing one's weary eyelids to the strains of "Old Smoky," arising to the tune of "Old Smoky," hearing "Old Smoky" both before and after breakfast, eating with "Old Smoky," in fact, living with "Old Smoky." I just may go mad! . . . Hm.—If I did go mad, I could leave Longwood with all its uke- and take a nice, long rest. Oh, well, all the inmates at Staunton have probably become expert at the uke fad, also. Anyhow, it was a good thought.

You know I wonder who had the brilliant idea of inventing "ukes?" I guess they're probably millionaires now—having "nothing but the best."

MERMAIDS TO MEET HERE

The Virginia State Telegraphic swimming meet will be held in the Longwood pool sometime during the month of March. Along with Longwood Madison, Mary Washington, William and Mary, and Roanoke Colleges will compete for school and individual titles. 8½ hours of practice are needed to be eligible to participate, and everyone has been invited to come down to the pool and try out. The hours from one to two p. m. on Tuesdays and from 10 to 11 p. m. on Thursdays have been set for practice. Jean Ridenour wishes to remind everyone that Longwood wants to make an impressive showing, so all you swimmers come out and give the "aquatics" all the support you have for the meet.

PIONEERS TRAVEL TO DANVILLE

Tonight the Pioneers travel to Danville to again engage in a basketball tilt with the V. P. I. extension there. In an earlier meeting of the two teams this year the Tech offsprings defeated Longwood by the score of 66-39. However, the Pioneers now have a few more reserves, and should promise to produce a better showing. A win in Danville would certainly boost the moral of the whole team!

IT'S BASEBALL TIME AGAIN

With spring just around the corner it looks as if basketball will soon take the back seat, and baseball will come into the spotlight. The major league teams have already begun spring training in Florida, and other warm-weatheh states, and it's anyone's guess as to who will dominate the American and National leagues this coming year. As soon as the "Grapefruit League" gets under way, some idea as to the powerful clubs will be brought into view. This is a little early in the season but ye 'ole Spectator picks the New York Yankees as probable champs in the American League and the Boston Braves as leaders in the senior circuit. Who knows?

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE SCORING RECORD SET

Saturday night saw Jay Handlin of the Washington and Lee Generals set a new Southern Conference individual scoring record when he scored 66 points against Ferman College in their tilt in the VMI Riding Hall in Lexington. These 66 points came within 19 of tieing the all-time inter-collegiate national record held by Paul Arizin of Villinova. This former record was set in 1947. The South Carolinians were defeated by the Generals by a score of 97-82.

In a second game that same night the VPI Keydets defeated Davidson College for their second win of the season. This was truly an unexpected upset.

GIRLS TRAVEL TO NORFOLK

Miss Olive Iler will take the Longwood sextet to Norfolk to play against the Norfolk Division of William and Mary this Friday afternoon. Since there are so many girls out for basketball, it is reported that she will take fewer upperclassmen and more freshmen and sophomores on this trip. The upperclassmen will be reserved for next week's trip to Baltimore, when they engage Notre-Dame College on March 2. A win in these two outings would leave the girls with an impressive record of four wins to one loss, a good record in anybody's book!

"I Have a Willowy Soul," a duet to music by Shostakovich will be danced by Edith Duma and Hilda Lewis.

Phys. Ed. Students Aid L. C. Instructor In Teaching Dance

Several physical education students are now aiding Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education, in the instruction of basic techniques of modern dance at five high schools in this area.

During the past week Donna Kunkler and Winston Johnston traveled to Victoria to teach fifty tenth, eleventh, and twelfth graders a few fundamentals in modern dance. Juanita Hudson and Jean Ridenour taught at Buckingham Central High School. They gave instruction to Seniors as well as sixty ninth and tenth graders.

Yesterday Marian Beckner, Edith Duma, Kitty Hamlet and Jolene Sutton went to South Hill and Chase City. Thursday Donna Kunkler and Margaret Taylor will go to Kenbridge.

Pioneers Lose Second Game To Farmville Town Team In Tilt Held Thurs. Night

Sportin' Around

by Lou Jamison

All of us were quite pleased last week to see our Longwood Varsity Basketball Team defeat the Lynchburg College team by a score of 49 to 41. The exciting game seemed to be enjoyed by the spectators if cheers and shouts are any sign of enjoyment.

This Friday the freshmen and sophomores on the basketball team will journey to Norfolk. There they will play the Norfolk Division of William and Mary. The "Division" usually has a good team, but then Longwood freshmen and sophomores aren't easily beaten by any means. Good luck girls! Although we won't be there, we're pulling for you.

This is the time of the year for big meetings in the Physical Education field, and representatives of the Longwood Physical Education department will be scurrying off to conventions for the remainder of February and the first of March. The Southern association of Physical Education Directors of College Women will meet February 26 and 27, the National Health, Physical Education, and Recreation Associations, Southern Section, February 28; and the Student Section of the National Health, Physical Education and Recreation Association, March 2. Miss Iler will attend the first, all of the Physical Education Department and also the Junior and Senior Physical Education majors will be present at the second, and Sue Brewbaker, secretary of the last, will represent Longwood at it.

Say, do you ever have trouble making up third periods? I know from personal experience that there are times when you just can't fit in that extra sports class. Now we have something new to help out this situation. The American Square Dance class which meets on Tuesday and Thursday at 3:05 is open to you and may be counted as a third period for a sports class. Mrs. Landrum will be glad to have you, and it really is as much fun as any good old square dance back home. Come on down to the gym for credit and enjoyment too.

My cousin says her new boy friend is just what the doctor ordered—a pill. —Mary Washington Bullet.

Absence Of Stars Suffered By Squad

by W. Forest Pillow

Pioneers yielded to the Farmville town team Thursday night, February 15, with a score of 58-39. With a contribution to the March of Dimes as the only admission charge, the two teams' clash furnished an evening of basketball for the few spectators. The Farmville team was assisted by several star players that had been absent in the previous game with the Pioneers, but the Longwood team suffered the absence of several of their best players. Ned Orange, co-captain center; Lester Smallwood, forward; and Bill Overbey, forward, all of whom were active in our first game with the town team, were unable to play in this game. Jerry Shevick, a Duke graduate, and Johnny Peace, six-foot, five-inch center, led the Pioneers in their attempt to win.

The Pioneers also sustained a loss in their contest with the V.P.I. Extension in Danville 66-39 on the Longwood court recently. They will challenge the Danville team tonight on their opponent's court in an effort to make a comeback with a win over the Tech Extension.

The Longwood team will challenge Ferrum Junor College on the Longwood court March 2, in their next and last scheduled home game of the season. The Pioneers suffered a loss in their previous game with Ferrum at that college. Numerous difficulties had to be overcome at Ferrum Junior College. This prevented a Pioneer victory. When they meet here on March 2, the teams will be more equalized and should present a better chance for a Pioneer victory.

Garden Clubs Hold Annual Meeting Here

The Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs is holding its fourth annual course in flower show judging at Longwood this week, February 19 through 23.

Registration for the Judging School began Monday afternoon, and the delegates gathered at 8:30 Monday night for a reception in the Student lounge. During the week the ladies attending the school have heard talks on such topics as "Narcissi and other Bulbs," "Camelia Culture," "Classification of Camelias," "Flower Show Practices," and "Design and Color" given by authorities on flowers and flower arrangement. Tomorrow, Thursday, February 22 they will be given examinations on the material they have studied.

As many of the delegates as possible are being housed in the college dormitories and rooms were found in town for the rest. The new dormitory was finished in time to house some of the visitors. The ladies have been having all their meals in the college dining hall.

This course in flower show judging is being given by the National Council of State Garden Clubs.

Music, Atmosphere, Dates Make Junior Dance 'Special'

by Louise Trinkle

Maybe it's the music; maybe it's the atmosphere; maybe it depends upon whom you're with, or maybe it's the fact that this is your Junior Dance and that makes it extra special.

Roommate assures you that you've never looked better and when the man in your life confirms this while the orchestra plays "Blue Moon" you are practically convinced.

Everything has just turned out perfectly—the last bit of red and white decoration was tacked into place at four this afternoon and you gazed out the window at a beautiful day that showed no signs of rain to mess up that neatly pressed dress that hung on the closet door.

Now you stand with fellow Juniors and applaud while "Stardust" reigns as background music and a spotlight is on your Queen of Hearts, Jean Ridenour, as she steps through the heart with her escort, followed by her court composed of Pat Tuggle, Bootie Poarch, Maria Jackson, and Nancy Walker. Then your line begins to move and the next thing you know you and your date are stepping thru the heart and you're trying to smile into that brilliant spotlight and at the same time get your personal supply of net and taffeta thru the frame safely and there, you've made it and dance away while the others follow.

The orchestra leader announces that the next song is for Dr. and Mrs. Schlegel and you're dancing to "I'll Get By," a little later the tempo changes and this time you're fairly flying to the "Mexican Hat Dance," and then a medley and not too much later you dance your last one, a nice slo' one and then slip quietly out to hop into a car heading for Longwood.

Longwood presents a wonderfully cozy appearance. Already there is a group centered around the warm glow of one of the brightly burning fires and in no time you have joined them with a plateful of ham biscuits, other goodies, and a cup of punch. The Combo has really warmed up now playing one favorite after another; Tech renders an ole "Hokie," and it wouldn't be complete without Maria and "Six feet two, eyes of blue..."; you sing everything from "Goodnight Irene" to "Carolina Moon," and you could have stayed there forever but after a while you leave with the others and later on when you have told everyone good night, you think to yourself that perhaps being a Junior is a pretty nice occupation and besides there is still tomorrow...

Alumnae Principal To Speak Tonight

Parents, Teachers To Serve As Hosts

One of Longwood's most prominent alumnae, Miss Etta Rose Bailey, principal of the famous Maury School, Richmond, will be in Farmville tomorrow, February 22 to speak to the Farmville P. T. A. at 7:45 p. m., in the training school auditorium.

Miss Bailey graduated from Longwood in 1913 and has since been active in many things which have made her an outstanding person in the field of education and have given her a national reputation.

She is best known for her work with Maury School of which she is principal. This school has been featured in Life Magazine as the "Top Elementary School" in the United States and is known by educators all over the country for its imaginative teaching methods which label it "progressive."

Besides her work with Maury, Miss Bailey has directed the work of elementary education at the College of William and Mary during the summer session of 1946. In the summers of 1949 and 1950 she taught at Columbia University.

She also directed the development of the Richmond Youth Center which gives young people a place for wholesale recreation of their own planning.

The book, "Teaching Reading in the Elementary School," considered by many to be one of the finest works of its types, was produced by the faculty of Maury School under her guidance.

Anyone interested in hearing Miss Bailey speak is invited to the P. T. A. meeting Thursday, February 22 at 7:45 p. m.

Classes To Offer Song Competitions In Rec' Tomorrow

Longwood's annual song contest will be held tomorrow, February 23 in the Rec' during the regular assembly period.

Every year, a similiar competitive song program is held in which each class presents an original song written by members of the class, to the student body and a group of judges from the faculty. The judges evaluate the songs on originality of words and tune and announce at the end of the program a winner and a runner up. The class with the winning song receives five dollars and points toward the color cup. The runner-up class also gets points toward the cup.

This year's seniors were the winners of the contest last year.

New Flag Dedicated In Special Ceremony

On Thursday, February 15, at 5:40 p. m., the student body of Longwood College assembled in front of the Rotunda to participate in the dedication of the new flag.

The service, planned by the Presidents' Council, was led by Dr. C G. Gordon Moss. After giving the Pledge of Allegiance, the students sang the Star Spangled Banner. The lowering of the flag by Charlotte Williams while the students stood at attention concluded the service.

Speech Student Slave Labors In Crip Carpentry Course

Ye, Gods! Here it is Tuesday morning again, and eight a. m., that unearthly hour when I can look forward to another play production class. Did I say play production? Well, although that's the unseemly title given to the class, it really should be called carpentry, general repairing, or just plain manual labor.

The whole thing started when I looked in the catalog last January to find another crip course to take (I'm famed for this). Hm. . .Speech 431; Principles of Play Production; reading and listening to plays. Not bad at all, I thought.

That's what I thought! I enrolled in Speech 431, and everything went along fine, UNTIL! All of a sudden Mr. Finlayson gets the bright idea that he's gonna put on a play—"Any Way You Want Me" or "As You Desire Me" or something like that. On the first Tuesday morning after he made that bright decision, he greets us with the announcemnt that WE are gonna' make, paint, and transport all the props. So he asks us if we would like to bring the props from the storeroom to the small auditorium. Well, as the rest of us shrink down into our seats, hoping to get by unnoticed, Gil and Hose eagerly raise their little hands (I can't make up my mind whether these two are really interested in the stuff, or just helfty.)

Well, we carry the props. You probably saw us, trudging wearily to and from the small auditorium from eight to nine each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday morning (ugh), our backs already bent to semi-circles from the strain.

Now that that's done, I sigh, maybe we'll get around to reading and listening to some plays. But, oh no! We now face the thrilling task of making a heavy door (complete with knob, latch, etc.), creating an apartment in Berlin, and a Venetian living room.

Anyhow, even though it's not exactly what I thought it would be (incidentally, it's far from crip), I'll be forced to admit that it's certainly just about the most unusual class in which I've participated. Where else would you find a course that consists of everything from painting a four foot portrait of Murphy to driving nails into any piece of wood you can find (sometimes I feel that I just may be driving them right into my own coffin)?

Seriously speaking, there's a heck of a lot of work being done on this forthcoming play (take it from me, I know), and I strongly advise all of you to save your dough and attend, on account of even if the play were rotten, the cast rotten, and the night Saturday, the props, (when we finish with 'em) are gonna be worth the price of a ticket, that's fer sure.

Seminar Organized By Math Students To Discuss Problems

The forming of a Mathematics Seminar for all students interested in mathematics has recently been announced by Mrs. Josephine Phillips, professor of math. Meeting for the purpose of correlating the different aspects of math, the seminar will be formed principally of junior and senior majors, but it will be open to anyone desiring to participate.

The first meeting of the group was held last Wednesday to make plans for the work they will do during the rest of the year. The regular meeting time will be on Tuesdays at one o'clock, in Mrs. Phillips' classroom.

The straight line, sketching curves, logarithms, problems, and stating problems will be among the topics to be considered by the mathematics study group. They will attempt to find out how many different ways certain fundamental problems may be worked.

No credit will be received by the members participating in this weekly discussion. According to Mrs. Phillips, it will be a time for any problems which the student teachers or any other majors have to be presented. It is to be a course in the practical problems which teachers or anyone who works with mathematics is likely to encounter.

High School Seniors Spend Weekend Here

Four high school seniors from Surrey County High School who are considering attending Longwood next year visited the campus last week end.

These girls, Virginia King, Gertrude Savage, Ann Stuart Bell, and Thelma Emory, were taken on a tour of the campus Saturday afternoon and the down to the snack bar for refreshments. Saturday night the girls spectated at the Junior dance. The four visitors had rooms in the freshmen dormitory.

1951 Summer Session Classes Announced

The 1951 summer session of Longwood College will begin on June 18 and end on August 11, according to a recent announcement by Dean Savage. Classes will meet daily, Monday through Friday. The total charge for room, board, laundry, and fees will be $128 for Virginia students and $158 for out-of-state students.

Students may enroll in classes giving nine semester hours of credit. In special cases, where they have outstanding records of scholarship, some students may be permitted to enroll in courses giving as much as eleven or twelve semester hours. Twelve semester hours are the maximum for any student.

Courses will be offered in art, biology, business education, chemistry, education, English, geography, government, health education, history, home economics, library science, mathematics, music, philosophy, physical education, psychlogy, science, and sociology.

Local College Glee Clubs Will Present Concert At Arlington School

Symphony Orchestra To Accompany Group

The Longwood Choir and the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club will present a concert with the Arlington Symphony Orchestra in the Washington-Lee High School in Arlington tomorrow night. Leaving here at one o'clock tomorrow they will travel by bus, returning after the concert.

The Longwood group will sing "Ave Verum" without accompaniment, followed by the Glee Club singing "Gloria Excelsis" by Mozart with an orchestral accompaniment written by Dr. John W. Molnar, director of the Longwood Choir. The two choirs will then join in rendering "Worthy Is The Lamb" and the "Amen Chrous" from Handel's Messiah.

Under the direction of Mr. Bernard Rosenthal, Arlington Symphony conductor, the Longwood Choir will sing the "Polovetzian Dances" from Borodin's "Prince Igor." Mr. Rosenthal will then conduct his orchestra in the "Oneron Overture" and Tchaikowsky's "Fourth Symphony."

This will be the first concert the combined group has given this year. They are scheduled to travel again in May when they will sing with the Richmond Symphony Orchestra in Richmond on May 9.

The annual spring concert here and at Hampden-Sydney will be presented on April 7 and 7. Dr. Molnar recently revealed. The Longwood group will also present musical selections at the graduation exercises in June.

In speaking of the forthcoming concert, Dr. Molnar said that he expects it to be a great success and a real experience for the choir members.

DR. JOHN W. MOLNAR who will direct the Longwood choir and Hampden - Sydney Glee Club in their forthcoming concert.

Supt. To Interview Seniors March 15

Students May Sign For Appointments

Mr. Charles Walsh, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel in Arlington County, will be on the Longwood campus on March 15. Mr. Walsh will interview seniors interested in teaching in Arlington County next year.

Mrs. Mary Watkins, Executive Secretary and head of the Longwood placement bureau, has announced that seniors may sign up in her office for appointments with Mr. Walsh.

Mrs. Watkins will send out tomorrow a list of available teachers from Longwood. The lists will go to all Virginia school superintendents. The list will be compiled from the placement bureau blanks which each senior has been asked to fill out and turn in to Mrs. Watkins.

Seniors who have turned in their placement bureau blanks but did not have pictures to accompany them have been asked to turn in six pictures by March 10.

Y' Opens Annual Red Cross Drive

The annual American Red Cross Drive will open all over the nation next week, on Monday, March 4. Under the sponsorship of the Y.W.C.A. on the Longwood campus, a goal of $425 has been set for the student body, faculty and administration to raise.

Last year the student body contributed a total of $131.45 to the Red Cross Drive, falling short of their $250 goal. According to Virginia Spencer, president of the Y, it is felt that through cooperation from the students and the entire faculty, the increased goal can be met.

"The Red Cross is sending even more this year in the way of nurses, ambulances, plasma, and other aid to Korea," Virginia said. "This increased need should be met with an increased effort on our part to raise every cent that we can for the Red Cross."

Beginning on Monday, money will be collected at the table in the hall opposite the Dean's office by members of the Y' Cabinet. The individual halls will be canvassed at night during the drive to give everyone an opportunity to contribute.

The contributions from Longwood will go with all those collected by the local Farmville chapter to go to make up the amount sent from the community and surrounding areas to the national office of the American Red Cross at the end of the drive.

History Prof Resigns Post As Advisor To Stu. Gov't

Yields Position Held Since '45

Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss has announced his resignation as faculty advisor to the women's Student Council, the governing body of the Student Government Association. Dr. Moss's resignation will become effective with that of this year's council members.

"It is very dangerous for any student organization to retain the same faculty member as an advisor too long," said Dr. Moss. "The organization tends to become identified with that particular faculty member and may tend to become too dependent upon him and less able to stand upon its own feet."

"This is not now the case with the Student Council," pointed out Dr. Moss, "but I feel that the time has come for the council to receive new faculty advisorship as well as new student body personnel."

Elected In 1945

Dr. Moss was eleced as faculty advisor to the Student Council in the spring of 1945 and has since been consistently reelected to the position. Before that time the council had no faculty advisor.

Dr. Moss is head of the Longwood department of history and social sciences. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Washington and Lee University and both his master of arts and his doctor of philosophy degrees from Yale University.

Wonderful Advisor

"Dr. Moss has been a wonderful advisor," said Helen Agnew, president of the women's government association, "and although we realize his reasons for resigning are quite logical we hate to see him leave the association."

Notice

According to an announcement by Miss Carrie Sutherlin, chairman of the assembly committee, there will be no required assembly this Thursday.

Junior Skit Wins First Place Award In Sing Contest

Jackson Directs' Prize-Winning Act

The Junior Class has been announced the winner of the annual competitive Sing Contest which ended Saturday night, February 23, according to Nell Dalton chairman of the 'Y Sing committee. The winners have been presented with an award of five dollars.

The winning skit, which was presented after dinner last Saturday night, was directed by Maria Jackson. The theme of the sing was 'Campus Personalities". Such well known college characters as "the week-end girl"; "the goody-goody girl"; "the food-snatcher"; "the practical joker"; "the play girl"; "the telephone hog"; and "the gossip", were portrayed. Emma Harris, Ann Harding, Peggy Harris, Dolores Hoback, Jean Ridenour, Bootie Poarch, Bobbie Brown, Millie Bright, Becky Mann, Winnie Murdock, Ann Mitchell Motley and Louise Trinkle took part in the skit.

The freshman class started off the class sing competition with a take-off on a typical exam week at Longwood. Their skit was directed by Frances Marker. The sophomores, under the direction of Jean Partridge, were next to enter the competition with a skit typifying a Saturday night with Longwood girls and Camp Pickett boys. The senior class failed to present a skit and forfieted their place in the competition.

These competitive sings are sponsored annually by the Y.W.-C.A. The skits are judged for originality, number of participants, presentation and theme. This year Mary Crawford, Liz Browning, Joyce Gotling and Mary Crowder acted as student judges in the competition. Dr. Ethel Sutherland and Mrs. Josephine Phillips served as faculty judges.

LC Y' Group To Replace Constitution

A revised constitution for the Longwood Y.W.C.A. has been drawn up and presented to the student body by the Y' Cabinet. According to Virginia Spencer, president, the new constitution replaces one which was sadly outdated.

"The new constitution was drawn up to fit the Y.W.C.A. as it now exists on the Longwood campus," said Virginia.

The revised constitution has been posted on the bulletin board across from the Registrar's office. According to the national Y.W.C.A., the constitution of each campus organization must be presented to the student body and posted where the student body can read it at least a month before it can be voted upon. The constitution will be voted on at a student body meeting to be held next month.

Major changes in the new constitution involve the election of advisors and the freshman and sophomore commisions. The sophomore commission is to be completely done away with and the duties of the freshman commission modified.

The revised constitution was drawn up by the Y' Cabinet under the direction of Virginia. Other members of the Cabinet are Evelyn Farrier, vice-president; June Foreman, secretary; Margaret Thomas, treasurer, and the heads of the ten Y.W.C.A. standing committees.

Two Represent LC At KDPi Meeting

Hilda Bauserman, president of the Beta Epsilon chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, and Lauralee Fritts represented Longwood at the regional meeting of the national honorary society in education. The conference was held in Atlantic City, N. J., on February 15.

The conference was one of the ten which meets annually in various sections of the United States. One hundred and four delegates, representing five states, attended the convention to discuss the activities of the organization and its role in the educational world of today.

Dr. John P. Wynne, professor of education and philosophy and director of teacher education, who is also a member of the Longwood chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, attended the banquet which closed the meeting.

Miss Gleaves Visits Richmond School

Miss Ruth Gleaves, Dean of Women, visited John Marshall High school in Richmond yesterday to interview prospective Longwood students. Accompanying Miss Gleaves was Nancy Adkins who was graduated from John Marshall last June.

Working with the counseling service at John Marshall are several graduates of Longwood, who are now members of the faculty there.

Students Urged To Participate

The votes of only 326 members of the Longwood student body have been received in the referendum on the proposed bi-council system of government, according to an announcement by Helen Agnew, president of the women's student government.

Of the total vote received to date 235 votes have been cast in favor of the bi-council system and 91 cast against it.

Before any action can be taken on the bi-council system a three-fourths vote of the women's student body must be secured. At the present time only a little more than half of the student body have voted in the referendum.

See Editorial, Page Two.

Tables will be set up in the dining hall lobby tomorrow night immediately after supper for the voting convenience of those students who have not yet cast their ballot. Copies of the February 21 Rotunda, in which the proposed bi-council system was printed in its entirety, will be available for those students who are not yet aquainted with the plan.

The bi-council plan which was drawn up by a committee from the student body and the student council calls for an honor council and a sudent council as separate bodies. The honor council under this system would have as its duties to investigate, try and pass judgement upon any person guilty of any infraction of the Longwood Honor Code.

Under the proposed system the student council would deal with all cases of a social nature and be responsible for the active promotion of loyalty to the College.

Helen urged all students who have not yet cast their vote on the bi-council system to do so tomorrow night. "Each student should realize that she is an important member of the student government association and should use that the responsibility of such a position calls for an expression of his opinion on the bi-council system," she added.

Reorganization Work In College Curricula Compared By Schools

Curricula reorganization committee from Madison, Radford, Virginia State College, and Longwood met here Saturday to compare progress reports.

Dr. J. L. Blair Buck and Dr. Thomas T. Hamilton, of the State Department of Education, and Dr. Earl Armstrong, of the United States Office of Education, participated in the all day discussions.

The four colleges have been carrying on an extensive program of curricula reorganization and the meeting held Saturday was for the purpose of comparing the progress made so far.

Madison College was represented by President G. Tyler Miller and four members of the Madison faculty.

Representing Radford College was President David W. Peters and four faculty members from Radford.

Virginia State College was represented by Professors Masklin, Hunter, and Colson.

Longwood Placement Bureau Aids Seniors Wanting Profitable Occupation After June

The time has come for all good seniors to begin thinking a little beyond June 4, 1951, and that beautiful hunk of sheepskin Dr. Lancaster will place in their eager hands. It all sounds so wonderful — the realization of that goal for which they have strived so long.

But what happens after the cap and gown is shed? What of next year when they can no longer return to the protecting arms of their alma mater?

Since Longwood is primarily a teacher-training institution such headlines as the one appearing in a recent issue of the VEA News "New Teacher Supply Ebbs For 1951-52" are reassuring to the majority of the seniors. In the article beneath that headline Longwood students were assured that the teacher-supply in Virginia is getting worse and that there is a growing need for teachers throughout the state.

Elementary majors in particular can comfort themselves with the fact that under 400 1951 graduates of Virginia colleges are preparing to educate the small fry while the bumper crop of babies born during the war-year 1945 are destined to make their way to the schoolhouse doors apple in hand.

On one hand then are the school superintendents some of them literally "beating the bushes" for teachers and all of them with vacancies among their school personnel. On the other hand are the Longwood seniors, beginning to get a bit fearful about the months and years that follow June. How to get the two together seems to be the only problem.

And that is where the Longwood placement bureau makes its entrance. If you are a senior planning or hoping to teach next year, you should have already filled out and turned in the placement bureau blanks. If you have, your name, the name of the subjects or grades which you will be qualified to teach and any other pertinent information is now being sent to the superintendents of the schools of the state.

Many of the school superintendents will come to Longwood this spring to interview seniors interested in teaching in their localities. The arrival of these superintendents is announced not only in the Rotunda but also on the bulletin board in front of the office of the Executive Secretary, Mrs. Mary Watkins. Any senior interested in seeing these men may sign up for appointmnts in Mrs. Watkins office.

The placement bureau sees that records, recommendation, etc., for each student are available to the school superintendents. And when the bureau receives word of vacancies in particular systems those qualified students are notified so that they may make application if they desire.

In return for the job the place-

Oust the Tradition!

In a campus poll taken this week and printed elsewhere on this page, those students interviewed (representatives from each class) showed they felt a definite need for past experiences of the candidates to learn the qualifications and pertinent major offices.

Many of those who expressed opinions this week, suggested that organized campaigns including speeches, posters and newspaper publicity be inaugarated on the campus. In similar polls taken in the past few years, we have discovered definite objections to such a plan—objections which we felt have a sound basis. Among the disadvantages of such a program, we can easily recogaize that unless it were handled with a great deal of discretion and tact, political issues might openly split a heretofore united student body. It was also brought out that it would be just as easy in such a situation to choose an incompetent officer as with the present "blind" system, since candidates could resort to biased persuasion and sway student opinion with personality tactics.

Another suggestion offered this week was a brief statement of qualifications and past experience given by the candidate himself in assembly or a student body meeting. This would perhaps be the most ideal solution to the problem, but it also raises difficulties. Under our present system, which has been in effect at least as long as the Rotunda has been on campus, candidates do absolutely nothing to further their election. It would seem that to suddenly introduce a plan whereby they were asked to extoll their official virtues might result in embarrassment and possibly in too modest an exposition of their capabilities.

Others suggested that an impartial person or organization should present the qualifications of each candidate, and to us this seems to be the best way to begin a gradual breaking away from our "traditional" and antiquated method of elections. In the coming elections, the Rotunda proposes to set itself up as such an unbiased intermediary between the nominees and the student body. As soon as candidates for these offices have been chosen by student nomination, the Rotunda will run a series of articles in co-operation with the nominating committee and the candidates themselves giving the student body specific information as to the past experience of each student up for office, his present qualifications for that office and a brief statement from the nominee as to his plans for performance in office if elected. By this method, we hope to enlighten the student body in the coming elections and invoke careful thought as to the management of future elections to the advantage of the candidates and the student electors.

What Do You Think - Or Do You?

Last Tuesday night a proposed system of bi-council government was presented to the Longwood student body. This system had been first suggested and discussed at a previous meeting and a committee had been appointed to work out the details.

On Wednesday the proposed system was published in its entirety in the Rotunda. On Thursday the student body was asked to vote for or against the proposed system. As yet an insufficient number of students have voted. At least three-fourths of the student body must vote some way or the other on the proposed system before any action can be taken, either to install such a system or to throw it out entirely.

Several members of the student body have been heard to remark that since they are against the proposed system they see no sense in voting. The student body has not been asked to vote for the bi-council system; they have been asked to vote for or against it. Then there are those who are in favor of the system but feel sure that it will either be passed or rejected without their vote, so do not bother. And then there are those who don't know how they feel, frankly don't care, and/or haven't bothered to find out. And last, and almost least, there are those who have already made their decisions and have cast their votes. The reaction of all but the latter group seems completely illogical and unsympathetic with the democratic procedure of government as exercised not only in our College but also in our country.

Are the students of Longwood so disinterested in both their government and their honor system that they must be hunted down and coerced in order to get a vote, any type of vote, from them on so important a governmental step? It would seem so.

If the students are so disinterested would it not be better to relieve those students who sacrifice their time and energy to the governing of the student body and lay all governing responsibilities in the hands of the administration? It has long been apparent that the Farmville theaters are capable of drawing a larger student attendance than a student body meeting. In the struggle for a vote for or against the proposed bi-council system, the student body has again proved their indifference toward their own government.

On the other hand student reaction toward administrative restrictions has often been one of rebellion. How then are these students to be pleased? If their attitude is one of "let George do it" it would seem unimportant as to whether the "George" in question be the administration or their fellow students.

But the student body seems to think differently—or do they think?

For Services Rendered

The resignation of Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss from the advisorship of the women's government association is a loss that not only the council but the entire student body will feel.

His reasons for his resignation, Dr. Moss has pointed out, have nothing whatsoever to do with the personnel or policies of the present council or that of future councils. He simply feels that the government association, like any other association, should not be affiliated with the same member of the faculty for too long a period. As Dr. Moss put it, they may become too dependent upon that particular member of the faculty and unable to stand upon their own feet.

We feel sure that such is not the case with the Student Council but are extremely grateful to Dr. Moss for his foresightedness in such affairs. There undoubtably are in existence, both on this campus and on other college campuses, organizations that would cease to function, if not cease to exist, upon the resignation, retirement, etc. of some particular member of the faculty.

Thank you, Dr. Moss, for the services you have rendered our government association and thank you for the compliment you have handed us in assuring us we can stand on our own two feet. For the confidence you have shown in our governing body, both in serving them and in leaving them, we salute you.

Stecking My Neck Out

by Joanne Steck

Well, folks I know you all are proud to see such humor and wit back in your paper. I have missed being with you all but it has been nice not to struggle and beat out so many words every Sunday night. But due to my eager public and my many faithful fans (JOKE) I am back—again—such as I am.

You know we kinda feel like part of the student body is gone now that we don't have our good little friends working on annex anymore. You feel kinda lost when you go through for breakfast—buttoning up your coat or rolling up your pajama leg—there aren't about six pairs of eyes upon you. Kinda miss the line they formed for you to pass through and kinda miss the wisecracks. Never could think up a good answer for them anyway though. Yes, we really miss the man in the red hat and all his "gang."

Guess we'll still have the painters to join us on the roof. They seem to be permanent fixtures. Heard one of the garden club ladies (the "flower girls") say as she peered out of the window at a couple of painters parading by —"why that man there, the one with the pipe, was here 27 years ago when I was a sophomore!" Yep, time marches by and a sophomore is not always a sophomore, thank goodness, but it seems that once a Longwood painter always a Longwood painter.

Speaking of the flower girls—they really were a pretty brave bunch to come up here and suffer through a week of nothing but "young things" and all their whims and ideas. Maybe the noise and the "little songs" were good for their morale though—made them realize that youth is not all beauty and that age too has its assets. They were good sports though—guess all of 'em realized that they too went through that "awkward stage" (incidentally, we're supposed to be over that by now!) No joke, they really do deserve a vote of thanks, not only for being gracious enough to put up with us but for the candy and lamps and things too.

Heard tell the other day that Tippy Toe is really looking forward to having the sophs over in Cunningham next year. Yes-sir, boys, we're really going to have some good ukelele picking and singing then!

Do you all realize we only have three months and three days left of school — and then — party, party — and beach, beach, beach —and from the looks of things—wedding wedding wedding. Yes, in spring an L. C. girls fancy likely turns to thoughts of love—more intensely, shall we say? Never let it be said a Longwood girl gets stale during those long winter months.

According to the Hastings Collegian a student at college decided to see if the professors actually read all the term papers required in a course. The paper was returned—unmarked.

A Nebraska co-ed complained to a bookstore owner that it was unfair to make students buy books at such a high price, and then get hardly anything back for them on the used book market.

"But," explained the bookstore owner calmly, "you couldn't buy a dress at a shop downtown and then take it back and get the same price for it, could you?"

"Well," she retorted, "at least I'd get some use out of the dress."

Have You Voted?

Campus Cogitations

Question: How do you suggest that the student body become better acquainted with the qualifications of those chosen to run for major offices?

Pat Altwegg: By letting the candidates campaign and state their views on current college problems and by getting others to talk for them and of their past experiences.

Bootie Poarch: By the work they have done before.

Sarah Graham: Have the newspaper print ALL available information about the candidate.

Ann Thomas: I think the election should be more active with campaigning and discussion. This would create more interest in the voting.

Jean Ridenour: I think that one chapel period should be set aside for introducing candidates in which they would give one minute talks about their qualifications.

Anne Lynch: If the student body will take an interest in the major organizations and notice the most capable workers within the organization, they will know how to vote.

Ned Orange: Let them make a campaign speech (short one) in assembly.

Faith Smith: Since some capable people aren't necessarily good speakers, they might have campaign managers to tell their qualifications.

Winnie Dunnavant: Get to know the candidates and find out their abilities to fullfill the requirements of the job.

Sue Webb: The students should know the qualities that they want in a girl and vote for one who possesses those qualities.

Anne Murphy: I do not recommend campaign speeches, but some one who is impartial, such as a faculty member, should tell the past activities of each candidate in assembly.

"Termite" Tyler: Have the chairman of nominations committee introduce each girl and give a brief character sketch of each.

Joanne Steck: Have the newspaper give a review of their past experiences and their interest in the particular office for which they have been nominated.

Jackie Lackey: The qualifications should be published and after due consideration we should vote for one who best meets these requirements.

Margaret Thomas: Through articles about the girls published in the Rotunda preceeding elections.

Shirley Duncan: The Rotunda could have a write-up about each one, stating the activities in which they have previously participated.

Maria Jackson: By seriously considering all the qualifications that a person holding the office in question would need to have, and selecting someone who checks with these requirments.

Betty McRee: I think they should state, either orally or written, their qualifications and what they plan to do with the office.

Sally Smith: By having campaign managers who will publicize the abilities of each person.

Mary Denny Wilson: As far as freshmen are concerned, we would have to talk to upperclassmen who know the qualifications of the candidates better than we do.

Pat Donnelly: Since the freshmen don't know what they have done in the past, the candidates could make campaign speeches telling of their past activities.

Dot Boswick: Why can't we resort to good old-fashion campaigning with managers, speeches, and posters. It's time students took more interest in the elections

Margie Hall: By having an unbiased sketch of each candidate published in the Rotunda.

Betsy Gravely: I don't know any way except campaigning and I don't approve of bringing that into the school.

Patty Walker: Let each nominee have a campaign manager who would make speeches in favor of the particular nominee.

Ginny Spencer: I think they should be introduced in chapel. Each girl should make it her business to find out about the candidates since our student body is small enough for them to do so.

Andy Adams: Nominate and introduce the candidates a month prior to the general elections, giving the student body ample time to consider the qualifications and become acquainted with the candidates.

Alumni News

The Farmville Alumnae Chapter held its annual card benefit last night, February 27, in the college Rec.

The chapter charged $.50 per person to raise money for the Mary White Cox Scholarship fund. This scholarship is given each year to an outstanding high school graduate in Prince Edward County. Some of the money raised will also be used for a contribution to the memorial of Miss Grace E. Nix.

Mrs. Ruth Coyner, alumnae secretary, has announced that the date for the annual Founder's Day has been set as Saturday, March 31. An interesting program is being planned which will end with the Dramatics Club's presentation of the play, "As You Desire Me."

S. C. TOURNEY OPENS TOMORROW:

With the Southern Conference tournament being held at Raleigh tomorrow, it looks as though the curtain is being brought down on basketball for the season in this part of the country. Representing Virginia in the classic are William and Mary and V. P. I. In the pairing off of teams for the tournament, William and Mary was paired off with West Virginia University, and V. P. I. was selected to play Duke. Since neither of the state's teams have played their foes before, it's anybody's guess as to what the outcome of the two games will be. However, if both state teams do manage to win in the first round, they will meet in the semi-finals Friday night. Besides these four teams, others to engage in the tournament are Clemson, Maryland, N. C. State, and South Carolina. State is picked to take the tournament because of its record of thirteen wins and one loss in conference play during the regular season.

FERRUM JR. COLLEGE TO PLAY HERE FRIDAY:

Since all good things must come to an end, the Pioneers end their basketball season Friday night with Ferrum Junior College at 7:30 P. M. in the college gym. In an earlier meeting of the two teams, Longwood was beaten, but it was not by the superior playing of the Ferrum team. The visitors' court was made of concrete and it was about the size of an enlarged match box. With these obstacles, it was impossible for the Pioneers to do anything. However, Friday night the home team is out for revenge. As you know, student tickets will be good, so everyone come out and make use of them one more time this year.

FLU HITS THE TRAINING CAMPS:

Down in Florida where the major league baseball teams are holding practice it looks as if old man flu has set in. Three of the clubs have had to call off practice because so many of the players are down with the epidemic. In the Boston Brave's camp nine have had to go to bed, including the coach and club doctor. The epidemic has slowed training down some, but most of the clubs have managed to get in some practice games, either inter-squad, or with other teams. With the end of the current basketball season, all you will hear now is baseball, baseball, and still more baseball, until around September when football will come back into the sports spotlight.

Danville Tops Pioneer Team

The Longwood Pioneers were defeated by the Danville Tech Extension team 67-38 on the Danville court last Wednesday night in their second game with the Tech Extension team. The Pioneers took seven men to Danville for the game, many of the team's star players having retired from the team previously.

Johnny Peace, six-foot, five-inch Pioneer center, was the highest score on either team with 17 points to his credit. Jerry Shevick was next highest on the Pioneer team with 11 points.

The V. P. I. Extension led by four points at the end of the first quarter. They boosted this to an 11-point lead by the end of the half.

Bob Williams, senior transfer from Elon College, fractured an ankle bone in the third quarter, disabling him for the rest of the game as well as the rest of the Pioneer season.

Will Meet Ferrum

The Longwood team will meet Ferum Junior College Friday night in the Longwood gymnaium. This is the last scheduled game of the 1950-51 season for the Longwood Pioneers. The Pioneers met Ferrum on January 3 on the Ferrum court and were defeated 78-57.

The Ferum court has a cement filor and the Pioneers were resultingly cautious. Friday's game will bring the two teams together under better playing conditions and will show whether the Longwood team can defeat Ferrum under ideal (to the Pioneers) conditions.

It's Red and White And Full of Money Can You Name It?

Do you like riddles? Well, here's one you can work on for a while. What is red and white and lives on second floor Post Office? ow don't say that it's simple, "that it's a freshman, 'cause it isn't. Shall I tell you more?

It's rather tall and blocky and has a mind that is more changeable than a woman's. It has a terrible temper and the more trouble it can cause, the happier it is. Still don't know? Then tell me, what is the only "thing" around here that always has money which it gets by hook or crook, mostly crook.

Almost any time of the day or night you can find it putting up quite an argument with some poor unseeing sucker, and always winning. Around the bottom it has quite a number of battle scars which it received while trying to make a living. But really you can't blame it too much for making a little profit.

I guess that by now you know that it's the dear old Coke Machine that leads such a life. So remember—someday we'll all be out in the big, wide world trying to make a living, taking much the same kind of beating. Let's have a little mercy on the Coke machine.

Frosh, Soph Varsity Players Take 41-39 Win In Exciting Tilt Against Norfolk Division

Sportin' Around

by Lou Jamison

The members of the Longwood varsity basketball team who went to Norfolk to play the division of William and Mary this past week end returned to Longwood in festive spirits. It's certainly easy to see why, too, as they defeated the division by a score of 41-39. All the girls who went said they had a wonderful weekend and are all ready to take off again. This weekend they are going to Baltimore, Md., where they will play Notre Dame.

It isn't long now until class games begin in basketball and volleyball but do you have enough practices to play? If not, you'd better hurry up, because your class needs you. Just in case you're in doubt about the times you can practice, the schedule is posted on the A. A. bulletin board.

With all this warm weather poking its nose around the corner, we're bound to get the usual cases of spring fever and rooftop pneumonia. In case you're one of those rare people who are inspired to dance in the spring instead of loll on a roof, remember that American square dance class. Anyone who likes square dancing can come to the gym at 3:05 on Tuesday and Thursday. It counts as a third period too.

Capture Lead In Final Moments

Freshman and sophomores of the Longwood women's varsity basketball team journeyed to Norfolk last Saturday to take an exciting 41-39 win from the Norfolk Division of William and Mary.

The Division team took over in the beginning as they seized an early lead of 9-0 and then went on to rack up a score of 11-2; but the Longwood lasses not to be outdone started making the goals count. At half-time the lead had dwindled to 20-16 in favor of the Division team.

The second half of the game proved to be the more exciting with the Division leading up to the last four minutes. From then on Longwood took over and it was our game to the end. Excellent guarding and beautiful passing on the part of the entire Longwood team proved disastrous for the Division team which had been undefeated up until this time.

The forwards who played were Nell Bradshaw, Patsy Sanford, and Lucy Mann. Those who played guard were Clara Borum, Sue Webb, and Juanita Hudson, and Betty Tyler. Other girls who made the trip were Jean Baber, Jean Hodges, Elise Wente, and Helen Castros.

Boredom Can Be Cast Away By Seeing Dramatist Play

The whole thing strated last Friday night when I decided that I was bored stiff and that if I didn't soon find something unusual to do I just might go mad. I had read every love magazine on third anex, played my uke till three of its four strings were broken, spent all my money in the Snack Bar; in fact, did everything constitive that I could think of. Naturally I didn't have a date, and far be it from me to break down and do any homework, so I finally decided to go down and watch play practice (figured I'd see the darned thing now and save my money when they really put it on and charge admission.)

You know, they're working on some play now called "As You Desire Me," and to put it quite frankly I didn't see where they got that title(maybe because I only saw the first act practiced.) I entered the Small Auditorium, and believe me you'd never know there was dramatic work going on in there, too! Four Hampden-Sydney boys had a lively game of poker going on in the back of the room, a promising quartette singing "Hail Columbo" accompanied by Ukeleles, in fact everything to lead me to believe that play practice must be going on elsewhere.

Finally I recognized Finney's dark blue suit somewhere up near the front of the room amidst a group of the most stupid looking people I have ever had the fortune (or misfortune) to look upon; these, I decided, must be members of the cast. After approximately one half hour, I finally managed to get within hearing distance, and what a let down. All I could make out from the lines they managed to interpret correctly was that the leading woman is some crazy character, who insists that she is herself, but nobody seems to believe her, on account of if she does turn out to be herself, somebody's niece won't get all the money that was left to her in somebody else's will. What a mess! Oh, I almost forgot. Some old man shot himself because the strange lady was strange. They say you have to be educated for a play like "As You Desire Me," but I'm telling you, boys, I don't think if I spent the remaining entirety of my life in school (which I probably will do) I could ever figure this one out.

I'm telling you one thing—Murphy and Talley don't have to worry about my interrupting their nightly tete-a-tetes in the Small Auditorium, because I decided as I was disgustedly leaving the turnoil Friday night, that the only thing for me to do is to save my money and go to see the darned thing March 30, because I'm sure I'll never rest until I find out how in the world one man could write an ending to such a monstrosity.

One minister called another minister, when the operator asked if it was station to station. "No parson-to-parson," was the reply.

Biological Seminar Plans Field Trip To Gloucester Pt.

Students To Visit Virginia Fisheries

The College biological seminar is making plans for a week end field-trip to the Virginia Fisheries Laboratory at Gloucester Point.

The laboratory, which is situated on the York River, works in conjunction with the Virginia Commission of Fisheries and the College of William and Mary. It provides working facilities for Virginia biologists interested in marine work and sponsors classes for both graduate and undergraduate biologists.

The seminar trip will be made in the early part of April. Plans are being made for the Longwood biologists to sample the research work now in progress at the lab.

Among the activities the seminar students hope to engage in are dredging from the lab boat, the Virginia Lee; seining the York along the laboratory beach; and taking trips to oyster and fish packing houses in that vicinity.

Accompanying the seminar students will be Dr. George W. Jeffers, head of the College biology department, Dr. Robert T. Brumfield, and Miss Vera Baron of the Longwood biology department.

Local Church Groups Cite Week's Plans

Methodist

"God Designs, Youth Builds," is the theme of the Wesley Foundation Conference to be held on March 3 and 4. Dr. D. D. Holt and Rev. Troy Barrett, from North Carolina will be among the outstanding speakers. Longwood students have been invited to all sessions of the conference. A banquet will be held Saturday night, March 4. Tickets for the banquet will be sold at 60c for students. The Randolph-Macon delegation to the conference will lead the Wesley Foundation in the theme, "Common Methods of Prayer," at their regular Sunday night meeting.

Presbyterian

Dr. Marvin Schlegel will speak at the Westminster Fellowship hour this Sunday night on the subject of "Christianity versus Communism." The talk will be given at a supper meeting held at the church. Last Sunday, members of the Presbyterian Synod's Council were guests of the church.

Baptist

Miss Hazel Moon, a missionary to Nigeria will speak at the YWA meeting of the Baptist Church on Thursday night at 7:00. Dr. James W. Middleton, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Atlanta, Ga., will speak at the Wednesday prayer meeting.

Episcopal

Brinkley Snowden, a returned missionary from India, will speak to the Canterbury Club this Sunday night at the regular meeting of the group. He will show a film "The Heart of India" in the Parish House immediately after a Candle Light service held in the church.

State Library Group To Meet At College

A regional workshop conducted by the Extension Division of the Virginia State Library will be held in the Longwood College Library auditorium on Thursday, March 1.

About twenty county librarians from southside Virginia including a number of county library boards will attend this meeting. The all day sessions will be conducted by Miss Ernestine Grafton, head of the extension division, and her first assistant, Miss Christine Coffey. Mrs. Martha Holman Jenkins of the College library staff will be in charge of registration.

Construction Crew Keeps Annex Students On Toes; Serves As Faithful Alarm Clock

"Wrap that towel closer around you, kid; the construction crew is comin' through again." So goes the continuous cry on annex from seven a. m. to four-thirty p. m.

I'm telling you, boys, we up on Third Annex really have ourselves a time. Everyone else around here wakes up by such ordinary methods as an alarm clock, the breakfast bell, or a screeching roommate, but not us, boys. We arise at the ungodly hour of (ugh!) seven a. m., by the most unique, ultra-modern system imaginable. There you are, lying in bed just a-snoozin' like nobody's business, when all of a sudden you are gently aroused by the rhythmic deadbeat of monotone bass voices singing "Roll, Jordan, Roll" to a boogie bass consisting of electric saws, blow torches, and what have you.

When you've finally managed to pull on a skirt and jacket (over your pajamas, naturally), you're on your way to breakfast. Whether or not you'll make it through the torture chamber is the question of the week. One day last week, I was hurrying eagerly to the dining room for a delicious breakfast when I took one step on construction hall and low and behold, I couldn't lift my leg! Slightly confused, I looked down only to find that my bedroom slipper was stuck fast in tar, or some sticky black substance. You know, it sure is surprisin' what one event like that can lead to in a day.

There I was, too weak and sleepy to move, even if I had been able to, when Crash! Bam! Bam! Along came Third Annex, on its way to breakfast also. Of course, since I was unable to step aside for the powerful posse of dignified sophomores, I was knocked down completely and consequently all of me became firmly stuck in the goo, remaining there until someone returning from her two o'clock class, noticed that there was a huge bulge in the floor, got a putty knife, and cut me out of my misery.

Everything was okay then, except the fact that I had missed all my classes, thus shooting my set of cuts all to heck. Of course, that tar didn't leave my complexion looking exactly like an advertisement for Revlon's Touch and Glow. I have since that time been mistaken for anything from a zebra to one of Sophie Tucker's original "Ten Li'l Piekaninnies." The moral of this sad tale is that if you insist on wearing your bedroom slippers to breakfast, always remember to open your eyes, and keep them that way, even if you have to use tooth picks!

Lookin' on the brighter side of things,—I guess we Annex ladies really enjoy being up near the construction work. It gave us opportunity for more uke practice, writing that song "The Man in the Red Hat Never Works." Speakin 'of the man in the red hat, I went down to interview him today (you know, gotta' be efficient when working on these journalistic masterpieces). It seems he and his entire crew agree with us when we say that the cutest girls live on Third Annex. I had thought that probably we were a distraction and hindered their progress on the new building, but he insists that it's quite the contrary—he says. We serve as morale builders, thus enabling them to make better progress — on the building, that's it! Hey—wait a minute! After thinking it over, I just decided that he might mean that they took one look at us and decided to hurry up and finish the job so they can get the heck out of here! What do you think?

Well, anyhow, whether it's good or bad, this construction crew plays a great part in the eventful life of dear ole Third Floor Annex!

Virginians Will Play Music For Pan-Hels To Be Held March 10

Dance Decorations Will Feature Colors Of Eight Sororities

Pete Weaver and his Virginians, of Emporia, will provide the music for the annual Pan-Hellenic dance to be held this Saturday night in the College gymnasium. Decorations for the dance will feature sorority shields and their colors. Murals will adorn the walls of the gym.

A no-break dance for each sorority will be featured during the evening. A joint intermission party will be held in the Student and 'Y' lounges of Student building. Cookies, mints, fruit punch and coffee will be served at the party. Entertainment will be provided by students. The sorority rooms will not be open at any time Saturday night, but students and their dates may visit the sorority rooms Sunday afternoon from 2 to 3 p. m.

The receiving line for the dance will include Dr. and Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster Dean and Mrs. William W. Savage, Miss Ruth Gleaves, and Miss Vera Baron, advisor to the Pan-Hellenic Council. Members of the Council, Sue Brewbaker, Pat Tuggle, Lillian Shelton, Jill Pifer, Margaret Thomas, Pat Taylor, Anne Joiner, and Shirley Livesay will also be in the receiving line.

The dance is open to all sorority girls without admission, and special invitations will be issued to a number of other girls by the sororities.

Juniors To Attend Food Auction Fri.

The junior class will hold a food auction in the recreation hall of Ruffner on Friday between 6:45 and 7:30 p. m.

Admission to the auction will be ten cents per person and there will be three door prizes.

The food to be auctioned off by the class is to be donated by the mothers of members of the junior class and will include homemade cakes, candies and cookies.

Mildred Blessing and Jean Ridenour are in charge of the auction and its arrangements.

LC Students Fail To Back Council Plans

The proposed bi-council system of government on which referendum was recently conducted failed to pass the student body due to the insufficient number of votes cast.

Only a little more than half of the women's student body cast ballots in the referendum. In order for any action to be taken on the proposed system a three-fourths vote of the group was required.

Of the 326 votes cast in the referendum, 235 were for the bi-council system and 91 were against it.

According to Helen Agnew, president of the Women's Student Government Association, the question of a two body government has now been completely thrown out. In order for any action to be taken on the matter at any time in the future the system would have to be reproposed by the student body and any action which they see fit could then be taken.

The bi-council plan was drawn up by a committe from the student council and from the student body. The plan called for an honor council and a student council as separate bodies. Under this system the honor council would have as its duties to investigate, try and pass judgment upon any person guilty of any infraction of the Longwood Honor Code.

As a part of the bi-council system the student council would deal only with cases of a social nature and would also be responsible for the active promotion of loyalty to the college.

The plan was suggested to the student body at a meeting held in January. A committee was appointed to work out the detailed plans for the operation of a two-council system and their completed plans were presented at a student body meeting held in February. The unsuccessful referendum on the bi-council system was held on February 23.

Well Known Critic Gives Choirs Favorable Review

Editors Note: The following article is reprinted from the March 2 Washington Post and is a critical review of the recent concert presented by the Longwood and Hampden - Sydney Choirs with the Arlington Civic Symphony Orchestra. The writer, Paul Hume, of the Post staff, is a well-known music critic.

The Arlington Civic Symphony Orchestra last night enlisted the efforts of a hundred-voice chorus to add to the interest and musical variety of their program.

Bernard Rosenthal directed the orchestra, as he has done throughout this season, with marked increase in its tone and precision. The young ladies and gentlemen of the chorus came from Longwood and Hampden-Sydney Colleges. In music by Des Pres and Handel they were conducted by their regular director, John Molnar.

Rosenthal returned to the platform to lead chorus and orchestra in the dances from Prince Igor by Borodin. This is Russian operatic music that makes heavy demands on the vocal powers of any chorus. The sopranos last night were well up to their task. But the alto voices are not yet heavy enough to cut through the heavy orchestration, and they, with the men, had difficulty making themselves heard.

The Prince Igor music is also more advanced than the orchestra can play at present, though they understand its essential style. Certain kinds of virtuosity are among the last touches gained even by fine amateur symphonic groups.

Earlier in the program the orchestra under Molnar sounded well in exerpts from Handel's Messiah. The chorus was again handicapped by a lack of matured men's voices, but the spirit of the music often came through.

Des Pres' Ave Verum is a test piece which the Longwood girls sang with easy beauty. As for the Dance Instructor Announces Date Of '51 Dance Day

Local High Schools To Send Students

The third annual Dance Day for high school girls will be held at Longwood on Friday, March 16, according to an announcement by Mrs. Emily Landrum, modern dance instructor.

Students from Cumberland, Farmville, Worsham, Appomattox, Buckingham, Kenbridge, Victoria, Chase City, Madison, and South Hill high schools will attend. These schools have been divided into three groups A, B, C, to facilitate the efficiency of the program set up for the day.

Those attending the Dance Day will register in the Student Lounge from 9:15 to 10:00 a. m. The morning session of the program will begin at 9:30 when Group A and any students who arrive early will go to the gymnasium for social dance mixers of the polka type. At 10:00 groups A and B will take part in a modern dance program in the gym. Group C will observe this lesson or may move to the College recreational hall for a social dance lesson.

Group C will receive a modern dance lesson at 11:00 in the gym, while groups A and B will go to the recreation hall for social dancing. At 12:00, members and apprentices of Orchesis, the modern dance club, and those students electing modern dance as a practice class in physical education will give a Dance Demonstration. Lunch will be served to the visiting schools at 12:45.

The afternoon session of Dance Day will begin at 1:20 in the gym, with all groups taking part in social dance. At 2:00 a general discussion will be held and the evaluation of lessons taught. A continuation of the modern dance lesson for Group C, who have designated that they are able to stay longer, will begin at 2:30. Any students who do not have to be back at their home schools to meet their bus schedules may remain for the lesson.

Secretary Announces March 31 As Date For Founders' Day

March 31 has been set as the date of the 1951 Longwood College Founders' Day, according to an announcement by Mrs. Ruth Coyner, alumnae executive secretary.

Mrs. Coyner has also announced the program for that day. Registration will be held from 9 to 10:15 a. m. in Ruffner Hall. At 9:15 a. m. the Farmville alumnae association will act as hostesses at a coffee in the Student Lounge.

Alumnae and students will gather at 11 a. m. for a program in the Methodist Church. The alumnae luncheon will be held at 12:45 in the College dining hall. At 2 p. m. there will be a business meeting in the Virginia Room.

Recently Released Bulletin Boasts Attainment of Goal

"We have reached our goal in the five-year period as planned. We have raised the $25,000 for the Jarman Organ," proudly reports the recently released March Longwood College Bulletin which features Alumnae News.

According to Mrs. Sarah Button Rex, chairman of the Alumnae Fund, in her report in the College Bulletin, contributions to the organ fund were received from 3,000 alumnae. She added that the organ is ready to be installed as soon as the auditorium is complete and that it will be dedicated in October.

An announcement of the tentative program for the 1951 Founder's Day is also included in the bulletin. Founder's Day will be held at the College on Saturday, March 31 and will include such features as an alumnae luncheon, an alumnae-student program and a buffet supper at the Longwood House. The program will be concluded with the presentation of the play "As You Desire Me," by the Longwood and Hampden - Sydney dramatic groups under the direction of Mr. Alec W. Finlayson.

Because of the delay in completion of the auditorium the March Founder's Day will be held without class reunions. Homecoming and the 1951 class reunions will be held in October when Jarman Hall and the Jarman organ will be dedicated.

A report on the Department of Music entitled "Music at Longwood College" by John W. Molnar, head of the department, outlines the department as it is and as it plans to be. Dr. Molnar cites not only the equipment which the department has or is planning to acquire but also the enlarged curricula for music majors.

Miss Betty Venable Spindler, assistant instructor in the audio-visual department, authored the feature "Campus News of 1949-50". According to Miss Spindler's article she was granted her wish of sticking around Longwood after her own graduation to see for herself whether the bottom would drop out of all activities as soon as the Class of 1949 was gone. By her own admission she found few changes other than the absence of her former classmates and the addition of a

Library Features Pennsylvania Art

A display of Pennsylvania Dutch designs is now being shown in the browsing room of the Library. The exhibit, sent by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts will be on display until March 15. This exhibit is the first the Library has featured this year emphasizing crafts.

The designs have been taken from birth certificates, dower chests, ceramics, and decorations painted on paper. They vary in their depiction from scenes of the daily life of the Pennsylvania Dutch to the purely fanciful.

The designs have been reproduced by the silk-screen process. The process is based on the principle of the stencil application but differs in that the color is applied through a tightly stretched mesh of silk fabric. Paint is applied to the printing surface by passing a rubber squeegee across the silk so that the paint is forced through the stencil to form a deposit of color on the printed surface.

Dr. Beverly Ruffin, Miss Irving Armstrong, and Miss Virginia Bedford of the Longwood faculty and Miss Louise Johnson, elementary school librarian, will attend a meeting of District D of the Virginia Education Association to be held at the Bowling Green Junior High School in Petersburg. Miss Bedford is president of the local branch of this organization. Dr. Ruffin, Miss Armstrong, and Miss Johnson will attend the meeting of the school libraries and teaching materials section of which Dr. Ruffin is chairman.

Personalities Vote Slated

Election of senior personalities will be held in the table in the hall tomorrow from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Students are asked to vote for six seniors from the list of nominees provided.

The twelve seniors whose names appear on the list were nominated, discussed, and voted upon by a board composed of four faculty members and four students representing various publications and organizations of the school. This board attempted to select, impartially, those seniors who would have been chosen by the student body for their personality traits.

It has been requested that the Rotunda urge students to read the editorial concerning the elections and then vote, considering seriously the people for whom they vote.

Administration Visits Virginia High School

Mrs. Mary W. Watkins, executive secretary, represented Longwood College at a "College Day" held Monday night at George Washington high school in Alexandria. Mrs. Watkins also visited Falls Church before returning to the College.

During this week, Miss Virginia Wall will visit three Virginia high schools to talk to seniors and college bound students giving them information regarding Longwood College. Miss Wall will visit Covington high school, Clifton Forge high school, and Natural Bridge high school.

Dean William W. Savage will visit Huddleston high school this Thursday to discuss the advantages of Longwood College with seniors and interested students.

Watts, Crawford, Bishop Selected Business Managers

Betsy Wilson, chairman of the publications board, has released the names of Longwood publications heads for the forthcoming year. Nancy Garbee will take over as editor-in-chief of the Colonnade, magazine; new editor of the Rotunda is Mary Jo Smith; Betty S. Borkey has been appointed editor-in-chief of the 1951 Virginian, yearbook.

Maxine Watts, Celeste Bishop, and Mary Crawford will serve the Colonnade, Rotunda, and Virginian respectively as business managers. Subordinate staff and departmental heads will be announced later by the new editors and business managers.

Nancy Garbee, who succeeds Edith Duma in the Colonnade editor's chair, is a junior from Lynchburg. Her magazine background includes this year as short story editor and former work as a member of the short story staff. Serving as secretary of her sorority, Zeta Tau Alpha, this year, she is also a member of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational society. Nancy acts as vice-president of the Dramatic Club during the current school year. She is also a member of Boerc Eh Thorne, local English honorary society, and the Spanish Club.

Former Managing Editor

Mary Jo Smith, junior from Portsmouth, has been associated with the College newspaper since her freshman year. Prior to promotion to editorship of the Rotunda, Mary Jo held the positions of news editor and managing editor. Serving as vice-president of her sorority, Zeta Tau Alpha, she is also a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary collegiate journalism fraternity, Kappa Delta Pi, and Le Cercle Francais.

Betty Scott Borkey, succeeding Charlotte K. Jones as editor of the Virginian, is a junior from Bowling Green. She has served this year as photographic editor of the annual and was a staff member her sophomore year. Betty Scott is acting as vice-president of the junior class, business manager of the Dramatic Club, and treasurer of Alpha Sigma Alpha, social sorority. She is also a member of Cotillion club, Kappa Delta Pi and Pi Delta Epsilon.

Business Managers

Maxine Watts, new business manager of the Colonnade, is a junior from Lexington. During her high school years, she served as editor of the Bridge Bulletin, newspaper, and as business manager of the annual. Maxine is a member of Theta Sigma Upsilon, social sorority.

The Rotunda Regrets

The Rotunda erronously reported in the February 28 issue that Marta Jackson directed the junior skit in the annual Sing Contest. That position was held by Bunnie Ricks of Waynesboro. We regret that this error appeared and wish to apologize to those concerned.

VOTE, VOTE, VOTE For Personailty Plus

Vote! Vote! Vote! The word has almost become as frequently heard as the regular ticking of the clock to the students of Longwood. And much to the sorrow of those who are really interested in their College, it makes just about as much impression upon the minds of the students as the same old "tick-tock."

Tomorrow night, the students will be given a chance to vote for six seniors whom they feel have become a necessary part of the College because of their personalities. If we are interested enough to vote, do we know how and for whom we should vote? Just as it has been urged that the students of Longwood consider the abilities and background of those they choose for major officers, it is urged that they remember the key to voting for senior personalities . . . PERSONALITY!

A girl or boy who leads the class, or an organization, is not necessarily bubbling over with wit, charm and good humor. It may be someone who, although it can't be said, "She is a very capable leader," it can be said that she has been a boon to the spirit of her class and the school. If students feel that a certain person has become loved and known by everyone for her willingness to pitch in and help, quietly or otherwise, that she has done her best to help out cheerfully in a tight spot and that she has that intangible quality, PERSONALITY, then they should vote for her.

Let's wake up for a minute and really listen to V-O-T-E. It can take on new meaning when we remember that it's Very important to us as students that we give our Opinion on Things that are Essential to us and our College.

You Missed the Boat

In spite of the fact that 235 Longwood students voted for it and only 91 voted against it Longwood will not have a bi-council system of government. Why? Because the rest of the student body never quite got around to casting their vote.

There are probably a lot of those students who did not vote who are not even quite sure just what a bi-council system of government at Longwood would involve. These are the students that never attend student body meetings and read only the social notes or the jokes in the Rotunda. And yet they are the ones who would squawk the loudest, longest, and hardest if they felt they were not being governed by a "student" government.

Democracy is not a God-given right and privilege — it is a job, a responsibility which rests upon the least of its personnel. Theoretically the college student is one who attends the institution of his choice for the purpose of better suiting himself for life in the adult world. Unfortunately more than a few take this to mean that once in college the student has only a few tasks and problems — how to get the best grades possible with least amount of work —how to break the most rules and regulations without being "caught", and how to avoid anything that may remotely resemble duty or responsibility.

When the bi-council system of government was presented to the students for a vote all but 326 members of the student body very neatly avoided the responsibility of voting. They ought to be very proud of themselves. One is left only to wonder which responsibilities they will avoid in the so-called adult world outside ivy-clad walls of their alma mater. Or will that magical diploma suddenly transform them into the adults they wish to be?

When these students, who are all too soon due to take their places "outside", do grow up we hope that they will not find that all those "rights" they have so long taken for granted have somehow disappeared.

It might not be a bad idea if the administration were to assume all the governmental rights of the College and restore the students to student government only when and if they are ready to not only secure the right but to hold it. Such a plan might even lure a few students to the student body meetings.

They Want What We've Got

"It has been the practiced policy of the administration to censor all derogatory or critical references, editorial or otherwise, to the administration, faculty, or physical plant of the institution."

The above paragraph has been extracted from a recent editorial in the Cavalier Daily and refers to the press rights in a prominent Virginia women's college.

We were justifiably shocked and outraged that such a situation can and does exist on a state campus—a situation that is totally foreign to the Rotunda staff where the phrase "freedom of the press" is not only an ideal but a reality: and with the realization that such censorship does exist, we happily tip our hats to an administration that has never encroached on our assumed right to "print the news as we see fit."

That the material printed weekly in the Rotunda is the result of the editors' taste and discretion is taken for granted on this campus, however, it has recently been questioned among the student body as to whether all our campus publications enjoy this essential privilege.

It is our opinion that the life or death of a publication depends largely upon the freedom with which it is compiled and published, and the denial of this freedom is unnatural and detrimental. If such a situation does exist on the Longwood campus in any of its publications, we hope that faculty and students together will realize its hazards and remedy the problem as quickly as possible.

Open Letter To Students

The Red Cross Drive began on our campus Monday, March 5, and our goal for Longwood has been set at $425. The YWCA has been asked to head this drive on our Campus, and gladly accepted the task. But the real responsibility rests on you because it is what you give that makes us reach our goal.

We, as the YWCA cabinet, have made many appeals to you this year, and you have always co-operated with us. Again we ask your support.

We do not feel that it is necessary to write at length about how much the Red Cross does for humanity everywhere. Especially significant is the work they are doing with our boys in Korea today.

The Red Cross needs your contribution no matter how small it may be. Again we ask your help and again we know that you will rise to the occasion and the cause.

With the co-operation of the faculty and the students our goal can be met, and we can send aid to those who are less fortunate than we. Who knows but that the money you give might help some friend or loved-one of yours. They may need this help, so give to the Red Cross, and give generously!

Stecking My Neck Out

by Joanne Steck

Yessir boys, we're really getting back in the old swing—for a while anyway till the new comrades take over.

Well, seems like the freshmen are really pushing ye ole pro. duction. Hear tell they're scratching those young innocent heads trying to think up something unique and original enough to surpass the learned sophomores.

Yes, the birdies are beginning to tweet regularly now, and spring is just bursting forth and the student body sems to be bursting to get "out and about."

Heard a neat little story the other day. Two men came to the science building and asked for Charlie Hop in the lab class he was having that period. The girls told them he had gone for a minute but would be back soon. So—the men surveyed the room—eyed the students and said "When he comes back tell him two detectives are looking for him!" The class thought Charlie Hop had done something drastic and began to defend him.

About that time one of the "detectives" saw him from the window and asked if that were he—where he was going—what he was doing out there and a multitude of other leading questions. The class began again to defend him. "He's just going after his mail maybe"—or "Maybe he had a phone call" or "maybe he's got to see somebody" and "I just know he's not trying to get away!" The men left and a while later Charlie Hop came in with that eternal grin on his face. The whole class in an uproar tried to warn him of his pending disaster, but he finally explained that they were just two old friends playing a practical joke! Anyway, it proved one thing—even if detectives are after their professor, Longwood students will defend him to the end. I wonder if the high school students would defend the student teachers like that. On second thought, they'd probably be the ones to send the detectives in the first place! Anything to get out of class!

Extra—we no longer have the "man in the red hat" on the job—but we have the next best thing—"the man in the red shirt." The only trouble is that he is supposed to be working but he enjoys the uke serenades and that most recent—cello serenades so much that he finds work most difficult.

Blind Date

Campus Cogitations

Question: Do you read the Rotunda? If not, why not? If so, what do you read?

Margaret Steele: Yes, Steck's column, social notes, campus cogitations, and I glance at the front page.

Janice Pinkard: Yes, I read all the head-lines, social notes, campus cogitations, Steck's column, and the editorials if they look interesting.

Bobbie Obenshain: Yes, I read it every week. Steck's column comes first, social notes and then campus cogitations.

Betty Anne Johnson: I read most everything that Bobbie has mentioned.

Nell Bradshaw: I read the headlines first, then to the sports page, and last of all, a general onceover.

Utty Bishop: I look at all of it.

"Drip" Driskill: I read articles pertaining to the things in which I am interested. Afterwards I read "Hello Joe" or Steck's column and the editorials when somebody says they're good.

Jacque Sell: I read the editorialsials, some articles on the front page, and I love the Exchange Post.

Betty Jo Jennings: I read the Exchange Post when it's there, the social notes, some front page stories, and the features.

Joanne Pershing: I try to read everything!

Dot Bankhead: Yes, I read all of it; start with the front page, jump to the back then to the second and third.

Anne Dudley: Yes, I read it if there's one to be found in the Town Girl's room.

Billie Tomlinson: I usually read everything — sports, editorials, and the front page.

Bessie Matthews: The front page interests me especially, and the social notes. I'm not much on sports.

Elizabeth Browning: I read everything in it. I like the cogitations and the humor columns.

Lee Wood: Yep, sho' do—most of it, that is. I read the jokes, social news, and this column in particular.

Kakie McCready: Yes, I always read most of it and usually all of it.

Joan Pritchett: Yes—the social column and occasionally I check the ads to see if there are any sales at Baldwin's.

Lucyle Humphries: Yes, I read it all if I don't like the dessert at dinner on Wednesday nights.

Mary Moore Karr: Sure, I read it. It's free ain't it?

Sara Cregar: Yes, I read every part. You gotta have something to do while you wait for chicken!

Connie Blankenship: Yes, I read the editorials, sports section, social notes, Campus Cogitations, and some of the news stories.

Anne Oakley: I read different things every week. It depends on what catches my eye and whether the topic interests me or not.

Jo Price: I always read the social column, the sports and just about everything except the stories on the assembly speakers.

Pee Peery: I read the front page, but I don't get that second page too well.

Bobbie Pollard: Yes, I read it from cover to cover since a certain person is gone.

Cadaver Found Hanging From Tree Outside Rotunda

Yes, we shuddered when we read the headline, too. Shuddered and dashed madly outside the Rotunda to verify the fact. No body was to be seen but we soon discovered that the story was all true.

Last Wednesday between the hours of 7 and 8 a. m. the body was found by a student who had enough presence of mind to report the "incident" to the Chief of Police.

The surprisingly mobile body when discovered was clad only in a yellow tie and a sign that read "Fletcher, Change Your Regime." It is now resting quietly in the dissection laboratory of the Medical School of the University of Virginia. And that is from whence it came.

Yes the story is true — the headline really appeared and the cadaver was really discovered swinging from a tree. Fortunately for the morale of the Longwood student body the above mentioned Rotunda was that of the University of Virginia and not that of Longwood.

Digging further into the story we discovered that Dean Fletcher, to whom the sign adorning the cadaver was addressed, is associate dean of admissions at the University and a member of the board which has dismissal power over first and second year students found deficient in class work.

A full investigation of the incident is being made by President Darden who believes that it is the work of two first-year students who have recently been suspended.

Although we realize that such a discovery would undoubtedly relieve the monotony of the usual 8:05 class and possibly even awaken its participants, we are glad the swinging cadaver was found in front of the University's Rotunda and not our own.

Longwood Women's Varsity Tops Notre Dame 43-46

Teams Tie 27-27 At Half-Time Tally

The Longwood Women's Varsity journeyed to Baltimore, Maryland, to defeat Notre Dame of Maryland Saturday afternoon by a score of 56-43.

The Notre Dame girls racked up 18 points in the first quarter of the game to earn a 7-point margin over Longwood, but the Farmville team came back strongly in the second quarter to knot the count at 27-all as the half ended.

Longwood pulled out in front in the third quarter by netting 15 points to their opponents' 10, and sewed up the game in the final period with another 15-point scoring splurge.

Freshman Patsy Sanford dropped in 13 shots from the floor and added a free throw to win high-scoring honors with 27 points. Lois Redd topped the Notre Dame team with nine field goals and one foul shot for a total of 20 points.

Rachel Peters of Longwood earned a third spot in the game by notching 12 points. Other scorers were Lucy Mann with 8 points, Ann Lynch, 7, and Nell Bradshaw, 2.

Entering the game as guards for Longwood were Marian Beckner, Betty Tyler, Jean idenour, Clara Borum, Juanita Hudson, and Edith Kennon.

This Friday night will see the Varsity facing Panzer College of East Orange, New Jersey, on the home court in the final game of the season.

PIONEERS LOST LAST GAME OF SEASON:

Last Friday night brough to a close a very dismal and unhappy season for the Pioneers, as they lost to the Ferrum Jr. College team. However, the score does not tell the real calibre of the local team, or what they can do as a unit. The pioneers led throughout the first three quarters, and it looked as though they had the game in the bag; but the more experienced and better trained Ferrum club began to break fast and do everything possible to weaken the defense of the local club.

Although this did bring to end the basketball season of the Pioneers, I believe that every member on the club has had a wonderful time and will be looking forward to another season next year. But with the war situation as it is, it is very improbable that there will be another Pioneer basketball club in the near future.

STATE TEAMS TO COMPLETE IN M-D CONFERENCE TOURNEY:

When the Mason-Dixon conference tournament gets under way tomorrow at Catholic University in Washington, three Virginia teams will be there to play. Hampden-Sydney is slated to open the festivities against Western Maryland, while Lynchburg will tangle with Roanoke later the same night. Because of the way the teams are paired off, it is impossible for but two of the Virginia teams to survive the opening round. The semi-finals will be held Friday night and the finals Saturday. Bridgewater and Randolph-Macon, the two other Virginia teams in the conference, did not qualify for a tournament berth.

A NOTE TO THE BOXING LOVERS:

The Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Tournament opens Friday at the University of Virginia, with six teams competing for honors. Syracuse, with two straight Eastern titles behind, will be going after its third, along with Virginia, Penn State, Army, Catholic University, and Georgetown. Virginia, with only two team wins all years, has a very good chance of doing just as well in the big meet as some of the other squads who have a better over all record. Throughout the whole season Leanard Coiner, Al Hollingsworun, and Grover Matterson have proved to be virtually unstoppable. If these three come through Friday and Saturday Virginia may finish high in the team standings. A win in the contest for the whole club would not be impossible.

Pioneers Defeated 71-58 In Last Game of Season By Ferrum Junior College

Sportin' Around

by Lou Jamison

This past week end was another successful one for the varsity basketball team. The girls went to Maryland where they played Notre Dame and defeated them by a score of 56-43. Quite a team, I'd say!

This Friday night the Longwood team will be trying for another win. They will play the Panzer College team which is coming here for the game from East Orange, New Jersey. It should be a very good game, so try not to miss it.

"To be or not to be" a swimming meet. That is the current question. The H2O Club had planned the annual telegraphic swimming meet for the last week in March, but it seems there is a gross lack of contestants who have completed the eight half-hour practices required for entrance in the meet. A separate class meet has been planned for the week after Easter vacation. This would count toward color cup points, but as things stand now the Red n' Whites will get all the points. Why? Simply because no Green n' Whites have entered the running, and the points will be forfeited to the Red n' Whites unless something is done fast. What's the matter girls? We can't let this happen!

It would be bad enough not to have a swimming meet, but to throw all those points away without even a fight would be worse. Come on Green n' White! Get out your fish fins and hustle on down to the pool. Time is running out.

Men's Varsity Leads At Half

By W. Forest Pillow

The Longwood Pioneers were defeated on their home court last Friday night by Ferrum Junior College 71-58. Although the scores remained close throughout the entire game, the action in the first three quarters seemed to predict a victory for the Pioneers, with the score at the half 42-59 in favor of the Pioneers. Ferrum jumped into the lead in the last quarter and scored 23 points to the Pioneers' 7 points.

Center Johnny Peace was the top scorer for the Longwood team with 25 points to his credit; co-captain Jerry Shevick was next with 21 points. Guard Jimmy Thompson and forward Bobby Bradshaw increased the score for the Pioneers with several spectacular set-shots. Guards Harold Hutter and Corky Foreman exhibited some very effective defense tactics, preventing Ferrum from scoring in many instances.

This is the last scheduled basketball game of the 1950-51 season for the Pioneers. Although most of the games resulted in defeats for the Pioneers, many of them, especially the Lynchburg J. V. and Ferrum games played on the Longwood court, were close with the Pioneers only a few points from victory. The team began the season with twelve members, giving the National Business College and Medical College teams fast, exciting games.

The team sustained the loss of Ned Orange, towering co-captain center; Lester Smallwood and Bill Overbey, two of their star forwards; and Bob Williams, one of the outstanding guards. Although with resources depleted, the remaining Pioneers gave their opponents some close competition. As one of the Pioneers expressed it, most of the opposing teams were "just out of our class."

75 Accept Membership In 8 Campus Sororities As Result of Spring Rushing

AST Leads List With 13 Pledges

Seventy-five students accepted bids to the eight social sororities on campus last week, according to an announcement by Sue Brewbaker, president of the College Pan-Hellenic Council.

Alpha Sigma Tau received thirteen pledges, and twelve girls pledged Theta Sigma Upsilon sorority. Accepting bids to Delta Sigma Epsilon and Sigma Sigma Sigma were ten girls each. Kappa Delta received nine pledges into their group, and Pi Kappa Sigma, eight. Seven girls accepted bids to Alpha Sigma Alpha, and Zeta Tau Alpha received six pledges.

Those who accepted bids to Sigma Sigma Sigma bids were Nancy Adkins, Betty Benton, Fifi Carter, Blanton Ferguson, and Mary Hersman. Also pledging this sorority were June Horton, Elizabeth Garrett Hoskins, Nancy Huff, June Johns, and Natalie Lancaster.

The girls accepting Alpha Sigma Alpha bids are Mary Evelyn Bennett, Elizabeth Browning, Gaynelle Davidson, Margaret "Peggy" Jones, Jackie Lackey, Jean Pierce, and Patsy Sanford.

Pledging Zeta Tau Alpha are Sara Lu Bradshaw, Mary Ann Bresslin, Ann McCracken, Mason Moore, Jean Newcomb, and Ethel Straw.

Pi Kappa Sigma claimed the following pledges: Barbara Blackman, Nell Copley, Betty Lou Garrett, Jeanne Hamilton, Betty Islin, Monita Key, Stokes Overbey, and Margaret Turner.

The pledges received by Alpha Sigma Tau are Anita Belle Bagley, Lou Beavers, Joanna Biddlecomb, Elizabeth Boswell, Lois Cramer, Patricia Donnally, and Adrian Jennings. Also pledging Alpha Sigma Tau are Betty Anne Johnston, Nancy Purdum, Margaret Steele, Demestra Steger, Jane Tick, and Lee Wood.

Theta Sigma Upsilon claimed Mary Elizabeth Bennett, Margie Virginia McGlothlin, Dianne Murray, Gay Power, Barbara Ann Robertson, Faith Smith, Betty Stanley, and Billie Tomlinson were also received by the sorority.

Pledges to Delta Sigma Epsilon are Virginia Berry, Nellie Lucy, Ann Mallory, Sue Oliver, and Jackie Palmer. Also pledged by this group are Nancy Park, Shirley Roby, Mary Frances Spurlock, Wilma Spurlock and Martha Wilson.

The pledges signed their bids in the presence of Miss Vera Baron, advisor to the Pan-Hellenic last Wednesday afternoon. The signing of the bids was followed by suppers in the individual sorority rooms.

Sophs To Plan Birthday Dinner For March 14

The March birthday dinner will be held in the College dining hall Wednesday, March 14. The sophomore class is in charge of the plans for the dinner.

Roberta Browning, chairman of the decoration committee, has announced that the decorations for the dinner will be in keeping with the spirit of March. Lucy Page Hall is chairman of the program committee and Sonia Kile is chairman of the menu committee.

All sophomore day students and Mr. Raymond French, sponsor of the sophomore class, have been invited to attend the dinner.

The menu for the March birthday dinner will be as follows:

Fresh Grapefruit
Baked Ham
Spinach With Egg
Casserole Potatoes With Cheese
Avocado Salad
Whole Wheat Rolls
Sweet Cucumber Pickle
Coffee

After-Dinner Mints

Alumnae Officers Discuss New Plans

Miss Helen Costan, national alumnae president, from Lynchburg, and Mrs. Thomas J. Starke, national vice-president from Richmond, visited Longwood last Saturday to confer with President Dabney S. Lancaster on alumnae business.

During the conference they discussed the newest project of the alumnae association, the possibility of an alumnae house here on the campus. The Snack Bar, the program for Founders Day, and plans for the big alumnae homecoming to be held next October when the Jarman Organ will be dedicated in the new auditorium were other items of business considered.

New business manager of the Rotunda, Celeste Bishop, is a sophomore of Danville. She has served as apprentice to the present business manager, Helen Connelly. Celeste is a member of Kappa Delta, social sorority, Cotillion club, the Dramatic club, the French Circle, and the Spanish Club.

Mary Crawford, newly selected business manager of the Virginian, is a junior of Richmond. She has worked with the annual as assistant business manager this year and was a member of the staff her sophomore year. Mary is also a member of Cotillion club, Pi Delta Epsilon, the Dramatic Club, Association for Childhood Education, and Kappa Delta, social sorority. She is serving this year as secretary of the House Council and president of the Westminster Fellowship.

Graduate Work Planned

In his annual Letter to the Alumnae President Dabney S. Lancaster reports to the alumnae on the prospects for graduate work at Longwood. According to Dr. Lancaster plans have already been formulated for a state-wide graduate program in education. It has been suggested that a student could take at least 12 hours of graduate work at Longwood College and this would be recognized as credit towards a graduate degree at several Virginia institutions.

Dr. and Mrs. Lancaster will hold open house for the returning alumnae from 4 to 5 p. m. at their home on High Street. Dinner will be held at 6:30 p. m. in the form of a buffet supper at Longwood House. The day's program will end with the presentation of the drama "As You Desire Me," to be given by the Longwood Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs. The play will be directed by Mr. Alec C. Finlayson.

Freshmen Will Portray 'Dreams' In Production Scheduled For March 16

'Dreamer's Holiday' To Be Given In Rec

"Dreamer's Holiday", a musical production in three acts will be presented by the freshman class in the College Rec at 8:30 p. m. this Friday night.

The production will open with a corner scene in which three girls are engaged in varied activities. The first girl, Joyce Cutrell, will be reading horror stories. Mary Elva Robinson, the second girl, will be busily stuffing food of various types into her mouth. The third girl, Margie Fore, will be playing jazz music on her uke. Sally Smith and Peggy Hood will also be in this scene.

Dreams Portrayed

The three acts which follow are the dreams that each girl has as result of her activities before going to sleep. The first scene, Joyce Cutrell's dream, entitled "Unheavenly Bodies" will have as its setting Hell. Roberta Wyatt will play the part of King Devil and Liz Crockett will play Tempest (Queen Devil). Also in this act will be Betty Lou Garrett, Jackie Seil, Joyce Booth, Jane Tick, Mary D. Richardson, Juanita Hudson, Ellen Porter, Doris Underwood, Moneda Key, Diane Murray, Kathy Emison, and Ann Edmonds.

The second scene, a result of Mary Elva's over eating, called "Case of the Missing Question Mark," will have as its setting a vegetable garden. Nancy Huff will play the part of the celery queen, "Detective"; Patty Deering, the lonely petunia in the onion patch; Betty Ryan, the stewed tomato; Wilma Spurlock, Paula Doval, and Liz Hoskins, three Irish potato cops; Molly Hersman, Mr. Corn; Faye Greenland, tumble weed; Betty Islin, Liz Boswel, and Barbara Blackman, two black-eyed peas and a cotton boll; and Geneva Robinson, at Perkins, Maxine McElroy, Sue Oliver, Billie Thominson, Nellie Culpeper, Louise Thrift, and Virginia Moon, other vegetables.

Harlem Blues

The third scene, "Harlem Blues", which results from Margie's uke playing, will have as its setting Harlem. Winnie Dunnevant will play the part of Sweet Georgia Brown. Maxine Dize, her boy friend; Marian Thompson, the second lover; and Eleanor Koch, the bar tender. In the band which furnishes the music for this act Mary Jean Carlisle will play the piano, Mary Ann King, the bass fiddle, and Jean Hamilton, the drum. Nancy Tignor, Silvia Reames, Frances Marker, June Wilmoth, Mildred Parker, Nell Copley, Robbie' Roby, and Shirley Roby will be the crowd.

Doughnuts and cokes will be sold by the class during intermission at one end of the Rec.

Seats will be reserved for the juniors, sister class to the freshmen. The entire production will be dedicated to the freshmen's sisters, the Class of '52.

Notice

According to a recent announcement by Dabney S. Lancaster, Longwood students will be dismissed from classes at noon Thursday, March 22 for Easter vacation. They will not be required to attend all Thursday classes as was previously announced.

Smith Announces Newspaper Staff For Coming Year

McLean Will Serve As Managing Editor

Mary Jo Smith, newly appointed editor of the Rotunda, has announced her staff for the coming year. Virginia McLean will serve as managing editor of the paper for the 1951-52 session. Virginia, a sophomore from Richmond, has had two years experience on the Rotunda staff. She worked as a reporter on the news staff until her appointment last spring as news editor.

Other Appointments

Janet Wiggins has been appointed news editor of the Rotunda, with Bunny Gibson working with her as copy editor. Feature editor for the coming year will be Jean Jinnett.

Helen Castros will take over the job of girls' sports editor, and Forest Pillow will take over the men's sports. The sports column, "Sportin' Around" will be handled by Lou Jamison, and Jimmy Thompson will write "The Spectator".

Advertising manager for the Rotunda wil be Carolyn Leffel, and Mary Ann Evans will be the head of the circulation staff. Mary Moore Karr will work as art editor.

Columns

Barbara Caskey has been appointed to fill the position of social editor. She will edit "Social Notes." The feature column, "Hello, Joe" is to be written by Barbara White. The News column writer for the coming year will be Sally Brickman.

The exchange column will be handled by Joanne Steck. "Campus Cogitations", weekly question column, will be written by Stokes Overby.

Girls To Study Techniques

A class will be held once a week beginning March 18, in the Publications office for old and new members of the Rotunda staffs and anyone else interested in learning to write headlines, proof read, and /or write news stories. The definite date for the class will be decided upon at the meeting tonight after dinner.

Those attending the classes will be taught the meaning of headline notations and counts, the proof-reader marks and how and where to write them, and the order of a well-written news story. This class will not be limited to members of the staffs but will be open to any student interested in learning any of the above-mentioned areas.

Students who would like to write news, features or sports stories, proof read, work on advertising, or business are urged to speak to a member of the paper staff. Those interested will be free to move about from staff to staff, finally serving apprenticeship on the one they find most interesting. Additions to staffs will be announced periodically.

Dance Recital To Be Given By Orchesis In Gym Friday

Ten Apprentices Will Be Dancing For First Time

Twenty - six students will dance in the annual Orchesis recital to be presented Saturday, March 17 at 8 p. m. in the College gymnasium. Fifteen of the group are members of Orchesis while ten are apprentices who will be dancing for the first time.

The dance will run a gamut of themes. "Greeting," the opening dance to the music of Paul Bowles, "Whar Did You Come From?", will be punctuated by the dancer's voices in "Hi! Hey! How're You?" as they move across the gym calling to one another in much the same manner as students speak in passing through the halls.

Audience To Sing

The audience will be invited to sing before each part of the Folk Sing which uses Norman Lloyd's accompaniment of "Workin' on the Railroad", "Erie Canal", and "Whoopie Ti—Yi—Yo." A large group of dancers makes up this section of the program which uses work movements as the basic rhythmic structure and sequential materials for dance compositions. Song sheets will be given to the audience with the programs.

The "Folk Walk" attempts to make use of the gym as a long stage upon which Erma Poarch envisions herself leaving the streets and walking through the countryside behind Dolores Hoback who sets the stage as nature. Dolores' movements, as she speaks before the two following locomotive studies, "Village Stream" and "City Rush", portrays the Village Stream as in Farmville, U. S. A., on a Saturday. City Rush has no comparison but with New York for those who have been there.

"Doodle Portraits" will have Marian Higgs in the first portrait as a dreamer and Challice Haydon and Marjorie Hall as the dreamer's ethereal figure. Margie Hood and Jean Ridenour as the inner and outer selves of laughter show the Extrovert, and Mary Jane Stansbury, as the adolescent, will portray the extrem-

President Addresses High School Seniors In Blackstone Today

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster traveled to Blackstone today to give the keynote address at the "College Day" program held there. Participating in the "College Day" activities were the juniors and seniors of the high schools in Amelia, Nottoway, and Lunenburg Counties.

Miss Margaret Wall will represent Longwood at a similar program in Culpeper tomorrow.

"Career Day," will be held at Kempsville High School in Princess Anne County, on Friday of this week. Miss Fern Staggs of the Home Economic Department will act as Longwood's representative on this occasion.

Many of the faculty and staff members have visited in Virginia in effect this year has been points ahead to lose the game college students in Longwood. Also in effffeffct this year has been an extensive entertainment program for high school seniors who have visited here.

'51 Nominating Committee Submits Slate of Nominees For New Major Officers

Students From Ten Schools To Attend Dance Day Here

Senior and junior majors in physical education, Orchesis and the modern dance class will assist Mrs. Emily K. Landrum at the third annual Dance Day Friday, March 16. Students will attend from ten high schools of the surrounding area.

A polka jamboree for the purpose of introducing students to one another will make up the first session. Frances Stringfellow, Jean Ridenour, Eleanor Weddle and Lou Jamison will teach Ed. Durlacher's "Pat-a-Cake" polka and the "Tennessee" polka. The two modern dance classes to be taught by Mrs. Landrum will have Marian Beckner, Jean Ridenour, Joan Missimer, Margie Hood, and Erma Poarch as assistants.

Features Folk Tunes

Well known folk tunes, bases for creative movements, will be featured in both modern dance classes. "Musical phrasing is one of Virginia's peculiar problems which concerns both the music and physical education teacher," states Mrs. Landrum who has visited and taught in fourteen schools in the Southside Virginia area.

Frances Stringfellow, Eleanor Weddle, Jessie Carson, Jean Farmer, Ann Lynch, Betsy Gravesly, and Romine Mahood will teach a social dance lesson in the recreation hall to the senior high school girls. The basic dance walk, leading and following, and the basic forward and back will be taught in combinations suitable for beginners and as something constructive for those who have picked up dance here and there.

Orchesis, the modern dance club, will demonstrate how dances are made, using "Greeting," "Folk Walk," "Folk Sing," "Dromophobia," and the "Extrovert" as examples. Each composition will be preceded by a brief explanation of its form and its use of basic dance techniques.

Following lunch in the dining hall, all three groups will have a social dance lesson. A discussion and evaluation of all materials taught will follow and plans for the next Dance Day will be made. Those who remain late will have the opportunity for a second dance lesson, with the junior majors and modern dance students assisting, in which basic dance techniques will be stressed.

Students and faculty are invited to attend the whole or any part of the Dance Day. The program will be posted on the Faculty Bulletin Board.

Students To Sign For New Rooms For Coming Year

Room assignments for next year will be made during the first week of April, according to a recent announcement made by Miss Ruth Gleaves. Blanks for this purpose will be available in the office of the Dean of Women and in Mrs. Eastham's office in Cunningham Hall.

Each student is requested to fill in blank, giving a first, second, and third choice of rooms and turn it in with the receipt for ten dollars room fee to the office of the Dean of Women. Students are requested to pay the room deposit of ten dollars in the treasurer's office prior to this time. Freshmen rooms will be assigned on April 2, Sophomores on April 4, and Junior rooms on April 5.

Alpha Kappa Gamma To Tap In Assembly

Alpha Kappa Gamma, national honorary leadership fraternity, will tap outstanding members of the junior and senior classes at the regular assembly tomorrow, Romine Mahood, president of the Longwood chapter, announced today.

Selected on the basis of leadership and outstanding contributions to Longwood during their stay here, these girls will be bid to membership in the fraternity.

Alpha Kappa Gamma taps three times each year. Only juniors and seniors are eligible for membership.

Girls Attend Annual Meet

Longwood was represented at the fortieth annual convention of the Virginia Home Economics Association, held March 8 thru 10 in Roanoke, by ten students and two faculty members.

Miss Fern E. Staggs and Miss Bessie Jeter of the home economics department along with Evelyn Farrier, Helen Barrow, Lillian Shelton, Frances Thomas, Jane Seward, Audrey Ramsey, Betty Jo Jennings, Elsie Baker, Jackie Foreman, and Gladys Savage went by bus and station wagon to Roanoke last Thursday and Friday to attend the three day convention.

While at the convention the representatives attended meetings, discussions, and exhibits. At the business meeting Saturday morning the college club adopted a motion made by Longwood representative Betty Jo Jennings to frame a state Home Economics Club constitution. The constitution was drawn up by a committee headed by Evelyn Farrier, state president.

Betty Jo Jennings was the college club representative at the convention dinner held Friday night in the ballroom of Hotel Roanoke. In this capacity she was honored by an invitation to sit at the speaker's table.

Helen Barrow won a door prize at a drawing which was held in the exhibit hall. Her prize was a dress form.

Students To Cast Final Votes Tues.

A slate, presenting suggestions for nominees for the four major offices, has been submitted to the student body for consideration and voting on Thursday, March 15 from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. The nominating committee was made up of four major officers, and the heads of the College publications, under the leadership of an impartial senior chosen by the student body. Betsy Wilson served as head of the committee for the coming elections.

Chosen by the committee as nominees for president of Student Government Association were Dolores Hoback, junior from Wytheville; Maria Jackson, of Lexington; and Martha Alice Wilson, Farmville. Mary Helen Cook, of Richmond; Nell Dalton, of Red Oak; and Margaret Thomas of Atlee were selected as possible candidates for the office of Y. W. C. A president.

Students suggested for the president of House Council were Lucy Jane Morton of Farmville, Carolyn "Stokes" Overbey, of Danville, and Patricia Tuggle of Wytheville. Marian Beckner, of Lynchburg, Erma Poarch, of Emporia, and Nancy Walker of Bristol, have been placed on the slate for president of the women's Athletic Association.

Information concerning each of these nominees has been printed in detail on the back page of this paper.

Each student is being asked to nominate one person for each office. The committee urges that voters nominate from the floor besides selecting from the slate presented. This is done merely by adding the name of the person of the students' choice and striking out those already on the ballot. The two people who receive the highest number of votes as a result of Thursday's voting will run as candidates for the office.

On Tuesday, March 20, students will vote for major officers for the coming year from the group nominated on Thursday. Tables for voting will be open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. on halls in Ruffner, Student, and Cunningham buildings.

Students Participate In Program, Singing At French Meeting

Le Cercle Francais held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon in the auditorium of the library. After the business discussion, members of each French class participated in the program. Representing the beginners class were Betty Frances Gillette and Caroline Traynham who gave a conversation on the "Plans for the Afternoón", and Louise Trinkle and Phylis Ensminger who gave a conversation on "Renting a Room."

Members of the intermediate class presented a skit concerning Victor Hugo. The two advanced classes were represented by Nancy Lawrence, who told a story.

The entire club sang "La Claire Fontaine", "Ma Normandie," and "La Mer". The program closed with the singing of the "Marseillaise."

Vote, But Wisely...

The nominating committee for major elections met this week to draw up a slate consisting of three nominations for each of the four major offices; the president of Student Government, House Council, the 'Y', and the Athletic Association.

The nominating committee is made up of the four major officers and the publications heads and is under the leadership of an impartial senior chosen by the student body. Betsy Wilson is serving as the head of the committee for the coming elections.

Next week will be the Longwood students' chance to nominate the people of their choice for these important positions. The members of the nominating committee know these girls' qualifications and have selected them with the greatest of care and consideration. Towever, it is not their wish, nor the wish of anyone, that students accept these suggestions if they do not like nem.

Why not put up someone else when the time comes, if we are not satisfied with the three already nominated? And certainly, why not do some serious thinking in connection with the three girls put up for each office in an effort to choose the two who would be best for the job, and in the end, the one.

The same old things can be said about qualifications for such offices, the most important positions that can ever be held by a girl at Longwood. And the words "Vote, vote," can be repeated again and again. But by this time surely every member of the student body realizes the importance of both of these things.

It would seem wise to stress again, however, the importance of careful and thoughtful decisions in choosing next year's officers. Surely, students may vote for their friends, voted for the girl who eats at their table, vote for their sorority sisters. But vote for these girls only if they can do the job better than any of the other girls who are put up.

And, above all things we have opinions. Let's express them!

Vote!

We'll Do Our Best...

With this issue of the Rotunda, the 1951-52 staff takes over the Wednesday to Wednesday grind, and the senior members of the old staff begin their well earned rest. We, of the new, wish you, of the old, a fond and rather wary adieu.

The new staff will try to live up to the standards set by the retiring staff and to be at all times a true reflection of the life and opinions of the students of the College. The objects of the Rotunda, as we have learned to know it, are threefold—to keep the students, the faculty, and the administration informed about the current events of the College, to reflect the opinion of the students, alumnae, faculty and administration on matters pertaining to the college and to serve as a current chronicle of college life.

The new staff will attempt to fulfill these objectives and to serve the college through the impartial printing of news and opinions to the best of its ability. But the staff can meet its objectives only with the co-operation and support of the student body, faculty and administration. So while we pledge ourselves to serve you, we ask your wholehearted co-operation.

We salute the retiring members of the staff for your good job and splendid leadership. We hope that eventually we can measure up to the high standards you have set for us.

Perfect Proof...

This Friday night will see the Freshman Class prove to the college just what has been thought all along—that they have truly found their place in Longwood College.

Observation of a few of their production practices would lead the students quickly to believe that they have found willing hands, working hands, real talent, and above all — that thing called "Longwood Spirit."

Praise goes from the entire student body to Lyn Hill, freshman production chairman, and to Mary Denny Wilson, class president, for the splendid jobs they have done, and to every one of the class who has already become so dear to our hearts.

For a wonderful spirit of co-operation, for the integral part of the college life the freshmen have become in this short time, and for all the things they have done and will do to make us proud of them, we would say, "Well done, Freshmen!"

MINK COATS AND "PULL"

Mink coats are soft, irresistible, and expensive. One, casting $9,540, was given to a stenographer whose husband could arrange a loan to a New York furrier. The husband, a pitiful man named Young, is accused of using his influence to get Government loans for new and old businesses needing money. The money may have turned rotten in acquiring it, but they needed it. "Pull" is a big word to everybody. Money is even bigger. This is Young's story, according to the U. S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT magazine, March 16. Pitiable corruption, stupidity, and flagrant immorality.

Young came from Missouri where he had run garage and restaurant. The couple moved to Washington after Mrs. Young had gotten a job in the offices of Senator Harry S. Truman, and then had been transferred. Until 1942 Mr. Young had never made more than $1,800 yearly, definitely not mink coat salary. In Washington Mr. Young got a job with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The RFC, a Government corporation, loans Government money to businesses potentially successful, after examination. Mr. Young examined such businesses. Mr. Young's salary went to $7,500. He made many friends among Government officials and business officials who wanted loans. Mr. Young was influential and had access to millions of dollars. He quit his job with RFC and became vice-president of the Lustron company which was receiving a Government loan. Lustron borrowed 37.5 million dollars.

AN IMPORTANT FACT: LUSTRON WAS NOT THE ONLY COMPANY WITH WHICH YOUNG WAS IN CONTACT. There is the New York furrier who wanted money. Now, back to the mink coat and the "pull." It seems to the Senate Committee, that the coat meant "thank you" to the Youngs from the New York furriers for Young's influence with RFC.

MORAL: know somebody if you want a job or money. It doesn't matter if that "somebody" is morally ignorant about influencing others. It doesn't matter if You are morally ignorant about "pull". It doesn't matter if Anyone is morally ignorant about money or mink coats. At election time it just doesn't matter.

Hello Joe

Dear Comrades,

Sorry I've been so long in reporting to you but there has been very little of interest lately.

Spring has come with a bang to this school. All day, every day, the girls are burning their tender skins to a crisp under the hot sun. I became very concerned about a girl in class Saturday. She just looked so embarrassed that I wanted to rush to her aid, and when I did, I found that her perpetual blushing was due to nothing but a sunburn. She did look so pained! All Americans are so anxious to look like Indians that I don't see why they don't give the country back to them.

I have been told that there is a petition circulating around the school demanding that a parking place be established for chewing gum. It seems that certain members of the faculty are very much against students chewing gum in class. The plan suggested by the petition is that a shelf be built outside each class room. This shelf is to be marked off in sections which the chewing student labels with her name, deposits her gum in that section, picks it up after class, and resumes chewing. I'm not sure I like the idea, Comrades. Suppose someone thought that the shelf was a place to put books. Ugh! Then a person might truly be said to be stuck to his books.

Comrades,I need your advice. I have been losing so many of my clothes in the laundry that I feel fortunate when I get back more than they keep. Would you suggest to your naked friend a solution to this problem?

The Easter season is fast proaching, and as it will happen, young and old peoples' fancies are lightly turning to thoughts of clothes. My mother is even splurging on me this year. I do not really deserve it. What will happen when she finds out her daughter is a Russian spy? Oh, well, mothers are always the last to know.

The president of the Bird Club asked me to give said club a plug. When I offered her one out of my bathtub she looked highly indignant. I only know of one kind of plug so I hope it will suffice to say that I understand that this club is to promote nature study — admirable, admirable.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

Students Jam Piggy Banks; Wait For Frosh Production

All of you can just sit back, unfold those monstrous organs on the sides of your heads called ears, and listen!-'Cause I've really got the lowdown on this forthcoming Freshman Production. You see, I was down watching them practices the other night, and I hereby officially advise each and every one of you who is in possession of any of that medium of exchange often referred to as 'the root of all evil' (most of us seldom have any around here, I admit) but anyway, if you do happen to, I strongly advise you to save it, on account of all of you are really gonna miss something great if you don't see this predicted Broadway success!

Honestly, boys, I'm a-tellin' you, I sure hate to admit it, but these Freshmen are really on the ball. I mean to tell you, them gals got talent they ain't used yet! The theme, as you probably already know, is gonna be drams—and boy, they've really got all kinds of dreams included from mellow musicals to nightmares in Hell!

And oh, brother those costumes! These freshmen are really going all the way to make their production a real success, and they're doing it, too. I hereby officially predict it to be the best show th's school has seen in a long time (with the exception of the Soph Production, of course).

There's no question about the fact that it will be the type of entertainment that is enjoyed by college girls, because that is exactly what it is about—college girls, their dreams, what they do with their spare time, etc. And who around here, pray tell me, doesn't enjoy seeing himself? You faculty members will enjoy it, too—especially those of you who have been wondering what we do with our time (since few of us ever manage to get around to studying). I'm sure each and every member of the male faculty (as well as our charming co-eds) will enjoy those terrific dance routines those gals have cooked up, too. In fact, I could probably rave on and on for days and weeks about it (but of course, I don't intend to, on account of, you'd get awfully tired of readin' and I'm damned sure that I'd get awfully tired of writin'). So I guess I'll just close now (since I'm getting awfully close to the end of the column, anyhow) by saying that if you miss this predicted oscar-winning masterpiece of wholesome entertainment, don't say I didn't tell you it was gonna be great, and believe me, it is!

by Stokes Overby

Since the time for the Orchesis recital and the May Day program, in which modern dance plays a large part, is drawing near, we have made an effort to find out how some of the Longwood girls feel toward modern dance. We asked, "What do you appreciate in this type of dance and what do you find meaningful in it?"

Betty Jane Newsom said it helped to develop poise and grace as well as being very entertaining. She described her feelings when she once saw her instructor doing a solo: "When you watched her dance you could see that she was feeling the music. Every step she made wasn't something she had learned, but was a result of the music."

Several of the freshmen remarked that they had not had opportunities to see or know a great deal about modern dancing. Although she had not had much contact with it, Doris Rae Horne declared, "I like the way the dancer's motions express what the music says. I loved "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue." I look at everything from a musical viewpoint, and to me, it's just another way of expressing music."

Over in Student building we got a few new slants on the subject from Challice Hayden and Betty Abbitt. Betty stated, "I think it's an outlet for emotion through body movements and coordination." Challice pondered for a while and came out with, "Modern dance has meaning when a person loses herself in the music and expresses what that music means to her. Different personalities may be detected through the type of music to which a person prefers to dance."

Someone remarked that she thought modern dance was pointless, and Dot Boswick argued, "Well, you might as well say that music is pointless. I don't see how anyone can appreciate music without appreciating modern dance because the two are so closely related."

Jean Ridenour was very enthusiastic. "I love modern dance. The fact that you can put into dance forms things from everyday life such as joy, laughter, adolescence and old age impresses mem ost," she said.

"Buddy" Walker was serious long enough to say, "Modern dance is an expression of the inner soul by body movements.

MAJOR LEAGUES WANT NEW "CZAR"

A. B. "HAPPY" Chandler lost his last chance Monday for re-election as baseball's MR. CZAR when he fell short by three votes of the required 12. Seven major league clubs voted against the present commissioner, and the other nine voted for him. However this did not give Chandler the required ¾ votes needed and left the major circuits without a leader after 1952 when his present term expires.

"Happy," as he is known to almost everyone, said after the meeting that he would co-operate all the way with the club owners and would not stand in the way of their electing a new Czar.

From where ye ole Spectator sits, it looks as though it won't be hard to find a new one either. It is one of the highest paid jobs in the country and besides that, the work is not to strenuous. Also there is a long vacation period during the winter months. There has been some rumors that John Edgar Hoover wants the job. Since he is head of the F. B. I., maybe he would be just the man they are looking for. There have been many gambling and fix cases in all forms of intercollegiate and professional sports for a long time and possibly with the right person in command, something can be done. Although to me Chandler was a good man for the job, to the owners there must have been some unknown reason for his oust. They might have made a drastic mistake; but since something must be done now, let's go back to the old ideas of democracy and put the best man for the job in office.

LONGWOOD LOSES LAST GAME OF THE SEASON

Last Friday night when Panzier College of New Jersey edged out of the local sextet by one point. It was a hard-fought tussle all the way, and lead changed no less than 3 times during the last quarter.

Although suffering this loss, the home club had an impressive over-all record of four wins and two losses. They won over Roanoke, Lynchburg, William and Mary extension, and Notre Dame, and lost only to Madison by only one point and the New Jersey club. That's a .666 percentage rating and should be ranked up among the top in intercollegiate girls' basketball teams in the state of Virginia. Don't you agree?

Instructor Poses Questions, Answers Concerning Modern Dance Techniques

By Mrs Emily Landrum

Can a dance concert be staged in a gymnasium? Yes, and no. Watch the large group numbers, then compare the solo, duo and trio numbers. Which dance makes one feel that the walls of the gym are pushed aside, and which others pull the walls of the gym close about you?

Does a dancer need lighting, decoration, and costumes for an audience to understand? Do the benches help in City Rush? How about the AKG posts for the traffic circle? Could Higgs do without the chair? Listen to Dolores as she speaks in "Folk Walk." What about "The Wise in Heart?"

What is basic in Modern Dance? Is movement the crux and score of dance today? Do you feel the rhythm of work through movement alone? Do you feel the impact of the movements of Mother and Minnie in "The Wise in Heart?" How would you do in claustrophobia? Are you afraid of the dark, or being alone? Then you can dance it.

How does one make up a dance? "Greeting" borrowed Charlie Hop's grin and Hi! Work movements are best for beginners in dance who must feel that the whole body is the pulse. The walk as used ordinarily was stylized in dance form for all of "Folk Walk." Doodle Portraits are first attempts at creation where one works from an idea—that of being sentimental, of laughter, and of growing up as it consumes, and guides one to identify himself with the theme, to lose himself.

The creation, in this case the dance, is his.

"It Must Be Abstract" is a dance devoid of human emotions, one thought out in mind, then danced. "I Have a Willowy Soul" shows the two extremes of one's nature or true self which, Louis Hoest, eminent dance critic says a dancer must possess.

How can the audience understand dance? Enjoy it, or check what you like. Then ask why you liked it.

Is its form clear? Whatever a dance states in the beginning is its theme. Watch it as the dancer manipulates it, makes the whole do something to you. Remember that every movement cannot be explained, everything cannot be understood. Ask yourself what interests you. It might be just one movement.

What would like to see again? If you don't want to see any dance again, your appreciation level of the fine arts, music, painting, and dance, have been too long neglected. You enjoy as you know, as you yourself learn by doing. If you can't see yourself taking modern dance why not square, folk, tap, or social dance?

It's up to you!

Panzer College Defeats Longwood Varsity Team In Last Game of Season

Sportin' Around

by Lou Jamison

Last Friday night saw this year's basketball season come to an end. The Longwood varsity team did a fine job in its final game against Panzer College. Throughout the entire game Longwood stayed one or two points ahead to lose the game by a score of 48-49. The game as a whole was one of the most exciting I've seen played at Longwood.

Are you ready to play basketball and volleyball for your class team? If you aren't, you'd do well to get ready. Because those class games are just around the corner. Don't forget the class swimming meet either, along with those eight half hour practices required to enter.

If you sling a mean ping-pong paddle, you'd better hussle along and sign up for the ping-pong tournament. You'll have to hurry and sign up if you want to compete because the deadline is this Friday. The competition will be going on for sometme because it is to be a ladder-type tournament.

In this type of tournament you challenge the person one of two places above you on the list. If you win you take their place and keep going up the list until you're top man (or woman) on the totem pole. After a given length of time the tournament is closed, the top man being the champion. It should be lots of fun so sign up on the A.A. bulletin board and start climbing that ladder.

Friday night the Panzer College basketball team traveled to Farmville to meet the Longwood team in the last home game for the locals. The game was one of the most exciting of the entire season.

The game was a nip and tuck affair all the way. The score seesawed back and forth for the first quarter. The quarter score was 14 - 13. Longwood leading. The local lassies looked as of they had the game sewed up by half-time as they stretched their lead to 29-22.

During the third quarter Longwood scored ten points while Panzer piled up fifteen to bring the score to 39-37 in favor of the Longwood girls.

The fourth quarter, as it usually is, was by far the most exciting. The Panzer girls lost no time in tying the score in the last thirty seconds of the game. With only thirty seconds left, the winning point was put in by a Panzer forward on a free shot awarded for a foul by Longwood. For the remaining seconds the Panzier team froze the ball.

Sophomore Nell Bradshaw played a bang-up game and took the high-scoring honors with 28 points. Rachel Peters and Patsy Sanford added 16 and 4 points respectively to end the scoring.

Entering the game as forwards were Rachel Peters, Nell Bradshaw, Ann Lynch, Patsy Sanford, and Lucy Mann. Guards were Clara Borum, Jean Ridenour, Marian Beckner, and Juanita Hudson.

A resume of the scores for the season:

	We	They
Roanoke College	53	33
Madison College	37	40
Lynchburg College	49	41
Norfolk Div. of W&M	41	39
Notre Dame College	57	43
Panzer College	48	49

est, who is first restless, then pensive.

Serious Work

The "Wise in Heart" is the most serious of the works and stems from the novel of the same name, by Nancy Kendall. Marian Beckner, as the dominating, repressive mother and Anne Murphy as the defiant daughter will dance solo parts. Clara Borum, Peggy Harris, Margie Hood, Erma Poarch, Conway Rice, and Mary Jane Stansbury will dance the parts of the other children who are afraid of the mother.

Edith Duma's "It Must Be Abstract" is a study in impressionism or cerebralism, according to the way the observer views the solo supposedly thought out in advance. It is a dance devoid of emotion, using machinations of the mind and movement. Following, "Dromophobia" is a group work intended for space as big as the gymnasium. Here, Marian Beckner is the timid soul who is afraid of crossing busy intersections, exasperating the busy cop, Dolores Hoback.

"Claussrophobia" is a study which begins with the baser emotion fear, making use of the contraction, a basic dance technique and attempts to narrow the space to the confines of a room by use of props. Nancy Walker is soloist.

"I Have a Willowy Soul" by Edith Duma and Hilda Lewis, with Dolores Hoback as narrator is a duet which portrays the impish, prankish human who must conform to some pattern of life.

Twelve new wine costumes have been purchased for this recital. They will replace the currently used blue uniforms, and become standard costumes for the group.

1951 - 1952 Major Election Nominees

In a recent editorial publish-ed in the Rotunda, it was announced that the paper proposed to set itself up as an unbiased intermediary between nominees for major offices and the student body. This week, in compliance with that proposal, the Rotunda is publishing all obtainable information concerning those students who will be voted upon as candidates this week.

STUDENT GOV'T CANDIDATES

Suggested for president of Student Government Association for the coming year were Delores Hoback, Maria Jackson, and Martha Alice Wilson.

Dolores Hoback

Dolores, better known to Longwood students as "Hoey", is a junior from Wytheville. Her background with Student Government work was greatest during her freshman year and the 1950 summer session when she was a member of the Student Council. This year Dolores has worked with Student Standards as her class representative and chairman of the years' calendar, member of Cotillion Club, Orchesis, and Beore Eh Thorn.

Dolores, when asked about her plans if elected, stated, "I would like to see the student body vitally interested in what's going on. The student body meetings should be made of more significance, and would like to see them regular, well-organized, and also planned. I am in favor of seeing the Honor System strengthened, either by the formation of an honor council or in some other way. Too, I would like to have the students fel absolutely free to suggest some changes or improvements that they would like to see made and to feel that Student Government is theirs."

Maria Jackson

Maria, a junior from Lexington, has been associated with the College House Council since her freshman year. Serving as hall president during her first year, she became acquainted with the procedures characteristic of this group and was appointed as House president for her sophomore and junior years. Maria's ability as a leader has been apparent in her work with every class production, circuses and dances. She has served as short story editor and managing editor of the Colonnade. Active in many of the College organizations, Maria is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, vice-president of the French Circle, a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary collegiate journalism fraternity, Cotillion Club, Kappa Deta Pi, honorary educational society, and Kappa Delta, social sorority.

Maria, when interviewed, said, "I would do my best to make the House Council and Student Government more unified organizations. I would try to make Student Government an organization by, of, and for the students; I want the students to feel a working part of the organization."

Marha Alice Wilson

Martha Alice Wilson, known to most as "B. B.", is a newly acquired dorm student. Her association with the College previously as a day student has not limited her work with the Student Government Association. During her sophomore year B. B. served as class representative and is this year serving as secretary to the organization. She was president of the Farmville high school Student Government. The quality of leadership for this nominee has been shown in presidency of the Westminster Fellowship, and co-chairman of the sophomore circus skit. B. B., also active in extra-curicular activities, is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Cotilion Club, and Alpha Sigma Alpha, social sorority.

Concerning her plans for office if elected, B. B. stated, "With the cooperation of the student body and the administration, I would try to help the Student Council retain its purposeful, governing strength; I would strive with the student body toward a clearer realization of the purposes and meaning of the Honor Code. With the backing of everyone, I would do my best to help us go forward in the traditions and ideals of our College."

Y. W. C. A. CANDIDATES

The committee nominated as possible candidates for the presidency of the Young Woman's Christian Association Mary Helen Cook, Nell Dalton, and Margaret Thomas.

Mary Helen Cook

Mary Helen, "Cookie" to all Longwood students, has been associated with the Y' for three years, serving this year as chairman of the library committee. She represented Longwood Y. W. C. A. last summer at the district conference in Kentucky, more recenty at the regional conference in Richmond. Cookie is acting this year as historian of the Young People's Council for the Senate of Virginia, and as social chairman of the Westminster Fellowship. Last year, Cookie served as treasurer of the House Council. Active in class and extra-curricular activities, she is a member of the Cotillion Club, Association for Childhood Education, and is second vice-president of her sorority, Pi Kappa Sigma.

Cookie, when asked about her ideas for filling the position of Y' president, announced, "I'd like to see our Y' become a real part of each student and each student a real part of our Y'. The Y. W. C. A., like anything else, can only be as strong as its weakest link, you know."

Nell Dalton

Nell, a junior from Red Oak, is serving this year as chairman of the Y' sing committee. In close connection with such work, Nell has acted as vice-president of her church group, the Methodist Youth Fellowship. Working as literary editor of the Virginian this year, she has found time to take active part in class projects. She has been a member of the A. A. Council for the past two years, is assistant corresponding secertary of her social sorority, Pi Kappa Sigma, and a member of the Cotillion Club.

"If I am elected president of the Y. W. C. A.," said Nell when interviewed, "I will work to the best of my ability to help make the Y' a functional part of each student's activities. I will, with the aid of the cabinet, try to govern the Y. W. C. A. in accordance with the wishes of the student body."

Margaret Thomas

Margaret, a junior from Atlee, has a background record of three years of work with the College Y. W. C. A. She has served on the cabinet for the past two years—as chairman of the prayers committee during her sophomore year, and as treasurer of the organization this year. Margaret was selected delegate to the Y' regional conference at Roslyn last year, and delegate to the national conference held in Oxford, Ohio this year. Margaret is also associated with the Westminster Fellowship. A member of the Student Standards committee for three years, Margaret is serving this year as chairman of the committee. Pan-Hellenic representative for Zeta Tau Alpha, social sorority, she is also an active member of Association for Childhood Education and Cotillion Club.

Concerning plans for filling the indicated position, if elected, Margaret said, "If elected to the offiffce of president of the Y. W. C. A., I shall do all in my power to cary out the purpose of the organization; not only on the campus, but also in my daily living. I realize fully the responsibilities that the holding of this position would entail, and therefore wil do my utmost to uphold the Young Women's Christian Association."

A. A. CANDIDATES

Suggested by the nominating committee for the presidency of the Athletic Association are Marian Beckner, "Bootie" Poarch, and Nancy Walker.

Marian Beckner

Marian has been an active participant in the whole athletic program ever since her first day at Longwood. Beginning by becoming a member of the varsity basketball and hockey teams, and a member of Orchesis during her freshman year, and she has continued to be a member of these teams, and was chosen president of Orchesis this year.

A member of the Athletic Council, Marian is also a member of the Monogram Club, and the H20 Club. She has participated in archery and swimming metes each season. This year found her serving as secretary of Student Standards. She s a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma, social sorority, and the Cotillion Club.

In telling what she would like to do if she were elected Marian said, "I would like for more students to become interested in the athletic program,—to make each and every student feel that she has a part in the spirit of the school which can be furthered in athletics more than in any other phase of school life."

Erma Poarch

Erma, "Bootie" Poach has been serving as secretary of the Athletic Association this year. This and her other connections with the athletic world at Longwood have served to make her eligible for nomination. She has been a member of several varsity squads and was captain of her class basketball team during her sophomore year. "Bootie" is a member of Orchesis, and has a solo part in the forthcoming recital.

Other school activities in which she has taken part include all her class productions and circuses. She was secretary of her class during her sophomore year. "Bootie" is a member of Kappa Delta, social sorority, where she serves as activities chairman, and a member of the Cotillion Club.

In an interview concerning her nomination for this office "Bootie" stated, "I believe that we have a very effective Athletic Assocation but would like to try to bring about a wider interest

"There is much enjoyment, and benefit to be received from the program," she continued, and I would like for more students to realize this. Athletics are the basis of the class and school spirit, and I believe the "Longwood Spirit" can be revived by creating an active interest on the part of the members of the student body.

Nancy Walker

Nancy, treasurer of the Athletic Association, has also been nominated for the position of president of this organization. A very active participant in all the athletics of the school, she has served as a member of the varsity hockey and basketball teams, and on her class teams.

A recognizedly superb swimmer, Nancy took honors by winning the Florida State Diving Championship two years ago. She is serving as a student instructor in swimming this year, has participated in all swimming and diving meets, and is a member of the H20 Club.

The Monogram Club has claimed Nancy to its membership, as has Orchesis. She is serving as president of the Granddaughters' Club this year, and is a member of Pi Kappa Sigma, social sorority, and the Cotillion Club.

Upon being questioned as to what she would do if she were president of the A. A., Nancy said, "I would like to bring about the formation of activities which interest the whole student body." She went on to say that she wants to bring about participation of all student in sports, and to help them to realize that the A. A. is for all of the students, not just the physical education majors.

"I would like to bring back the good old "Longwood Spirit" by having each and everyone take part in the activities—not only for participation, but for sheer enjoyment," she added.

HOUSE COUNCIL CANDIDATES

The candidates for the position of president of House Council as suggested by the nominating committee are Lucy Jane Morton, "Stokes" Overbey, and Pat Tuggle.

Lucy Jane Morton

Another "town-girl", who has recently become a dormitory student is Lucy Jane Morton. Not living at school has not hindered her participation in any way apparently, for she has had an active part in her class and school work ever since she came to Longwood.

Lucy Jane has worked with the Dramatic Club for three years, and has been a member of the Westminster Fellowship Council for that same length of time. Working with the Colonnade as art editor for the past two years, she was recently chosen to membership in Pi Delta Epsilon.

A member of the Granddaughter's Club, and formerly a member and active participant in the Town Girl's Club, she is als a member of Kappa Delta, social sorority, and the Cotillion Club.

In answer to an enquiry concerning what she would like to do if she were chosen to the office, she repied, "If I should have the opportunity to be associated with the House Council, I would try to make "our home" away from home a better place in which to live and learn, and to perform my duties to the best of my ability."

Carolyn Overbey

A rather recent addition to the Longwood Student body, "Stokes" has taken very little time in proving to her fellow-students her many capabilities. She is a junior transfer from Averett where she was secretary-treasurer of the Red Cross chapter, and a member of Alpha Sigma, local sorority.

During her high school days, "Stokes" was a member of the student council for three years, serving as editor of the Chanticleer, Averett's newspaper, she is associated with the Rotunda staff, and has recently been appointed to a columnist's position. She is also a pledge to Pi Kappa Sigma, social sorority.

In speaking of the nominations "Stokes" said, "I realize that a responsibility the job carries with it, and if elected, I would naturally do my best to carry out its requirements. I would stand for the regulations or rules which would benefit the majority of the students."

Pat Tuggle

Pat's leadership ability has been recognized by her class and schoolmates since her early days at Longwood when she was chosen as Freshman representative to Student Government.

Pat is a representative of the junior class on Student Standards, a member of the college choir, the commercial club, and Kappa Delta Pi. She served as chairman of the recent Junior Dance. A member of Orchesis, she is also a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma, social sorority, a representative to the Pan-Hel Council, and a member of the Cotillion Club.

Concerning Pat's plan for office if she is elected, she said, "In my opinion the chief objective of the House Council for the coming year should be to work in greater unity with Student Government. I believe, that the work of these two organizations is on the same plane and an understanding and coordination of the work of these organizations would do much to strengthen both."

"I am anxious to see an added importance placed upon the election of Hall Presidents and the duties of the Hall Presidents," she added. "If elected, I would do all in my power to see that these policies are carried out."

Alpha Kappa Gamma Taps Five Leaders In Student Assembly

Old Members Relate Fraternity's Life

Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, tapped five girls for membership at the assembly program last week.

Those who were recognized for their leadership were Georgia Bailey, Jean Ridenour, Margaret Thomas, Patty Walker, and Charlotte Williams.

A program of short speeches telling of different phases in the life of the fraternity was presented by several of its members. Helen Agnew reviewed the history of Alpha Kappa Gamma, which was formed in 1928 by a group of leaders, under the guidance of Miss Florence Stubbs.

Jean Smith told about the founding of other chapters of the group, and Mary Leigh Meredith discussed the lives of Joan of Arc and Clara Barton, patron saints of two of the chapters. The story of the two statues of Joan of Arc which are found on the campus were told by Maria Jackson.

Georgia Bailey has acted as the business manager for the Virginian this year. She has been affiliated with the annual staff during the past three years, and served last year as photographic editor. A member of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary scholarship fraternity, and Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalistic fraternity, she is also a member of the Future Teachers of America and president of Theta Sigma Upsilon, social sorority.

Patty Walker is president of the Future Teachers of America. She is also a member of Kappa Delta Pi, the A. A. Council, the Monogram Club, and the Commercial Club. Patty served as treasurer of her class during her junior year and is a member of the Y' Cabinet. She is also a member of the Cotillion Club, and serves as corresponding sec-

Drama Group To Present Spring Play

On Friday and Saturday, March 30 and 31 at 8:30 p. m. "As You Desire Me" will be presented in the Small Auditorium by the Longwood Dramatics Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs.

The lead, the Strange Lady is to be played by Anne Murphy. As the 18 year old bride of Bruno (played by Bucky Morton), Cia was caught in the Austrian invasion and lived in a state of complete shock for ten years. Bruno discovers her dancing in Berlin and a long legal case results in which he tries to prove that she is a missing heiress. The plot of the play evolves around the mystery concerning the Strange Lady's identity.

Carl Salter, a happy-go-lucky writer who falls in love with the Strange Lady, will be played by Charles Talley. Other members of the cast are Betsy Wilson playing the part of Mop; Ellen Porter, Aunt Lena; Josh Billings, Uncle Salesio; Mary Ann King, Inez; Atwell Motley, Silvio Masperi; Betsy Hankins, Barbara; Kitty Moore, the Demented Lady; Joe Gillespie, a porter; George Pillow, Edward Goodwin, Jake Williams, and Bill Norcross, four youths; Bob Matthews, a doctor; and Ethel Straw, a nurse.

The author of "As You Desire Me", Pirandello, won the Nobel Prize in 1943 for his outstanding

Reporter Reviews Drama; 'Should Be Masterpiece'

Well, boys, you may as well begin counting the days now, on account of March 30 is near at hand, and that's when you'll be able to see that great play you have been hearing so much about lately. It's the Dramatic Club and the H-S Jongleurs, you know, presenting Piranelli's (please overlook spelling) great play "As You Desire Me", and after watching the practices (just in case I was broke when they started charging admission), I feel it my official duty to warn you that you'll really be sorry if you miss it.

"As You Desire Me" is a type of drama new to most of you who will see it here. It is the story of a strange lady, Cia, who has gone through the Austrian invasion, its effect upon her thoughts, feelings, and actions, and the reflection of her personality on the supporting characters. It is the type of entertainment that will be enjoyed by almost anyone because of its versatility (check that $60 word, boys!), since it contains romance, mystery, and pathetic reality which is often disguised as superficial humor.

The thought that remains most prevalent in one's mind during the entire play is the question—who is this strange lady? Is she really Cia, Bruno's wife, or is she merely an unimportant impostor? If she is not Cia, why does she pretend to be? I have not yet seen the entire play rehearsed at one time, therefore I have been unable to form an answer to any of these questions myself; however, I can say that it makes very interesting food for thought (Quit laughing—I do so think, sometimes).

You know it's very seldom that you are fortunate enough to see a play that possesses such complex and intellectual qualities and yet retains the qualities of down to earth entertainment that are prevalent in many of our own criteria for the judgment of a good play.

Well, boys, I just thought that since I had changed my mind about this forthcoming play and decided that it ain't exactly crazy—it's what the smart upper set would call "thought provoking," I'd better let all my best friends in on the dope. Which is all the more reason why you don't want to miss it, on account of most of you realize that anything that can provoke thought in this 2½ horsepower brain of mine must really be a masterpiece.

Wilson, Tuggle, Cook, Walker Selected by Student Body To Fill '51-52 Major Offices

College Alumnae To Observe 'Day' Sat., March 31

Founder's Return For 67th Birthday

The annual Founders' Day program of Longwood College will be held Saturday, March 31, at 11:00 a. m., in the Methodist Church. It is the observation of the sixty-seventh birthday of the College.

The program, which will be broadcast by the Farmville radio station WFLO, will open with the Senior Processional. Helen Agnew, president of the student body, will give the greeting, and the response will be delivered by Helen Costan, National President of the Longwood College Alumnae Association. Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, the president of Longwood College, will deliver the main address.

The Longwood College Choir, under the direction of Dr. John W. Molnar, will render "There Is a Balm in Gilead," by Dawson; "The Flowers O' the Forest" (Scotch), arranged by Robertson; "All Creatures Now Are Merry Minded" (English Madrigal), by Bennett; "Open Thy Heart", by Bizet; and "The Lord Bless You and Keep You," by Lutkin. Billie Dunlap will accompany the choir. Following the main address, the program will end with the Senior Recessional.

The schedule for the rest of the day has been announced by Mrs. Ruth H. Coyner, alumnae executive secretary. Registration will take place in Ruffner Hall from 9 to 10:15 a. m. At 9:15 the Farmville Alumnae Association will act as hostesses at a coffee in the Student Lounge.

Luncheon will be served to the returning alumnae at 12:45 in the College dining hall, and a business meeting will follow in the Virginia Room at 2 p. m. Dr. and Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster will hold open house at their home from 4 to 5 p. m. At 6:30 p. m. a buffet dinner will be served at the Longwood Estae.

The day's program will end with the presentation of the drama, 'As You Desire Me", to be given by the Longwood Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs. The play is under the direction of Alec Finlayson.

Basket To Be Given By Home Ec. Group

The Home Economics Club has adopted as its Easter project the giving of a basket of food to a welfare family in the vicinity of Farmville.

A committee composed of Jackie Sell, Kathy Emison, and Betty Jo Jennings has been appointed to get the basket together. Twenty-five cents will be collected from each member of the Home Economics Club to purchase food.

The club gave the same family, which consists of two girls, two boys, and the mother and father, a basket of food and clothing at Christmas time.

'CharlieHop' Asks Admission For New 'Little Miss Hop'

Yes, sir, boys! We sophomores have a new class member by the name of Jacquelyn Holliday French, born March 6th in Baltimore, Maryland. Little Miss French is already an (ex-officio) member of the Class of '53—a true Green and White!

I'm a tellin' you folks, old Grandpa French has been passing out cigarettes (has to be different) all week. I mean he is evermore shook, but he kept things well enough in hand to tell us that the first word she said was "Yo" and she can already sing Green and White with little or no trouble, although that high middle part in the Alma Mater is giving her a slight bit of trouble.

Seems like little Jackie will just have to come to Longwood—but not in a Red n' White year—Horrors—on acount of her Old Grandpa, it's been rumored, has already filled out an application for admission in the class of 1967. Oh, goodness — I just counted the years up and '67 will be a Red n' White year. So, Jackie, it just seems that you're gonna have to either skip a grade, flunk one, or just wait a year to enter this wonderful institution.

Jackie's daddy, who, incidentally, is Raymond Holliday French, Jr., just finished doing graduate work at the University of Michigan this January, but he did his undergraduate work at dear ole Tech! He's an aeronautical engineer, while Jackie's mother, who came to Longwood (like all normal, average, American girls) for two years, is (or was) a laboratory technician.

Yes, sir, boys, we know Jacquelyn H. French is bound to have principles and stability aplenty if she is a good ole green and white! Guess she'll just have to be a chemistry major and just to be a regular "wheel" so Grandpa can be right by her. Little does she know of her widespread fame and fortune. So—the class of 1968, whether it knows it or not, will some day welcome a natural born celebrity!

Students To Vote On Minor Offices After Vacation

Major officers for the school session 1951-52 have been announced as a result of elections held yesterday from 1 to 6 p. m. Elections for minor officers will be held after the Easter holidays.

All votes were definite except those for Student Government president, which tallied closely. Votes were collected after 6 p. m. to aid in making the decision more exact, but were discarded after consultation with Dr. C. G. G. Moss, ex--advisor to the Association, when he pointed out that this practice should not be carried out. Therefore, the results, as they now stand, are from the votes made up to 6 p. m. on Tuesday.

Although the votes collected after 6 p. m. yesterday were discarded, those votes would not have changed the final results. The announced election winner would have remained in the lead. The decision of the teller's committee to discard the late votes was a matter of principle and had no effect upon the election of Martha Alice Wilson as president. The votes collected from 1 to 6 p. m. tallied her as winner, and those collected after 6 p. m. showed the same result.

Presidents of the major offices for the coming year are Martha Alice "B. B." Wilson, Student Government; Pat Tuggle, House Council; Mary Helen "Cookie" Cook, Y. W. C. A.; and Nancy Walker, Athletic Association.

Student Government

Martha Alice, newly elected president of the Student Government Association, is a junior from Farmville. Associated with the organization for the past three years, she served as class representative as a sophomore and is acting secretary to the organization this year. Martha Alice was president of the Westminster Fellowship, and is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational society, Cotillion Club, and Alpha Sigma Alpha, social sorority.

Pat Tuggle, selected president of the House Council for the 1951-52 session, is a junior from Wytheville. She served as class representative to the Student Government Association during her freshman year. Pat is a representative of the junior class on the Student Standards, a member of the College choir, the commercial club, and Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational society. She served as chairman of the recent Junior dance. A member of Orchesis, Pat is also associated with Sigma Sigma Sigma, social sorority in which she serves as Pan-Hellenic representative and Cotillion Club.

Y.W.C.A. President

Mary Helen, president of the Y.W.C.A. for the coming year, is a junior from Richmond. She served this year as chairman of the library committee of that organization. Mary Helen is acting now as historian of the Young Stansbury Chosen May Dance Chmn.

Mary Jane Stansbury, senior from Richmond, has recently been elected chairman of the annual May Day dance to be held May 5 in the College gymnasium from 8 to 12. According to Mary Jane, the theme of the dance will probably center about the May Day pageant. The exact theme will be announced in a later issue of the paper.

Sub-chairmen for the dance have also been announced. Pat Tuggle, junior from Wytheville, will serve as music chairman while Nancy Walker of Bristol will act as head of the decorations committee. Selected to head the floor committee was Conway Rice of Fishersville, and Bobby Pollard of Richmond will be in charge of tickets for the dance.

According to Mary Jane, further plans for the dance have not yet been decided. The orchestra and the figure for the annual festivity will be announced at a later date.

Dr. Graves To Speak In Student Assembly Thursday, March 29

Dr. Allen Graves, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church in Tulsa, Oklahoma, will speak to the student body at the regular assembly Thursday, March 29 in the Methodist church.

Dr. Graves is a native of Illinois where he attended college. He served as student assistant in the Department of English in the New Testament, while doing graduate work at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Kentucky. After receiving his doctorate at this college, Dr. Graves worked as an official on the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board. He has served as pastor of the First Baptist church in Fort Pierce, Florida and the First Baptist church in Charlottesville. While there, he worked with the university students and the nursing school connected with the University of Virginia. He left there last February to become pastor of his present church in Tulsa.

Congratulations Everyone . . .

Congratulations go from the Rotunda to the newly elected student officers. They are quite capable of fulfilling the duties demanded by the high offices they have been elected to fill.

Congratulations are also in order for the student body for the wise choice they made in their selection of officers.

The four officers, president of the Student Government Association, president of the House Council, president of the Y. W. C. A., and president of the Athletic Association Council, elected yesterday, hold the highest student positions in the college. They will serve on the Student Council whose purpose is to preserve student honor, to unite the students of the college for more efficient service, and to train the students in personal responsibility and loyalty.

Each member of the student body is a member of the Student Government Association. The association is governed by the Student Council. In electing these officers to serve on this council, we have shown our trust in their ability and our willingness to be governed by them.

The responsibility of the student body, however, does not stop with the election of the officers. The officers are depending on our support and co-operation throughout their term of office. Without our assistance it will be impossible for them to efficiently fulfill the duties of their offices.

Only we can give them the proper co-operation. It is our duty and ours alone. Each and every member of the student body is charged with this responsibility, and our chain can be no stronger that its weakest link.

Congratulations, too, are in order for every nominee, for each one of them would have made an outstanding president of her organization, and again to the students for being able to choose from among this fine group.

Next year should see great progress in Longwood's climb toward a more progressive system of education. With the newly found outstanding leadership, and with the co-operation of the four major organizations, this will go speedily along.

Yes, Longwood herself is to be congratulated for having a group of girls who know how to choose those who can lead them best.

Make It Legal . . .

It has come to our attention that the House Council is attempting to change the Saturday night light rulings of the college. This rule in its new form permits unlimited lights for the Junior and Senior buildings, one o'clock lights for the freshmen and two o'clock lights for the sophomores.

A committee has studied these rules and agreed upon these hours. Naturally, quiet after eleven o'clock is expected of the students and a trial period has been proposed during which times call downs will be given more forcefully for any unnecessary noise. This committee has tried to look at all sides of the picture and has unanimously decided that the student body would appreciate this change in ruling. Surely by the time a student has reached college age she can be allowed to decide at what time she wishes to go to bed, at least one night a week.

If our school is to be governed democratically, in fact as well as in theory, the student body should have some voice in determining when the lights should go off. We hope that the administration will see fit to carry out the wishes of the House Council and the students and make legal what is already a common custom.

REGARDING

ST. MARK 15: 1-47, 16: 1-20

And straightway the people of the city march down Fifth Avenue. And they are adorned in their best finery, as is the custom in the whole land. Now the people of this city are a mixed people and represent their countrymen and their customs. Splendid in their raiment are the Philistines. Splendid are the wealthy. Splendid are the politicians. Splendid are the influential, the lenders, the borrowers. Splendid are the gamblers. Splendid are the righteous.

As it is the custom to parade down Fifth Avenue, it is the same throughout the land. In thousands of small villages the people dress in their finery (Behold! they have spent small fortunes) and march down other Avenues—to their Places of Worship. Now these people are mixed groups also.

Straightway march the college students of the land. They are gay and beautiful in their youthfulness. Many of their friends have died in a distant land. The bloodshed and the future are as a cloud over the parade.

Straightway march the adults, the parents, the teachers, the businessmen, the small politicians. Their age has given them dignity and their steps are measured. But, they, too, see a cloud above, a cloud of guilt. The mistakes of the past are as a heavy guilt.

And it is the habit of these people as they parade along to think on the comforts of their homes. They remember the great Sunday breakfast, the Sunday paper scattered over the floor. Those that think of the headlines sigh.

Straightway march teenagers to a bloody death in Korean land. And it is said that this could have been avoided by unselfishness. Up a hill called Capitol Hill march a multitude accused of: gambling (Frank Costello), of corruption (Senators and businessmen), of poor leadership (President Truman), of bungling and haggling (Congress). It is said unselfishness is the cure.

Now when the time comes to enter the Place of Worship, a silence falls over the paraders. As they enter, some compare their splendid raiment with that of others. Some listen to beautiful music. Some pray. Some think on the story of Easter and are sad. They think on the Supreme Sacrifice. They think on their sins and are regretful.

Some think on Christ and are hopeful.

Sally Brickman

Hello Joe

By Barbara White

Dear Comrades.

As time goes on, I find it increasingly difficult to write to you. Mine is not a life of leisure these days but rather one of back-breaking work. My plan of turning this school into a Communist stronghold has failed.

These students are just too fond of private enterprise. There is scarcely a room in this college where various refreshments are not sold. Why, it's just like a progressive dinner. I remember one day when I didn't go to lunch. I had tomato juice in the Snack Bar, caught a hot dog on the run in the hall, and picked up dessert in that famous place where the elite meet to eat.

The freshmen presented their production Friday night. It really brought back memories of home. When they gave poor Joyce her choice of the guillotine, stake, or sword, I thought of the night we were called before Stalin for having forgotten to bow before his picture. They gave us the choice of death or the salt mines. I told them I didn't want either, so they gave me a worse fate—they sent me to Longwood College.

Spring has come and the sap is rising in all the trees, and at the end of this month when estimates come out, there will be more saps rising. Last week end there were several visitors on campus. One was a girl whom I had never met before, and believe me, it was an experience. Why asking that girl a question was like pulling your finger out of a dike. She yaked continually.

The dance group, Orchesis, gave a recital Saturday. The dancing was very graceful and pleasing to the eye, but once I coudn't figure out whether it was claustrophobia, or a general floor mopping. Speaking of thrilling things, there was the Alpha Kappa Gamma tapping ceremony on Thursday. These things impress me even more than a meeting at Kremlin. It always takes several days after a tapping to recuperate from a crick in the neck.

I am eagerly awaiting news from you.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White.

Church News

Baptist

A revival will be held at the Baptist church the week of March 26, continuing through April 4. Dr Allen E. Graves, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church in Tulsa, Oklahoma, will be the speaker.

Youth night will be observed March 29, at the regular church service.

Installation service was held for the new officers of the Baptist Student Union this past Sunday night.

Methodist

A film will be shown at the Union Vesper Service in the Methodist Church on April 1, at 7 o'clock. The title of the film is "Reaching From Heaven."

Wesley Foundation Officers for the coming year have been chosen. They are Ann Lawrence, president; Pat Taylor, vice-president; Jo Yitter, secretary; and Ellen Porter, treasurer.

Approximately fourteen Methodist girls from Longwood attended the regional conference at Virginia State College in Petersburg last week end. The theme of the conference was "To Serve The King."

Episcopal

Bishop Gunn, Diocese of Southern Virginia, will speak at the Canterbury Club meeting, Sunday, April 1.

Westminster Fellowship

Nat Lancaster was chosen sen Sunday night to lead the Westminster Fellowship as their president during the coming year. Other officers chosen were Reid Erwin, of Hampden-Sydney as vice - president, and Emerson Johnson, secretary. Barbara Cotton was chosen to serve as treasurer.

There will be a retreat of the old and new West-Fell Councils sometime during the coming month.

Strolling With Stokes

by Stokes Overby

The approach of the Easter season suggested that our weekly question be: "Do you think that Easter has lost its significance to the average college student?" The majority of the girls questioned answered in the affirmative.

Frances Andrews said, "Yes, I believe so because most people just think about the vacation, what they will do, and where they will go." Beverly Marsh agreed, "It simply means a much needed rest to most students." Rayselle Lewis declared, "I think we've forgotten Easter in a way because we don't think about God. We just think about the new clothes we're going to buy and worry about getting flowers." Many girls thought that entirely too much stress was put on buying new clothes rather than on the spiritual significance of Easter. Among those who pointed out this emphasis on the outward appearance were Margaret Stable, Billie Tomlinson, eNllie Culpepper, and Margaret Taylor.

Barbara White observed that on Easter morning, churches are packed with people going to show off their new clothes and flowers—people who don't go at any other time.

"I think most college students realize there is some spiritual significance, but they don't actually know what it is," stated Sally Brickman. "They will rattle off a lot of details gotten from a Sunday school lesson, but putting it into meaningful actions is something foreign to them."

Both Martha Sanford and June Johns brought out the fact that the gravity of the world situation should make Easter mean more to people this year than ever before. Nearly all college students have brothers or friends in some branch of the service. Jean Ridenour declared, "People turn to religion in times of war and danger more than during peace."

Nancy Huff and Ilia DesPortes shared the opinion that although at first students are eager at the thought of a vacation, home-cooked food, and new clothes, after they get home they settle down and realize what they have been given a vacation for. Particularly when Easter Sunday comes, the holiday is seen in the true and proper light.

Ann Keith Hundley said, "Most of us think about the beauty, the happiness, and having a good time, but underneath, we're always conscious of the real meaning." Peggy Jones had a similar viewpoint: Being at home in your own church makes you realize that Easter is a great deal more than new clothes, etc. I don't think students have lost the right feeling about Easter."

It was Mary Moore Kair's belief that "not only college students but everyone places too much emphasis on the so-called Easter outfit." Mary Helen Cook observed, "So often our Easter thoughts are centered on wordly things. Wouldn't it do us all good to stop and ask ourselves what Easter really means?"

Gaieties of Pickett Dances Recorded In Student Diary

Dear Diary:

It's 1:15 a. m., and I'm so sleepy I can hardly hold my eyes open, but even if I get two call-downs for it, I want to write about what happened tonight. I went to a Camp Pickett dance for the first time. Right after supper we piled on the buses and were soon bouncing along toward Blackstone. We sang all the way, of course. Why didn't somebody bring a ukulele?—I'm getting so I can't sing without one.

We got to the club and stood around eyeing the soldiers (they weren't looking at us, of course) until somebody decided to get the show on the road. So they lined the boys up on one side of the balcony and us on the other, and the soldier we "met up with" at the bottom of the stairs was our partner for a grand march. I was luckier than some of the others—my first partner was a little taller than I was. What difference did it make if they only did the square dance where he came from? He followed me very nicely when they changed from the grand march to "this here round-dancin'."

After several dances and an interesting conversation on the right way to raise hogs, carried on over a grape soda (there's nothing I love more!) I started dancing with another soldier. He had a slow, graceful step, a friendly personality, and the top of his head was a little above my chin. (Since I am almost 5'3", of course, this is naturally expected.) Just as my chin was resting comfortably on the top of his head, someone broke, and struggling to get the crick out of my neck, I looked up into the deep blue eyes of any girl's dream man. The orchestra was playing "Be My Love," and we had danced a whole minute when who should break on us but my old friend, the square-dancer. (He could do the two-step by this time.)

Well, before long it was time to tell our little soldier friends good night and head back toward dear old L. C. We were so busy talking about the dance, we hardly even had time to sing. Dear Diary, I wonder if the tall blond from New York will write to me this week—or was it the dark-haired one from Indiana who got my address? One of them said he would call me, but I've forgotten who it was.

I think I just might have a date to tell you about, come next Saturday night. If not, well, I can always try going to Camp Pickett again next month!

work in literature. According to critics, his plays often seem experimental at first but reveal their solid substance on closer study; they survive after their novelty has worn off because there is always enough human passion in them to carry the speculative burden with which they are weighted.

"As You Desire Me" has proven its greatness by its successful Broadway run, in which the part of the Strange Lady was played by Judith Anderson, and by the success with which it has been presented by other dramatic groups.

Tickets for the play will be $.45, $.60, and $1.00, and may be purchased at the door.

JIMMY THOMPSON

HOW'D YOU LIKE TO WIN $2,000 A WEEK?

Thats just what Lankey Jim Ferrier has done for the last three weeks on the Spring Golf Circuit. When he came in first yesterday at the Jacksonville opening, it made $6,000 that he had wonin a little more than three weeks. However, adding this large sum to his total earnings, it still doesn't add up to as much as Lloyd Mangrum has earned (this year). I personally think that this is a good way to make a little spending money.

After all, there's a lot of good wholesome recreation involed and good opportunities to travel and see the whole country. However, there's a little catch to the whole thing. You have to know how to play the game. Really though, its simple. All you have to do is hit a little ball and then go chase it. Sometimes you hit it so far that you lose it, but don't let that stop you; there have been many people to lose those precious little things, that only cost about a small dollar. Besides all that, you have to buy clubs, tees, and pay green fee. Here at Longwood, though, there is no green fee and there are plenty of clubs in the field house for your use. Also, Mr. Sam Graham is a very capable instructor. Hope to see you all on the course next week raring to go.

V. M. I. OPENS STATE'S BASEBALL SEASON:

Frank Summers, who is retiring as Athletic Director at his Alma Mater this coming June, has carried his baseball team to North Carolina for engagements with Service Clubs there every day this week. Last year the Cadets only won four games and this was due mainly to the lack of pitchers. Blair Thomas, a product of "friend" high school in South Boston, is the only hold-over hurler from last year's squad and is credited with three of their four wins. However, there are several boys left to fill out the starting line-up. Too, there are a lot of promising sophomores, such as Jay Grumbling. It is more than likely that this kid will get the job of handling short stop. Ye "Spectator" predicts the same thing to happen this year though that has happened in the past—They will not rank very high in the State Circles because of their lack of pitchers.

SPRING FOOTBALL IN THE STATE:

It looks as though football has become a year round sport now since all collegiate teams have some form of spring training. The University of Richmond and William & Mary finished up their practices with a inter-squad scrimmage, held Saturday in Richmond and Newport News respectively in the game at Richmond there was a crowd of about 4,000. Tickets were a dollar a piece and all the proceeds went to the Sportmans Club to help send some youngsters to Washington to see the big league baseball clubs play. This has been a policy for some time, but this year the funds were low and the university agreed to have the game for the public. "Mucho" activity took place—The Westhampton girls sponsored one of the teams and even Mayor Parker was there.

Student Co-op
University of California at Los Angeles
Los Angeles, California

In Los Angeles, California, a favorite gathering spot of students at the University of California at Los Angeles is the Student Co-op because it is a cheerful place—full of friendly university atmosphere. And when the gang gathers around, ice-cold Coca-Cola gets the call. For here, as in college haunts everywhere—Coke belongs.

Classes Choose Captains Of Basket-Volley Ball Teams For Forthcoming Games

Sportin' Around

by Lou Jamison

The time has come at last! The Tuesday we get back from Easter vacation, class games begin. That color cup is on its way, but to what colors?

Everyone probably remembers this year's wonderful swimming pageant. Well, the American Federation of College Women have asked the H2O Club to present it again. Nancy Gillie, president of the H2O Club, said that the pageant would be presented again on the afternoon of April 20th. Since the theme of the pageant revolved around the Christmas season, it is being changed for its second presentation. In general, the pageant will be the same, but the theme will be spring instead of winter.

While you're home for Easter, you'd better spruce up that tennis racket and those golf clubs. With spring creeping around the corner, outdoor sports will be in full swing any day now.

Last Friday night many of us thrilled to Orchesis' annual recital. Our enjoyment was heightened by the knowledge of the work that went into the performance, and few were able to leave the gym without the desire to return again next year.

Have a good time over your Easter vacation, but try not to stack away too many Easter eggs. Remember we need healthy players on our class teams when Tuesday rolls around!

retary of Pi Kappa Sigma, social sorority.

Charlotte Williams has served this year as president of the President's Council and as president of the Richmond Club. She is a member of the Student Council, Orchesis, the A. A. Council, the Monogram Club, and the H20 Club. A member of Student Standards, Charlotte is also chairman of the campus committee, secretary of Beore Eh Thorn, and a member of the Cotillion Club, and Sigma Sigma Sigma, social sorority.

Juniors Chosen

Jean Ridenour, junior from Richmond, is president of her class. She is a member of the Monogram Club, the H20 Club, Orchesis, and the varsity hockey and basketball teams. Serving on Student Standards during her freshman and sophomore years, Jean has also been a member of the A. A. Council and was recently b'd to Future Teachers of America. She is a member of the Cotillion Club, and Sigma Sigma Sigma, social sorority.

Margaret Thomas, junior from Atlee, is treasurer of the Y. W. C. A. She has been on the Y Cabinet for three years. A member of the Student Standards committee for three years, Margaret is serving this year as chairman of the committee. She is a member of the Association for Childhood Education, the Cotillion Club and Zeta Tau Alpha, social sorority.

Swimming Meets Begin Today In Pool

Captains of the class volleyball teams have been recently selected, and two of the basketball captains were chosen to head the class games to be played in the near future.

Issac Velasquez will lead the senior class team while Frances Stringfellow will take charge of the junior girls playing volleyball. Selected to head the sophomore group was Sarah McElroy Harvie, and Jean Baber will serve as captain of the freshman volleyball team.

Selected to head the freshman basketball team for the coming game was Elsie Wente, while those chosen by the juniors were co-captains Edith Kennon and Peggy Harris. The sophomores and seniors have not yet selected their basketball captains. The class games will be played the Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday following the Easter holidays.

The first swimming meet was held this afternoon at five in the College pool. Students who wish to take part in these class meets are urged to get their practice in so that they may take part in the meets after Easter vacation.

Students are also urged to begin their practicing for the annual tennis and archery tournaments held every spring. There has been talk concering the establishments of a girls' tennis team. Any red 'n white or green 'n white class members will be eligible to try out for the teams.

College To Select Paintings Shown by Virginia Artists During Biennial Exhibit

Graduating Classes Contribute Funds

This spring Longwood will offer its first purchase price award in connection with the thirteenth Biennial Exhibition of Virginia Artists. A fund for purchasing paintings was started by the summer class of 1949 and added to by the senior and summer class of 1950. With the fund started by these classes the college hopes to offer a purchase price award to a Virginia artist participating in the Biennial at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond.

A purchase price award means that one of the pictures will be bought at the price the artist has put on it. A committee has been chosen to make this year's selection. The members from the college faculty are Mrs. Janice Lemen, Miss Virginia Bedford, Miss Ruth Gleaves, and Mrs. Mildred Davis. Mrs. John Pollard, assistant director of the Virginia Museum, has been asked to serve also. This committee will try to select a painting from the exhibit which will be suitable to hang in the Rotunda and which will provide maximum enjoyment for years to come.

It is hoped that The Longwood College Purchase Price Award will grow steadily and that it may be set up as a permanent part of the Virginia Biennial. The award indicates Longwood's support to Virginia artists and to the museum, as well as enabling the college to secure a fine painting for our school. No other institution in Virginia has a collection of Virginia artists' paintings exclusively, although most every college owns some fine originals. The only original work of art now owned by Longwood is the bronze Joan of Arc presented to the college by its creator, Anna Hyatt Huntington.

It is hoped, also, that the selection made will be so well-liked that other student groups who wish to present some gift of lasting loveliness and increasing value to the College will add to the fund for the purchase of paintings by Virginia artists.

Library Makes Table Of Vocational Books For Freshman Class

The College library now has on display in the main part of the building, a table of vocational material for the benefit of the freshmen who have recently begun writing their vocational papers. The collection includes pamphlets and books on hunting a career, choosing a career, and how to be a success in the chosen job.

Also on exhibit at a display table in the library is a set of children's books which have been purchased this spring. The new books are typified to the observer by fairy tale figures made of cut paper. These figures were made by members of Mrs. Janice Lemen's Art 211 class. Among the books being displayed are "Squirley of Willow Hill," "Sleeping Beauty" and "Alice in Wonderland."

Math Professors To Attend Meet

Dr. Ethel Sutherland and Mrs. Josephine Phillips, college math professors, will travel to Pittsburgh next week to attend meetings in connection with the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics. The convention to be held in the William Penn Hotel, will begin on March 29, and extend through March 31.

Current trends in mathematics education will be under discussion by the mathematics teachers of the country. They will discuss such topics as "What Is Meaningful Arithmetic?", "Some Unusual Techniques in Teaching Algebra," and "How Can We Challenge Exceptional Pupils?." Whole groups of studies will be devoted to teacher-training emphasis, and an understanding of multi-sensory aids.

"We hope to get ideas to help in the curriculum studies that are being conducted here," said Mrs. Phillips, in speaking of the trip, "and to be aided in the reorganization of our curriculum."

Some of the Farmville High School teachers may also go to Pittsburgh to attend this convention.

Red Cross Drive Misses Set Goal

College Contributes $150 To Annual Call

Approximately $150 has been contributed to date by the College for the National American Red Cross drive, according to Virginia Spencer, president of the Y. W. C. A.

The students contributed over $40 of this amount, and the remaining $120 was given by the members of the faculty and administration. Dr. George W. Jeffers was in charge of collecting from the faculty members.

Virginia reported that the sum was far below the set goal of $425, but that the goal set was "impossibly high" and not expected to be met. Last year the student body contributed a total of $131.45 to the Red Cross drive, falling short of their $250 goal.

The annual drive opened all over the nation on March 4. The contributions from Longwood will go with all those collected by the local Farmville chapter to make up the amount sent from the community and surrounding areas to the national office of the American Red Cross.

"The Red Cross is sending even more this year in the way of nurses, ambulances, plasma, and other aid to Korea," Virginia said. "This increased need must be met with an increased effort on our part so let's raise every cent that we can for the Red Cross."

English Group Initiates 12 New Members

Beorc Eh Thorn, local honorary English society, initiated twelve new members last Wednesday at five o'clock in the honors room.

The new members taken in were Nancy Garbee, Betty Lois Baker, Vera Bryant, Frances Everett, Branchy Fristoe, Ann Lawerence, Ann Norman, Virginia Spencer, Elizabeth Stone, Elizabeth Wilkinson, Betsy Wilson, Billie Marie Wood, Sally Brickman, and Dolores Hoback. The members are chosen on basis of their hours and averages in English.

After the initiation, Mr. James M. Grainger, former head of the English Department at Longwood College and founder of Beorc Eh Thorn, gave a brief sketch of the history and traditions of the society since it was founded. In the past the society has brought to the campus such nationally known literary figures as John Erskine, Nancy Byrd Turner, Carl Sandburg, Robert Frost and many others. This year the members are looking forward to the May picnic at the home of Mr. Grainger.

38 High School Students Visit Campus Over Week-end

Girls Tour Campus, Attend Production

Thirty-eight high school juniors and seniors were visitors on Longwood campus this past week end. These students came from Covington, Newport News, Norton, Emporia, Norfolk, and Richmond.

Friday night they were entertained at the Freshman production. Saturday afternoon Mr. Raymond French accompanied the students on a tour of the campus followed by a tea at the Longwood estate. Saturday night the students attended the Orchesis recital and the jukebox dance in the rec.

Members of the Sophomore class served as hostesses to the visiting students, accompanying them to church on Sunday morning as well as serving as hostesses in the dining hall.

A number of the guests selected their room in the freshman dormitory for next year.

The visitors from Covington were Faye Bartley, Mary Alyce Fridley, Shirley Linhenhoker and Betty Persinger. Mary Ellen Booth, Nancy Tanley, and Betty Beck were the guests from Newport News. From Richmond came Patricia Murray, and visitors from Norton were Pat Hamner, Nancy Harshbarger, and Fannie Scott. The guests from Chester were Barbara Anne Chalkley, Janice Flippo, Carolyn Gray, Sherry Greene, Nancy Creggar, Carolyn Dawson, Phyllis Dawson, Panay H. Dean, Dorothy Allen, Hazel Benn, Barbara Burton, Joanne Harris, Betty Deane Haw, Leora Hayes, Elizabeth C. House, Anna Johnson, Alean Landen, Ann Lindsey, Barbara Anne Magee, Rachel Moore, Irene Partin, Jean Partin, Jane Carrol Shener, Charlotte Stofko, and Marian B. Winn. Misses Edith Wood and Elizabeth Hudson were the accompanying teachers from Chester.

Members of Orchesis To Give Performance For Music Convention

17 Girls Chosen To Go To Mosque

Seventeen members of Orchesis, Longwood's modern dance club, will give a performance at the Southern Music Educator's convention in Richmond, April 20, at the Mosque. The southern district convention, convening from April 18 through 21 will be attended by delegates from twelve states.

Edith Duma, senior from Portsmouth, will take the leading part of the dancing master as the group performs the second episode of "History Sings," a historical pageant based on Virginia's musical history, which will be under the direction of Dr. L. S. Bucher, State Supervisor of Music Education.

W&M To Sing

The William and Mary choir will sing "Colonial Times," with excerpts from "The Common Glory" in the first episode. Following Longwood's performance of the second episode, Madison College will direct "The Singing School" or "Plantation Life". A well-known ballad singer from Richmond will take lead in the "Negro in Music," followed by the fifth episode "Mountains and Frontiers" to be led by Richard Chase, folklorist.

Dr. Bucher will direct the sixth episode, "Changing Times", which will feature a minstrel, church choir, barber shop quartet, and a player piano group. The final episode, "Modern School Program" will feature a high school symphonic band.

"History Sings," the episode to be given by Orchesis, has as its background the period from 1810 to 1840 when itinerant dancing masters taught children etiquette, dancing and music. Edith Duma, as a teacher of motion and manner, will direct her charges in a dancing lesson, a minuet, a waltz quadrille and the Virginia Reel. All of these dances will be stylized as theater pieces.

Dancers Named

Marian Beckner, Ann Boswell, Ann Crowder, Peggy Harris, Marian Higgs, Margie Hood, Donna Kunkler, and Erma Poarch are cast as boys for the performance. Taking the part of girls will be Nan Bland, Helen Egerton, Margie Hall, Bobbie Pollard, Conway Rice, Jean Ridenour, Pat Tuggle, and Charlotte Williams. Lou Beaver, in costume also, will accompany the group.

According to Marian Beckner, president of Orchesis, the costumes being provided for the group will be elaborate, consisting of pastels in blue and pale yellow and pink and lavender organdy for the girls. Those cast as boys will wear white tights and blue jackets.

Selected to act as alternates for either boys or girls were Kitty Hamlet, Barbara Hamner,

SUMMER CATALOG

The 1951 Summer Session Catalog has recently been completed, and is available for all interested students, according to Dean William W. Savage. They may be obtained in the registrar's office. All students who plan to attend are urged to fill out the application blank in the back of the catalog and submit it to Dean Savage.

Longwood Board Gives New Name To Annex Building

Honors Miss Tabb, Former Registrar

Annex building plus the recently completed addition has been named Tabb Hall, in memory of Miss Jennie Masters Habb. Dr. Lancaster announced the naming of the building at the annual Founder's Day program last Saturday, March 31.

Miss Tabb, in whose honor the building was named, was the College Registrar and Secretary for thirty years, from 1904 until her death in 1934. According to Dr. Lancaster, Miss Tabb is remembered not only as an able member of the College staff, but also as composer of the words of the Alma Mater.

Miss Tabb was also an author in her own right. Two of her books which were published were "For You," a book of poetry, and "Father Tabb: His Life and Work," a biography of a relative who was a Catholic priest.

As registrar of the College, Miss Tabb held offices in both the regional and the national organizations of College Registrars.

VIPA Holds Annual Meet

The spring session of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association will be held this year on April 13-15 at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg. Delegates from the Longwood publications will be Nancy Garbee, for the Colonnade, Mary Jo Smith for the Rotunda, and Betty Scott Borkey and Mary Crawford for the Virginian.

Registration for the convention will begin at 1 p. m., Friday, April 13, and will continue through the greater part of the afternoon. A banquet at the Colonial Restaurant will be held that evening. The critiques and judging of the college newspapers and literary magazines by the chosen panel judges will begin Saturday morning. In the afternoon a general business meeting will be held at which time the election of officers for the coming year will take place.

A dance will be held in the Great Hall of William and Mary Saturday evening from 8 p. m. until 12 midnight. Dick Auzolut and his orchestra will provide music for the dance.

The three day session will come to close on Sunday when the awards to the three top newspapers and magazines in the state will be presented. There will be no judging of college yearbooks this spring but business managers of all school publications have been invited to attend.

Dick Lee, in charge of the arrangements for the convention, stated recently that the committee is planning for the attendance of approximately 60 delegates. The name of the principal speaker for the session has not yet been announced.

Dr. Simkins, Former Prof., Will Return To Longwood

Author, Teacher To Rejoin Faculty After Three Years

Dr. Francis B. Simkins, a former Longwood professor, will return to the College as a faculty member next fall, according to an announcement by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster at the annual Founder's Day program held last Saturday. He will resume his duties in the history department after an absence of three years.

Dr. Simkins was an associate professor of history and social studies at Longwood for twenty years, from 1928 to 1948. He was on leave of absence to teach at Louisiana State University during the session of 1948-49. At the end of that year he resigned his position at Longwood and became a regular member of the faculty at Louisiana State University. Dr. Simkins has stated that he "would like to live again in Farmville, and be associated with Longwood College." It is for this reason that he will return next fall as associate professor of history.

Dr. Simkins graduated from the University of South Carolina in 1918. He continued his study of history at Columbia University where he took his Masters degree in 1920, and Doctorate in 1926. He has taught at the University of North Carolina and at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Simkins has been recognized in recent years for his writing. His textbook, "The South, Old and New" is used in many colleges. He has also written, "The Tillman Movement in South Carolina," 'South Carolina During Reconstruction," "Women of the Confederacy," and "Pitchfork Ben Tillman."

Barnes To Serve As FTA President

Betty Barnes, junior from Norfolk, was elected president of the Future Teachers of America group at a recent meeting. Other officers elected were Norma Gladding, vice-president; Flora Ballowe, secretary; Dorothy Gregory, treasurer; and Mary Moore Karr, librarian.

F. T. A. recently issued bids to students majoring in secondary education. Invited to join the organizations were Flora Ballowe, Betty Barnes, Marian Beckner, Mildred Blessing, Betty Scott Bryant, Sara Cregar, Nell Dalton, and Branchy Fristoe.

Lauralee Fritts, Nancy Garbee, Bonnie Gerrells, Norma Gladding, Dorothy Gregory, Betty Lou Harman Lucille Humphries, Dolores Hoback, John Huegel, Maria Jackson, and Page Joyner, were also bid to F. T. A.

Others receiving invitations were Mary Moore Karr, Ann Lawrence, Virginia Manvell, Katherine McCready, Lucy Jane Morton, Ann Oakley, Stokes Overbey, Elsie Rae Page, Edward Parks, Rachael Peters, Gay Power, and Jo Price.

67th Founder's Day Brings 80 Alumnae To Longwood

The 67th Annual Founders Day, celebrated this past week end, March 31st, brought approximately 80 alumnae back to the campus. This number was reduced in comparison to the preceding years because of the celebration to be held next October, at which time the new buildings will be dedicated.

The assembly program held in honor of the returning alumnae, which was broadcast over radio station W.F.L.O., included a greeting by Helen Agnew and a response by Miss Helen Costan, president of the Longwood Alumnae chapter. After the greeting and the response, the Longwood Choir rendered 'There is a Balm in Gilead,' 'The Flowers O' The Forest,' 'All Creatures Now are Merry Minded,' 'Open Thy Heart,' and 'The Lord Bless and Keep You.'

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster then gave the main address. He reviewed the significant events which had taken place since the 1950 Founder's Day. According to Dr. Lancaster, approximately $250,000 a year, a five per cent increase over the last year, was granted to the college for operating and maintaining this institution. An additional appropriation of $300,000 was made for fire-proofing the wings of Ruffner Hall.

Doctor Lancaster called attention to the great demand for teachers in this state and in other parts of the nation. He stated that the greatest call was for elementary teachers and that immediate steps must be taken not only by the colleges preparing teachers but also by all thinking citizens to see that more elementary teachers are provided.

The president presented the recent faculty appointments and named the students listed in this year's Who's Who in addition to outlining the year's events, scholastically and socially. He closed with an appeal to the alumnae to continue their devoted service for the improvement and advancement of this college in the years to come.

Students To Hear Assembly Speaker Talk on Near East

Mr. Alvah L. Miller,, secretary of the Near East Society, will be the speaker in assembly this Thursday, April 5. Mr. Miller will speak on a topic pertinent to the world situation as it pertains to the Near East.

The speaker is well qualified to discuss the Near East. He has lived in India, for nineteen years general secretary of the Y M. C. A. there. He left India to go to Jerusalem where he served as generla secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for that area from 1935 until June of last year.

After leaving Jerusalem Mr. Miller spent ten days in Beirut, then traveled through Damascus, Iran, and Istanbul as he journeyed homeward.

Two Art Professors Have Work Selected For Biennial Exhibit

Miss Virginia Bedford and Mrs. Janice Lemen, professors of art at Longwood College, will exhibit pieces of their works in the Biennial Exhibit of Virginia Artists at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond.

The entries of these two professors are among the one hundred works of art which were selected from seven hundred entries. Miss Bedford's entry is a ceramic jar for cookies, done in turquoise gloss glaze. Two paintings by Mrs. Lemen, both of which were exhibited in the College library last fall, have been chosen.

At the exhibition, Longwood will offer its Purchase Prize Award to a Virginia artist for a painting displayed at the museum. The painting which the Longwood committee chooses will be hung in the rotunda of Ruffner Hall. The Purchase Prize

LC Students Will Attend H-S Services

The annual Religious Emphasis Week at Hampden-Sydney College will be held next week, beginning on Tuesday, April 10, and extending through Thursday, April 12.

The Student Christian Association of Hampden-Sydney is offering to provide transportation for any Longwood girls who are interested in attending the evening meetings. These services will be held in the college church on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights from 7:30 to 8:30.

Mary Crawford and Margaret Thomas have worked with Warren Brannon of Hampden-Sydney and with Miss Ruth Gleaves in making plans for the Longwood student body to attend these meetings. Lists will be placed on the bulletin board just outside of the Dean's Office, where the girls will be asked to sign if they wish to go. A separate list will be provided for each night.

Rev. Arthur G. Courteney, associate minister of the West Raleigh Presbyterian Church in Raleigh, North Carolina, will be the guest speaker during this week. Born and raised in Canada, he was graduated from Maryville College in Tennessee, and Union Theological Seminary in Richmond.

Mr. Courteney served as an army chaplain in World War II, was stationed in Louisiana, Florida, and spent sometime in Alaska. He has served as pastor in Raleigh since 1945. His work with the college students of that city has been outstanding, according to Warren Brannon, who was instrumental in obtaining him as speaker for this week.

At the three evening services, he will enlarge upon the general topic "Just Thinking About Life." "We hope that the girls will take advantage of this opportunity to

230 Students Will Take Part In Festivities

"Polka Mania" will be the theme of the coming May Day festivities to be held at the Longwood Estate, Saturday, May 5, according to an announcement by Marian Higgs, and Hilda Lewis, co-chairmen of May Day. Two-hundred thirty girls will take part in the program.

Committee heads for the coming festivities have also been announced. Max Acree will act as business manager; Edith Duma and Helen Egerton, dance co-chairmen; and Helen Castros and Sue Webb, staging co-chairmen. Hilda Bauserman will serve as transportation chairman; Lou Beavers and Billie Dunlap, music co-chairmen; and Janice Pinkard, Gladys Savage, and Amanda Wright, costume chairmen.

Costumes Distributed

According to the costume committee, materials have been given out to all groups except the Parisian Ballet for which tryouts will be completed tonight from 7 to 8 p. m. in the College gymnasium. It has also been announced that all dances of the folk group are underway in the freshman physical education classes. The four folk dances include the Czech, the Polish, the Danish, and the German.

Court Practices

The May Court will hold its first rehearsal Thursday, at a time to be announced. Starting next week, each freshman class will give up one gym period to May Day practice.

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, modern dance instructor, when interviewed concerning the May Day theme stated, "At this stage it is difficult to say what will be outstanding in this year's festival because its theme is concerned with weaving the legendary and historical aspects of the polka."

After the day's program the annual May Day dance will be held in the College gymnasium from 8 to 12 p. m. The theme of the dance will also center about the polka.

French Club To Give Modern French Film In Auditorium Friday

L'Eternal Retour (The Eternal Return)," a modern French movie, will be presented Friday, April 6, at 7 p. m. in the small auditorium under the auspices of Le Cercle Francais.

The film is based on the medieval legend of Tristan and Iseult, the eternal struggle between love and duty, or the struggle of Iseult between his love for Tristan and his loyalty to duty to her husband King Marc. The setting and characters of the movie are modern, and the plot is a modern adaptation of the old legend.

Made in France in 1943 by Jean Cocteau, the movie was a prize winner at the Brussels Film Festival and has been popular ever since. "Newsweek" calls it "hauntingly beautiful." The "New Yorker" says it is "a remarkable film," and "Time" refers to it as a "handsome modern resetting of the Tristan and Iseult legend." The movie has French dialogue

Who Left the 'A' Out of Spirit? . . .

What is Longwood spirit? The question has been asked a thousand times and it has been answered as often. Ask any Longwood girl and she will answer proudly that it is one of friendliness, understanding, and co-operation. Granted, but how often does one hear the adjective "appreciative" attached to this spirit of which every Longwood girl is, and should be, proud.

Friday night the Dramatic Club presented a play, for which it had spent some eight weeks in preparation. How many Longwood students had enough "spirit" to be interested enough to attend? On Friday night the auditorium was scarcely half filled, and approximately one third of those who did attend were Longwood students; on Saturday night, due to the fifty complimentary tickets that were presented to the Alumnae and due to the fact that a very large percentage of the faculty and a number of townspeople were interested enough to attend, the auditorium was nearly filled. An inquiry proved that the great majority of Longwood girls preferred attending a western movie downtown or simply sitting alone in their rooms, probably complaining of lack of interesting things to do—yes, even preferred this to attending a well-prepared play that has proven its worth on Broadway. Why?

Thus is the case, it seems, with class games. Orchesis recitals, choir concerts, and all other forms of interesting and informative programs. These programs are planned by Longwood students for Longwood students, and as long as there is so little interest in them, all work that is done in their preparation is utterly wasted and they are completely and disappointingly defeated in their purpose.

As members of the student body which has a spirit of which it is so proud, each and every student should consider it a duty, if not a rare privilege to make use of his access to entertainment of such caliber, and if this "spirit" is to continue to exist, it must be improved to the extent that it is possessed and practiced in not only one, but all phases of college life.

Let's Make Friends . . .

The contacts one makes, and the friends one acquires during his college days can be most meaningful to him throughout the rest of his life. Most of us seem to realize this and spend a great part of our time with our friends, either talking, or "playing", or participating in activities together which tend to strenghten that friendship.

But how many of us have thought about the valuable friendships we might have with some of our faculty members? How many of us have stopped to think just how much each one of our professors would have to offer in the way of valuable information in some of our discussions, and just how much they enjoy doing most of the things that we do?

We, of the Rotunda, believe that there is a great deal of room for improvement in the faculty-student relationships of Longwood College. This improvement would necessarily be the responsibility of both the groups, the faculty as well as the students. First, it is necessary for the students to realize that their instructors are so much more than instructors—that they are true and tried individuals who have years of practical as well as scholastic experience which they would love to share with us, and which could be most meaningful to us.

And the faculty members could aid the situation by an increased effort to make the students feel that they are interested in them as individuals, and would like to be their friends, outside of the classroom as well as in.

Longwood is probably unusually fine in its wholesome student-faculty relationships. However, nothing is so fine that there is no room for improvement, and everyone who reads this will probably agree that a real campaign for more effort on the part of every member of the school for improvement along this line would be in order.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4, 1951

In Regards

Dear Dad,

You sound sort of tired and sad in this last letter and I'm kind of worried about you and what you wrote me. All this stuff about politics and the "world situation" go over my head 'cause I never take time for newspapers or radios. I had wanted to write you all about my wonderful week-end and the fun but somehow I don't think that would go over. This week end was so terrific that it took all last week to plan for it and it will take all next week to dream about it. Just no time for things so vague like this man Frank Costello. He must be a terrible man—to come right out and admit his gambling! And this R. F. C. probe: the money we spent this week end on food, gas, dance and movies would have been an excuse for a loan from the Government!

Back to your letter: Who is this man, Frank Costello? As I reread your letter, trying to get something out of all this mess, all I wind up with are questions, questions, questions. Why don't you give me some answers? Why is a special Senate Crime committee investigating the big-time gambler Costello? You say that he might have indirect connection with that organization called MURDER INC., that he has been a gambler all his life, that now the Senate committee is trying him for his influence in politics! THIS MAN IN POLITICS? Born in Italy, raised in the slums of New York, known as a gunman, jailed once for assult and robbery, a liquor smuggler, a top slot machine magnate . . . is this the man who is linked with todays politicians and Senators? Linked with men who are running our country?

Dad, you say that you watched this man on television and that, in the face of the Senators and the American public, he tried both walking out of the trial and laryngitis. Was he afraid to testify in his own behalf? It sounds like this one-time gunman is at a loss for words.

Frank Costello is a friend of our ambassador to Mexico? What will that nation think of this nation if our ambassador is accused of dirty, underhanded deals with a crook?

You said something that really went home: a Senator wept for the State of the Nation. Did Senator Toney break down for nothing? How strange—and tragic when a U. S. Senator says to his countrymen, as tears run down his cheeks: "And we will have in this nation a nation in which dwelleth righteousness. And, before God, it's high time!"

Will write you about that week end some other time, Dad.

Hello Joe

by Barbara White

I am now back at Longwood, recuperating from my Easter vacation. Believe me, Comrades, if you had lived through the Easter Sunday I did, you too would feel the need of considerable rest. The day started off with a bang, or better said, with a peep. At six a. m., as I was turning over for the last long nap, my ears were suddenly caught by what I, in my innocence, thought was birds singing at my window. Realizing that it was a bit early for so many birds, my eyes flew open and quickly shut again, for I thought I was having a nightmare. There lined up on my bed were twelve fluffy baby chicks.

Thoroughly awake by then, I sat up and saw my baby nephew sitting in the midst of all the havoc, placidly eating a chocolate bunny rabbit. My bed will never be the same again. If you know baby chicks, I think you will know why.

Later a friend came in to show me her Easter outfit. Compared to that dress, the skin on a hot dog is as loose as a goose, but after all, it isn't the merchandise but how you display it that counts.

Founders' Day was Saturday and a great deal of explanation was necessary to convince the student body that all of those people who came were not the original founders of the institution.

Comrades, there is nothing like this communal life. Now that time has come to sign up for rooms next year, the oddest combinations are coming out. Why, people I did not even know were acquainted are planning to room together next year.

My writing this letter to you each week has saved my having to write one home. Mom says these are much more intelligent and are longer than the ones I write her, so you can imagine what trash I write home. Now that she is on the mailing list, she just reads this letter as my weekly report. It has its advantages. If I ask for something, she wouldn't dare refuse me before so many people!

Until next week!

Love in Stalin

Comrade White

'Spring Sprung, Grass Riz' Takes Girls Where Sun Is

Jean Jinnett

"Spring has sprung—the grass has riz. I wonder where the students is." Perhaps you too have noticed the definite slack in the usual crowds in the halls, post office, classes—yep, even in the Tea Room and Snack Bar! For the information of any interested party, there are two causes for this disappearance of Longwood's most beauty-conscious socialites each day between the hours of 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Miss Hosea Cox, Esquire, who is currently serving as Chairman of Out of Town Flights for the Bird Club, has announced, that one cause for this sparcity is that fifty-three of the local "birds" have left to accompany Miss Carol "Bird" Stoops on her return flight to Delaware.

Well, of course, I couldn't let the rest of the Third Annex cuties get ahead of me, so up I went, too. Oh, I had great plans. I would get a lovely golden tan, which would just look perfect with my new white Easter suit. Regardless of much advice to the contrary, I persisted in spending approximately three and a half hours up there, although I had been told that I would blister, that suntan caused early wrinkles, that I had better spend my time with my books if I planned to return to L. C.

In order to save my face (ha, ha), I shall not relate my appearance for the following three weeks on the ground that it may tend to incriminate me. However, I will say that yesterday was the first time I found myself able to sit comfortably, and that since then I have been accused of being everything from a boiled lobster to a member of the Iriquois (spelling?) tribe. No sir, boys, I said to my suffering self—no more suntan—er I mean sunburn for me. I'm telling you I want to warn all you unsuspecting boys. Somebody will probably say to you soon, "Let's go out on the roof. The sun is just perfect now." I admit, you can have a lot of fun up there, because that's where the cutest Longwood ladies are spending all their time—in fact, the place has become so crowded that we have named it 'Little Virginia Beach." All that is lacking to make it look just like a real beach is men, water and a few other credentials. You can just disregard my advice and go on up if you like, but don't say I didn't warn you about it. Why, I could rave on all night, but here it is eleven a. m., and since I don't have a class, I guess I'd better go up on the roof while I can, on account of it looks like rain.

Strolling With Stokes

by Stokes Overby

The recent Dramatic Club production took three months of preparation and work on the part of students from both Longwood and Hampden-Sydney. A large number of people gave freely of their time and talents. Yet, on neither of the two nights that the play was presented was the auditorium filled. For that reason, some who are interested in dramatics and who want to see the department become an integral part of the school's activities requested that the followins be the weekly question: "Why aren't the plays better attended by the student body?"

A number of people thought the admission prices were too high. May Henry Sadler declared, "the plays are more expensive than other college activities, such as Circus or Production. I believe they would attract more people if they were cheaper." Joyce Gatling added, "If the forty-five cent seats ranged farther up, the results might be better." Natalie Lancaster, Mary Evans and Patty Reid pointed out that many students preferred a movie to an amateur play for entertainment, particularly as a movie is cheaper than the lowest priced seat available at the play.

Numerous students believed that another type of play would be better received. Nancy Walthall said, "I think the plays which are selected for production are above the intellectual level which the student body enjoys." Dot-Cassada agreed, "It's not that we are not capable of understanding the plots, etc., but another kind of play would be more enjoyable." "The plays are too adult; some of the lines are so subtle that many do not catch the full meaning," stated Mary Crawford.

Caroline McDonald declared, "When you pay that much money, you want to go to something

Annex Alley Orioles Croon Alumnae Audience to Sleep Following Spirited Pep Rally

Well, this week end proved to be no different from the usual Founders' Day. The same old barrage of everything from twenty year old 'hep cats" to what we politely refer as to as "Ladies who are middle-aged." I'm telling you, boys, their line of conversation is really on the upper plane. It consisted mainly of "Oh, I haven't seen you since—" and "Ah, and how are the children, etc." But, I guess we shouldn't mind, because who knows—if we ever graduate from this institute we'll probably be doing the very same thing, and besides, if it weren't for them, we wouldn't be here.

Heard tell the ladies that were lucky enough to stay on third floor construction were downright disappointed that the Third Floor Annex ladies didn't give them the treatment that the "Flower Girls" got. That was Saturday morning! However, Sunday they sang a different tune. Boy, we came through with our usual get together of high class entertainment and gave them a serenade and then we got into a regular old "gab feast."

Sunday we had a most pleasant surprise—one of the ladies (who by this deed earned herself the title of our favorite "founder") gave us two boxes of candy, and boy—was it appreciated!

Second thought—kinda think it's an injustice to call it "Founers' Day," 'cause that makes the people that attend seem so ancient. After all, these folks aren't the ones who founded the place! I'd just like to have it understood that it's in honor of the day the college was founded and that the people that came are not founders themselves. I want this understood especially when I come back!

Seriously though, the little lecture we got Sunday morning about L. C. spirit kinda got close. "Never lose your spirit," they told us. "It was here long before you came and whatever you do don't lose it."

Yes, spirit is a valuable part of college life, and as long as we don't change radically, we'll always have it!

TILLER GOES TO FORT LEE AND HICKEY COMES TO H-S:

Morgan Tiller, former coach at Hampden-Sydney, accepted the position of Athetics Director at Fort Lee Monday, bringing to a head all the questions that have been circulating throughout the sports circles in Virginia. As you know Mr. Tiller resigned as head football coach at Death Valley in January and there has been much curiosity as to what his real intentions were. Undoubtedly, when he resigned he must have had in mind a better paid position. This new job, however, is going to be a long and hard one. In his civilian role as Athletics Director at the post, Tiller will coach football, basketball, baseball, and direct the intramural program.

Jimmy Hickey, (at present head football coach at John Marshall), was named as the new football coach at the Death Valley school. His selection came after a unanimous decision of the Athletic Council meeting at the Commonwealth Club in Richmond. Coach Hickey turned down a similar position at Randolph-Macon College earlier and he had also refused the job of head basketball coach at Washington & Lee, as well as being assistant football coach. Hickey was chosen from over 100 candidates who had applied for the job and he had been the No. 1 choice from the very beginning. Gummy Proctor, Hampden-Sydney Athletic Director, stated that he had received applications from places as far away as California, New Mexico and Massachusetts.

BASEBALL IN THE SPOTLIGHT:

Baseball, by now, has come into the spotlight both professionally and inter-collegiately. In Virginia this week it seems that some of these northern teams have had to come down to "God's country" to really see what baseball is. H-S split even in winning over Colby and losing to Hofstra, while the University of Va. managed to defeat the latter invading northern nine. Also, the Norfolk Flyers managed to edge out the Colby team from Maine.

V. P. I. had the hardest luck of all the state hosts when they lost to Michigan State by the astounding score of 17-4 last Saturday at Blacksburg. Also, the University of Richmond had a heartbreaker when they lost to a favored Yale team in the ninth ending. Mac Pitt, coach of the Spiders, who had expressed his hopes in the pitching staff earlier, might feel a little different now. He used four of his best and it was found that they could not hold up under fire. But that could have been a little "stage fright." After all, it was the first game of the season.

Looking at the professional side of baseball in Virginia, there is not much news except for what you see in the Richmond papers about the Colts. It does seem though that Billy Hermann, the ex-Pittsburgh Pirate's manager, is doing a remarkable job of getting the players into shape. Who knows, they might take the Piedmont League championship this year. With a capable manager like Hermann a lot of things can be done with a bunch of boys who are eager and want to learn how to play the game.

Classes Battle Each Other In Annual Season Games; Sophomores Set Quick Pace

Sportin' Around

by LOU JAMISON

At last class games are in full swing. This means that possession of the color cup is in the balance. From the looks of the situation, everyone seems to consider this quite a valuable possession.

Monday afternoon the first red 'n white volleyball games were played. The Juniors played against the Sophomores in these games and were defeated by them in the first game, 27-5. In the second game the Juniors were also defeated, 24-7.

Following these two games the Freshmen played the Seniors, defeating them by the score of 52-47. The score throughout the game was quite close, first swinging to one side and then to the other. In the last quarter the Freshmen succeeded in running up the score to emerge victorious.

Throughout the games there was a terrific display of "ye olde Longwood spirit," and each spectator had just as much of his heart in the game as the players.

Thus amid shouts of joy and moans of dispair, the class games go on. As yet, no one dares to predict the outcome but time will tell all.

Winning Scorers Add To Color Cup

Class games began last Wednesday with the sister classes playing against each other. The freshman team whipped the juniors at volleyball by the scores of 13-12 and 15-8. The sophomores beat the seniors in the first class basketball games by a score of 44-33.

The juniors downed the frosh 43-33 in basketball Thursday afternoon and the sophomores again whipped the seniors, this time in volleyball with final tallies of 32-10 and 18-9.

Color Games

The color games began Monday with the sophomores playing the juniors in volleyball, defeating them 27-5 and 24-7. The red 'n white freshman beat the seniors in basketball by a score of 52-47.

The last of the class games will be played today and Thursday, with the freshmen and sophomores battling in volleyball and the juniors and seniors in basketball today. On Thursday the frosh and sophomores will play basketball while the seniors and juniors play volleyball. The games are being played at 4 and 5 p. m. every afternoon.

Miss Owen Talks To Home Ec Club

Miss Phyliss Owen of the VEPCO of Richmond was the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Home Economics Club held Monday night, April 2 in the home economics building. Miss Owen spoke on careers in home economics and showed a movie on the same topic.

During the business meeting which followed, the club decided to have its annual banquet Wednesday, May 9 in the Tea Room. Marty Miller and Cathy Emison were appointed to be in charge of arrangements for this dinner.

It was announced during the meeting that the College club will act as hostesses to the Longwood Federation of Future Homemakers of American high school clubs on Tuesday, April 17. The Federation will have a program with several speakers on the theme of "Careers in Home Economics," will be taken on a tour of the campus, and will have dinner in the Rec.

A nominating committee was appointed at this meeting to draw up a slate of officers for the coming year. Helen Barrow will serve as chairman of the committee and Audrey Ramsey, Jackie Sell, and Fay White will work with her.

School Library Conference To Take Place at Longwood; Library Director Will Speak

Group To Consider Books For Children

The second annual School Library Conference will take place at Longwood College on April 7. The conference is sponsored by the Department of Library Science of this College and the Libraries and Teaching Materials Division of District D of the Virginia Education Association.

Dr. Dorothy S. Watson, director of Roanoke public school libraries, will be the speaker for the morning session of the conference. The topic to be considered at this annual meeting will concern books for children and the young adult.

The program for the day will include a welcome by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, lunch in the College dining hall, and a coffee hour in the library Browsing Room. Arrangements for visits to the Farmville elementary school library and the Farmville high school library will be made.

The standing committee of the school library conference includes Dr. Beverly Ruffin, Longwood College Librarian; Miss Kate O'Brien of the Farmville high school; and Miss Lois R. Ballagh, librarian of Worsham high school. The steering committee includes Miss Irving Armstrong, Miss Louise Johnson, Mrs. Martha Jenkins, Miss Marion Terry, and Mrs. Anne Jeffers. Rebecca Mann is serving as chairman of the student committee.

Juniors Will Sponsor Birthday Celebration On Thursday, April 12

Thursday, April 12, 1951, has been set as the date of the April birthday dinner, according to Miss Ruth Gleaves, Dean of Women. The junior class will be in charge of the entertainment and decorations.

Edith Goff is in charge of the menu committee, and Barbara Brown will be in charge of the decoration. The program committee will work under the leadership of Ann Moody. The juniors will carry out the theme of "April Showers" in the decorations and program.

The menu, as announced by Edith, will include:

Fresh Pineapple Cocktail.
Baked Ham Steak.
Spinach with Egg.
Sweet Potato Casserole.
Tossed Vegetable Salad.
Hot Rolls.
Iced Tea.
Apple Pie A La Mode.

President To Attend District 'Y' Meeting

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster will travel to Richmond this Friday, April 7, to attend the Virginia District YMCA meeting. The meeting is to be held at Hotel Richmond. He is attending the meeting as a member of the executive board of the YMCA. While there Dr. Lancaster will see the model general assembly in action.

The Division Superintendents will meet in Roanoke on Tuesday, April 10. At this meeting Dr. Lancaster will give a report of the studies made by the Curricula Committee which met at Longwood recently. His report will be made in an effort to give public school superintendents a better understanding of the requirements for students entering the State Teachers' Colleges of Virginia.

Church Clubs Plan Retreats, Meets For Coming Weeks

Westminster Fellowship

The Westminster Fellowship continued their elections for the coming year last Sunday night, choosing Jack Hogge of Hampden-Sydney to fill the position of secretary, and Pat Lee as treasurer. Nat Lancaster and Reid Erwin were recently elected to fill the jobs of president and vice-president, respectively, of the organization.

A retreat for the members of the old and new councils of the Westminster Fellowship will be held at Trice's Lake this Saturday, April 7.

B. S. U.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark, who are up for appointment as missionaries of the Baptist Church, will speak at the morning service next Sunday morning in the Farmville Baptist Church. The Baptist Training Union will continue its program with its regular meeting at 7 p. m. Sunday, at the Center.

Wesley Foundation

Dr. Kenneth Haddock, District superintendent of the Methodist Church, will lead a discussion at the Wesley Foundation meeting Sunday night. This will be the beginning of a series of discussions under the general topic: "Faith."

The old and new Wesley Foundation Councils will hold a retreat at the student center on Saturday, April 7.

Newman Club

The formal blessing, or dedication service, for the Catholic Church which is under construction in Farmville, has been set for May 30.

For the next few weeks, the Newman Club will be discussing the following topics: "Judgment," "Heaven," and "Hell."

Canterbury Club

The Canterbury Club will hold a candle light service in the church at 7 p. m., next Sunday. It will be followed by a round-table discussion in the Parish House.

Spring Brings New-Found Worry As Students Clamor For Rooms

Louise Trinkle

There comes a time every year in early spring when a young girls thoughts lightly turn to the future. This future, of course, being in part recorded on a bit of paper with the title, "Application for Dormitory Reservation."

There usually is some catch to any type of form sheet put out whether by college or business concern but nothing equals the headaches attached to a dorm reservation sheet. The first half of the form isn't too hard, after one year of college anyone can write their own name or reverse, and their home address, age, major, and class can be rattled off faster than a sophomore can "Beat Red and White" but then there is the line that requires roommate preferred . . . After the freshman has realized this means whom not yes or no she must make up her mind as to the advantages of the roommate with the 6'2" brother or the girl down the hall with the radio-vic combo.

The sophs eye the next line with more concern this one inquires room preferred? With perhaps one meek tear at the thought of leaving 3rd floor Annex our prospective Juniors troop over to inspect the suites that await their presence the coming year. Here after the novelty of a bath "all our own" has worn off the thought hits them that henceforth we are four instead of two or three. "Shall we round off our teams of English major, Phys. Ed. major with a future artist and kindergarten teacher or would it be more to our advantage, with all this extra space, to pounce upon an unsuspecting home ec. major?" This problem isn't too hard to settle and once this part is over all that remains to be decided is if it would be better to be on 2nd near the telephone and coke machine, on 3rd where we can raise more . . . that is, where can we study better or 1st, where fire drills aren't such a strain at 12:30 P. M.?

Of course, the Juniors, don't have too much to worry about, by the time one is a Junior they know pretty well with whom they are most congenial or rather with whom they aren't. But lastly perhaps it's to the Seniors we tip our hats, after all they've lived through three years of room reservations!

LC Alumnae Elects Heads

The Longwood Alumnae Association elected officers for the coming year at a business meeting held in the Virginia Room on Founder's Day, March 31.

Miss Helen Costan, class of 1939, from Lynchburg, was re-elected to hold the job of president. Mrs. Pat Cowherd Adkins, class of 1925, from Richmond, was chosen to serve as director.

A nominating committee was chosen to draw up the slate of officers for the coming year. Miss Alice Carter, 09, from Farmville; Miss Ada Bierbower, '13, from Blackstone; and Miss Anne Cocks Vaughan, '41, from Crewe, will serve as this committee.

light and enjoyable, not something you have to sit and think about. There is too much similarity in the two plays given this year. Both have had a mysterious element, a deep plot, and a dismal background. A change in the nature of the play is needed."

Barbara Brown said, "I think they should give more widely known plays. Well-known titles would attract a larger audience. The title, 'As You Desire Me' just didn't interest me at all."

Ethel Straw suggested that a possible reason for poor attendance might be that plays and authors are not familiar.

Other opinions placed the blame on the small auditorium. Betty Scott Borkey stated, "We went a year and a half without giving a single play. The student body has lost interest in the Dramatic Club. They can't realize that such a large production can be given on such a small stage."

Patty Walker and Jill Pifer shared the belief that the greatest disadvantage was the necessity of using the small auditorium. They pointed out the difficulty the audience has in seeing and hearing as well as the obstacles to good staging, lighting, etc. Jill added, "Everyone went during our Freshman and Sophomore years, so perhaps it will be like that when we move into the new auditorium."

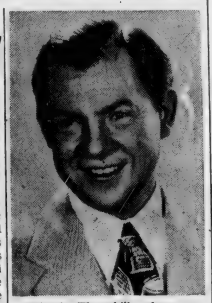
Thornhill Orchestra Will Furnish Music For Cotillion Dance

"Snowflakes" Featured by Band



Claude Thornhill's orchestra featuring Christy Connor and the Snowflakes will provide music for the annual Cotillion Club dance to be held in the College gymnasium, Saturday, April 21, according to an announcement by Jill Pifer, music chairman.

Releases from the Press Relations Department of the Music Corporation of America reveal that Mr. Thornhill was picked as the band to watch in 1951. His training at both the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and the Curtis Institute of Music are prime factors in making the band what it is today . . . something new on the musical horizon. The releases state that Mr. Thornhill's distinctive piano styling and unique orchestrations are the most original musical offerings among modern dance bands.

The Thornhill orchestra includes five reeds, six brass, four rhythm instruments, and a piano played by Mr. Thornhill. Two vocalists round out the group. The orchestra leader, according to the data, is known for his piano and his theme "Snowfall," which he composed.

The Thornhill orchestra and vocalists have made a number of recordings for Columbia and RCA-Victor, among which are the albums "Invitation to Dance" and "George Gershwin's Songs." His single records include "Smal' Hotel," "Where or When", "Thru a Long and Sleepless Night", "Johnson Rag," and "Maybe It's Because."

Mr. Thornhill has appeared in New York, New Rochelle, Chicago, Houston, Texas, and Hollywood.

Claude Thornhill, whose orchestra, piano, and vocalists will set the tempo for the Cotillion Club dance to be held in the College gym Saturday night.

Williams Selected As Apple Blossom Festival Princess

Charlotte Williams, senior from Richmond; has been selected to represent Longwood College as one of the princesses to the 1951 Apple Blossom Festival court to be held in Winchester May 3 and 4.

Charlotte is a figure leader of the Cotillion Club and is serving as secretary-treasurer of Boerc Eh Thorn, honorary English society. She is a member of the Student Honor Council and Sigma Sigma Sigma, social sorority. Charlotte attended Marion high school in Marion and Thomas Jefferson in Richmond.

The College Apple Blossom princess is chosen each year by the faculty and administration. The Queen's Court of the annual fete in Winchester is composed of representatives from Schools, colleges and universites in Virginia and surrounding states. Helen Hardin represented the College last year.

Ellen W. Mallan of Lynchburg will represent Virginia Intermont College and Betty Stokes, also of Lynchburg, will represent Randolph Macon Woman's College at the annual festival.

R-MC Group To Sing Here

The Randolph - Macon Glee Club will present a "Caravan of Songs" in a service Saturday night, April 14, at 8 o'clock in the Methodist Church. Directed by Mr. William Troxell, the Glee Club is being sponsored in its appearance in Farmville by the Wesley Foundation of the Methodist Church.

The concert will include a variety of numbers, ranging from the sacred to folk music. The program will begin with sacred numbers "Diffusa Est Gratia Manino," "Go Not Far From Me, O Lord" by Morgan, and a Russian number "Sing Praise to God, the Almighty."

An arrangement by Brahms of "Suabian Folk Song" and the "Timber Cutter's Chant," arranged by Gaul, two folk songs, will be followed by "What Shall We Do" arranged by Spaeth.

Piano Solos

A selection of informal numbers will include piano selections played by James Miller. This will be followed by several numbers rendered by the Maconnaires, Randolph-Macon's quartet. Members of this group are Henry Carter, Bob Gibbons, Harold Smith, and Ned Styles.

"Songs of the South," will then be sung by the entire group. They

Pi Delt Fraternity Elects New Officers For Coming Session

Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary collegiate journalistic fraternity, elected officers for the coming year at a meeting held recently. The group chose Flora Ballowe, junior from Farmville, to serve as its president. Mary Jo Smith, junior from Portsmouth, will act as vice-president, and secretary for the coming year will be Sara Creger, junior from Roanoke. Mary Crawford, junior from Richmond, will act as treasurer, and Betty Scott Borkey, junior from Bowling Green, will serve as historian. Harry Lancaster, head of the printing shop for the Farmville Herald, was chosen to serve as grand councilman.

The fraternity is making plans for its annual banquet to be held sometime the last of April. A prominent newspaper man will be guest speaker for the occasion.

Men's SGA Select Eight Candidates For Officers

Overbey, Bradshaw Run For President For Coming Session

Bob Bradshaw and Bill Overoey, Longwood College juniors, were nominated for the office of president of the Men's Student Government for the coming year at a meeting of the association, April 3, in the browsing room of the library.

John Peace and Madison McClintic were nominated for vice-president; Eric Robinson and Howard Seymour for secretary; and Ed Parks and Lester Trout elected to run for the office of treasurer. These nominations will be voted upon Thursday and Friday, April 12 and 13. The new officers will assume their duties next September.

President

Bobby Bradshaw, candidate for president, was graduated from Farmville High School, where he was a member of the athletic association and Monogram Club. After graduating, he attended Virginia Polytechnical Institute for two years. At present, he is a junior at Longwood College, and a member of the basketball team and of Tau Theta Pi fraternity.

Bill Overbey, presidential candidate from Chatham, was graduated from Chatham High School, where he was a member of the Latin club, the Student Council Association, and the basketball team. After graduating, he attended Hargrave Military Academy, Presbyterian Junior College, and the University of Richmond. He is a member of the junior class at Longwood, a member of the basketball team and of Tau Theta Pi fraternity.

Vice-President

John Peace, nominated for vice-president, was graduated from Farmville High School, where he was a member of the Library Club, the Monogram Club, the basketball team, and the glee club. A representative to Boys' State in 1949, John was vice-president of his senior class and treasurer of his junior class.

Madison McClintic, vice-presidential candidate, attended Farmville high school, Augusta Military Academy, and Virginia Polytechnic Institute before coming to Longwood. He is a member of the junior class at Longwood, secertary of the Men's Student Government and next year's president of Tau Theta Pi fraternity. He also serves as a master sergeant in the National Guard.

Secretary

Eric Robinson, nomination for secretary, attended Cumberland high school, where he was a member of the basketball team, president of his sophomore class, president of the Student Government, president of the local chap-

Students To Hear Speaker, Writer In Thurs. Chapel

Mr Graves Edits Syndicated Column

John Temple Graves II, public speaker and columnist, will speak to the student body in assembly Thursday, April 12.

Mr. Graves, according to data, is one of America's finest public speakers and is called "the most heard and read Southerner." He has appeared three times on America's Town Meeting of the Air. As a newspaper commentator he writes a widely syndicated column, "This Morning" or "This Afternoon."

After graduating from Horace Mann School in New York, Mr. Graves received a Bachelor's degree in literature from Princeton University, a degree from George Washington University School of Law, a DCL from the University of the South, an LLD from Setson University and a Doctor of Law from the College of the Ozards.

The speaker is an economist by preference, lawyer by education, historian by learning, and a writer and speaker by profession. He was formerly an economist for the Federal Trade Commission. During World War I, he served in heavy artillery. Mr. Graves has had several of his books published. Among them are "The Fighting South", "Book of Alabama," and "Shaft In the Sky."

He has been called a brilliant phrase-maker, a subtle humorist, an outspoken advocate of "Free Enterprise in America," a fearless thinker, and a master of the English language.

Colonnade Editor Names New Staff

Nancy Garbee, new editor of the Colonnade, has announced her staff for the coming year. This staff will begin fulfilling its duties with the next issue of the magazine which will come out sometime before the end of school.

Nancy has named Pat Taylor, sophomore from Roanoke, as managing editor. Laura Lee Fritts, junior from Ninevah, will serve as short story editor, and Helen Tanner, sophomore from Richmond, will be essay editor. The poetry editor for next year will be Flora Ballowe, junior from Farmville.

Joanne Steck, sophomore from Fredericksburg, was appointed as review editor, and Lucy Jane Morton, junior from Farmville will serve as art editor. Circulation manager for the coming year will be Mildred Blessing, junior from Tazewell, and Betty Lou Harman, junior from Tazewell, and Betty Lou Harman, junior from Tazewell, will serve as head typist.

The Colonnade staff will present a brief review of various scenes, songs, dances, and acts from Longwood College Circuses Friday night at 7 p. m.,

Tau Theta Pi Elects Men To Offices

Fraternity Re-elects Mr. Myers Adviser

Madison McClintic, a Longwood College junior from Farmville, was elected president of Tau Theta Pi fraternity for the coming year at elections held last Wednesday night.

Harold Hutter, a Longwood junior from Brookville, was elected to serve as vice-president with Harold Griffin and John Peace, both of Farmville, selected to serve as secretary and treasurer, respectively. Mr. N. O. Myers, associate professor of business education at Longwood College, was re-elected to office of chapter adviser.

Madison McClintic, Tau Theta Pi president for the 1951-52 session, attended Farmville High School and Augusta Military Academy. Before coming to Longwood, he attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute for a year. A member of both the A. M. A. and V. P. I. glee clubs when he attended those schools, Madison is at present secretary of the Men's Student Government.

He also serves as a master sergeant in the National Guard.

New Vice President

Harold Hutter, chapter vice-president for the coming year, was graduated from Brookville High School. President of the Student Government and editor of the annual in his senior year, Harold was a member of both the annual staff and the Student Government for the entire four years. He also participated in dramatics, debating, track and basketball. He is at present a junior at Longwood. For the past year he has also served as vice-president of the Men's Student Government and sergeant-at-arms for the fraternity.

Well Done, Longwood . . .

Congratulations are again in order, for the newly elected student officers and for the students who so wisely chose them! They are quite capable of fulfilling the duties demanded by the high offices they have been elected to fill.

The election of the so-called Minor Officers was by no means a minor election in importance, for the people who have been elected to these offices are real student leaders and will be throughout the remainder of their college days. Their jobs are the backbones of the organizations to which they belong, for vice-presidents, secretaries, and treasurers do the brunt of the work in any organization and work right along with the president in carrying out the responsibilities.

The elections held yesterday were the last ones in which the entire student body will participate this year. However, every organization will be electing their officers for the coming year during the next few weeks. Many more leaders will be recognized, and everyone will be having several more chances to vote for the most qualified persons.

The responsibility of the student body, however, does not stop with the election of their officers. They are depending on our support and co-operation throughout their term of office. Without our assistance, it will be impossible for them to efficiently fulfill the duties of their offices.

We are all members of these organizations, either directly or by representation, and only we can give our officers the proper co-operation and support. Each and every member of the student body is charged with this responsibility.

As their jobs end, it is indeed fitting to thank the members of the nominating committee for the splendid job they have done. The Rotunda wishes to extend congratulations to Betsy Wilson, chairman of the committee and to every member of the nominations group for the diligent and splendid work they have done in fulfilling this big job.

Next year should see great progress at Longwood. With the newly found outstanding leadership, and with the co-operation of students and administration with the four major organizations, this should go speedily along.

Take It Easy . . .

As has been made evident by the many red faces running about the campus, the long-awaited time of the year for sunbathing has arrived, and with it a slight loss of common sense on the part of many individuals.

The students of Longwood, through these editorials, often have pleaded their cases when they have asked for an added privilege by assuring the faculty and administration that they were no longer children but were maturing men and women. Have they forgotten their maturity? Or isn't it immature to stay out in the sun so long that a doctor must ease their discomforts? Many students have had to seek the relief from burning skin because they forgot that the same thing happened last year.

Physical discomfort isn't all that enters into the picture. A slight amount of dissatisfaction seems to have come to those whose mid-semester estimates weren't up to par? Could it possibly be a result of throwing homework assignments off the edge of the roof on a sunny day?

Longwood girls will probably come back with the response that they don't mind a little discomfort as long as they get a good tan. A good tan for several summers, and then what, say the doctors. For many years now, article after article has been printed in magazines, newspapers, and hygiene bulletins revealing the truth about the danger of prolonged exposure to the sun. Skin cancer can be a direct result of bright sunlight, and as much publicity as there has been concerning this dreaded disease, it would seem that people would want to be more careful.

There's a good side to sunbathing, of course. Sunlight, taken in the correct dosages, is one of the best medicines for a clear complexion, a healthier body, and a good resistance builder against colds. The people on the Rotunda like to sunbath too, and are probably as guilty of all that has been discussed. Let's all take it easy, and come out feeling good as well as looking good.

In Regards

Dear General MacArthur:

It does not seem unnatural to write you, because, as a great man, you have great problems. And, since small men have, basically, the same problems, perhaps you can help me with mine. My college friends, my countrymen and I, have suffered a painful loss. In the national chaos of the year, we have forgotten, and thus lost one of our greatest problem-solvers, a man of influence in the lives of men. He slipped away, by design or accident, while we were applauding ou rown success in Korea, our economic influences on European Governments, our prosperity at home, our strong American youth. We desperately need this man.

I have looked through Longwood College. Is he among the students? He appears, fleetingly, when friends talk together on Sunday nights, or listen to a great speaker, or sing hymns in Chapel. Oddly enough, we avoid discussing him when he is absent, as an embarassing topic. Unable to describe his personality, we often thought, then, that his influence was unnecessary, unwanted in our lives. We were uneasy when we glimpsed him following us. He was sad: we were gay. He came back to some private hearts after election times.

In the life of the nation this man became a forgotten personality, drowned by our self-assurance. Greedy politicians, hypocrites, claimed him when he was not their friend. They fooled many at election times by taking his personality as their own.

He fights no wars, yet he warms the company of war-ravished victims. The small-minded despise him; the big-hearted are at peace with him. One who has been despised and stoned cruelly for centuries, he has been cast aside, forgotten, lost behind the brilliance of the world's other hatreds.

General MacArthur, do you know this person? If you are a truly great man, you must know him. As commander of the U. N. forces in Korea, you have stated: "I stand ready at any time to confer with the commander of the enemy forces in an earnest effort to end furthur bloodshed." You have been criticized, accused of meddling in politics. You are stubborn, proud, and consciencious. You dedicated your entire life to your country. You continued in spite of your own mistakes and others'. You went where your country ordered, willingly, and with great love. Somewhere, you met the person whom I seek. We need him. He is named Humility.

Hello, Joe

Barbara White

Dear Comrades,

Well, here we are in the infirmary, one of my little Red friends and I. She is not a Red in the highest sense of the word but she is Red due to over exposure on the roof. The doctor here may join the party yet. He certainly shows tendencies. I have found that the rule against smoking in the infirmary is a trial and tribulation. I have wasted more nice cigarettes putting them out after a few drags just because I thought I heard the doctor coming.

I got in on a great discussion the other day on how to raise children. My theory is to quiet a fretting child by brushing his hair and if that doesn't work, apply the other side of the brush to the other end of the child. That is how my mother reared me, at times with undue emphasis on the rear.

While sitting in English class Friday, we were startled at hearing the music of a band. I, thinking that the Great Day of Communism had arrived, leaped from my seat to see. Much to my disappointment, it was just a baseball game between the Worsham and Farmville Elementary Schools. One of the little umpires was so cute. He was from Worsham and Farmville won. Upon announcing the final score, he displayed the feeling of the defeated as well as the effort of trying to be a good sport. He said in a dejected little voice, "They win."

The freshmen are rushing like mad to get their vocational papers in. It's quite an effort for some of them since they haven't even chosen a vocation yet.

So long until next week when I make fun of some more serious issues.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

Letter to Editor

To the Editor:

Concerning the handicaps and limitations, I was pleased with the number of students that attended the plays presented by the dramatic clubs. One hundred per cent student attendance would have been impossible in the small auditorium, unless a play ran for three nights. However, if one hundred per cent student attendance were possible, the following six points should be carefully followed:

First: Going to a play must again become a habit at Longwood.

Second: Going to a play must again become a tradition. In a few years, when it is securely re-established as a tradition, the clubs can make certain deviations, such as presenting a play with no scenery, no costumes, no properties, or no actors, but it must keep up the tradition.

Third: We must have the proper location. It should be a large auditorium so that the play will not interfere with whispered conversations or canasta games in the back. People must become accustomed togathering at this auditorium for a play at the same time, the same day, the same month year after year. The advantage of this system is that if some should miss a play one year, they will know the next year exactly where to go.

Fourth: We must present a familiar play by a familiar author. If it were familiar to everyone, the choice of ply would be restricted to the plays of the Freshman Omnibus, which are required reading. However, these plays are not studied until the second semester, therefore the play would have to be one that is universally known by high school students—something like a dramatization of Aesop's Fables or a play of Wild Bill Shakespeares. Another plan would be to give the same play year after year. Then the students could all become familiar with its emotional feeling, its artstic taste, and its overpowering smell.

Fifth: We must not charge admission. Since it costs $25.00 to $50.00 a night for royalty, $30.00 for scenic materials, $20.00 for

by Stokes Overby

Since the topic of room assignments for next year has been the center of many lively, and often heated, discussions during the past week, our question of the week became: "Are you satisfied with the present method of assigning dormitory rooms, or can you suggest a better method?"

Most of the students seemed to feel that the present method of assignments is best. Cleo Holladay declared, "I think they handle it fairly and squarely. Any other way would be more confusing." Barbara Blackman said, "They use the best way possible because you are allowed to make your own choice. It is not the administration's fault if more than one person signs up for the same room. They try to put people together who are congenial."

Four other methods were suggested by various students. Betty Benton and Nancy Driskill were in favor of the system which is used at Mary Washington. Each person draws a number. The lowest number would get first choice and so on up the line. Within a suite there would be four chances for a low number. "Sis" Burton suggested that either two suites or four rooms be allowed to sign up together. "That way you could get at least part of your immediate crowd together."

Jane Lively and Norma Saunders believed that putting the room numbers in a box and having students draw them out would be the most democratic idea. Edith Kennon said, "Put all the applications for the same hall in a box, shuffle them, and draw from the top the number that the hall would accomodate. Leftovers would get second choice if possible."

Many girls expressed dissatisfaction with the present system, but knew of no improvements or changes which could be made. However, Mary Ann Oliver added, "I think they could get closer to the students' choices than they do." Rachael Peters and Frances Ann Ramsey shared this opinion: "People who have never received their first choice in rooms should be given special consideration the following year."

Frances Cregar declared, "The present method promotes cliques and makes too much demarcations

Longwood Girls Place First In 1951 Va. Swimming Meet With Final Score of 47-43

Madison Offers Only Competition

Longwood College placed first with a final score of 47 over Madison College with a score of 43 in the 1951 Virginia Intercollegiate Telegraphic Swimming Meet, held in the College pool on March 21 and 29.

Jean Ridenour placed first and Lou Jamison third in the first event, a 40 yard free style. In the 40 yard back crawl which followed, Longwood's Nancy Walker and Faye Greenland came in first and third respectively. The third event, a 40 yard breast stroke, saw Marian Beckner and Blanton Ferguson place second and third.

Eleanor Koch took second and Pat Altwegg, third, in the fourth event of the meet, a 100 yard free style. In the 100 yard back crawl which followed, Jean Ridenour placed first. The 100 yard breast stroke saw Blanton Ferguson come in second.

Red Cross Awards Swim Certificates

Miss Olive T. Iler, head of the physical education department, has received word from Howard E. Camp, Jr., Red Cross instructor, that ten Longwood girls passed the American Red Cross Water Safety Instruction examination to get their Instructor's certificates.

Pat Altwegg, Betty Collier, Blanton Ferguson, Peggy Hoover, Nancy Huff, Ann Kemp, Eleanor Koch, Jean Ridenour, and Roberta Wiatt are the girls who completed the weeks course successfully. They are now eligible to teach swimming.

Mr. Camp was on campus the week of March 26 through 30. He held classes every night from 7 to 10 p. m. in swimming and life saving techniques.

Harold Griffin, secretary for the coming year, attended Somerset High School in Somerset, Ky., where he was a member of the dramatic club, the glee club, the Hi-Y club, and the annual and newspaper printing staff. A senior at Longwood, Harold served in the navy as a yeoman for a total of eight years.

He also attended Rogers Business College for two years.

John Peace, treasurer for the coming year, was graduated from Farmville High School. A member of Boys' State in 1949, John was also a member of the monogram club, the glee club, the library club, and the basketball team. He was vice-president of his senior class and treasurer of his junior class.

HOGAN REGAINS HIS OLD FORM AT THE MASTERS:

Bantam Ben Hogan, who only 28 months ago was involved in an automobile-bus accident, regained his old golfing form again this past week end when he won the Master golf tournament at Augusta, Georgia with a 26 hole score of 280. Back in January of 1949, Ben stunned the whole golfing world when the car in which he was riding collided with a Greyhound bus in western Texas. It was almost certain the little "Bantam" would never return to the links again. He lay in a hospital bed for many months. Just about every bone in his body was broken. As Ben began to recuperate, you could always find him on the greens putting or trying to pick up his old swing again. Finally, after many long months, Hogan managed to play two or three holes a day, always having to go from green to green on a scooter or some other means of conveyance. He could not walk long distances or stand on his feet for any length of time.

Hogan, only in his early thirties, has won every major golf tournament there is, except for the British Open, and he has only competed in that once, coming close to winning then. There are very few golfers who have ever done that, the immortal Bobby Jones being one of them. Even our own Sammy Snead hasn't done it.

SOPHOMORES TO PLAY CO-EDS:

Want to see something funny? Well, don't forget to come and see the basketball game between the sophomores and the men. As of yet, the time has not been set but it will probably be sometime next month. Sarah Harvie, president of the sophomore class, stated that they were in urgent need of money and would appreciate all the support they could get. Also, if it were possible to get a little plug in here, they would like to know if you have any old paper lying around in your rooms. If so, let some of the sophomores know and they will come around and pick it up. As soon as the exact date of the game is set, ye ole Spectator will let you know so that you can set that date aside.

However, on the 26th the FACULTY is to play a group of girls selected by the Y. W. C. A. This should turn out to be interesting also. The girls are not to be of the athletic type, but will range in ability anywhere from a "Cookie" to a "Westbrook." Game time is 7 p. m. so everyone be sure to come.

will include: "Heaven Bells," by McKay, "Let My People Go," a Fred Waring arrangement, and "Old Ark A-Moverin'," by Ken Darby.

A number of romantic and classical selections will conclude the program. These will be "Vale of Luoni," by Sibellius; "The Stars Look Down," by Miles; "Fog Horns," by Young-Powell; and "The Two Grenadiers," by Schumann.

Sophs Lead Green 'n Whites To Unquestionable Victory In Traditional Class Games

Sportin' Around

Lou Jamison

Congratulations, Green and Whites, and especially sophomores. You really did a fine job throughout the class basketball and volleyball games.

The seniors were defeated in only one volleyball game and tied in one basketball game. The sophomores were undefeated in all their games. We can't forget the wonderful fight the Red n' Whites put up though. During all the games they kept the Green 'n Whites guessing.

Now that class games are over, how are you fixed for archery, tennis, golf, and softball? This week the grass has been cut on the athletic field and the tennis courts have been rolled, all of which means that spring sports will soon be in full swing. Of course, the spring doubles tennis tournament is in the offing along with the archery and golf tournaments. This is a good time to start getting in your practices. Let's all come out of hibernation and do justice to those spring sports!

The green 'n whites led by the sophomore class led in the season's class volleyball game wins. Their victories add points to the color cup. The volleyball games were played alternately with the class basketball games, in which the sophomores were also undefeated.

The first games, played against their sister class, the seniors, the sophomores won by the scores of 32-10 and 18-9. The second year class then took on the red 'n white juniors and added points to the color cup by beating them 27-5, and 24-7.

A score of 32-12 brought the green 'n whites out on top again when they battled the freshmen in the first volleyball games. In the second game, the frosh put up a hard fight giving the sophomore winners a narrow margin of 28-24.

In the other class volleyball games, the juniors lost to their sister class and tied the score with the green 'n white seniors in the first game and lost to them in the second.

The number of games won, lost and tied by the classes in the volleyball games are as follows:

Juniors	0	2	1

Basketball

The sophomore class basketball team came through undefeated in the season class basketball games played after Easter and won a stack of points to be added for the green 'n whites to their side of the color cup score.

The first game, played against the seniors, was won by the sophs by a wide margin 44-33. Taking on the red 'n white juniors next, the second year class downed them by a score of 45-35.

The sophomore - freshman game, considered the most important and exciting of the class games, proved more difficult for green 'n whites. Although the sophs went into an early lead, they barely managed to keep it as the freshmen fought to gain points over their rivals. At the end of the game, the winning sophomores walked off the floor beating the frosh by a score of 38-33.

According to observers, this year's class games were very evenly matched, with most of them proving to be exciting ones. The class standings in basketball games won, lost and tied are as follows:

Seniors	0	2	1

Four Campus Sororities Announce Election Result

Remaining Groups To Elect Officers

Several campus sororities have recently elected officers for the coming year.

Sigma Sigma Sigma chose Polly Brothers, president and Conway Rice, vice - president. Jean Kreienbaum was elected corresponding secretary of the group, Sara Anne Jones, secretary, and Margaret Taylor, treasurer.

Nancy Walthall was chosen by Kappa Delta sorority to serve as president. Other officers of Kappa Delta will be Helen Tanner, vice-president; Maria Jackson, secretary; and Celeste Bishop, treasurer. Betty Collier will serve as editor, and Lucy Jane Morton, membership chairman.

Pi Kappa Sigma also recently selected their officers for 1951-1952. May Henry Sadler will serve as president, with Bobbie Brown, and Challice Haydon serving as first and second vice-presidents, respectively. Others will be Ann Mosley, corresponding secretary, Ann Mitchell Motley, recording secretary, Kakie McCready, treasurer, Billie Dunlap, editor, and Jerry Korback, pan-hellenic representative.

Virginia Dare Woody was elected president of Delta Sigma Epsilon at a recent meeting. Serving as vice-president for the coming year will be Inez Hughes, and as secretary, Nellie Lucy. Joyce Gatling will be treasurer, and Elizabeth Stone, Pan-Hellenic representative.

The other four campus sororities will elect their officers for next year during the next few weeks.

Two College Clubs Elect New Heads

Winnie Murdock, junior from Roanoke, was elected by the business majors to serve as their president at a recent meeting of the club.

Vice president for the coming year will be Peggy Wilson, junior from Warsaw. Joyce Cheatham, sophomore from Gladys, will act as secretary, and Anne Mosely, junior from Roanoke, will serve as treasurer.

The commercial club is now working on their project which will be on display in the library sometime in May. The exhibit is to show how the style of dress for various business women has changed from year to year.

El Club Espanol

Officers for the coming year were elected by El Club Espanol at their regular meeting, Tuesday, April 3. Maria Jackson, junior from Lexington, was elected to the presidency.

Serving as vice-president will be Olga Rodriguez, junior from Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. Fay Greenland, freshman from Norfolk, was elected secretary, and Sara Creger, junior from Roanoke, treasurer. Betty Collier, sophomore from Richmond, will fill the position of reporter for the club.

READ ROTUNDA ADS

Senior Spotlight

Those of you who are fortunate enough to frequent the Tea Room are already well on the way toward guessing the name of the slender young lady who has been chosen as this week's outstanding senior.

A wearer of "specks," this dark-haired, dark-eyed senior is an English major and plans to teach this subject in high school. She has long since proved her leadership ability, by her membership in Alpha Kappa Gamma, Kappa Delta Pi, and Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. This secret senior is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha, social sorority, and as further indication of her leadership ability, she is nearing the conclusion of her year as president of Student Government.

Need I say more? One last hint to the identity of this week's mystery girl—she always manages to stay homesick and is seldom able to make the trip because of the long distance—16 miles.

A tall girl with dark curly hair and dark eyes, this senior's main interest seems to lie in athletic activities. People, upon knowing her better, say that she follows this interest through with a quiet determination, which probably explains her position on the AA Council, president of the H2O Club, and the fact that she takes an active part in all the class games and is quite noted for her tennis playing.

There is probably not a single Longwood student who doesn't know this week's featured senior at least by sight, since each night at ten all eagerly await her arrival with that deafening cry of "Hot Dogs!"

If need be, I can say that this week's outstanding senior is a boisterous, laughing phys. ed. major and is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha social sorority. She is characterized by her friendly smile and the wearing of a Longwood blazer, another result of outstanding athletic ability.

the Y' Cabinet, secretary of the Westminster Fellowship, and new managing editor of the Rotunda. Ginny is also a member of the choir, Cotillion Club, Student Standards committee, and Kappa Delta social sorority.

Ann Jones, new Y.W.C.A. treasurer, is a sophomore from Christiansburg. She has served this year as secretary for the sophomore class and is a member of the Cotillion Club and Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority.

Athletic Association

Erma "Bootie," newly elected vice-president of the women's Athletic Association, is a junior from Emporia. She has been serving this year as secretary of the organization, and is a member of Orchesis, modern dance group. "Bootie" has been a member of several varsity squads and was captain of the class basketball team during her sophomore year.

Ann Crowder, new secretary for the A. A., is a sophomore from Glen Allen. She has served this year as treasurer for the House Council. She is on the A. A. council, and has played varsity basketball. She is a member of Orchesis and Cotillion Club.

Helen Castros, sophomore from Roanoke, who is new treasurer for the A. A. is on the A. A. Council and has played varsity basketball and hockey for two years. She is a member of Cotillion Club and Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority.

Men Choose Bradshaw To Presidency of SGA, Peace, Vice-Presidency

Robinson, Parks Fill Other Posts

Bob Bradshaw, Longwood College junior, and John Peace, Longwood College freshman, were elected to serve as president and vice-president, respectively, of the Men's Student Government Association for the 1951-52 session as a result of elections held last Thursday and Friday. Eric Robinson, freshman from Cumberland, and Edward Parks, junior from Farmville, were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Bob Bradshaw, Men's Student Government president for the coming year, attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute before coming to Longwood. He was graduated from Farmville High School, where he was a member of the monogram club and the athletic association. A member of the junior class at Longwood, he is also a member of the basketball team and of Tau Theta Pi fraternity.

Vice-President

John Peace, vice-president for the association for the 1951-52 session, is a graduate of Farmville High School. Vice-president of his senior class and treasurer of his junior class, John was a representtative to Boys' State in 1949. He is a freshman at Longwood and is also treasurer of Tau Theta Pi for the coming year.

Eric Robinson, newly elected secretary for the Men's Student Government, attended Cumberland High School. There he was president of his sophomore class, president of the student government, and president of both the local and state organizations of the Future Farmers of America. A freshman at Longwood, Eric served as treasurer of the Men's Athletic Association for the past year.

Ed Parks, Men's Student Government treasurer for next year, is a graduate of Tangier High School, Tangier, Va. There he was a member of the student council and of the athletic association. A junior at Longwood, Edward served as chairman of the Men's Athletic Association last year.

Officers Elected By Upperclassmen For Coming Year

Harris, Harvie To Head Classes

Peggy Harris from Emporia was chosen by the juniors to serve as president of next year's senior class. Peggy was elected at the monthly meeting of the junior class held Tuesday, April 10.

Vice-president of the senior class will be Jean Ridenour from Richmond. Anne Oakley, from Danville, will serve as secretary, and Rebecca Mann, from Cyress Chapel, will act as treasurer. Maria Jackson, from Lexington, was reelected to serve as house president.

Government representatives of the senior class will be Anne Mitchell Motley, from Sharps and Shirley Livesay from Emporia. Maxine Watts from Lexington and Dorothy Gregory from Skipwith will be the student standards representatives.

Sophomores Elect

The sophomore class also held their elections for next year's officers on April 10. Sarah McElroy Harvie, from Richmond, was reelected by the sophomores to head next year's junior class.

Joanne Steck from Fredricksburg was chosen to serve as vice-president. Secretary of the junior class will be Anne Jones from Christiansburg, and Barbara White from Roanoke will act as treasurer. Judy Cox from Christiansburg, was reelected as house president.

Government representatives of the juniors will be Nancy Driskill from Roanoke and Polly Brothers from Suffolk. Sonia Kile from Drexel Hill, Pa., and Barbara Caskey from Richmond will represent next year's junior class on student standards.

Old Members Present Rules To Cotillion Club Aspirants

Cotillion Club "Goating" will be held on Thursday, April 26, from 6 a. m., to 5:15 p. m., according to a recent announcement by Peg Peery, head of "Goating" for this year. Nearly 100 new members of the Cotillion Club will be initiated at this time.

Goat court will be held the same night from 10 to 11 p. m. in the small auditorium, with all goats present dressed in green and yellow, the club colors.

Cotillion members have compiled the following rules which will be imposed on all goats on the day of initiation.

1. Goats must address Cotillion Club members as "Miss" and must know the last names of all members.

2. Goats must attend all meals in the dining hall and must not go to the post office until 5:15 p. m.

3. Goats must convene in front of the library before and after lunch.

4. Goats must carry cigarettes and matches for old members. They must carry their books in a pillow case decorated with green and yellow streamers.

5. Goats must also carry one all day sucker for their favorite Cotillion Club member.

6. Goats must have their appointments clearly printed on 8½X11 inch paper. Appointments may be as often as 20 minutes apart.

7. Goats must wave and give a friendly "hello" when they pass Joan of Arc.

8. Goats must wear a sign on their back with their name and home address on it and the name and full address of the person they are portraying is to be worn on the front.

9. Goats must impersonate in dress and manner a senior Cotillion Club member. They must

LC Students Will Register

Students planning to return for the 1951-52 session will register for first semester classes during the period from Monday, May 7, through Friday, May 11, according to an announcement just released by Dean William W. Savage. Those who fail to complete their registration during this period will be required to register next fall. They will find it necessary to return earlier than those who complete their registration during the period of May 7-11.

All students should confer as quickly as possible with the heads of the departments in which they are majoring and make plans for the courses in which they will enroll for the 1951-52 session. Dean Savage has called attention to the fact that this is essential in the case of freshmen and sophomores who must be approved by these heads before they may major in the subject or field of their choice.

As in the past, members of the faculty will post notices on their office doors indicating the hours

New Late Light Law Effected By Council

According to a recent House Council amendment, new late light rulings will go into effect immediately. These changes have to do with the Saturday night laws only.

The new rules state there will be unlimited lights in the junior and senior buildings, 2 o'clock lights in the sophomore building and 1 o'clock lights in the freshman building.

The laws were passed by the administration and House Council only on the condition that the new rules would be enforced more rigidly, with call downs given for all unnecessary noise after the designated hours. They were passed also on the condition that there would be a trial period, to run for at least a month and possibly until the end of the present semester.

Men To Sponsor U S Army Film

Terrifying atrocities in Nazi concentration camps of World War II, long hidden behind the censorship of the United States Army Intelligence, are revealed in one of the United States Armed Forces films to be brought to Longwood College Thursday and Friday.

The two-hour film, including D-Day, the European Theater of Operations, and the Battle of Okinawa, was photographed in actual combat by United States Army and Air Force newsmen and cameramen and is narrated in sound by behind- the-scene observers.

Sponsored by the Men's Athletic Association, this outstanding revelation of the actual behind-the-headlines scenes vividly brings to life the brutalities endured in German prison camps, the Normandy and Okinawa Beach operations, the struggle of Okinawa, and many other heretofore censored battle details of the past war. It is to be shown in the college small auditorium at 7:15 each evening with an admission price of twenty-five cents.

Dr. Gibson To Speak In Thursday Chapel

Dr. Churchill Gibson, rector of St. James Episcopal Church in Richmond, will speak to the student body in assembly Thursday, April 19.

Dr. Gibson is a native of Richmond, son of the late Robert Gibson, former Richmond Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Virginia. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and the Virginia Episcopal Seminary in Alexandria. He received his Doctor of Divinity degree from Washington and Lee University.

The speaker was rector of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Church in Lexington for about ten years. He accepted a call in Philadelphia and then returned to Richmond where he has been for about twenty-five years.

'Dance of the Violets' Will Highlight Decoration, Figure of Annual Dance

"Dance of the Violets" has been announced as the theme of the annual Cotillion Club dance being held in the College gymnasium Saturday, April 21, from 8 to 12 p. m.

Claude Thornhill, his orchestra and his piano, will set the tempo for the evening's entertainment. His band features the "Snowflakes" and Christy Conner, vocalist. Decorations for the dance will carry out the theme in both colors and figures used.

Charlotte Williams, the figure leader of the Cotillion Club, will be escorted by David Martin. Jeanne Farmer, president of the Club, will lead with Charlie Agee, and Mildred Evans will lead with Bob Ingram. Jill Pifer will take part in the figure with Frank Blanton.

Receiving Line

Jeanne Farmer will head the receiving line which will form at 9 p. m. in the Student Lounge. Following Jeanne will be Mildred Evans, Jill Pifer, Charlotte Williams, Dr. and Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Coyner, Dean and Mrs. William W. Savage.

Members of the faculty and administration who have been invited to the dance as chaperones are Mr. and Mrs. Boyd M. Coyner, Dr. and Mrs. Lancaster, Dean and Mrs. Savage, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Brumfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Joel Ebersole.

Claude Thornhill's orchestra, selected by the Club for this year's dance, has been acclaimed among the most original of modern dance bands. He is known for his distinct piano stylings and unique orchestrations. The orchestra was picked as the band to watch in 1951. Releases from the Press Relations Department of the Music Corporation of America state that Mr. Thornhill's training at both the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and the Curtis Institute of Music are prime factors in making the band what it is today . . . something new on the musical horizon.

Cotillion "Goats" will decorate for the dance, carrying out the selected theme. They will also clean the gymnasium after the dance.

Mosque Fete Includes 18 LC Dancers

The stage of the Richmond Mosque will be the scene of the southern district convention of the Southern Music Educator's Association Friday, Apr. 20, when 18 modern dance students from Longwood will give their interpretation of an episode from "History Sings", a historical pageant based on Virginia's musical history.

Edith Duma, a senior from Portsmouth, will dance the part of the colonial dancing master, a teacher of motion, manners, morals and music. She will lead her charges, children from several plantations, in a lesson typical of the days during the period 1810 to 1840.

Dancers Named

Marian Beckner, Ann Boswell, Ann Crowder, Peggy Harris, Marian Higgs, Margie Hood, Donna Kunkler, and Erma Poarch, dressed in white tights and blue jackets, will be cast as boys for the performance.

Dancing the parts of girls will be Nan Bland, Helen Egerton, Margie Hall, Bobbie Pollard, Conway Rice, Jean Ridenour, Pat Tuggle, and Charlotte Williams, dressed in costumes of pastel organdies.

The Longwood group, which is under the direction of Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education, will appear second on the festival program in the episode entitled "Plantation Life" with Lou Beavers as accompanist.

Performance Previewed

As the curtain rises, the children stand grouped in two's until the teacher of motion and manners enters. They stand at attention, eager to begin the lesson which will consist of the six radical motions, the change, the slide, the step, the leap, the hop, and the halt, which in plantation days, precluded all steps in dance.

The group is guided through the precise and stately motions of the Boccherini Minuet which, though highly stylized for the occasion, still retains the authenticity of that period in Virginia's dance history. A Waltz Quadrille, consisting of three figures, makes up the third part of the episode. The observer is reminded of how great, great, great grandmother must have appeared when the young of her day clamored for "une valse."

Longwood's part in the festival will be climaxed by the Virginia Reel, to be performed as a stylized theater piece of the Sir Roger de Coverley original.

Marian Beckner, president of Orchesis, speaking for the group, stated that the episode "is utterly

Kappa Delta Obtains Highest Grade Rating For Fall Semester

The local chapter of Kappa Delta scholastically led the other seven social sororities with an average of 1.97 for the fall session 1950-51, according to a recent announcement made by Miss Vera Baron, adviser to the Pan-Hellenic Council.

Zeta Tau Alpha placed second in the scholarship race with an average of 1.93. Alpha Sigma Tau followed with an average of 1.85 and Sigma Sigma Sigma had an average of 1.82.

Alpha Sigma Alpha made a scholastic average of 1.77 for the semester, and Theta Sigma Upsilon had a 1.68 average. Pi Kappa Sigma followed with a standing of 1.66 and Delta Sigma Epsilon with an average of 1.41.

The sorority which attains the highest scholastic average for a year is annually presented with a scholarship plaque by the Pan-Hellenic Council. It is awarded in the fall to the sorority with the highest standing for the entire preceding year.

Scholarship averages are computed on a basis of three which is considered the equivalent of an "A" grade average.

The fall semester average for the entire student body was 1.53, according to Miss Virgilia Bugg, registrar.

We Want More . . .

The students of Longwood received an unexpected and VERY pleasant surprise this past Thursday in the form of an assembly speaker. The majority of us walked from what has so often been termed "boring" chapel, discussing earnestly the topic of speech that had been presented.

Those who did not discuss the speech evidenced their satisfaction by remarking that the assembly speaker was one of the best. And if there were those who did not mention their feeling orally, it seems that they showed how they felt by the enthusiastic aplause at the end of the program. Regardless of the manner in which we told how we felt, it was plainly evident that the students heartily approved of the last Longwood assembly.

Orchids are due the administration who can bring to a college campus, a speaker who can find in almost every student of a body as large as this, a bit of interest; one who makes us forget to study, dream, or attempt an hour's nap. But we have a question: Are there only enough men and women in the United States to provide no more than two or three really interesting speakers a year?

We want more of what we tasted Thursday. Our appetites have been whetted by what we consider a delicacy, and we're eager that it become at least a weekly serving. The students have been told that it is important to them to attend a cultural program for their own good, and in turn the students ask how much good a cultura program can do if the speaker cannot put over his point.

We, the students of Longwood, thank those responsible for surprising us so pleasantly and ask that they do it again and again.

Investigate . . .

Another year is almost gone. It is impossible to say just where it has flown to, but nevertheless, we must admit that it has gone by. For many of us it has been a scholastically successful year; for others, it has not been quite so good. And for everyone, excluding the rarity, an all "A" student, it might have been better.

As we think back on the year's work, it would be profitable, too, to consider not only the grades made on courses, but also just how much we have gotten out of these courses—just how well we seem to fit in the curriculum of our choice. Freshmen, especially, should be doing this sort of evaluating, in preparation for making their choice of subjects for next year.

And that is just what every freshman, sophomore, and junior will be doing less than two weeks from now, signing up for the classes they will take next year.

How many of us have been to our faculty advisers to talk over plans for next year? How many of us realize that there have been drastic curriculum changes made during the past year, and several requirements for graduation have been changed recently. Of course, many will say that their curriculum plans have been made since their freshman year, all the way through. But they will be sadly surprised and utterly dismayed when, a month or so before that date in June some years in the future, when they had planned to graduate, these plans are suddenly changed because of a few hours lacking in some place.

We are intelligent college people. But even the most intelligent people make mistakes, and it is usually so much easier to correct mistakes early in the game, than to wait until they have had some permanent harmful effect. The really intelligent Longwood students, whether they be freshman, sophomores, or juniors, will be making an appointment to talk with their faculty adviser, the head of the department in which they are majoring, and in many cases, Dean Savage, in an effort to make their college work more worthwhile in personal satisfaction, and in hours of work toward that all cherished prize, a Bachelor's Degree.

Regarding

A MAN OF ACTION

General Douglas MacArthur

From the beginning it seemed that Douglas MacArthur was slated for a military career. After early schooling in a military academy, he went to West Point where he showed brilliant military promise. During his four years at the Academy he starred in sports and, by his fourth year he held the highest student military rank, captain. He also held a four year scholastic average of 98.14 per cent and graduated in 1903, Number One honor man of his class. He was to return later as West Point's Superintendent.

It also seemed that he was slated to spend much of his career in the Philippines. After graduation, MacArthur was commissioned second lieutenant in the Engineers and sent to the Philippines. But, by no means was he to stay in one position for long.

1914 found MacArthur a captain in the Vera Cruz expedition in Mexico. Then there was World War I, in which he entered as a 37-year-old major and emerged a brigadier general. During the campaigns in Europe, MacArthur caused a sensation when he insisted on fighting with his men. He was twice wounded and gassed.

In 1935, at the request of President Queron, MacArthur returned to the Philippines to build the Philippine army. His "reputation" for attracting unfavorable criticism had already begun.

Then there was Pearl Harbor in 1941. MacArthur was made a four-star general, the first to be promoted in the second World War. On orders from the president he was removed from the Philippines and made Supreme Commander of all Allied forces in the Southwest Pacific. For the defense of Bataan he was awarded the Medal of Honor.

Army Chief of Staff, Field Marshall of the Philippine Republic, Commander-in-chief of the Southwest Pacific, Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers: And this is also the man who has not seen his own country for almost fourteen years. He has been too busy. The President visits him. It seems incredible that such a man can be forced into inactivity by the very men whom he has served with utter self-sacrifice and diligence.

Hello, Joe

Barbara White

Dear Comrades

Now that summer is rapidly approaching, the golf classes are beginning their long treks to the Longwood Estate. Why should young girls take golf? That is the game to give men who are too old to chase anything else a chance to chase balls. I know when I play I do not need clubs; what I need is a good compass. Once when I was playing with a friend we were neck in neck to the first hole, neck in neck to the second hole, and by the time we got to the eighteenth hole we were so tired from all that necking we never found out who won the game.

My psychology teacher who was raised on a farm, told me that time was when he could knock a turnip into a hungry hog's mouth from one hundred feet. I will not vouch for the truth of that and I doubt if he will either.

The student versus faculty basketball game will be coming up soon. What a great opportunity that will be for some failing or falling students. My interest in sports is only casual but how I would love to be in this game. No doubt, several scores will be settled.

This past week-end several girls went home to date some of their old flames. One was telling me all about dating an innocent baby-faced boy. She remarked that he had a Sunday morning face with Saturday night ideas. As Pops would say, this is something often thought, but never so well expressed.

As you have probably guessed, Comrades, little has happened this week, and I am just filling in with all of this corn. Here is a final joke. Stop me if you have heard it.

Once three deaf Englishmen were walking down the street when one of them pointed and said "Why look, there is my friend Wimsley." The second said in a surprised voice, "Oh, no it is not; today is Thursday." To which the third replied, "So am I. Let's go get something to drink."

Well, I told you to stop me if you had heard it!

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

Strolling With Stokes

by Stokes Overbey

Some time ago, this column, through one of the weekly questions, found that certain parts of the Rotunda went unread and unnoticed by many students. In hopes of remedying that situation, this week's question is: "What changes or improvements in the newspaper can you suggest?"

Pat Lee declared, "I think we should continue having articles on world affairs since it is part of our education as students to be conscious of prevailing world conditions." Helen Tanner suggested printing a summary of the developments in world affairs during each week. "This would bring busy college students up-to-date because they read the Rotunda when they often do not read daily newspapers," she added. Allie Beale and Mildred Blessing also recommended the addition of a summary of current events.

Several people expressed a desire to see more jokes printed. Among them were Mary Helen Cook, Juanita Hudson, and Harriet Gutterman. Maxine Patterson would like to see a column of jokes about people in school in place of "Hello Joe" which she feels is pointless. Jerry Korbach favored the addition of a comic strip depicting college life and Edith Goff said, "I would like to see a little section of jokes similar to those in the Va. "Spectator" and V. M. I. "Turn-out."

Another frequent criticism was the small number of pictures used. Louise Trinkle considered this the greatest fault of the newspaper. Termite Tyler and Edna Rodriquez both thought that some sports action pictures of Longwood girls would be interesting. Termite also wished to see more news about collegiate sports. (Editor's note: There are few qualified sports writers on the Rotunda staff due to lack of interest on the part of sports-minded members of the student body.) Clara Borum stated, "Jimmy Thompson's column should be about girls' sports instead of boys' because then girls would be more interested in it."

Madeleine Bigot declared, "The stories could be written in a peppier style. The newspaper strikes me as being more for information than for entertainment when the two purposes could be combined." Sarah Graham also wanted news stories written in a more sprightly style, and Lucy Page Hall asked for "more good features written by Steck, Caskey and Jonesy."

A large number of the students questioned had no criticism to make and seemed to share Maria Jackson's opinion: "It's a miracle that a paper so full of good news is turned out every week."

And then there was the person who suggested that more sarcastic letters from the faculty be printed for laughing material.

Better Weeds Than Nothing Admit Victory Gardeners

Barbara Caskey, Judy Cox and Ann Jones

Organizing: Speaking from experience, the first step in the organization and planting of a victory garden is to obtain from some place, five healthy, husky country girls, preferably ones who come from a long line of soil soldiers. This group may contain two types; three attractive, energetic girls and two chubby, lazy girls. The problem of laziness is being taken care of by the three energetic girls who make up the council. Secretly, the council has set aside a date in the early fall, at which time the two unattractive girls, Miss Partridge and Miss Steck, will can our year's harvest. We recommend, for the best possible results, three caretakers, a weeder, a hoer, and a raker.

Choosing a Site: A spot must be chosen away from the observation of the administration, faculty, Student Government, House Council, Athletic Association, Y. W.C.A. and Spanish Club. The land must be fertile, with good red mud, grainy soil, plenty of worms and other miscellaneous insects.

Digging: The next step involves the digging process. A steam shovel, ditch digger, bulldozer and trowel are employed in this capacity. The soil must be turned over at least a quarter of an inch to insure the root plants an easy, unobstructed passage into the interior of the earth's surface and to anchor the seeds to the ground. Then, we lightly drop a single seed into each of the holes made by a well-digger and pat the seeds into the ground with a sweeping, rhythmical motion.

Features - - - Masterpieces; All Take Work, Work, Work For Poor Feature Writer

Jean Jinnett

Well, here it is Monday at 5 o'clock again, and time for me to sit down at my typewriter, get my nose to the grindstone, and pound out another of those colossal literary masterpieces called features.

Ah, me—I have approximately 45 minutes to work, and as per usual, I'm so well prepared! I haven't the slightest notion of what to write about. Let's see, now—theme. "Oh, I know," I says to myself. "Why don't I let all the boys in on the art (???) of feature-writing?"

The fundamental part of the feature is the theme, which is necessarily (check the way I'm improving my vocabulary) something that is off the beaten track, on account of when people read features (I'm told that a few hard - up, unsuspecting morons even stoop to reading mine occasionally, they want something that doesn't tax the brain in any way. This incidentally, is heartily disapproved by me, who definitely believing in spending all my spare time engrossed in real thought-provoking reading activities, like True Love, or the Spectator.

Well, you take this theme-see, and then go to work saying the silliest, funniest, most fantastic (occasionally even untrue) things you can think up about it.

Read it over, and if everything in it sounds absolutely too silly to be appreciated, even by your most asinine acquaintances, then by all means leave it in the article, go to work making the rest of it just as silly, and there you have a feature! It's really extremely easy and the nicest part about it is that features are usually written, read, understood, and appreciated only by people of average or lower mentality, which means that a large part of the Longwood student body should be feature-lovers.

Another unique trick is to always mention the name of one of your popular friends. She will be sure to read the article and will also manage somehow to subtly indicate to all her friends that the article is well worth reading. For instance—suppose I just casually happened to mention that Jose' Cox is currently referred to as one of the larger girls of Third Floor Annex. I am now assured of the fact that she will see to it that her entire table, all of Third Annex, the crowds in the Snack and Tea Room, and the smart upper set up on the roof are all informed that it is me—I mean it is I, not her—I mean she—who is referred to as one of the larger girls.

Incidentally, speaking of the larger girls reminds me of gaining weight, which makes me think of my appetite, which reminds me that it is 6 o'clock, and time for me to quit writin' an' get the heck down to the dining hall for my usual steak dinner. Be seein' ya.

MEN'S A. A. TO SHOW WAR MOVIE:

Through the co-operation of the U. S. Army and the American Legion, the men's A. A. has managed to obtain three movies that deal with the activities during World War II, both in the European and Pacific theaters of operation. One entitled "ACTIVITIES IN THE ETO" gives a resume of the activities that took place in getting prepared for D-Day. Another is titled "ACTIVITIES ON OKINAWA". This tells about the Marine invasion of Okinawa. The third and last is about the German concentration camps and goes under the name of "LIFE IN A CONCENTRATION CAMP." For all you students who are interested in seeing what really went on during the war don't miss these pictures. I can promise that you won't regret one minute of the time spent watching them. The place is the little auditorium, the time is 7:15, and the price is only a small quarter. Looking for everybody to be there now. One last thing, I haven't said When all this is to take place. There are going to be two showings, Thursday night and Friday night. This will give the ones who saw it the first night a chance to tell their friends not to miss it the next.

TIPS ON THE FACULTY-STUDENT GAME:

In an interview with "Cookie" Cook, she informed Ye Ol Spectator that the basketball game between the faculty and students was tentatively set for the 26th of this month. She also added that Miss Nichols and Miss Draper had signed up for the faculty and were raring to go. This ought to turn out to be quite amusing, don't you think?

MAJOR LEAGUES OFFICIALLY OPEN:

Last Monday, the 1951 major league baseball season opened with the Washington Senators engaging the world champion New York Yankees in Washington. And do you know who the starter was? None other than Harry Truman, the worst to ever come out of the Washington bull-pen. I've often wondered how the D. C. club ever expects to win if they continue to keep pitchers like him on the payroll. However, one of these days they'll wise up and get rid of such poor material. That's the day the whole country will profit by it. Could be in 1952, couldn't it?

Orchesis Re-elects Beckner President; Bids Eight Students

Marian Beckner, junior from Lynchburg, was re-elected to serve as president of Orchesis, modern dance club, for the coming year. Serving with her will be Marjorie Hood and Peggy Harris as secretary - treasurer and costume chairman respectively.

Orchesis has recently bid eight new apprentices to the organization. Lib Boswell, Barbara Hamner, Betsy Hankins, Challice Hayden, Lou Jamison, Diane Murray, Margaret Taylor and Doris Underwood have been bid to the organization.

May Day Ballet Group Completes Full Cast, Begin Final Practice

Final casting for May Day has been completed with the announcement of the dancers of the Parisian Ballet group.

Marian Beckner, Helen Egerton, Marian Higgs, Margie Hood, Hilda Lewis, Joan Missimer, and Nancy Walker were chosen for this last group which is also the second episode of Polka Mania in the plan of May Day.

Dresses for the May Court beauties have arrived and material for the ballet group is expected during the week, according to Mrs. Emily Landrum, modern dance instructor and head of the May Day activities.

Song and dance practices have begun for freshman with second rehearsals scheduled in Wednesday classes. Both afternoon and evening practices will be scheduled next week to make up for time lost in the Richmond Convention program.

AA Council President Names Women's Sports Managers To Serve for Coming Year

Sportin' Around

Lou Jamison

Now that spring is in full swing, we're all ready to descend upon the athletic field and the tennis courts—too bad the weather man has different ideas. Have no fear though; the rain will stop eventually.

When it does, don't forget those eight practices you need for the archery tournament. The spring doubles tennis tournament is ready and waiting for you too. If you haven't signed up for one of these yet, don't let the opportunity pass you by. It's all for the glory of your colors, and your class needs you to participate.

This Friday at 9 p. m. the H2O club is giving a repeat performance of their Christmas water pageant. It is being regiven for and at the request of the Southern Conference of College Women. The formations will be presented in their original form, but the Christmas theme has been discarded.

The end of May will bring something new this year. There will be a non-telegraphic class swimming meet then. Previously the class swimming meet presented annually consisted of a series of races following the telegraphic form. That is, plain free style 40 yard and 100 yard races, breast stroke races, and relays of these were offered.

This year something new has been added, so that anyone who can swim the width of the pool may enter. These races will consist of swimming short distances while carrying a potato, wearing pajamas, or swimming with one arm. The idea isn't to make swimming difficult, but to add a new and interesting element to something that was previously cut and dried. The distances have been greatly cut down in hopes that even beginning or intermediate swimmers will enter. The old type races will still be run for anyone wishing to enter them. You're free to sign up for the races you want and for no others. Of course, eight practices will be needed to enter the meet.

Remember the important thing isn't speed or form, but merely your participation! The H2O Club has tried its utmost to offer you something you'll like and be able to participate in without experience, so sign up for the meet at your first opportunity.

Victory Gardener

Watering: Each day we take a teaspoon of cool, clear water from the laundry. We seed, weed and reweed.

Miscellaneous:

1. The farming implements can be secured from Mrs. Green's closet.

2. The seeds may be obtained from the Christiansburg Fuel and Supply Company, dealers in Feeds, Seeds and Fertilizers.

3. All information may be obtained from the Seedy Catalog in the library and the Growers Periodical which is published each month by the entire population of southwest Virginia, Montgomery County in particular.

4. As soon as our garden has reached its prime, which should be about Saturday, the entire student body, Administration, Faculty and Spanish Club is invited to a garden party to be held in observance of National Garden Week. In case of snow, an announcement will be given in the dining hall telling of the postponement and future date.

5. Our Results: 17 onions, too many turnips, 1 beet and no nasturtiums.

6. Our Motto: Hoe, Hoe, Hoe, this is rich!

7. Our Themesong: "To the tune of Diggins in our Garden": We'll lay our tuition with beets, Then we'll hold our head aloft We'll stuff ourselves with lots of eats And then we'll be shoveling off.

Committee Heads Elected To Posts

New women's sport managers for the 1951-52 session have been announced by the newly elected president of the A. A. Council, Nancy Walker.

Varsity hockey manager is Edith Kennon; class managers, Patsy Sanford and Elsie Wente. Basketball varsity head is Rachel Peters and class manager, Beverly Marsh. Nell Bradshaw will manage the session's volleyball.

Leading the tennis playing for the coming year will be Clara Borum, while Jean Ridenour and Blanton Ferguson will serve as managers of the swimming department. Selected as softball manager was Betty Tyler; archery manager, Jean Hodges; and golf manager, Roberta Wiatt.

Betty Abbitt and Sue Webb will take charge of the recreational activities for 1951-52, and publicity for the Athletic Association will be taken care of by Eleanor Koch and Paula Doval.

Chairman of the social committee for the coming year will be Marian Beckner. Marjorie Hood, Shirley Livesay, Frances Stringfellow, Peggy Harris, Sarah McElroy Harvie, Judy Cox, and Johanna Biddlecomb will serve on this committee.

College Athletes To Convene Here

Longwood College will play hostess to the Virginia Athletic Federation of College Women (V. A.C.W.) Convention the week end of April 20-21.

Delegates from all the Virginia colleges will begin arriving Friday afternoon and the convention will formally open with a banquet at the Longwood house Friday night at 6:30 p. m.

Meetings will be held after the banquet and a water pageant, presented by the H2O Club, will be given for the delegates. Discussion groups and business meetings will be held Saturday morning and the convention will close Saturday afternoon.

The hostess college, this year Longwood, furnishes the chairman and corresponding secretary for the convention. Mary Crowder and Ann Biddlecomb will fill these posts respectively.

The two delegates who will represent Longwood College are Nancy Walker and Helen Castros.

beautiful with the fluffy, frilly and frothy costumes which are being made for us and which Orchesis will inherit." According to Mrs. Landrum, "It is the most exciting undertaking we have ever attempted. It isn't easy to keep a college group dancing or moving constantly for twelve minutes on the stage; but the honor of appearing on the Mosque stage before music educators from twelve states makes it worth the while."

"Farmville girls always come through; they make dance worthwhile at Longwood whether it be for such a performance as this, recital, May Day or Dance Day," Mrs. Landrum finished.

Marly Miller will serve as vice-president; Lee Wingfield as corresponding secretary; Sonia Kile as recording secretary; and Roberta Obenshain as treasurer. Betty Hancock was elected Pan-Hellenic representative.

Zeta Tau Alpha officers have also been elected: Sara Cregar was elected to the presidency. Nancy Garbee will serve as vice-president for the coming year, with Jean Jinnett as secretary. Ethel Straw was elected treasurer and Amanda Wright, Pan-Hellenic representative.

Serving as president of Theta Sigma Upsilon for 1951-52 will be Joy Humphries. Other officers chosen by this sorority were Branchie Fristoe, vice-president; Joyce Richardson, secretary; and Bessie Matthews, treasurer.

Church News

Baptist

Elizabeth Stone, who as president of the Longwood B. S. U. represented the Baptist students of Longwood at the Williamsburg Retreat April 13 through 15, was chosen state promotional chairman at that meeting. According to Elizabeth the Longwood Baptist students have reached their goal of $50 for a summer missionary.

The theme for next Sunday's B. S. U. meeting will be "Can I Afford to Be Popular?"

Episcopalian:

Miss Fern Staggs, of the Longwood home economics department, will speak to Canterbury Club next Sunday night, Sunday, April 15, was celebrated as Youth Sunday by the Episcopal students. An early morning communion was held for the youth of the church, and the morning service was conducted by the students. Heath Light, from Hampden-Sydney, delivered the sermon. Fay Greenland, Eloise Hodges, Lillie Langford, and Bill Williams attended an Episcopalian Youth Conference held April 14th and 15th at Rosiyn.

Presbyterian:

The Westminster Fellowship will hold its monthly supper meeting this Sunday night at Hampden-Sydney. Cars will leave the Rotunda at 5:45 for all those who wish to attend. Westminster Fellowship members will attend a rally to be held in Richmond May 13. Those going will leave right after Sunday dinner for this get together of Presbyterian students of Virginia Colleges.

Methodist:

Reverend Charles W. Bragg, Jr., Methodist minister from Clarksville, will be the speaker at Wesley Foundation at 6:45 next Sunday. His talk on the topic "Our Faith In Love" is the third in the "Our Faith" series now being delivered to the Methodist students.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship:

Inter - Varsity will hold its weekly meeting tomorrow in the Y lounge at 5 p. m. The program will be a Bible study of First Peter with Barbara Cotton leading the discussion. Inter-Varsity recently elected new officers. Barbara Cotton, sophomore from Danville, was chosen as president. Dorothy Stringfield, freshman from Elberon will serve as secretary-treasurer, and Virginia Manvell, sophomore from Vienna, will act as prayer chairman.

Library Receives Autographed Copy Of New Art Book

The Longwood College Library has recently received an autographed copy of the book, "Constantino Brumidi", by Myrtle Cheney Murdock, author of another successful book, "Your Uncle Sam in Washington."

The book is a gift of the Washington chapter of Longwood College Alumnae and Emily W. Johnson, a member of the Washington chapter. Miss Johnson visited Longwood on Founders Day and announced the presentation of the book.

Constantino Brumidi was an Italian artist who became an American citizen and spent the years from 1855 to 1880 painting the frescos which decorate the United States capitol.

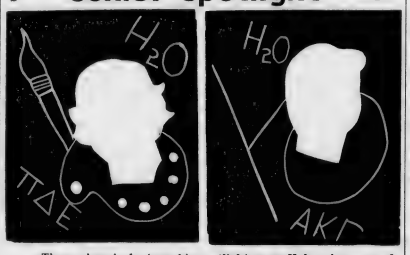
The book consists of letters, official records, newspaper articles, color reproductions of allegorical and historical paintings, and portraits which Constantino Brumidi executed on the interior walls and ceilings of the capitol.

Books of 1950

The Longwood College Library now has on exhibition many of the notable books of 1950. The books on display have been taken from lists compiled by the American Library Association.

Included in the exhibit are several historical books, such as Winston Churchill's "The Grand Alliance" and "The Hinge of Fate," "The Emergence of Lincoln" by Allan Hevins, "John C. Calhoun" by Margaret L. Coit, and "The Papers of Thomas Jefferson." Also included are "The Complete Poems of Carl Sandburg," Boswell's "London Journal," "Eleanor of Aquitaine" by Amy Kelly, and Louise H. Tharp's "The Peabody Sisters of Salem," and many others.

Club Will Show Film, 'May God Repay You'



The Spanish Club will present an Argentine-made movie, "Dios se lo Paque" or "May God Repay You", starring Arturo de Cordova, on May 10. The movie will be shown in the small auditorium, the exact time to be announced later. Admission price will be thirty-five cents.

Arturo de Cordova, who starred in "Frenchman's Creek", plays a double role as a beggar by night and a great gentleman by day. Playing opposite him is Zully Moreno as a gambling casino girl. The Spanish dialogue is supplemented by complete English sub-titles.

"May God Repay You" is the second of the two movies presented by the Language department for the purpose of bringing to Longwood College foreign films which students might otherwise not have the chance to see.

Tickets will be sold in the hall or may be purchased from any Spanish Club student.

Who's —in the— Senior Spotlight

The seniors in last week's spotlight were Helen Agnew and Nancye Gillie.

Short of stature with curly blond hair and big blue eyes is the young lady who has been chosen this week as one of the outstanding members of the senior class.

This secret Miss is a major in art and plans to teach that subject in the elementary school. During her four years at Longwood, she has become noted for her wide variety of interests and capabilities. She is active in the Dramatic Club, a member of the H20 Club, and a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary fraternity in journalism. This year our outstanding senior served as art editor of the Rotunda.

For those of you who need still more hints to her identity: she is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority and hails from some place up north called Quantico, Va. And (this oughta do it) she is the talented young miss who painted that excellent portrait used in the recent Dramatic Club play.

Probably known by everyone in the school for her friendly nature and never-failing greeting of "Yo" is this week's outstanding senior.

Slim, with short, dark hair and a very friendly smile is this Miss of mystery who is a phys. ed. major from Martinsville. This nature of friendliness to all, plus her cooperative spirit and quiet determination have enabled her to become an outstanding leader on the campus. Miss? is a members of Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority and Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, and was chosen for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. She also is a member of the H20 Club, wearer of a Longwood blazer, and is noted for taking part in all class games.

If there is anyone remaining who hasn't guessed the name of this week's featured senior, I can quickly remedy that by telling you she is president of her class. Need I say more?

Goating Rules

May Day Festival Will Honor Polka

VPI Southern Colonels To Play for Last Dance

The "Polka", the queen and her court, and the Southern Colonels of V. P. I. will set the tempo for the 1951 May Day dance to be held in the College gymnasium Saturday, May 5 at 8 p. m.

Carrying out the theme of the pageant "Polka Mania" begun at the Longwood Estate Saturday afternoon, the dance will center about the polka and the May Day queen and her court. The figure performed by the court will be the featured event of the last formal dance of the College session.

Music for the evening will be provided by the Southern Colonels of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute who will make their debut at Longwood with this dance. Pat Tuggle, music chairman for the festivities, has expressed the opinion that, "Although we have never had the "Colonels" in our gym, we are sure that they will live up to our greatest expectations." The orchestra is composed of seventeen members and a vocalist.

Dance Decorations

Decorations for the dance, annually sponsored by Orchesis, will feature polka figures using the colors of the pageant costumes. The court will perform at 10 p. m. before the intermission begins. The exact figure to be performed by the queen and her bevy of beauties will be revealed at that time.

The receiving line for the dance will form in the Student Lounge at 8 p. m. headed by Marian Beckner, president of Orchesis. Dr. and Mrs. Merle Lanrum, Dr. and Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster, Mary Jane Stansbury, Miss Ruth Gleaves, Hilda Lewis, Dean and Mrs. William W. Savage, and Marian Higgs will make up the receiving line.

Chaperones

Members of the faculty and administration who have been invited to chaperone the dance are Dr. and Mrs. Robert Brumfield, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Likes, Dr. C. G. G. Moss, Miss Olive T. Iler, Mrs. Josephine Phillips, Dr. and Mrs. Ray A. Moore, Miss Rebecca Brockenbrough, Miss Ruth Gleaves, Dean and Mrs. William W. Savage, and Dr. and Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster.

Tickets for the dance, priced at $1.80 stag and $2.40 drag, are now being sold to students taking part in the May Day festivities. They will go on sale to the student body this week.

Music Department Will Give Assembly

Dr. John W. Molnar, head of the music department, will be in charge of the weekly assembly to be held Tuesday, May 8. Dr. Molnar will present an entirely musical program consisting of selected records. The records will exemplify orchestral compositions, forms or dance, tone poems, and choral composition.

The program will end with the entire assembly joining in group singing of familiar songs.

In the assembly last Tuesday the student body saw a movie picturing scenic New England. The film was sponsored by the Esso Oil Company.

Music Department Presents Annual Student Recitals

Local Piano, Voice Pupils Participate

On April 27 and 28 the voice and piano students of the music department performed for members of the faculty and student body in their annual student recitals. The recitals were sponsored by their teachers Miss Clark, Mr. Kerfoot, and Mr. Ebersole, and were held at eight o'clock in the small auditorium.

Although not all the students who performed were music majors, each of the participants had received advanced training in music.

Program

In the voice and piano recital Friday night Lura Beavers played "Reverie" by Debussy; "Hunting Song," Mendelssohn; "Intermezzo in A minor," Brahms; and "Monkey Shines, No. 11," McDonald. Winston Johnson was next on the program with her singing of "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" by St. Saens. Next was a rendition of Massanet's "Elegy" by Nan Bland. "Micaela's Air", a selection from Bizet's Carmen, was then sung by Dolie Wells. Sara McElroy Harvie sang "Voi, che sapete" from Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro." The recital was concluded with several pano compositions played by Billie Dunlap. She gave "Du bist die Rub" by Schubert.

P-TA Elects Dean Group President

William W. Savage was re-elected president of the Farmville Elementary School P-TA, at the meeting Thurs., night in the school auditorium. Mrs. Armstrong Smith was elected vice-president, and Mrs. S. W. Putney, Jr., and Mrs. Margaret D. Bruce were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

The history of cooperation in operating the elementary school by the Prince Edward County School Board and by Longwood College, was outlined by T. J. McIlwaine, superintendent of the schools, and by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president of the college.

Patrons attending the meeting authorized the executive committee to supply whatever funds possible to the grounds committee, of which E. Louis Dahl is chairman, for the purchase of playground equipment this summer. The executive committee was also authorized to purchase equipment for the school cafeterias.

Mrs. C. F. Wilson, chairman of the lunchroom committee, reported on items needed and their probable cost.

It was announced that the P-TA again would sponsor the annual recital of the Floyd Ward School of Dancing Saturday night, May 19, in the High School auditorium.

CHARLOTTE KING JONES who will reign as queen of the 1951 May Day festivities.

ROMINE MAHOOD who will serve as maid-of-honor to the 1951 May Queen.

Acting Group Elects Straw To Head Club

The college dramatic group elected Ethel Straw, junior from Brookneal, to serve as their president for the coming year. Ethel was chosen at the regular meeting of the dramatic club which was held last night.

Other officers chosen by the club include Betty Scott Borkey, junior from Bowling Green, who will act as vice-president. Cleo Holladay, freshman from Suffolk, was named secretary, and Barbara White, sophomore from Roanoke, was elected treasurer.

The group also chose officers of production, Edith Kernon, junior from Gordonsville, and Nancy Garbee, junior from Lynchburg, were chosen as co-stage managers. As technical director the group elected Harold Hutter, junior from Lynchburg. Lucy Jane Morton, junior from Farmville, was named designer. Make-up chairman will be Janice Pinkard, sophomore from Roanoke; and Barbara Caskey, a sophomore from Richmond, will act as chairman of lighting. Kitty Moore, freshman from Tazewell, will have charge of properties. Publicity chairman will be Jean Jinnette, sophomore from Raleigh, N. C. Doris Underwood, freshman from Richmond, and Mary Ann King, freshman from Smithfield, will act as co-social chairmen.

The dramatic club has recently changed the name of its organization and will henceforth be known as the Longwood Players. The new name was just one of the changes made in the constitution of the club. Other changes in the constitution include a listing of the duties of the various officers of the organization.

Pi Delta Epsilon Bids College Journalists

Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary collegiate journalism fraternity, has issued bids to eighteen upperclassmen.

Maxine Acree, Celeste Bishop, Roberta Browning, Betty Campbell, Nell Dalton, Lauralee Fritts, Nancy Garbee, and Bunny Gilbert, son were among those invited to join the organization.

Others who were bid were Jean Jinnett, Virginia McLean, Joan Pritchett, Bunny Ricks, Joanne Steck, Pat Taylor, Maxine Watts, Janet Wiggins, and Peggy Wilson.

Spanish Club To Run New Argentine Film On Thursday, May 10

The Spanish Club will sponsor the Argentine film "Dios se lo Pague" or "May God Repay You" on May 10. Arturo de Cordova and Zully Moreno will star in this full-length movie with English sub-titles.

Arturo de Cordova plays the dual role of a man who is a millionaire in a mansion by day and a beggar by night. His split personality is emphasized by complete make-up changes .

Zully Moreno is the gambling casino girl with a streak of bad luck. But the beggar, de Cordova meets her and gives her hope. As his other self, he takes her into his mansion on the condition that she will not ask who he is. The two fall in love and soon learn that the money for which they strive is not important.

Tickets for "Dios de lo Pague" may be bought in the halls or from members of the Spanish Club. Admission will be thirty-five cents. The movie will be shown at 7 p. m. in the small auditorium.

King, Mahood To Rule Over Celebration May 5

The lively, sparkling tempo of the age-old polka will set the pace for the 1951 May Day celebration at Longwood as "Polka Mania," is portrayed in dance by 230 College students.

Charlotte K. Jones, senior from Salem, will reign over the May Day festivities with Romine Mahood, senior from Emporia, as her maid of honor. They, with a bevy of class beauties gathered about them, will take part in the pageant at the Longwood Estate Saturday afternoon and again Saturday night at the annual dance.

Court Members

Sue Brewbaker, Betsy Gravely, Ann Kemp, Ann Lynch, Frances Minter, Issac Velasquez, and Charlotte Williams, representatives of the senior class, will accompany the queen and maid of honor in the May Court processional.

Junior members of this group of beauties will be Ann Motley, Jean Ridenour, and Frances Turner, Kitty Hamlet, Ann Murphy, Margaret Steele and Margaret Taylor will represent the sophomore class. Margaret S. Jones and Sylvia Reames, freshmen, will also take part in the May Court activities.

Polka Theme

"Polka Mania" selected as the theme for the 1951 May Day Festival, is the story of a dance craze of a century ago. The pageant includes four episodes combining song and dance.

The first episode "The Faran-dole Begins" takes place on a Sunday afternoon when a group of young folk gather for a song fest. One of the group, Anna Chadimova portrayed by Edith Duma, spontaneously breaks into a dance, heretofore unheard of. A song lead, Sara McElroy Harvie, leads a group in two folk tunes.

"The Polka in Transition" as the second episode will be danced by the members of Orchesis. This episode relates the emotional tensions that are released when a ballet group performs the polka, a dance novelty before a war weary people.

Polka Mania

The third episode "Poka Mania" shows the dance as it moves through central Europe from high lands to low lands, gripping every kind of people as it goes. Three folk groups, the Polish, Danish, and German perform typically characteristic polka folk dances. The Polish group includes 48 dancers; the Danish 42 dancers and the German, 40 dancers.

"The Planting of a Tree," the final episode, will bring the pageant to a close while the Czech singers return as folk dancers who set the stage for finding the most popular class of the villages. When she is found, a tree is planted before her door. Breathless dancers fling their kerchiefs high, pulling on them, turning under them into a veritable vortex. Song and dance combined through color, rhythm and many polkas echo from the vortex of the whirly circles into one mad extravaganza at the finale.

Prof. Will Direct Longwood Choir In Annual Concert

To Be Presented Tuesday, May 15

Longwood Choir, under the direction of Dr. John W. Molnar, will give its annual spring concert at 8 p. m. Tuesday, May 15 in the Methodist Church.

The program will open with the singing of four selections, the first of which will be "There Is a Balm in Gilead," by Dawson. Two Scotch arrangements by Roberton, "The Flower O' the Forest," and "Peat-Fire Smooring Prayer," will follow. "All in the April Evening," also by Robertson, will conclude this group of selections.

Peggy "Dee" Hoover will sing Milhaud's "Corcodada" as the next feature on the program.

The Longwood Madrigal Singers will then give "Ora Pro Nobis" by Williams, "The Silver Swan" by Gibbons, "The Nightingale" by Tschaikowsky, and "In the Delightful, Pleasant Groves" by Purcell.

Solo Numbers

Following the Madrigal Singers will be four solo numbers. The first will be McDonald's "Monkeyshines No. 2" played by Lura Mae Beavers. Mr. Joel Ebersole, a member of the Long-

Dept. Heads Attend Meet

Miss Helen Draper, head of the French department and Miss Emily Barksdale, head of the Spanish department recently represented Longwood at the annual meeting of the Virginia chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French and Spanish.

The meeting was held on April 28 at Madison College. Miss Barksdale is secretary-treasurer of the Association of Teachers of Spanish.

The language teachers began the day with a coffee hour and get-together at nine a. m. Following this, the two groups held their business meetings. The teachers then separated to be entertained. The Spanish instructors heard recordings of Spanish folk songs played by Dr. Martinez of the Madison faculty. The French teachers saw a dialogue film entitled "Paris", and a French story on slides, presented by the French club of Madison College.

The meeting ended with a luncheon in the senior dining hall. At this luncheon the French and Spanish teachers heard speakers Jaques Hardree of the University of North Carolina and Ermilo Abreu Gomes of the Middlebury College Spanish School.

NOTICE

Registration for the fall session 1951, will be held next week, Monday, May 7 through Friday, May 11 at 5 p. m. Instructions have been posted on the bulletin boards, and additional copies may be obtained from Dean Savage's office.

Honor? Disgrace? . . .

Honor. This small but important word has gained meaning for most of Longwood during the past few weeks — for all of Longwood except some one or two, of few persons who apparently never had any anyway!

Tragedy. A play which invovles the lives of several hundred individuals must certainly be at its peak of tragic action, for during the last act with its swift moving performance, temptation, that deadly sin, has struck, and won!

Disgrace. That is what some one has brought to Longwood, and to themselves as well, should they ever be discovered. With each dishonest act, public opinion against that individual who would dare to theaten the honor system, as well as individual personal honor, has risen and caught fire.

Spirit. Longwood is particularly known for its high standards of personal integrity, and for the fine quality of girls which it turns out in each graduating class. We know this, and we are proud of it. Our parents are proud of it, too, as are all the fine alumnae who have gone before us and helped to form the high standards to which we would attain, for Longwood and for ourselves.

Crisis. In the trying period of the past few weeks every member of the student body has risen to the cause, as if it were the most critical happening of their college career. Each one is to be commended for here personal stand against the unfortunate occurrences, and for the calmness which has existed where there might have been hysteria. To be commended also is the Student Government Council, who, under the direction of Helen Agnew, president, Dr. Moss, and Dr. Lancaster, has worked night and day in an earnest effort to solve the problems which exist, and to preserve the high sense of honor which is Longwood's. We have been helping them. Let us continue.

Prove Yourself . . .

"Yes, there has been a decided improvement in the assemblies," said a representative number of Longwood students when questioned this week. Or they replied that they wanted a variety of programs—music and movies.

They got a musical program and a movie, and they apparently didn't realize that they had their wishes, for chattering, constant squeaking of seats, even hisses and boos when they disapproved seem to show that the students of Longwood don't know exactly what they do want. How can we expect an administration to take any notice of the opinions and suggestions for improved assemblies if those administration members happen to be present during the programs and see ho wlittle we want what we say we want?

Attention (polite, if not rapt) is probably better evidence of satisfaction and pleasure than any amount of verbal commendation—undoubty it is better than the buzz of conversation during the program, whether it be good or bad.

Particularly noticeable to those who were interested, was the conduct of a number of the student body at the recent program presented by the Longwood choir. Our college singing group has been commended by many—men and women experienced in music—for their ability. Why is it that Longwood students should create a disturbance when they finally get a chance to hear what others claim good? and for which they have expressed a desire? Perhaps, they don't know what they want?

In this week's "question" the majority of students stated that they wanted changes in the assembly programs, variety, student participation. Their ideas are good and, with an administration as fair as our, they will probably be considered for next years schedule, IF those good ideas are backed by polite and proper conduct of the student body from which the ideas came. Let's take a listen at ourselves as well as our neighbors and keep quiet!

Regarding

ECHOS OF HITLER?

In 1948 a handsome, charming, fun-loving American, Paul Vogeler, took his pretty, blonde wife and two children to Hungary. A graduate of Annapolis and M. I. T., Vogeler became a vice-president of International Telephone and Telegraph Company, and went to Hungary as American representative. In college he had acquired a reputation as a skilled sportsman. A gay companion, he was popular, intelligent, slightly nervous and quick-moving.

PAUL VOGELER ARRESTED

Still in Communist Hungary, in December, 1949, he was suddenly seized for "large scale espionage"—spying for the U. S. Four days after his disappearance Washington said they only knew what the newspapers told. Then three months of silence. Vogeler's pretty wife sent frantic cables to Washington, but her own country was not powerful enough to get a lawyer through to her husband.

PAUL VOGELER ON TRIAL

The young man confessed for 2½ hours in a dule, monotous voice to the charge against him. He stood unmoving before a famous judge whom the world had nicknamed "Hangeman" Olti. Vogeler's "counsellor" was appointed by the court, not to defend him, but to beg for mercy. Then he went to jail.

PAUL VOGELER RELEASED

One year and five months later Vogeler pale extremely high-string, completely ignorant of the Korean war, came home. People saw on the television screen this man break down. His mouth had a persistent nervous twitch. He answered slowly, after deliberation, that he would rather not tell about his examination after his arrest. About the two methods of preparing a person for trial he said thoughtfully, "One is physical. One is mental. Both are used in Hungary." When asked whether he confessed truthfully about syping for the U. S., he murmured, "I am sorry I did not perhaps live up to the American tradition under pressure."

A QUIET WASHINGTON

Certain conditions for Vogeler's release have ben met by the U. S., the State department announced. People in Washington and throughout the country, despite the warm spring breezes (88 degrees,) felt a sharp, cold shiver.

Hello, Joe

Dear Comrades,

There is a national survey in progress now to determine where most people would make cuts in their budgets if their salaries were cut. One man was overheard to say that he would make his cuts right across his throat.

Comrades, distressing news has reached me. The paper said last week that someone had broken into Stalin's home and made away with the complete results of next years elections. What are you going to do?

Did you know that Adam and Eve were Russians? They had no clothes, and no dwelling. All they had to eat was apples and they believed they were in Paradise. They must have been Russians!

Here in America the divorce rate is very high, especially in Hollywood, California. Out there, anyone who can trace his ancestry back to his father is an aristocrat.

The students at Longwood College have turned to many new outdoor sports, among them, roller skating. It is good exercise, but I never know which end is up.

It seems to be the custom here to have spring weddings. One bride was overheard coming out of the church recently saying, "This is the happiest day of my life,—no more diet, no more hairdressers, no more lotions."

Must go now Comrades. A friend of mine is having her appendix removed, and I want to be there for the grand opening.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White.

Strolling With Stokes

by Stokes Overbey

Although there are only a few assembly programs left to be presented during this final month of school, we thought that the following answers might prove helpful in making the selections for next year's programs. The questions were: "Do you think the assembly programs have improved?" and "What type of program would you like to see and hear in the future?"

A large majority of the students expressed the opinion that the assemblies have improved this year. However, Sue Brewbaker declared, "There's room for more improvement. They shouldn't have a speaker every time." Ann Kemp added, "Something lighter and more humorous would be a welcome change. The speakers have been good, but there have been too many. I would like to be able to ask on chapel day something besides, "Who is going to be the speaker today?" Kakie McCready said, "On the whole, the programs have been good, but there has not been enough variety. With the exception of one or two programs, we have had a speaker at every assembly."

Mary Denny Wilson, Betsy Gravely and Sara Lu Bradshaw desired to see more participation and a wider variety in the programs. Ann Mitchell Motley, Vera Bryant, and Frances Stringfellow would like to have more musical programs.

Among the suggestions for improvement were: Betty Barnes stated, "Next year, I think it would be nice if each class would be responsible for a program." Nancy Walthall said, "Probably if more students had a part in planning and carrying through the programs, they might have more appeal for the student body."

Edith Kennon made a statement well worth noting: "I think everyone would enjoy the assemblies more if most of the boys' and more of the girls' behavior were better."

Ten Students Receive Bids To H2O Club

Ten students have recently received bids to the H2O Club. These are Pat Altwegg, Nancy Atkins, Dot Boswick, Betty Collier, Ilia Desportes, Blanton Ferguson, Nancy Huff, Eleanor Koch, Dolly Vaughn, and Roberta Wiatt.

These freshmen and sophomores were chosen for their swimming ability as shown by their participation in class swimming, water pageants, and intercollegiate events. Several of them have also recently received their Red Cross Instructors certificates.

The club will hold its annual banquet at Longwood estate on May 7. The new members will be initiated soon after the banquet, although the exact date of initiation has not yet been set.

One of the plans of the H2O Club for next year, is to replace the present telegraph meets with inter-collegiate swimming meets, in which Longwood will actually meet with other college teams.

Softball Manager Gives Game Times

Softball class games will be played during the week of May 14, according to a recent announcement by Betty Tyler, softball manager for this season.

The next two weeks will include at least seven more practices which will be used as some of the eight practices necessary for each member of a class team to have in order to be able to play.

In speaking of the class games, Betty urged that "anyone who is able to hold a bat, come out." "The only way to do anything is to practice," she urged.

The winners of the class softball games will add points to the color cup.

wood Music Department, will then sing "Vision Fugitive," from Massanet's "Heniodiade," and "Tally-Ho" by Leoni. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Ebersole at the piano. The last solo on the program, Mendelssohn's "Rondo Cappriciosso" will be played by Billie Dunlap.

Concluding the evening's program will be four songs by the Longwood Choir. These will be "My Love Dwelt in a Northern Land" by Elgar, "Serenade" by Schubert, "All Creatures Now Are Merry Minded" by Bennett, and "Russian Picnic" by Enders. The choir will be accompanied by Billie Dunlap at the piano.

The Spectator

By JIMMY THOMPSON

THE LONGWOOD GOLF PRO'S:

Had a little chat with Mr. Graham this morning and he said that his golf class was progressing right along. It seems that he has right many potentials. Peggy Dee Hoover is one of the more outstanding. To put it as Mr. Graham said "She's a natural born golfer." It is also reported that Nell Bradshaw and Clara Borum are outstanding as well as Betsy Wilson. It seems that Nellie B. had never had a club in her hand before the present class. She's turned out to be one of the naturals also, I hear. The biggest mistake of the whole class, as the instructor puts it, is getting them to relax their wrist and to realize the importance of it's use. He says that when there's dancing envolved they manage to get limp as a dish rag, but on the golf course they get stiff as a board. But who knows, there might be another "Babe" Zaharias in the bunch. Let's hope so anyway.

DERBY TIME AGAIN:

Saturday brings the 76th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. There are about thirty five horses entered and as of yet there has been no definite top choice. There are none of the two year olds that seen to be outstanding. For this reason it is being calle the "dark horse" race. By this we mean that any one of the thirty some odd horses could take the top money. Most of the beters probably will wait until starting time before even placing their bets. This will give them a chance to find out which horse has the highest odds on it so that they can put their money on the most probable winner. For you Derby followers Eddie Arcaro, one of the nations leading jockeys, will be riding Battle Mourn which as of now has a slight edge over the rest of the field as a possible winner. You know, he's won this great classic before. A bunch of outstanding jockeys and a bunch of great horses will take part in this colorful classic on Saturday.

JUST A REMINDER:

Thought I'd put a little reminder in here about the basketball game this month between the faculty and students. It has definitely been set for Friday the 18th now. At least that's the latest word from "Cookie". Game time is 7:00 p. m. so everyone come out and see the "flashes" of the faculty meeting the "weaklings" of the student body. With such stars as "Speed" Nichols and "Tricks" Draper it looks as though the students might have a hard time.

Sportin' Around

From the looks of things, spring is really here at last. Most of the Longwood students don't seem to be suffering from attacks of spring fever though. Judging from the number of people on the athletic field, I'd say the effects of this year's spring are just the opposite.

For those who would like to use up their excess energy in softball, the athletic field is waiting for you Monday through Thursday, at 5:00 p. m. Come out for softball as a recreation after that day of grueling classes or student teaching. If you want to enter the class softball games, you'd better come out and get in those practices too.

Have you signed up for the class swimming meet yet? Well why haven't you? It's bound to be lots of fun for everyone, including you. Honestly, you don't know what you're missing, and your class needs you! Try to sign up if you possibly can — you won't regret it.

If you play tennis, but aren't taking a class in it this semester, there's no need to feel neglected in the least. The courts are available to you at anytime there isn't a class using them. There is only one rule you must observe while using the courts. The shoes and a regulation gym uniform. After all, this is little to ask for use of the courts.

Liszt; "The White Peacock" by Griffes; "Minstrels", Debussy, "The lover and the Nightingale", Granados, "Six Little Piano Petaces, nos. II and IV; and "Rondo Capriccioso", Mendelssohn.

Saturday night's piano recital began with Eleanor Weddle's playing "Mantilla" by Eckstein. Next was Browning's "Oriental Juggler" played by Lillian Guthrie. Lucyle Humphries then played "Bird as Prophet" by Schumann. Jean Partridge played "Mice in the Cubboard of Old Mother Hubbard" by Smith, followed by Betty Goodson, who played "Invention in F major" by J. S. Bach. Jean Watkins was next on the program with her rendition of "Concert in C major" by Williams. Betty Gillette played "Improvization" by MacDowell. Following her was Bessie Matthews who played "Etude Melodique" by Rogers, and Jane Branch played Navarro's "Dance of Spring". Jane and Mary then played a duet, "Caps and Bells" by Turner. The program was concluded with Sara McElroy Harvie's rendition of "March" from "The Love of Three Oranges", by Prokofiev.

The music department has announced that Peggy Dee Hoover's piano recital will take place on Friday, May 11 at eight o'clock.

Round Completed In Doubles Tilts

Green and Whites racked up five points for the color cup last week by winning the annual Archery Telegraphic Meet. Playing the Regular Columbia Round, the girls fought for individual placing as well as class status.

Shooting 24 arrows at each of three ranges, 50, 40, and 30 yards, the following players obtained points in the race:

Shirley Blexton	178
Nancy Walker	141
Betty Tyler	139
Dorothy Dunford	125
Helen Castros	120
Marian Beckner	118
Alberta Hawley	114

The first round of the tennis doubles which was played off during the past week saw both red 'n whites, and green 'n whites taking top scores.

Romine Mahood and Sue Brewbaker played three sets against Eleanor Koch and Julie Dotson, to win with the scores of 6-1; 4-6; 6-2. Emma Harris and Edith Kennon racked up scores of 6-1; 8-6, against Anne Crowder and Sue Webb.

Winning with scores of 7-5; and 6-2, Helen Agnew and Helen Castros played against Eleanor Weddle and "Boots" Russell. Dot Boswick and Betsy Gravely placed over Nancy Walker and Dolores Hoback with scores of 6-3, and 6-1.

Betty Tyler and Nell Bradshaw were defeated by Marian Beckner and Jean Ridenour 6-2; 2-6; and 8-6.

It has been requested by Miss Olive T. Iler that the second round of the double matches be played off by Friday of this week.

8 Campus Social Sororities Choose New Representatives, Officers for Pan-Hel Group

Hancock, Shelton To Fill Top Posts

New representatives to the Pan-Hellenic council have been elected by the social sororities on the campus. These representatives will serve in various offices on the council by rotation, according to the date of entrance of each sorority into the Pan-Hellenic Association.

Betty Hancock, sophomore from Suffolk and a member of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority will serve as president. Lillian Shelton, sophomore from Lively, will represent Theta Sigma Tau on the council and will serve as vice-president. Elizabeth Stone, sophomore from Rustburg, and a member of Delta Sigma Epsilon will serve as secretary. Sigma Sigma Sigma will be represented by Jean Ridenour, junior from Richmond. Jean will be treasurer for the coming year.

Roberta Browning, sophomore from Winchester, is the representative from Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority. She will step into the position of Publicity Chairman. Janice Pinkard, sophomore from Roanoke, is the representative from Zeta Tau Alpha. She will serve as Keeper of the Records. Lucy Page Hall, sophomore from Front Royal, is the representative from Kappa Delta. She will be chairman for programs. Jerry Korbach, junior from Norfolk, is the representative from Pi Kappa Sigma. She will serve as Chairman of Rushing.

Presidents of the various sororities will also serve as members of the Pan-Hellenic Council. These are Dot Boswick, Alpha Sigma Tau; Joyce Humphries, Theta Sigma Upsilon; Virginia Dare Woody, Delta Sigma Epsilon; Polly Brothers, Sigma Sigma Sigma; Shirley Livesey, Alpha Sigma Alpha; Sara Cregar, Zeta Tau Alpha; Nancy Wathall, Kappa Delta, and May Henry Sadler, Pi Kappa Sigma.

These representatives will present to the council recommendation for changes which their sororities wish to see made in the constitution of the Pan-Hellenic Council. These recommendations will be discussed in the coming meeting of the council.

Local Organizations Choose New Officers

Kappa Delta Pi

In a recent meeting the members of Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary educational society, elected new officers for the coming year.

Mildred Blessing, junior from Tazewell, was chosen by the group to serve as president. Lauralee Fitts, junior from Nineveh, was elected as vice-president. Dorothy Gregory, junior from Skipworth, was chosen as secretary, and Betty Lou Harman, junior from Tazewell, was elected treasurer.

Southwest Virginia

Anne Mosely, junior from Roanoke, has been elected to the presidency of the Southwest Virginia club.

Others elected to hold office for the coming year were Patsy Taylor, vice-president; May Henry Sadler, secretary; and Elenor Weddle, treasurer.

In Modern Dry Cleaning IT'S Kleanwell Cleaners

McLean Elected To Fill Presidency Of Richmond Club

Virginia McLean, sophomore from Richmond, was recently elected by the Richmond Club to serve as president for the coming year. Anne Crowder, sophomore, will take over the position of vice-president of the club.

Others selected by the Richmonders to lead them during the next session are Eleanor Koch, freshman, who will be secretary-treasurer, and Nancy Adkins, freshman, reporter to the school paper, and to the Richmond papers.

A social committee which has recently been formed will include Ilia Desportes, Blanton Ferguson, Nancy Huff, and June Johns. Miss Kathleen G. Cover is adviser to the group.

The primary purpose of the Richmond Club is to promote interest in Longwood among the graduating members of the Richmond high schools, and to provide social functions for the forty or fifty Richmonders who attend Longwood. A spring picnic will be held within the next few weeks.

+ Senior Spotlight +

Sparkling brown eyes, a winning smile, and wearing a Tau Theta Pi pin from a fellow named Bill, that's one of our Spotlight Seniors of the week.

Agnew's right hand girl this year played in all the class games for the seniors, and walked with Chi. Tapped by Alpha Kappa Gamma, and president of that honorary leadership fraternity this year, she's worked on the annual staff for several years and is a member of the honorary journalism fraternity.

Our secret Miss is a Phys. Ed. major from Emporia, a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha social sorority, and listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. If you haven't guessed her identity by now, keep a sharp lookout for the Maid-of-honor when Longwood's May Day rolls around, and you'll meet her face to face.

Ever been around the snack bar just before lunch and noticed the girl with the dark curly hair sitting at a new table chattering up a cool breeze? You know, the one with the pencil stuck behind her ear. If so you are thinking of another of our spotlight seniors.

A biology major, she always has a story dealing with her student teaching. She is listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma and served this year as Secretary of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary collegiate journalism fraternity.

This past Christmas held a special sparkling quality for her in regard to the third finger, left hand and a certain Lt.

Our mystery girl, with a "little" help, has given us a wonderful paper this year.

The seniors in last week's spotlight were Jeanne Gilman and Betsy Gravely.

May Day Group Will Trace Development of Polka Craze

"Polka Mania," the selected theme for the annual May Day pageant, will be developed by 230 Longwood students in all of its phases, Saturday, May 5 at the Longwood Estate.

Polka Mania is the story of a dance craze of a century ago, which had its beginning in Old Bohemia (Czechhoslovakia of today), spreading like wildfire in a great, whirling convulsion into other countries after it was brought to Paris. From then on, round dancing became the accepted, polite and social form of ballroom dance. Even the waltz, that so-called "wicked invention of the devil" was replaced by this hybrid in which everyone "kicked up their heels and toes, turned and whirled until they were ready to drop."

Development of Polka

The polka, pulka, or half-step became a craze at a time in history when there was revolution and counter revolution, the era between the two great revolutions in France which was felt throughout Europe. Now there appeared on the scene a national dance, which fanned out the length and breadth of the continent, permeating social life in all countries. It was danced in every town and village, even to the remotest hamlet. The same form is in revival today in this country found in the ballroom and among folk and square dances. The actual step is retained as it was then, with a new variation, but one which is highly reminscent of Old Bohemia.

The rhythmic beat of the "hop and slide and away we go" is traced in this year's May Day festival from a typical folk song, the legendary beginning of the polka in the town of Kostelec on the Elbe, through its presentation by a ballet group in Paris. From there, as it fanned out over Europe, its unique ramifications or subsequent developments are portrayed in the polkas from the countries of Poland, Denmark and Germany.

The ever lengthening farandole from the country side of Old Bohemia wove into an increasing number of concentric circles, the waltz and schottishche also became part of the craze until round dancing became the accepted form of dance, carried into modern day.

Leadership Fraternity Taps Juniors Cook, Livesay, Tuggle, Wilson

French Club Gives Program Of Songs

Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, tapped four girls for membership at the assembly program held yesterday afternoon.

Those who were recognized for their leaderhip were Mary Helen Cook, Shirley Livesay, Patricia Tuggle, and Martha Alice Wilson.

A program of songs was presented by the French Circle before the fraternity tapping.

Y. W. C. A. President

Mary Helen "Cookie" Cook, a junior from Richmond, is the newly elected president of the Y. W. C. A. She served this year as chairman of the library committee of that organization. "Cookie" is acting now as historian of the Young People's Council of the Presbyterian Church for the Synod of Virginia, and social chairman of the Westminster Fellowship. She is a member of the Association for Childhood Education, the Cotillion Club, and Pi Kappa Sigma, social sorority.

Shirley, a junior from Emporia, has been serving as representative from her class to the Student Government Council this year, and was recently re-elected to this position for the coming year. A member of the A. A. Council since her sophomore year, Shirley is a member of the Monogram Club, and was vice-president of her class during her sophomore year. She is a member of the Cotillion Club, and president of her social sorority, Alpha Sigma Alpha.

House Council President

Pat Tuggle, selected president of the House Council for the 1951-52 session, is a junior from Wytheville. She served as class representative to the Student Government Association during her freshman year. Pat also served as junior representative to Student Standards. She is members of the College Choir, Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational society, and Orchesis. Cotillion Club and Sigma Sigma Sigma also claim her as a member.

Martha Alice Wilson, newly elected president of the Student Government Association, is a junior from Farmville. She served as class representative as a sophomore, and as secretary of the Student Government during her junior year. Martha Alice was president of the Westminster Fellowship as a sophomore, and is now a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Cotillion Club, and Alpha Sigma Alpha, social sorority.

Cotillion Club Elects Poarch As President

Erma "Bootie" Poarch, junior from Emporia, was elected to the presidency of the Cotillion Club at their regular meeting held last Thursday night in the Student Lounge. Conway Rice was chosen vice-president of the organization for the coming year.

Anne Moseley will serve as treasurer for the Cotillion Clubbers for the coming year, and Jean Ridenour will be the figure leader for the annual spring dance given by the club next year.

This was the first meeting for the new members of the Cotillion Club, who recently received their full membership after the annual "goat-day."

DR. JOHN W. MOLNAR, who will aid in directing the second band and orchestra clinic at Longwood this summer.

Clinic Will Be Held Here June 18-30

Young Musicians Will Participate

The second annual band and orchestra clinic at Longwood College will begin on June 18 and end on June 30. It will be sponsored by the College, the Virginia Music Educators Association, Virginia Band and Orchestra Directors Association, and the State Department of Education. Participants will include teachers of music, school bands and orchestra directors, supervisors of school music, and boys and girls who are members of high school bands and orchestras.

Dr. John W. Molnar, head of the department of music at Longwood College, and George A. Christopher, supervisor of music in the schools of Port Washington, New York, will direct the clinic. They will be assisted by selected teachers and directors in the Virginia schools who will serve as instructors and counselors.

Dr. Molnar has served as head of the Longwood Department of Music since 1949. He has had wide experience in developing and conducting orchestras and bands in Kentucky and Ohio high schools. He served as conductor of the symphony orchestra of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music for three years and was a teacher of conducting, instrumental methods, string classes and orchestration at the Conservatory.

George A. Christopher is president of the National School Band Association. Since 1940, he has been supervisor of music in the Port Washington schools and has held executive positions in the New York State School Music Association. A graduate of Wesleyan University, he has served as consultant and instructor in the summer sessions of Arthur Jordan Conservatory, New York University, and Syracuse University. This year he served as guest consultant in problems of brass instruments at the meeting of the Music Educators National Conference in Atlantic City.

Directors, teachers, and supervisors who enroll in the clinic will observe and participate in the band and orchestra rehearsals. They will also have classes

Wilson Wins Second Term As President Of '53 Class

Other New Officers To Serve In Fall

The Freshman Class re-elected Mary Denny Wilson from Danville as their president for the coming year. Mary Denny is a member of Cotillion Club, was co-chairman of Freshman circus, and belongs to Kappa Delta, social sorority. The class held its elections at meetings held Tuesday and Friday nights of last week.

Nell Copley of Blackstone was chosen by the class to serve as vice-president. For secretary next year's sophomores elected Blanton Ferguson from Richmond. The treasurer will be June Horton, also from Richmond.

Paula Dovel from Panama and Eleanor Koch, Richmond, will serve as government representative. And the Class of '53 will be represented on student standards by Libby McClung of Abington and Betty Islin from Hilton Village.

Lyn Hill from Richmond was chosen to serve as sophomore house president. This group of new officers will assume their duties next fall.

Seniors Will Give Speeches, Songs In Assembly Tues.

The traditional senior assembly will be highlighted by a farewell speech by Betsy Gravely, president of the senior class, next Tuesday, May 22, in the Methodist Church.

A response will be made by Peggy Harris, president of the incoming senior class, who will also announce the senior chosen as honorary classman by the juniors. Traditionally the honorary classmen returns in the fall to lead the figure for the senior dance with the president of that class.

The color cup award to the classes who have won the most points in sports for the year will be made by Nancy Walker, president of the Athletic Association.

The entire senior class will sing farewell songs to the College and the underclassmen. They will then form an arch with their caps, under which the juniors will march to the tune of the Alma Mater, thus taking their first step toward becoming full - fledged seniors.

This will be the final assembly program of the year.

Mexican Art Exhibit Displayed By Library

An exhibit of Mexican art is now on display in the periodical room of the library. The pictures in the exhibit were done by children in seven public elementary schools in Mexico City. They are the results of an experiment in art education by the painter Gabriel Garcia Maroto, and sponsored by the Ministry of Public Education of Mexico.

The project was established to prove the ability of children to express through painting their world as they see it.

Annual Student Art Exhibit Features Work of Majors

The annual student art exhibit went on display in the Art Department and the browsing room of the library last Saturday, May 12 and will continue through May 18. This annual exhibit is representative of the types of art work completed by the students in the department during the year and includes a variety of mediums and subjects.

Outstanding in the exhibit is the work of the eleven art majors. Their work is exceptional in all the fields of art represented. Joan Pritchard, Mary Moore Karr, Lucy Jane Morton, Bunny Ricks, Hattie Swihart, Jean Gilman, Gene Moore, Blanton Ferguson, Margaret Steele, Mary Jean Sandvig, and Bert Browning are the majors.

Work on exhibition by the general art structure class features different forms of architectural decoration including mosaics, plaster, carving in relief, and stain glass windows. Outstanding members of this class were Kathy Emison, Martha Wilson, Ann Dudley, and Elba Constaner.

The art education class has on display paintings, chalk, drawings and crayon work. Of particular interest are the paintings using local buildings as subject matter. Exceptional students in this group are Dorothy Boswick, Beverly Marsh, Pat Lee, Ethel Straw, Janet Wiggins, and Nancy Purdum.

Included in the ceramics class display are cream and sugar sets, flower containers, ash trays, and figurines. Contributing to this display were Ann Biddlecomb, Emma May Pittard, Ann Edmonds, Frances Turner, Ruth Hamilton, and Jean Smith.

Craft class work on exhibition includes tooled and carved leather, aluminum etching, decorated boxes, sculpture, and silver jewelry. Those whose work is represented in this display other than the art majors are Nancy Gillie, Mary Alice Wilson, Shirley Livesay, Jean Ridenour, Leonard Shaw, Ann Biddlecomb, and Marian Beckner.

The work of the watercolor and oil classes has received special emphasis this year and is on display in the browsing room of the library. Examples representing the best student work done in the classes throughout the year are on exhibition. The subjects used include still life, landscape, figures, and flowers. Most of the pictures are of predominantly local subject matter and were sketched from the campus or surrounding neighborhood. In addition outstanding work was done by Helen Agnew, Molly Hersman, Harold Griffin, Monita Key, Ann Lynch, and Nancy Reed.

Junior art major, Lucy Jane

Longwood Selects Museum Painting

The Longwood Purchase Prize Award Committee has selected a painting by Mrs. Edith Lemon Dedford, a Richmond artist, from the works of Virginia artists exhibited in the Virginia Biennial Exhibit at the Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond to be bought by the College, it was announced by Mrs. Janice Lemen, chairman of the committee. The painting selected by the committee, "It Started Early This Morning" is the first painting to be purchased by the college from its recently established fund for the purpose of collecting works of Virginia artists.

According to an article printed in the Richmond News Leader, Mrs. Dedford is a native of Youngstown, Ohio. Her work has been exhibited at the Butler Art Institute in Youngstown where she won a second prize in 1941 and a first in 1943 and in the Ohio Valley Oil and Watercolor Show where she took first prize in 1942. Mrs. Dedford also held a one-man show at the Butler Art Institute in 1947. Her work won the popular prize for the Spring Salons of the Butler Institute in 1946, 1947, and 1948.

Her objectives in painting "It Started Early This Morning", Mrs. Dedford says, were based on the fact that she feels that "most of us are essentially lonely and it was that mood I strove to effect in my snow scene . . . it was painted from memory, rather impressions, with all the artistic license a painter is entitled to use. I feel strongly that design is something that can't be achieved by following rules too closely.

Maryland Bishop To Deliver Sermon

Mr. Robert F. Williams, secretary of the Virginia Education Association and editor of the organization's Journal, will deliver the commencement address to the class of 1951 at the graduation exercises in the Jarman Auditorium, June 4.

Mr. Williams is a graduate of Roanoke College, receiving his master's degree from Columbia University, New York City. He became Superintendent of Schools in Smyth County after teaching there for several years. Mr. Williams, has also had experience as a journalist. In 1942, he became State Superintendent of Elementary Education and was promoted to the Directorship of Elementary Education two years later. He has served as secretary of the Virginia Education Association since 1946.

According to Dr. Lancaster, Mr. Williams "is a very interesting speaker and has done an outstanding job as secretary of the V. E. A."

Baccaulaureate Speaker

Bishop Noble C. Powell, Bishop of Maryland since 1943, will deliver the baccaulaureate sermon to the seniors in the Jarman Auditorium at 8 p. m., Sunday, May 3.

Bishop Powell is a native of Alabama. He attended the Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the University of Virginia. A graduate of the Union Theological Seminary in Alexandria, Bishop Powell holds honorary degrees from that institution and the University of the South at Sewannee. For eleven years he was in charge of the St. Pauls

Dr. Lancaster Heads Education Committee In Recent Meeting

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster who has recently been promoted to the chairmanship of the Committee on Accrediting of the American Association of Colleges for Teachers of Education, spent part of last week in New York at a meeting of the group.

The committee met to perfect plans for the intervisitation programs which will be put into effect next fall. According to Dr. Lancaster, elaborate studies to perfect procedures for examining colleges and institutions have been made during the past several years.

The intervisitation programs were evolved from this study and will go into effect during the fall of 1951 when teams of four, led by a dean or president who has attended one of the training schools, will begin visiting various colleges throughout the country.

Notice

All library fines must be paid by May 26. Names of students owing fines after that date will be sent to the registrar and grades will be withheld. All books will be due May 22. After that date, books may be taken out by special permission only. Grades will be withheld for overdue books also.

Well Done, Administration . . .

ORCHIDS and CONGRATULATIONS are in order for the Longwood administration for the change in the system for registration made this spring. Hearty approval by the students seems evident, not only through the opinions voiced in answer to this week's question, but through the unprinted statements of those registering for fall classes. Some of the faculty, also, have shown that they are in favor of the new method used.

ORCHIDS for cutting the time formerly required on the part of student, faculty and administration members. It seems that those who have ben here for only one previous registration have seen the vast difference between five days of searching for a professor to sign a schedule, if he doesn't have a class when the student arrives at his office, and the two days of going to the office and waiting in line for a short time.

Too, the professor is saved much wear and tear on his nerves and peace of mind when he knows that students will be in his office at scheduled hours. Previously he stayed in that office during periods when work somewhere else could have been done because not a student showed up! With the time saved by the new procedure, students and faculty have found extra minutes to do the work required of them.

CONGRATULATIONS for being an administration willing to change their ways of doing things, no matter how old the former practice, when a new method seems much more efficient. The students of Longwood may consider themselves fortunate, for this reason if for no other, because there are many colleges whose leaders are so "stayed in their ways" that effecting a change in procedure is like "pulling an eye tooth."

True, many seem to have found flaws in the system used this spring, such as having to stand in line so long a time, particularly for the final approval by Dean Savage and for approval by the department head. The approval is innevitable, but another method of going about it might make the job easier on the part of all concerned. The students, in criticizing, should remember that it is a rare thing for a new idea to be perfect on the first trial.

With the administration making such a splendid change, seemingly with the good of everyone in mind, the students may depend on the that administration doing their best in the coming years in every matter which concerns the College. The Rotunda, speaking for all those who have evidenced the same opinion, thank the leaders of Longwood for a job well done!

Keep Your Honor . . .

As exams draw near (and they begin in a little more than a week), once again the student body must examine their individual ideas as to what is honorable and what is not.

During exam week, perhaps more than at any other time, our ideals are tested. Few students want to lose the trust which the faculty, the administration, the staff, and the rest of the student body have in their honor. Nor do they wish to lose their own sense of moral integrity. But to the senior for whom failure on just one exam ination may mean failure to graduate or to the underclassman who must pass her exams in order to return to Longwood next year or perhaps to the student who wishes to please her parents with a good record, the question may arise—"Isn't making the grade I desire worth the sacrifice of honor?" The student should consider the other side of the question—"Is graduation or returning to college or pleasing parents worth the life-long realization which she would carry in her heart that she had failed in an obligation to herself and to others?"

The handbook advises us that "a high sense of honor, in all relationships and activities, should be one of a person's most cherished possessions." Without honor no individual can truly have self respect. Again and again we hear that the person who violates what she knows is right is a miserable person. We also have heard that the person who cheats, cheats only herself, for anything she may think she has gained is an empty triumph.

We Longwood students have long been proud of our honor system and the fact that we live by the dictates of honor and honesty. Let us not allow this coming period of trial destroy our right to this pride.

Regarding

To a political argument overheard on a Farmville-bound bus Sunday night there were definitely humorous and varied reactions. Those who eavesdropped on this argument about Washington's political mess either sighed resignedly, or nodded their heads violently, or smiled cynically. The majority, however, were bored and dropped off to sleep. They had heard it all before. The catch-words of the conversation no longer "caught". They were trite, automatic terms. Here are some of them.

"Fired": This fine old American term was repeated frequently coupled with the word, "quit." Was MarArthur fired for not "minding his own business"? Why did the entire Security Commission, headed by Fleet Admiral Mimitz quit? This Commission was set up to safeguard the nation's internal security against Communism. Another possible victim of the "firing" game is Secretary of State Acheson. At this point in the argument Acheson was described in the well-used adjective—"bungling."

"Blackmail": Americans are not hesitant to use this term in connection with politics. And, in Washington, India was accused of playing Russia against the United States, blackmailing us for a free gift of 2,000,000 tons of grain. How could "good old rich Uncle Sam" be "done in"?

"Candidates for presidential election" is a large thought lurking in the background and becoming hot for debate everywhere. The debators on the bus and their eavesdroppers shook their heads in common bewilderment. To whom could they give leadership of their nation, and, possibly, the rest of the world? Eisenhower claims he would refuse such an offer. Truman "cut off his own nose to spite his face". And that leaves Senator Robert A. Taft.

"A clear warning" or "threat": Such terms have practically lost signifiance in this world of political undercurrents, threats and promises. However, Great Britain was given a "clear warning" to "change her course". Bluntly put, does this mean the United State would cut off help to England, if the latter continues to send war materials to Red China through Hong Kong? We are still the "richest nation."

"Bloodshed": Here was the one word that caught and held. There seemed to be no one in that bus that did not give their attention to this, despite its age and use. After a vain effort to repulse a Red column the Americans "were forced to withdraw".

Hello, Joe

by Barbara White

Dear Comrades,

Saturday there was a big wedding in the church across the street and we sat down to wait for the bride and groom to exit. After a few minutes, the happy pair came out, a little, wan, toothless man pushing a white-haired lady in a wheelchair. They were the most conservative couple; they waited until they could afford marriage.

Last night the Sophomores entertained the Seniors with a party. It was some shindig. The pink lemonade flavored like vodka.

Received a letter from Comrades Hans, Fritz, and Mow. They went mountain climbing and Mow fell into a crevice. Fritz shouted, "Look Hans, No Mow."

The letter also said that Fritz was very happy recently when his wife had a second child. They decided to name their first Tom but the birth certificate came back as Thomas, and Fritz let it go at that. However, when this boy came along, Fritz got the registrar of births on the phone and said, "Look here, you. Last year we had a son whom we wanted to name Tom. You made it Thomas. This one's name is going to be Jack. Now let's not have any trouble with you this time."

Vacation time is coming and we are all longing to get home to the family and Ma's home cooking. Mother bakes a cake every Saturday night. She has to do it when we are all there, so the whole family can gather by the oven to get the cake out.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

Pupils' Pleasant Pastimes-Picnics-Prove Problematic

By Joanne Steck

Yes, in the spring gals and guys are liable to do most anything—now take picnics for instance—there's the typical girl who cuts her two o'clock class to go to the "lake". But then her date doesn't get here till 3:30 — anyway he came—who can complain?

So—we all (and by all we mean about 15 people) pile in one De-Salle coupe with no back seat, and roar westward in a cloud of smoke and burning rubber. Now we stop by some little clip joint and get "goodies" and we're off again. Only this time we go about a quarter of a mile and sputter to a stop—no gas—no oil—no nothing! We file the spark plugs down, tie a few wires together, pour in a gallong of kerosene and we're off again!

When it's almost dark, and we don't have lights anyway, we get there—at long last. We can go for a nice dip and relax with a hot dog and drinks. Eh, what? —no drinks—soooo you and your date (the one iwth the hot rod) are elected to go after 'em. Approximately one hour and seventeen minutes later you return—that is, after one blowout, one detour, and after a few other minor mishaps. Ah, now for a hot dog—there's one there on the ground. You run and wash it off: and seeing no rolls, decide to eat it just plain burned like it is. After you've choked that down, some dear soul informs you, "oh, we've got plenty of rolls right there on the table." You just didn't see them, not having been blessed with cat eyes.

By that time, we're already exhausted, but one must join in the fun and fellowship which can last only ten minutes for one must be back by eight o'clock, you know. Sooo we pack ourselves in the traditional sardine fashion and sputter off to a start. Plenty of time, only we find out our watch has stopped and it's not quarter to seven; it's quarter to eight and we've got eighteen miles to go in fifteen minutes.

Never say die! So we close our eyes and hang on tight. We do arrive in Farmville sooner or later and collapse on the bed for

In view of the new system which was used for registration last week, the student body was asked to express an opinion about the innovation. The general concensus was one of approval.

Maria Jackson declared, "I like the new method very much because you don't have to spend your time running after the faculty." Pat Tuggle added, "I approve of it because I don't see any point in dragging out for five days what can be done in two."

Mary Helen Cook said, "I think it saves time and lots of confusion, but couldn't some better method be used for getting Dean Savage to approve the schedules? Perhaps each class (sophomores, juniors, seniors) could have a separate day to get his approval."

Many students stressed the time and worry which the new method saves. Barbara Brown stated, " I like it because it's easier on both faculty and students. It's much more systematic and efficient." Mildred Blessing pointed out, "It helps the faculty and administration because they don't have to be worrying with students all week."

June Foreman and Millie Evans mentioned the fact that the students no longer had to dash around between classes looking for faculty members. Shirley Roberts said, "You can get it done quickly and have that much more peace of mind. And the seniors had two free afternoons to write term papers in!"

May Henry Sadler, Peggy Hoover, and Peg Peery shared the opinion that if the registration is for a short period of time, students don't exercise their tendencies to put things off until the last minute. Ann Lawrence disagreed, "The two days for registration caused a stampede to get in lines. This method necessitated a lot of waiting and wasted time on the part of students. If the registration is spread out over a week, you don't have that problem."

Branchy Fristoe suggested, "Perhaps the method could be changed to having one day for teachers to sign up and one day for Dean Savage to approve. However, I think the new system is better, because before you couldn't find the teachers half the time."

Betsy Gravely stated, "Yes, this system gives the seniors more time to make up their minds about what they want to take next year."

THE LONG AWAITED GAME:

Well, at last the long awaited game between the faculty and students has materialized. I guess you all have seen the posters throughout school advertizing it. Talked to "Cookie" again this morning and she showed me a list of the faculty members that were going to play. Some of them are screams. Take Mr. Coyner for example. It is rumored that he will be one of the cheerleaders for the faculty. Also, "Tippy" and "Happy" are included in this group. Miss Bedford and Miss Baron are slated to play too. So, all you kids, let's don't forget this game. It's Friday night in the gym at 7:15 and the admission is only 15c. Plenty of action is promised.

SOME HOT TENNIS:

From what I've been nearing lately there's been some hot tennis games here at Longwood this spring. It seems that Borum and Gillie had a hard time getting by Mahood and Brewbaker Monday. By way of the grapevine I hear Gillie took a sun bath during the tilt. What about that Gill? Well, anyway spring is here and if you're looking for a phys-ed major, the place to go is to the tennis courts. You'll find them there working on points for the color cup. By the way, that reminds me; have you signed up for the swimming match yet?

SPORTS BRIEFS:

Wake Forest lost its chance for the southern conference baseball championship Monday when Duke defeated them for the fourth time this year. They had won it for the two years previous. Boxing is finally being brought back to Virginia, tonight in Richmond. It's the first time scheduled bouts have been held in the capital city since the mid-thirties. At Blacksburg Saturday an inter-squad game was held at the climax of spring football practice. It's reported that the "Gobblers" are on the way back up the ladder but they are not making a very fast progress. Mosely says they only have material for one team. That's odd—the biggest college in the state with the worst football team!

LC Women's Tennis Team Defeats Lynchburg College In Singles, Double Matches

Sportin' Around

by Lou Jamison

Well, the spring doubles tennis tournament is almost up to the semi-finals! So far, two rounds of the tournament have been played. In the first round Huff and Jones lost to Vaughan and Wente by a default, Agnew and Castros defeated Russel and Weddle 7-5; 6-2; and Boswick and Gravely won over Walker and Hoback 6-3; 6-1. Also in the first play-off Beckner and Ridenour were victorious over Tyler and Bradshaw by a score of 6-2; 2-6; 8-6; Koch and Dotson were beaten 6-1; 4-6; 6-2 by Mahood and Brewbaker, and Webb and Crowder lost to Harris and Kennon 6-1; 8-6.

In the second round which was played off on May 9, Agnew and Castros won over Boswick and Gravely by a score of 6-1; 6-4, while Mahood and Brewbaker defeated Beckner and Ridenour 9-7; 4-6; 7-5. Borum and Gillie, two of our fair haired Green 'n Whites, came forward in the round to win over Harris and Kennon 6-1; 6-1.

Our two semifinal matches will consist of Vaughan and Wente (Red 'n Whites) playing against Agnew and Castros (Green 'n Whites), and Brewbaker and Mahood against Borum and Gillie. The winners of these two matches will play each other for the championship.

Longwood Tallies 4; Lynchburg Takes 1

The Longwood women's tennis team defeated a team from Lynchburg College Thursday, May 10, by a score of 4 to 1.

Sue Main, of the Lynchburg team, took one victory over Marian Beckner with the scores of 6-1 and 6-1. Longwood returning to take the other two singles matches and two doubles.

Dot Boswick, sophomore, battled with Ann Thompson in the longest match of the day, finally taking the match by winning two of three sets. Tallies for the sets were 4-6, 6-0, and 6-2.

Clara Borum defeated Lynchburg player Hazel Crawford 6-4 and 6-2, gaining an easy victory with her swerve and smashing forehand.

Longwood Takes Doubles

The doubles matches were taken by the Longwood teams, the first set being played by Else Wente and Dolly Vaughn against Sally Swartz and Ann Sutherland. They took the match by scores of 6-1 and 6-3.

Nancy Gillie and Clara Borum doubled to meet Marian Eulse and A. B. Griffin, Lynchburg netters. The high ranking Gillie-Borum combination defeated their opponents 6-0 and 6-1.

The final tally for the game added up 4 points for Longwood to 1 for Lynchburg.

Now don't go wrong—we have all types of picnics. There's the intellectual type where you read poetry out in the woods and commune with nature, or the type that you dance ballet on the beach or play musical chairs with the faculty, and watch them unbend (just for kicks). Yes, in the spring, gals and guys are liable to do most anything.

+ Senior Spotlight +

This week's featured senior is a reddish-brown haired young lady who hails from down in Hopewell, Va.

A major in English, this cute miss has long since proven her abilities along that line with her membership in such organzations as Beore Eh Thorn and Pi Delta Epsilon. She also displayed her dramatic ability with the part she played in "As You Desire Me," the Dramatic Club's recent presentation.

She is a member of the Cotillion Club, Dramatic Club, and plans to spend the coming summer working at Western State Hospital.

This week's cute little (and I do mean little) outstanding senior is an English major.

Outstanding for her leadership abilities as well as her knack for journalism, our secret Miss of this week is the outgoing Co-Editor in Chief of the Rotunda, and recently ended a year as president of Pi Delta Epsilon, journalism fraternity. This little "Wheel" is also a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma.

For those of you who are still too dense to guess her name, there will be no trouble even for you when I tell you that she has acquired a very appropriate nickname because of her small stature.

Mr. McCorkle Gives Commencement Plans For Week, June 2-4

Weekend To Begin With Sr. Class Day; At 4 P. M. Saturday

The schedule for the commencement week, June 2 through June 4, has been announced by Mr. Thomas McCorkle, head of the graduation exercises.

Senior class day exercises will start at 4 p. m. on Saturday, June 4, with a welcome by Betsy Gravely, president of the class of 1951. The class song will follow. Betsy Wilson will give the class history, followed by the presentation of the symbol of office. Next, the presentation of gifts will be made by Jeanne Farmer, and Miss Helen Costan, president of the Longwood Alumnae Association, will formerly induct the graduates into the association of Longwood Alumnae. The singing of the Farewell Song will be followed by the forming of the traditional Daisy Chain outside, on the campus.

A reception for seniors and their little sisters will be given on Saturday at the home of President Dabney S. Lancaster. The hour for this occasion has been set for 8:30 p. m., to be followed by the Lantern Parade at 10:30.

The Baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by the Right Reverend Noble C. Powell, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Maryland at 8 p. m. on Sunday, June 3. The Reverend Jean A. Vache will give the Invocation at this service, and the Longwood Madrigal Singers will render Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

Mr. Robert W. Williams, executive secretary of the Virginia Education Association, will deliver the Commencement address on Monday, June 4, at 10:30 a. m., with the Reverend John Wynn Myers giving the Invocation. Conducted by Dr. John W. Molnar and accompanied by Billie Dunlap, the Longwood Choir will sing "There is a Balm in Gilead" by Dawson, and "The Lord Bless You and Keep You" by Lutkin.

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster will award the degrees and an announcement of the honor graduates will be made.

Dean Savage Writes Financial Aid Booklet For Virginia Colleges

A directory of Financial Assistance Available to Freshmen in Member Colleges of the Association of Virginia Colleges has recently been published by the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers. Compiled by Dean William W. Savage, this directory will be distributed to high school counselors and principals, and made available to high school seniors for their use in selecting a college where they might obtain financial aid.

In the pages of the booklet are found listed the thirty - seven member colleges of the Association of Virginia Colleges. The information given includes the college's classification, type of student body, its 1950-51 charges to students, and statements regarding loans, part-time employment, and scholarships available to freshmen.

This is the first publication of this type that has been compiled in Virginia. Dean Savage as chairman of the Committee on Cooperation with Colleges has compiled this book of information furnised by all the white col-

Juniors Announce Choice of Gravely "Honor Classman"

Traditional Assembly Features '51 Seniors

Yesterday's traditional senior assembly was high - lighted by Betsy Gravely's being announced as the "Honorary Classman," chosen by the junior class. Betsy, senior class president, having received this honor, will return next year to help lead the figure at the senior dance.

The Senior Assembly was opened with a talk by the Reverend John Wynne Myers, minister of the Methodist Church. He directed his message to the graduating class.

Betsy delivered a short farewell message, and a response was given by Peggy Harris, president of this year's junior class. This was followed by a medley of songs sung by the entire senior class, a farewell to the other classes and to the school in song.

Farewell Songs

This was started off with a peppy rendition of "Green n' White" and "Fight, Fight for Green n' White" was also sung. Songs were sung to each of the classes by the seniors: "Dear Freshmen," "Here's to You, Sophomores," and "The Class of Our Dreams, the Junior Class." Several production and circus songs were sung by the class, including "Mother Goose Goes Wild," "Jamestown," "Go Down to Egypt Land," "On the Old Board Walk," and the winning song in the song contest this year, "Hail, Longwood College."

Two songs to Dr. Robert T. Brumfield, the senior class sponsor, and many sentimental farewell songs were given. "These Foolish Things," "College Days Are Almost Over," "We Bid You Good-Bye," "Dear Farmville S. T. C.," "Our College Friendships," "You'll Never Walk Alone," and finally "Seniors of '51, We Bid Adieu," and "Farewell to Thee", closed the seniors' presentations.

The juniors officially took up their role as seniors, when, to the tune of the Alma Mater, they walked out through an archway made by the seniors raised caps.

Colleges Make Plans For Graduate Work

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster will attend a meeting at the University of Virginia with representatives from Madison and Lynchburg colleges to perfect plans for an attempt to set a state-wide graduate program.

The graduate program which has been discussed in this paper previously would be a system in which Longwood, Madison, and Lynchburg colleges would cooperate with the University of Virginia, William and Mary College, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and the University of Richmond in the graduate program which already exists in the latter colleges.

Dr. Lancaster, in speaking of the project, expressed the hope that the plans will go through to the satisfaction of every institution involved.

Student Government Elects Dr. Jeffers New Advisor

DR. GEORGE W. JEFFERS, who has recently been selected to the post of advisor to the Longwood Women's Student Government Association.

Dr. George W. Jeffers, Longwood professor, was unanimously chosen by the Student Body to serve as advisor to the Student Government Association, at a meeting held Monday night in the Methodist Church.

Chosen to fill the job vacated recently by the resignation of Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss, who has served the Student Body in this capacity for a number of years, Dr. Jeffers will take up his duties soon.

Dr. Jeffers came to Longwood twenty-five years ago, in 1926, to join the Biology department staff. He is head of the Biology department here, and has been noted in the book "American Men of Science" for his outstanding work in the field of marine biology.

Born in Freshwater, Newfoundland, Dr. Jeffers went to Massachusetts to do his first college work. There he graduated from Boston University with a B. S. degree, and later received his M. A. Continuing his studies at the University of Toronto, Dr. Jeffers received his Ph.D. and did asistantship work in marine biology there.

His further accomplishments in the scientific field are brought to light with the knowledge that for three years he served as Di-

Alumnae Presents Friezes To College

Six plaster reproductions of Luca Della Robbia's "Singing Gallery" have been presented to the college by a Longwood alumna, Mrs. Arthur Maddox (Susie Ware Warner, class of 1902) in memory of her husband, Dr. Arthur Maddox-a former professor here. These friezes have been hung in the new Jarman Auditorium.

The color scheme for the walls, etc., of the new auditorium have been planned to blend with the cream beige of the friezes. The originals from which the friezes were cast were completed in 1445 by the Italian Renaissance artist, Luca Della Robbia, to be hung in the organ loft of the cathedral in Florence. The work represents in ten delicate relief panels angels and boys singing and playing on various instruments to the rhythmic movement of the dance. These marble friezes created a new school of sculpture and are well known in the field of art. Today they hang in the Cathedral Museum.

The six panels chosen to be reproduced for Jarman auditorium are representative of Robbia's work. They are done in pale biege plaster and blend nicely with the other colors being used in decorating the auditorium.

Mrs. Maddox of Dunnsville has shown a great deal of interest in Longwood. The valuable Chinese prayer rug hanging in the hall outside Miss Gleaves' office was presented her, and she has been interested in having an alumnae house on campus.

Dr. Maddox, in whose memory the friezes were presented, taught at Longwood for a number of years and was later president of Rockford College until his death a few years ago.

Girls to Sign As Y' Sisters

All freshmen, sophomores, and juniors who wish to have freshman little sisters next year are to sign up for them on the YWCA bulletin this week. Nancy Adkins, chairman of the YWCA membership committee, has announced.

For those who have a preference there will be a special list.

Nancy reminded everyone to put their summer address beside their name so that they may be contacted during the summer months.

"When the 'Y sends you the name and address of your little sister, be sure to write her immediately," said Nancy. "Be a good big sis."

The Y' annually sponsors the "Big-sister, Little-sister" tradition. A formal reception is held in the fall for this group, to introduce the new freshmen and other students to the faculty, administration, and other college students. This also includes an evening of entertainment sponsored by the Y'.

Notice

The Virginian will be out by the end of this week, Charlotte K. Jones, editor, has announced. If the annual arrives during the morning of the day on which it will appear, the dedication will be read aloud at lunch in the dining hall.

It is requested that all students who expect to receive copies of the Virginian pay their money as soon as possible to Mary Crawford or anyone on the business staff.

'51 Senior Class Announces Plans For Coming Year

Graduates Choose Varied Professions

Of the one hundred and twenty-three seniors who will be graduated from Longwood College on June 4 or at the end of the summer session, ninety-seven already have made definite plans for next year. Included in this number are those planning to get married in the near future.

Five of these seniors have already made plan to contribute their talent to fields other than teaching. Helen Agnew will work in High Point, N. C.; Dorothy Mae Brisentine will work for the Virginia Electric and Power Company in Richmond; John Cook will return to the N. & W. Railroad until fall; Peggy Perry will do stenographic work; and Jimmy Thompson will go into the army.

Two others have made plans to continue their studies by doing graduate work. Marion Virginia Higgs will attend the University of Tennessee. Betsy Wilson has tentative plans for entering graduate school, also.

The majority of the seniors will enter the teaching profession. Seventy-five have already signed teaching contracts for next year, according to Mrs. Mary Watkins, executive secretary of the college.

In or around (Henrico County) Richmond next year, you will be able to find Mary Brownley Smith, Grace Thompson, Mrs. Marian Tucker Currie, Minta Critizer, Ann Shirley Clarke and Mary Maxwell Acree, who will teach at Midlothian.

Teaching in Norfolk, city or county, will be Shirley Bloxton, June Marie Divers, Edith Duma, Edith Virginia Duvall, June Foreman, Harriet Gutterman, Lillie Lankford, Jessie Patterson, Shirley Roberts, Lester Smallwood, Catherine Stevens, Faye White, and Page Joyner.

Installing knowledge into the heads of the younger generations in Portsmouth will be Betty Lois Baker, Margaret Dee Hoover, and Mary Leigh Meredith.

Suffolk will claim Martha B. Atkinson and Nellie Hart.

Sarah Neff Dickerson and Hattie Kathryn Terry will take their teaching talents with them to Franklin.

Calls from Westmoreland County have been heard and answered by Shirley Lee Atkinson, who will teach in Montross; Alma Bedinger and Mrs. Margaret Robertson Milroy, both of whom will teach at Oak Grove High School.

Those who will teach in Culpeper are Claudia Bradshaw, Helen Connelly, Helen Edgerton, Jeanne Farmer, Mary Jane Stansbury, and Jean Carter Watkins.

School marms in Newport News will be Peggy Lee Bryant and Martha Kitchen

Teaching reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic in Roanoke will be Mrs. Irene C. Bunting and Elsie Alice Hawley.

Alpha Kappa Gamma Elects New Officers For Coming Session

Jean Ridenour, junior from Richmond, was elected to the presidency of Alpha Kappa Gamma, national honorary leadership fraternity, at a meeting held yesterday. Chosen to aid Jean in the work next year was Maria Jackson, junior from Lexington, who will serve as vice-president.

Martha Alice "B. B." Wilson was selected secretary of the organization, while Pat Tuggle and Shirley Livesay will serve as the treasurer and the scrapbook chairman, respectively.

The four new members of A. K. G., were initiated after the elections, and the new officers were installed. Miss Elizabeth Burger was in charge of the program after the business session and she showed slides of the Spring Set-Up Convention taken at Pawley's Island, North Carolina to the group.

Miss Burger has served her final year of advisorship to Alpha Kappa Gamma with the 1950 -'52 session. A new advisor will be chosen next year.

Dr. Lancaster to Announce Completion of Garden Spot

ZTA Landscapes Part Of Campus

Dr. Lancaster will announce at graduation the completion of the new garden spot between the Colonnade and Tabb Hall. Planting of twenty-six small and six large boxwood and a poplar shade tree has been chosen by Alpha chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority as their project for this year.

A portion of the money for this project is being raised by the fall and spring pledges of the sorority as their traditional gift to the chapter and the remainder of the funds will come from the chapter's treasury and from appropriations from alumnae of Zeta Alpha chapter.

When the garden is completed, it will be used for outdoor concerts and other outdoor entertainment.

The garden will be dedicated in the fall, at which time a plaque wil be presented bearing the sorority's named. A name for the garden has not yet been selected.

Dr. Lancaster will also announce during commencement week end, plans for the coming year. The announcement will concern the faculty, administration, and general plans of the College.

leges in Virginia.

A study made by Dr. Paul Farfier of Virginia Polytechnic Institute showed that in 1949 between thirty and forty-two per cent of the students who graduated in the top quarter of their classes failed to enter college because of financial reasons. It is the hope of the committee that through publicizing the financial aid that may be obtained in Virgina's colleges, they may interest these superior students in going farther with their education.

Special sources of financial assistance are made available in the state to students preparing to be teachers, students who are physically disabled, and children of veterans. These special scholarships are listed with detailed information in a special section of the pamphlet.

In the introduction to the directory Dean Savage writes, "Its preparation was motivated by the thought that the wide distribution of specific information regarding available financial assistance would bring to the attention of needy students and their counselors opportunities for further education, about which they might otherwise be unfamiliar."

H2O Group Holds Informal Initiation In Pool on May 17

The H20 Club had an informal initiation in the pool May 17 at 10:00 p. m. The new girls demonstrated their ability to keep from drowning in several games. The constitution was then read and the new members swam down the pool with lighted candles. After the initiation, a party was held in the "Y" Lounge. Brownies and cokes were served. H2O emblems were then given to the new girls.

A few weeks ago the club had a waffle supper out at Longwood. Miss Iler and the new members were the guests. Little paper fish served as the place cards.

Tuggle Announces Exam Period Rules

Unlimited light priviledges for the examination period will go into effect Sunday night, May 27, Pat Tuggle, president of the House Council, has announced.

Pat also issued a reminder to all students that they are expected to remain quiet at all times during the examination period. One call down received during this period will result in a week's strict campus effective at the time the call down is given.

Senior Jobs

To Danville will go Georgia Louise Bailey and Geraldine C. Huckstep.

Near their fellow school mates and teachers in Richmond, will be Mildred Livingston Evans and Ruth Elizabeth Gills, both of whom will teach in Petersburg.

Teachers Lena Evelyn Farrier and Virginia Spenser will be located at Rocky Mount.

Giving the youngsters of Arlington County lots of homework and tests will be Jeanne Marie Gillman and Donna Staples.

Near their old stomping ground in Farmville will be Jo Anne McCombs in Crewe, Berman Scott in Clarksville, and Margaret Anne Shelton in Lynchburg.

Demands for teachers have come from all over Virginia. Billie Jane Barber, will answer the call to Accomac, Frances Darlington will go to Amelia, Hazel Hamlet to Altavista, Betty Juliette Jones to Martinsville, Anne Darden Joyner to Nansemond County and Romine Mahood to Emporia. Helen Smith will teach at Amherst, Mrs. June Raines at Fisherville, and Myrtle Seward at Courtland. Mrs. Minnie D. Pridgen will go to Charlotte County.

Gloria Reed has signed a contract to teach in Princess Anne County. June Ritchie will teach at Ridgeway, Mary Thomas at Gloucester, and Eloise Hodges at Covington.

Dinwiddie will boast two new teachers next year. These will be Jacqueline Moody and Ella Sue Smith.

Returning to Puerto Rico after their preparation at Longwood will be Denise Rivera, Edna Rodriquez, and Isaac Velasquez.

Migrating to the south also are Mrs. Polly Hawkins Powers, who will teach at Marion, N. C., and Sally Anne Smith, who goes to Florida.

Longwood has really done her bit in the nationwide effort to turn out more and better teachers. Seventy-five teachers, most of whom will teach in Virginia, ought to help out the situation a great deal.

points for their side, by winning the doubles championship.

Softball was won by default by the freshmen. This gave the last ten points to the Red n' White teams.

But when the total was added up, the Green n' Whites were victorious. The cup was awarded at the assembly program yesterday, by Nancy Walker, president of the Athletic Association.

Last year the color cup was taken by Red n' White.

Noted Artists Slated To Appear at Longwood With Return of Lyceum

Alabama Quartet Will Open Series

Mr. Mason Bliss, in charge of the Farmville Lyceum Series, reports that the series will bring to this area in its first season an array of artists highly distinguished in their respective fields of music and drama. All performances for the series will be held in Jarman Hall. The series will open with a concert performed by the Alabama String quartet. According to Mr. Bliss it will give music lovers an opportunity to hear and enjoy the now seldom heard but completely charming works of chamber music, both classic and modern.

Evelyn MacGregor

The second performance will be given by the Barter Theatre, Virginia's own state theatre. Its production of "The Merchant of Venice," by William Shakespeare is, in Mr. Bliss' opinion, one of the most lavish and beautiful in the history of the Barter players.

Barter Theatre

A concert by Evelyn McGregor, well known singer, will be third in the series. She will present a rich and varied program. Mr. Bliss states that Miss McGregor is equally effective in both serious and light music and he feels that hearing her in person will be an experience not soon forgotten.

North Carolina Symphony

The final number of the series will be the appearance of the North Carolina Symphony under the direction of Benjamin Sevasin.

This year will be the sixth that the symphony has toured and it has a record of fine performances and excellent reviews. The North Carolina Symphony boasts some of the finest musicians in the country and Maestro Sevalin is noted in this country and abroad for his excellence as a conductor.

Definite dates for these performances will be announced later.

Registrar Reveals 597 Enrollment For Fall Session

Present Figures Stand Tentative

Longwood College has enrolled 597 students to date for the 1951-52 term, according to Miss Virginia Bugg, registrar. She added late registrations make this figure only tentative.

The enrollment of 597 has been noted a slight decrease from the enrollment of 611 last year. Almost half of this year's enrollment are new students, approximately 225 in number. Of this number 17 are sophomore and junior transfers.

Two students, Mary Hurt Peery and Mary Meade Robertson, are transfers from Marion College. Coming from the Norfolk Division of William and Mary and V.P.I. are Billie Dove Van de Riet, Serefina Frances Urso, and Eugenis Alkeviades Korahaes. Mrs. Janet Davis Brown comes to us from Blackstone College, and Helen Elett Crowgey from the University of South Carolina. William Johnson Dawson, Jr., a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute is enrolled as a special student.

Westhampton College lost Nancy Lou Gilbert to Longwood and Janet Smith Dunkum was gained from Ferrum Junior College. Elizabeth Colton Gillikan comes to Longwood from Mary Washington College and Ann Marie Gray from Richmond Professional Institute. From Madison comes Virginia Lee Hansel and Joyce Afton Karlet is transferred from Kueka College, New York.

Ann Carper Parkinson transferred from Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, Betty Tyree Saffelle from Converse College, and Jean Katherine Talley from Stratford.

Garbee Gives Essay, Story Contest Data For Magazine

Students, Faulty To Judge Entires

Nancy Garbee, editor of the Colonnade, has announced that the annual short story contest begins today, September 26, and will run until October 13 at 6 p. m. Nancy also revealed that essays as well as short stories may be entered this year.

Any Longwood student is eligible to enter any number of original stories and essays in the Colonnade box under the main bulletin board or they may be given to Nancy or Helen Tanner, essay editor, or Laura Lee Fritts, short story editor.

Entries will be judged on the basis of originality, interest, and literary correctness. The board of judges will consist of three faculty members, three students and the Colonnade contest committee. Three winners will be chosen and prizes of five, three, and two dollars will be awarded in the assembly period following the judging. Winning entries will be published in the Colonnade during the 1951-52 session.

Any subject in short story or essay form will be accepted. Nancy and the Colonnade staff urge all students to contribute to the contest.

School Purchases Virginia Painting

"It Started Early This Morning," a painting by Mrs. Edith Lemon Deford of Richmond, has been hung in the Rotunda. This is the first painting to be purchased with part of the fund established for the purpose of collecting paintings by Virginia Artists.

Longwood Plans Ceremonies For Dedication of New Buildings To Be Held October 20, 1951

Greetings

To the Students of Longwood College:

First of all, may I tell you who are returning to Longwood how glad I am to have you here again. May this year be the best of all, marked by a well balanced program of work and play. All of us look to you to lead in our efforts to make Longwood worthy of the affection that is felt for the college by the alumnae and, in fact, by all Virginians who know the institution.

And now may I add a word to those who are here as students for the first time. I have told you already that all of us extend you a hearty welcome, and I appreciate the invitation of the editor of The Rotunda to repeat that welcome in writing. Most of you, no doubt, are beginning to feel at home already. Others are still a bit homesick. This is natural, but I hope that all of you will soon be thoroughly happy here.

Remember that you have a wonderful opportunity that is denied to many. You will get out of college much or little as you enter with enthusiasm into its activities or hold back and feel sorry for yourself. I am sure that we will not disappoint our parents who are sacrificing to send us here, nor the people of Virginia who help to support the college. My hope is that you will all have a wonderful year at Longwood.

Sincerely,
Dabney S. Lancaster
President

To the New and Former Students:

The faculty joins with me in extending to each of you a hearty welcome. We are glad that you are here with us. We hope that the session ahead will be truly profitable and happy.

Please feel free to drop in my office and see me whenever I may be of assistance to you in any way.

Sincerely,
William W. Savage
Dean of the College

To the New and Former Students:

How happy we are to have our former family back again, with the addition of the splendid transfers and freshmen.

We hope that all of you have had a most pleasant and restful vacation and with your renewed strength and interest are ready to give to Longwood this year as much as you have in the past.

To the new students, we hope that you have found the happiness and friendliness here that always characterizes Longwood; and have come suffused with the same enthusiasm and interest of continuing and expanding the fine qualities of Longwood.

With my best personal wishes, I am

Most sincerely,
Ruth Gleaves
Dean of Women

Virginia Governor To Be Present

On October 20, 1951, the dedicatory exercises for Jarman auditorium, Stevens Hall, and Tabb Hall will be held. The auditorium, which has recently been completed, will be dedicated to the memory of Dr. William F. Jarman, former president of Longwood College. Stevens Hall, in which the science department is located, bears the name of a former professor of biology, Miss Edith Stevens. Tabb Hall, which houses the new dormitory and registrar's office, will be named in memory of Jenny Masters Tabb, former registrar and secretary to Dr. Jarman.

Dedication Day

Dedication Day will begin at 10:30 in the new auditorium, where the main dedicatory exercises will take place. Dr. Dabney Stuart Lancaster will presine over the exercises which will begin with an Academic Procession. Following the procession will be the Invocation by Dr. Edgar Graham Gammon, president of Hampden-Sydney College and a member of the State Board of Education. The Honorable John Stuart Battle will present the buildings to be dedicated. Acceptance of the buildings will be by the Honorable Blake Tyler Newton, president of the State Board of Education.

In memoriam speeches for Dr. Jarman, Miss Edith Stevens, and Miss Jenny Masters Tabb will be delivered by the Hon. William N. Neff, member of the State Board of Education, by Mrs. E. Winston Cobb, member of the class of 1938, and by Mrs. William Cabell Flournoy, member of the class of 1893, respectively.

Following a selection sung by the Longwood College Choir, under the direction of Dr. John W. Molnar, will be an address by Dr. John R. Hutcheson, Chancellor of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The exercises will then close with the Recessional.

Next on the Dedication Day Program will be a buffet luncheon and reception for the alumnae and invited guests. At 2:30 P. M. a business meeting of the alumnae will take place.

Organ Recital

At 4:00 P. M. there will be an organ recital in the auditorium presided over by Miss Helen Costan, president of the Alumnae Association. A new organ, the gift of the Alumnae Association, will be presented at this time. This organ, dedicated to the memory of Dr. Jarman and his love of music, was purchased with a $25,000 fund raised by the Association Miss Maria Bristow Starke member of the class of 1914 and a former president of the Alumnae Association will present the organ and Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster will accept for the college.

Virgil Fox, concert organist will play at the recital. Mr. Fox, who has played at the Library of Congress and has appeared as soloist with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra and the National Orchestral Association, will render a program of selections from the music of Handel, Bach, McAmis, Bingham, Middel Shultz, and Dupre'.

Sensational Sophomores Surprise Frosh With Frightening Facts For Rat Day

Mary Denny Wilson, president of the sophomore class, has announced that Rat Day will be held Thursday, October 4, from 5 a. m. to 5 p. m. Little Rat Courts will be held at 10 p. m. on Thursday. Big Rat Court will be held Friday night.

Mary Denny also stated that all freshmen will be expected to abide by the rules which have been drawn up by the sophomores. The following rules are for Rat Day 1951.

1. All Rats must resemble hula girls wearing absolutely no green but the following:
   a. Dungarees.
   b. A hula skirt made of red strips (54) over the dungarees.
   c. A white shirt with 54's pinned on it.
   d. Saddle shoes or loafers with no socks or hose.
   e. Hair tied with red ribbon or string in 5 pig tails on one side and 4 pig tails on the other. Have a sign with five on it tied to one set of pig tails and a four tied on the other.
   f. Paint 5 red stripes on right leg and 4 white stripes on left leg.
   g. Wear no make up, bobby pins, or jewelry of any kind.
   h. Have a red and white rat tail.
   i. Have a sign with name and address on it around the neck, also a rat trap and toy rat.
   j. Paint "54" in red on both cheeks.
2. Make up songs praising the Sophomores and Miss Burger.
3. Learn the sign-off and be able to repeat it whenever requested by the sophomores.
4. Do not spend over one dollar on materials for Rat Day, however one pack of cigarettes and chewing gum must be carried to give the Sophomores.
5. All Rats who are notified must report to "Little Rat Court." All Rats report to "Big Rat Court" wearing red and white.
6. Obey all Sophomores, know them by name ,and call them "Miss".
7. Do not go to the Post Office or Snack Bar, neither smoke nor drink cokes until after 6 p. m.
8. Fall on knees in front of the statue of Joan of Arc in the Rotunda, praising her.
9. Report to the library steps immediately after lunch.
10. All meals and classes must be attended.
11. Appointments must be limited to 15 minutes, and an appointment book must be kept.
12. No appointments may be made before the day preceding Rat Day and not for earlier than 5 a. m.
13. Ratting will be limited to the campus.

Sign Off

I (name of rat) from (home town) am a seditious scioistic freshman, and seem to sense that the sensationally sagicious sophomores surpass us scholastically and socially, for standard statistics state sophomores stand stable, steadfast and staunch since stratosphere started. Such singular stamina surely speaks splendid success. Sophomores should really sever all connections with the silly, shallow freshmen, since they are scraping in a sciamachy. PRAISE '54!

Paper to Hold Fall Tryouts

Tryouts for a place on the staffs of the Rotunda will begin tonight at the regular meeting in the publications office after dinner. Editor Mary Jo Smith and all members of the staff urge all students, new and old, experienced and inexperienced, to come and give the Rotunda a try.

Staffs on which new members are needed are news, headed by Janet Wiggins, which involves the hunting out and writing of fact stories; feature staff, lead by Jean Jinnette, which involves creative writing. The sports staff who write up all the current sport events is headed by Helen Castros.

Another department of the paper needing workers is business, headed by Celeste Bishop, which takes care of all money matters; circulation and advertising. Typists and proofreaders are also needed.

Tryouts on the Rotunda is a plan whereby the students work on the staff in which he or she is interested, for six weeks. At the end of six weeks, the names of those who have proved interested and willing workers are given positions on the staff and placed on the masthead.

LC History Profs Write Va. Texts

Two Longwood history professors have recently signed contracts with well-known publishers to write Virginia history textbooks. Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel is writing a textbook for senior high school, while a textbook for the seventh grade is being written by Francis B. Simkins, recently returned to the Longwood College faculty.

The Virginia State Textbook Commission, set up by the state legislature to study the teaching of Virginia history in State elementary and high schools, found that college freshmen's knowledge of their state's history was faulty. Contracts were signed with Charles Scribner's Sons Publishing Company, and with Harpers Publishing Company for the publication of two new Virginia history texbooks.

In their search for authors of these textbooks the committee found two of Virginia's outstanding historians to be professors at Longwood—: Dr. Schelegel and Dr. Simkins.

A graduate of Longwood, Miss Spotswood Honeycutt, who is at present teaching social studies at Mathew Waverly High School in Longwood, Dr. Schlegel and Dr.

Take Your Time . . .

There have been innumerable times this past week when the writer of this editorial has heard members of the administration, faculty, and student body proudly announce that a finer group of new students than ours has never been seen. New green 'n white class and transfer students, Longwood welcomes you with open arms.

The strenuous orientation period to which every Longwood newcomer is subjected is over now and all freshmen and transfers are now expected to become an active part of the College without further ado. There have been classes, tours, and parties to acquaint the new with the old, both with the College customs and traditions and with the former students. At the end of such a tiring yet enlightening week, new students are doubtless beginning to attain a wonderful sense of cofindence and contentment. In reality their orientation is only beginning.

Admitted, classes have begun and it won't seem much different from high school until the hours of standing in a bookline and the hours of studying for a class that only required a lick and a promise in high school have been suffered. The new girl will be swamped with invitations from every corner. Longwood's many sports and social activities may almost seem overwhelming to her. And where is the confident and wise upperclassman who was so handy and willing to help during that first whirlwind week! She too has suddenly discovered that there are classes to attend, activities to take part in, and student teaching to do. She can't make it to the freshman dorms quite so often.

It will take a while for most of the new green 'n whites to become accustomed to the differences between high school and college classes. Three day class schedule, flexible assignments, advanced lecture style teaching, and the absence of study hall may cause a few heads to nod wonderingly.

The new student will find that time is of great importance to her in everything She attempts. All the important components of a well rounded college life—classes and studying (they are important), organizations, social activities, meals, play and sleep (these are equally important)—must be taken into account and time must be allotted for each. It is wise to start out slowly and accelerate only with experience as with pressure on a foot pedal. The newcomer has another responsibility. Only she can know her own capabilities and limitations. She should take them into consideration and use them well.

With a little time to analyze her own difficulties the energetic freshman can soon find the solutions to her many problems. There are always those to whom she can go for help: the Dean of Women, the Dean of the College, her faculty adviser, or almost any upperclassman. Good luck, new students, we're expecting great things of you.

Honor Plus . . .

If asked to name the one thing in the whole tradition of Longwood that does the most towards making the College what it is today, we would answer without fail the "Honor Code." It is that intangible and almost indefinable basis of the loyalty which each student comes to feel.

The Honor Code is a pact among students to keep all their relationships honorable, without supervision of the faculty, and in accordance with the highest principals of personal honor. Like the rest of our traditions it has been handed down from year to year, carefully cherished as the strongest basis of the liberties we enjoy and the many privileges we have here.

An understanding and appreciation of this aspect of our college would be the best present which we could hand to freshmen, and all new and old students who have not already perceived its real significance. But it is not as simple as this. For just as we have our faiths, our creeds, our beliefs, so we have our honor—which is in effect all of these things; a creed, a belief, and a faith in our fellow students and in ourselves. Our Honor Code and system in all of its strength can only serve to strengthen that honor which we have.

Examine yourself and see just how honorable you are. Can you look yourself square in the face, knowing that you have a sensitive regard for your college, for your honor, and for that of your friends? If you can do that, if you can be sure that when temptation presents itself you can turn away from if easily, then indeed you have found the true meaning of our Honor Code and can add greatly to the maintenance of its high standards.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1951

Help Us . . .

Amid the chaos and confusion of this first week of school the power of necessity has overthrown the virtue of unselfishness in the all-out war at the book store window. For exactly four hours of each day (10:00 a. m. to 12:00 a. m. and 2:00 to 4:00 p. m.) 597 students battle desperately to buy their books, and yet classes go on; so do the assignments.

Despite the fact that classes have started and homework has been assigned, the book store window rarely stays open beyond the given hours. The limited service through which a student must acquire his or her textbook is a gross, inconvenience, and unnecessarily so, it seems.

There are several means by which this complication could be alleviated. First, there could be more than one point of distribution. This would eliminate the long line that now stretches past the post office, obstructing the traffic to the mail boxes and the classrooms. Secondly, longer hours would help those students who have heavy schedules in the mornings or labs in the afternoons.

The students realize that any rearrangement would be impossible this semester. However, for the safety of present students and prospective ones, couldn't something be planned for future semesters with this situation in mind. Either or both changes would not only erase the difficulty of obtaining essential books for the students, but would also lighten the load of Mrs. Cox's duties who, as postmistress, must also sell stamps, sort mail, and rent the mailboxes.

Surely the administration and those in charge of the distribution of books can see that great need of the students and the hardship placed on the postmistress as well as the ones who buy books. So much has been done in the past year in this college to raise the efficiency of many departments, such as registration and the new system of orientation that was begun only this year. We are grateful for these things; perhaps we have become spoiled, but the students of Longwood want a better system of buying and selling books.

Hello, Joe

Dear Joe,

It has distressed all of us over here considerably to hear that our delegates to the peace conference have been most uncooperative. You might just tell Gromyko that it isn't polite or courteous to talk when other people are talking. He is just like a cigarette—makes an ash of himself every time.

Schools have opened all over America and here we are back at Longwood after a too short summer of work, travel, and play. Some say that travel is very broadening, and most of us agree. You ride in a car for a couple of weeks and see if you are not at least four inches broader just where you would rather not be.

This college is just chock full of freshmen. My only regret is that since they are green and white, they cannot bow down to the Great Color.

A great many of our number have gotten married this summer. There has been talk that Senior Building is going to be turned into an apartment house so that the married students can continue their education and the spinster students can earn extra money baby sitting. This state of affairs might be quite a shock to a lot of people.

If this column seems dull this week bear with me. My joke book is coming shortly in a box from home.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

Four Years of This

Frosh Give First Impressions Of New College Friends

By Shirley Ward

Down in the rec at the Sing last Saturday night, our newfound friends of L.C., better known to us freshmen as upperclassmen, gave a series of skits illustrating their impressions of the class of '55—all in a joking manner, we hope.

Now, all in a joking way, OF COURSE, let's give the upperclassmen a few of our impressions of them as we wind up our first week and a half here at Longwood.

It is generally known that freshmen are supposed to feel inferior to the upperclassmen. We really don't mind feeling that way too much, because we realize that they are "big wigs" and rightfully so. Probably 99 and 44-100 per cent of them wear wigs, anyway.

Upperclassmen at all times are helpful to us. They explain rules and regulations, different courses we are engaged in, and are always on hand for advice that will aid us in our new life in college. Just the other day a senior told me that it took 20 call-downs to place you on campus. She added that the administration just loved for us to cook food in our rooms. It helps the dining room hold down hearty appetites, not to mention the parties after eleven o'clock at night you could have in your room.

Kind, helpful, and thoughtful, the by-words of the upperclassmen. Another fine trait was shown when they sponsored a party last Saturday night for us frosh so that we might get acquainted with some of the Hampden-Sydney boys. Please note that I said freshmen could meet the boys; however, I needn't ask you to guess who was on hand to greet and grab the boys.—You're right—the sophomores, the juniors, and the seniors. I counted approximately one-half of a fifty-five on the dance floor. We're not complaining, however, 'cause just think of the shoe leather we saved.

Upperclassmen get so many more privileges than we, but take note of the amount of space devoted to the freshmen on rules and regulations in the Handbook. We are by far the most important.

All kidding aside, we, the freshman class, make fun of the upperclassmen, because we know that they are a wonderful group of people and we want so badly to follow in their footsteps. They have made our stay thus far at Longwood complete and have cured many of our small cases of homesickness.

Longwood to us, now is like home in many ways and as the months go by we all grow to love it as much as our upperclassmen friends.

On September 15, the Washington Chapter held an "off-to-college" party for new students, returning students, and last year's graduates in the home of its president, Miss Emily Johnson.

The Martinsville chapter will have its first meeting of the year in October at which time an entertainment for the senior high school girls will be given.

A tea was held by the Lexington chapter on September 8, at the home of its president, Mrs. Harry Eberling. Among those attending were Dean and Mrs. William W. Savage.

In Roanoke the forty-three students leaving for Longwood College were entertained with a tea given in the home of Mrs. Joseph Wysor Smith on Friday, September 14.

Members of the Norfolk chapter will conduct their first regular luncheon meeting of the year on October 6 with Mrs. J. V. Hines as the new president.

Sportin' Around

by Lou Jamison

"Say, what did you do over the summer? This question seems to be asked more than any other since we have returned to college. The usual answer is that you had a wonderful time playing tennis and swimming and participating in other summer activities.

What would you say if I told you that you could have all those grand summer sports, and a few more besides, free? After remembering what you paid for them on your vacation, you'll probably think I was joking. The truth of the matter is they are free! Any old or new Longwood student has the use of the golf course, tennis courts, the athletic field, and the sports equipment. You may also use the swimming pool at a scheduled time for recreational swimming and be provided with a towel and soap to boot.

If you met a man giving away dollar bills, I'm sure you wouldn't refuse to take one. Right here at Longwood we are giving away more recreation than you could buy with several of those dollars, so please don't refuse to participate. Come all out for sports this year, and support your class and your colors!

Students Conduct Frosh Orientation

Maria Jackson, vice president of Student Government, has reported that 47 orientation leaders and assistants worked with her during orientation week. There were twenty-three seniors, who with the help of twenty-four juniors, discussed the rules of the handbook and conducted tours of the campus for the freshmen and new students. These upperclassmen were chosen to take part in the orientation program by the student council and approved by Dean Savage and Miss Virgilia Bugg, Registrar, on the basis of their high personal qualifications and scholastic record.

Senior orientation leaders were Betty Barnes, Marian Beckner, Mary Crawford, Nancy Garbee, Sarah Graham, Peggy Harris, Dolores Hoback, Lucyle Humphries, Rebecca Mann, Lucy Jane Morton, Anne Motley, and Anne Oakley.

Rachel Peters, Irma Poarch, Jo Price, Jean Ridenour, May Henry Sadler, Mary Jo Smith, Margaret Thomas, Pat Tuggle, Maria Jackson, Nancy Walthall, and Martha A. Wilson also served as leaders.

The junior assistants were Margaret Steele, Billie Dunlap, Wanda Karlet, Lee Wingfield, Dot Boswick, Sarah Harvie, Helen Castros, Margaret Taylor, Sarah A. Jones, Harriett Minichan, and Betty Abbitt.

Also assisting were Ann Crowder, Polly Brothers, Virginia McLean, Lucy Page Hall, Ann Hundley, Barbara White, Janet Wiggins, Beverly Marsh, Jackie Lackey, Nancy Driskill, Helen Tanner, Ann Jones, and Celeste Bishop

Many Meetings 'n Greetings Keep New Gals on the Run In Their First Week at LC

Two p. m. Sunday, September 16, Orientation week officially began. As each new girl arrived she was greeted by a "Y" member who showed her to her wonderful new room, all done in maple, and welcomed her to Longwood. Thus for some lucky girls began a busy week of classes, parties, discussions, tours, and "orientating."

Bright and early the next morning Dr. Lancaster welcomed the freshmen and transfer students and introduced to them the student government officers. The rest of a whirlwind day was one mad rush from meeting to meeting and by night everyone (including upperclassmen) was ready for the coke and nab party given in the 'rec by the Y'. With songs, food and fun, how could we help but repeat the trite but true, "A good time was had by all."

Tuesday brought more routine meetings but was climaxed by a big picnic for new and old out at the Estate. The wonderful fried chicken supper with all its trimmin's and hearing our new green 'n whites over the radio was worth the long hike out.

Wednesday was filled with the hectic ordeal of registering for classes. When it was all over, the completely signed schedule ready to be tried on Friday was an accomplishment to be proud of. That night green 'n whites met green 'n whites for more food, more singing and more entertainment. By this time, what freshman hadn't begun to feel at home?

The last day before classes began, offering no chance to rest up for the coming experiences, for Thursday too brought the same array of tests, discussions and such. Tours were taken in the afternoon and orientation leaders and new girls alike were amazed to discover how big our campus really was. It was a weary bunch of freshmen that donned all white and filed into the 'rec to receive their rat caps that night.

Of course, an Orientation Week couldn't be complete until the new students were formally introduced to Dean and Mrs. Savage, President and Mrs. Lancaster, Miss Gleaves and many of the other leaders of the College. So Friday night big and li'l sisters adorned themselves in formal attire to attend the annual reception. They passed through the receiving line and were then served punch and cake which they ate while sitting on the floor of the 'rec, making the place look like a large coming-out party minus the men.

Who could call the first week a dull one? Let us warn you, newcomers, there are better ones to come.

Modern machines in American mines cut, load, and transport coal at an almost unbelievably swift rate.

Reporter Reviews Longwood Sports

By Paula Doral

Yes, it's another school year with plenty of activity waiting for you. The Athletic Association offers a full program of all kinds of sports. Everyone is welcome to participate in what ever sport her heart so desires. The major sports of our school consists of basket-ball and hockey. The minor sports are volley-ball, swimming, archery, tennis, golf and soft-ball.

A big item in the heart of every class is the Color Cup. This cup is sponsored by the Athletic Association and each class battles to have it in their possession. In order to win this cup, a class must surpass the other class in a number of points. These points are obtained by athletic competition between all four classes.

As you have probably seen, the Color Cup was won last year by the Green and Whites. You can be sure that both Red and White and Green and White will be working for the cup. So come on out everyone and help your class win.

For the benefit of those who may never have seen these games or any one else who is interested, a demonstration will be presented by the Athletic Association Council this Thursday at four o'clock. The highlight of the program will be the men of the faculty playing against the senior Physical Education Majors. Following the fantastic game the Seniors who have earned blazers for all around sports activity will be recognized.

The artist has won eight awards for her work. Among these was the Youngstown, Ohio Popular Prize for three consecutive years. She has exhibited widely. This painting was one of the most popular in the May exhibit at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in 1951.

Driskill Will Assist Head Of Committee On Chapel Programs

Nancy Driscoll, a junior from Roanoke, has been appointed student assistant to Miss Brockenbrough, new head of the Assembly Committee to help plan Assembly programs for this year.

Two student representatives from each class have also been appointed by Nancy Barbara Allen, Pat Altwegg, Becky Mann, Nat Lancaster, Eleanor Koch, Betsy Hankins, and Betty Barnes.

Dr. Lancaster has announced that more of the programs this year will present nationally known speakers. Of these programs, one out of every four will be presented by Student Government.

Rotunda Will Sponsor Juke-Box Dance Sat.

The second juke-box dance of the year will be held this Saturday night in the rec of Ruffner Hall. Sponsored by the Rotunda, it will be held from 9:00 to 11:45 p. m.

Proceeds from the dance will be used to help in publishing the Rotunda during this college year.

Admission to the dance is ten cents per person.

Longwood 'Ladies' Report Vacation Time Activities

Ah, me, how good to see the end of another busy, tiring day of studying, studying, more studying, and what have you. 'Tis indeed with a happy heart that I note, as I mark September 26 off my calendar, that there are exactly 270 more days till summer vacation begins. Imagine—only 270 more days until we can again take our annual leave of "Little Alcatraz" and head for home.

Summer vacations, you know, have many different meanings to various types of Longwoodites. To the brain (in which category I modestly include myself and all the 3rd Floor Junior boys) that period of time from June till September is merely an era of torture to be endured before we can again take up our cherished books, haunt our beloved library, and acquire much desired knowledge. We have absolutely nothing in common with that gay, modern group of young "ladies" who eagerly anticipate summertime as a time for parties at the beach, parties at home, and parties. We simply cannot understand the wailings and complaints of that group who gripe about the difficulty of their studies, the need for longer vacations, and the need for more class cuts. After all, why on earth could they possibly want to miss class merely to go away on some horrible party weekend, and why should the vacation period be longer when that would only mean prolonging the boring, agonizing stay at home, when we could be here at dear old L. C. studying, eating, studying, sleeping, and studying.

Whatever the type of vacation you spent—whether you partied, traveled, worked (horrors), or whatever you did, this reporter sincerely hopes your summer vacation was enjoyable. Mine, I am extremely sorry to report, was practically unbearable, due to the fact that circumstances beyond my control prohibited my attendance at the summer school to which I had so long looked forward.

From a very serious standpoint now, lets all buck up and get on the ball and do some real work, 'cause remember, only 270 days left until June 2.

Leadership Group Recognizes Ten Juniors, Seniors

Mrs. Lancaster Also Honored

Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, tapped ten girls for membership at the assembly program last week.

Those who were recognized for their leadership were Marian Beckner, Mildred Blessing, Betty Scott Borkey, Mary Crawford, and Lucy Page Hall. Peggy Harris, Dolores Hoback, Virginia McLean, Mary Jo Smith, and Nancy Walker were also chosen by the group.

Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster, wife of the College president, was tapped as an honorary member.

Marian Beckner, from Lynchburg, is president of Orchesis, and was secretary of Student Standards last year. She is a member of the A. A. Council, the Monogram Club, the H20 Club, and the varsity hockey squad, and has played varsity basketball. She belongs to the Cotillion Club, and serves as recording secretary of Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Mildred Blessing, who lives in Tazewell, is now serving as president of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary scholastic fraternity. She is also a member of the House Council, Circulation Manager of the Colonnade, and a member of the Southwest Virginia Club and the Future Teachers of America.

Betty Scott Borkey, of Bowling Green, editor of the Virginian, has also worked with the Dramatic Club for the past two years, and is now vice-president. She served as vice-president of her junior class, and is now historian of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journalistic fraternity, a member of Kappa Delta Pi, F. T. A., the Cotillion Club, and Alpha Sigma Alpha.

Mary Crawford, from Richmond, is business manager of the Virginian, and president of the Association of Childhood Education. She has served as secretary and president of the Westminster Fellowship, and as secretary of House Council, and is a member of the Dramatic Club, the Richmond Club, the Cotillion Club, and Kappa Delta Sorority.

Lucy Page Hall, junior from Front Royal, is secretary of the Student Government Association. A member of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet for the past two years, she has been active in her class Circuses and Productions, and is a member of the College Choir and Kappa Delta sorority.

President of the senior class, Peggy Harris is from Emporia. She is chairman of the Dining Hall, costume chairman of Orchesis, a member of Student Standards, the A. A. Council, and the Monogram Club. She served last year as assistant editor of the Virginian, and as representative from her class to Student gov-

Dr. Swor To Talk To Student Body In Next Assembly

Freshmen Will Give Religious Panel Soon

Dr. Chester Swor, well known educator and speaker, will address the student body during the regular assembly period Tuesday, October 16.

Dr. Swor received his B. A at Mississippi College. He studied for his Master's degree at the University of North Carolina and earned his L. H. D. at Baylor University in Texas. Later Dr. Swor did graduate work at Oxford in England and at Columbia University.

The speaker returned to Mississippi College to act as Dean of Men and professor of English for ten years. He became so much in demand as a speaker to college and youth groups that in 1942 he asked for a year's leave of absence from his college work.

According to Rev. Benjamin Bruner of the Farmville Baptist Church, Dr. Swor has been traveling and speaking ever since and covers over 45,000 miles a year.

Rev. Bruner added that Dr. Swor will be speaking at the Baptist Church during the week of October 15-19 and all students are invited to hear him.

Tentatively scheduled for the following Tuesday, October 23, is a student panel discussion. This discussion is being planned by the freshmen with Dr. Francis Simkins, professor of history and Mr. Raymond French, professor of chemistry.

Barbara Assaid, chairman of the committe for planning the program, will act as moderator. Bobby Allen, Nancy Picinich, Donnie Devine, and Jean Carol Parker will make up the panel. The girls will discuss controversal questions which have arisen in the minds of some of the freshmen, and will try to answer the question, "What religion should mean to a college girl."

'52 Virginian Holds Subscription Drive

The subscription drive for the Longwood annual, the Virginian is now underway, Mary Crawford, business manager, has announced that the rates remain the same as last year. November 15 has been set as the deadline for ordering an annual.

The price for a plain annual without padding or name embossed on the cover is seven dollars; plain with name, seven forty; padded without name, seven fifty-five; padded with name, eight dollars. The plain cover annual may be bought on the installment plan. However, if one dollar is paid down and the remainder later, fifty cents extra will be charged, thus making a total of seven fifty.

Virginian staff members will canvass the halls each day until the deadline is reached. Mary

AKG Elects Thomas Chairman Of '51 Circus; Chooses Theme 'Merry-Go-Round-the-World'

Cook Will Assist Chr; Group Names Committee Heads

Margaret Thomas, senior from Atlee, has been chosen chairman of the annual Alpha Kappa Gamma Circus festivities, Jean Rideaour, president of A. K. G., announced today.

Margaret, who is an elementary education major, served last year as chairman of Student Standards and has taken an active part in the class stunts presented at Circus.

"Merry-Go-Round-the-World" says Margaret, will be the theme of this year's program. The Joan Circle of A. K. G., under the sponsorship of Miss Burger, has chosen this theme with the purpose of promoting good will among nations. The theme will be enacted by the Queen and her court and will be carried out in the decorations.

Assisting Margaret as co-chairman is Mary Helen Cook, senior from Richmond. Marla Jackson and Marian Beckner were appointed to act as co-heads of stunts for Circus, while Nancy Walker, with the assistance of Peggy Harris and Lucy Page Hall, is in charge of the parade. Animals and costumes will be managed by Jean Ridenour, Betty Scott Borkey and Mildred Blessing.

The committee working on advertising is composed of Pat Tuggle, Virginia McLean and Mary Jo Smith. Acting as co-chairmen of the committee for decorations and booths are Shirley Livesay and Mary Crawford. Martha Alice Wilson and Dolores Hoback are in charge of the court.

Noted Organist to Present Concert on Founders Day

Virgil Fox, widely acclaimed as one of the world's greatest exponents of organ music, will give the dedicatory concert on the new Jarman Memorial Organ during the College Founders Day exercises, to be held in the recently completed Jarman Music Hall-Auditorium October 20.

Organ works by Handel, J. S. Bach, Mendelssohn, Bingham, Middlechulte, and Dupre will be included in the program offered by Mr. Fox. The internationally known concert organist and recording artist is now organist of the Riverside Church in New York City and will fly to Farmville in order to present this concert beginning at 4 p. m.

Mr. Fox will give the recital on the new four-manual organ currently being installed in Jarman Hall. The Jarman Memorial Organ, one of the most complete organs in the state, has been built through funds amounting to $25,000 raised by the Alumnae Association of the College in memory of Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, president of Longwood College from 1902 to 1946.

Stevens Hall, science building, and Tabb Hall, recently completed sophomore dormitory, will be dedicated on Saturday along with the Jarman Auditorium.

VIRGIL FOX, who will present dedicatory organ recital at Founder's Day exercises, Saturday, October 13.

Dr. Simonini Heads College News Bureau

The College News Bureau is functioning this year under the direction of Dr. R. C. Siminini, Jr., new head of the English department. He is serving in the capacity of head of the faculty committee on publicity, in connection with Mrs. Mary E. Watkins, and is in charge of sending out news to the newspapers all over Virginia. Virginia McLean is acting as student assistant to Dr. Simonini.

Several articles of school importance, and several concerning individual students and faculty members have been sent out. These articles are posted on the publicity bulletin board in the main hall across from the faculty mail boxes.

Students Begin New LC News Broadcast

"Longwood News," a program featuring headline news about the students of the College, human interest stories, and the news behind the news, will be inaugurated Monday, October 15 on radio station WFLO.

The five-minute program will be broadcast every Monday from 3 to 3:05 p. m., by Mary Jo Smith, who will review for students and townspeople items and activities of interest of the past week. Joan "Prich" Mathews and students enrolled in speech class will also broadcast.

The program is under the supervision of Dr. C. L. S. Earley, Longwood speech instructor.

President Reveals New Professors For Fall Session

Three Members Hold Doctorates

President Dabney S. Lancaster has announced the addition of six new faculty members beginning with the 1951-52 College session. Dr. C. L. S. Earley, Mr. Malcolm Graham, Mr. Charles Patterson, Dr. Francis Simkins, Dr. R. T. Simonini and Mr. Clarence Warrington have joined the Longwood faculty.

Dr. Earley is the new assistant in drama and speech. Before coming to Longwood, he was an instructor of English at Staunton Military Academy and an assistant professor of English at Washington College, Chestertown, Maryland. Dr. Earley received his A. B. degree from Lebanon Valley College, his M. A. from Columbia University and a Doctorates Lettres from the University of Geneva, Switzerland. Although originally from Pennsylvania, Dr. Earley has spent a great part of his life in New York City and has lived abroad five or six years, mostly in France and England.

Assistant professor of mathematics, Mr. Graham acted as assistant to the head of the department of mathematics at Teachers College, Columbia University, he has had experience working in business and industry and has held several teaching positions. He was a member of the faculty of Garion nStitute in Alabama and taught in the public schools of Tucson, Arizona. Mr. Graham received his B. S. degree in mathematics from State Teachers College, Trenton, New Jersey; his M. S. from the University of Massachusetts, and has completed his work for a Doctorate at Columbia University. He is a native of Westchester, Penn-

Pres, Will Take Part In Panel Discussion

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president of the College, will journey this Friday to Madison College where he will take part in a panel discussion on Character Education.

Dr. Lancaster will speak on "Character Education from the Standpoint of Schools and Colleges." Mr. Charles Wampler, of the State Board of Agriculture, will lead a discussion on the "Home's Responsibility Toward Character Education." "Responsibility of the Church Toward Character Education" will be the topic pursued by the Reverend Lynn Dickerson.

On Saturday, October 13, Dr. Lancaster will attend a meeting of a committee of the Association of Virginia College at the Medical College of Virginia.

Dr. Paul Farrier of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Dr. Sanger, of the Medical College, and Dr. Lancaster will deal with the question of assistance for exceptional students.

Lackey, Castros Fill House Council Posts; Hall Elect Presidents

Helen Castros, junior from Roanoke, has been chosen by the class to fill the position of junior house president. She is replacing Judy Cox, who did not return to school this year.

Jackie Lackey, a Junior from Hampton, was elected in a recent student body meeting to fill the office of Secretary of House Council. She will fill the office left vacant by Bobbie Caverlee, who did not return to school.

Hall Presidents Chosen

At recent elections the Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores chose their hall presidents for the coming year. In Senior dorm, Alberta Hawley will serve as hall president on first floor main and Boots Russell on first annex. On second floor main, hall presidents will be Norma Saunders and Winnie Murdock, with Dot Cassada on second floor annex. For hall president on third floor main, Katherine Toxey was chosen, and on third annex, Stokes Overby.

Beverly Marsh was elected Hall president on first floor junior. Nancy Wooldridge and Clara Borum on second floor; and Nancy Driskill and Anne Boswell on third floor.

On third floor Student, Liz Browning was chosen hall presi-

We Love You

From the standpoint of the reader, it must often seem that the editorial staff doesn't bother to write an editorial for the weekly or bi-monthly paper, as the case may be, unless there is a "gripe", against the administration, a remonstrance to the student body, or at least a repeated urging to "keep up the good work" if there happens to be a commendation.

Our love for Longwood has neither been lost nor forgotten; it has been simply obscured temporarily by problems and activities that loom big on the horizon of a college student. The new students and freshmen, in answering the question of the week, have reminded us that we, the upperclassmen, are a privileged group of girls.

The word "spirit" has been used many times in the column, perhaps too often without any true meaning assigned to it. Yet there IS a spirit at Longwood found in few other colleges. Sportsmanship ranks high, not just on the hockey field or basketball court, but among everyday activities of the students. The feeling of friendliness that has tended to completely do away with a potential difference between "wheels" and students, who do just as much but don't have a title, has become a beloved and WORKING tradition of the College.

"Spirit," this time meaning an eagerness to do one's part to the best of one's ability, figures importantly in the life of every Longwood girl. Circuses, productions, class games, and even class meetings evidence almost without fail a feeling of deep interest. This spirit is, apparently, not easily forgotten. The alumnae of Longwood College are constantly reminding their school that they have not forgotten her. Every year sees the annual Founders Day celebration and the Circus when the younger graduates can't seem to stay away. They don't stop there, simply paying silent tribute to their alma mater, but spend their time and money helping to make Longwood a better college. The Jarman Organ, one of the most complete and perfect, has been given to the College by her alumnae.

The faculty and administration deserve equally the praise that has been given the students and alumnae. A debt of gratitude is owed them by every girl who ever entered the halls of the College. Not only have they been friends and willing advisers to their students, but they have not seen a year go by without improving Longwood in some way. New buildings, new furniture, new parlors, increased privileges, and revised systems of dealing with such things as registration for classes are only a few of the many ways in which the faculty and administration have shown that they too have attained the "spirit" that comes with being a part of Longwood.

We love our alma mater and take pride in saying that she is our College.

So Shine

Lights shone on Monday night as the new students at Longwood followed the members of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet in an impressive candle-light procession which started from the sanctuary of the Episcopal Church and wound up the Rotunda stairs in all of the spirit of reverence which the occasion called forth. This was the installation of the new members of this unusually fine and unusually Christian organization, the Young Women's Christian Association.

The light of a candle is bright. It has often shone forth in the night, guiding a weary traveler to his destination, or pointing the way to someone who is lost. Your "Y" can fill just such a position in your life. The daily Prayers, just a few moments of guided meditation and worship, can be the happy close to any one's day. This time provides a moment of rest for those of us who must necessarily, it seems, hurry through both day and night, sometimes wondering if maybe we've lost the way.

It has been well that one receives benefit from anything only in proportion to how much he gives of himself to it. In a few weeks, new and old students alike will be given an opportunity to serve on some committee of the "Y". There is comparatively little work to do in connection with these committees, but they give one a real feeling of belonging. One works up the Saturday night Sing skits; another conducts Prayers. Church co-operation and attendance is encouraged through another, and still another plans social affairs, parties and such. Everyone has a field. Surely each one can find his place in one of these.

Don't forget the "Y" girls who were in the Rotunda that first hard day at Longwood. Don't forget the impressive installation ceremony, the Prayers, and the committees. And remember that all these things and others together stand for that spirit which is felt by Longwood students—that spirit which would promote friendliness, a feeling of brotherhood, a real responsibility to service, and deep personal spirituality and conviction.

What Price Parley?

Unless the Reds have changed their minds, General Ridgway's liaison officers and the representatives of General Pen Teh-Huai, the Chinese commander in North Korea, began their meeting last night at 8 o'clock in Panmunjon to discuss the reopening of negotiations. It may mean anything or nothing. To the Reds we must assume it means another stall for time. To the victims of the bloody "Heartbreak Hill" it means nothing—now.

Nevertheless, this latest exchange of messages was the nearest the opposing sides have come to an agrement since the Reds broke off the conference at Kaesong, August 23. When we consider the fact that we are again groping for light, we must ask ourselves one basic policy question: Are we going to compromise in the effort to halt the unnecessary bloodshed in Korea or are we going to make an attempt, in all out war, to eliminate the Communist rule in China.

Dare we hope that the Korean slaughter will end when both sides are incapable of agreement on the technicalities of setting up a conference? In the past the Red leaders have insisted that the full armistice negotiating teams meet to create "appropriate machinery" for resuming the conference. Ridgway, in turn, has insisted that liaison officers settle the details before the main negotiations begin.

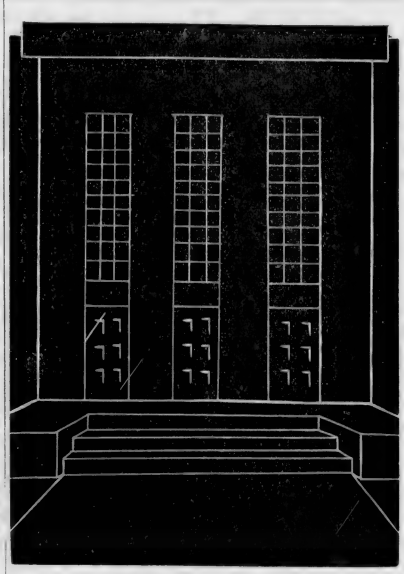
Note

In closing, we would like to tell the freshmen (and most of the upperclassmen too, for that matter) that the best way to advertise their popularity is to drop a note giving all the necessary information into the Rotunda Box, located under the A. A. bulletin board.



Alumni Notes

By Anne Marie Gray

The Richmond Alumnae Chapter under the leadership of its new president, Barbara Tripp Friend, is getting organized for the new year's work. The members are now planning for their subscription card party this fall. The chapter's annual tea will be held in the Marshall Room of the Hotel John Marshall on Thursday, November 1, from three to five o'clock.

The Congressional Hotel was the scene of the first fall luncheon given by the Washington, D. C. area chapter. About forty members attended the affair.

As is customary and expected, there is much enthusiasm among the reunion classes this year.

We Dedicate Thee

Strollin' with Stokes

By Stokes Overby

To start the year off with a bang, we asked the inevitable to the freshmen, "What impresses you most about Longwood?"

The most frequent answer by far was, "the friendliness of the girls." Nan Fienich declared, "Everybody goes out of his way to help you. I fell in love with the place when I came up here last year." Elizabeth Forrest, who also visited Longwood last year, said, "The friendly spirit of the girls is one of the chief reasons I decided to come here."

Virginia Phelps added, "Officers of the Student Government and other important people treat you as if you were as important as they are." "Even the teachers are friendly and seem to want to help you," stated Mary Perrow.

Others who considered friendliness the most outstanding characteristic of Longwood were Joan Ward, Joyce Walton, Pollyanna Martin, Frances Motley, Mary Ann Ward and Elore Riley.

Mary Hundley said, "The whole place impresses me. I particularly like the way we sing to members of the faculty and administration."

Ellen Dize and Ann Hamner thought that evening prayers were impressive occasions. Ann added, "Prayers are the brightest spot in the day. And I thought the Y. W. C. A. installation was very touching."

Dot Douglas liked the informality of Longwood. "It's not as strict as most schools are either," she said.

"I like the way you are allowed to think for yourself and encouraged to be an individual. There is a great deal of friendliness and no prejudice towards religions or anything else," declared Nancy Swinderman.

Bessie McCarthy considered the tapping ceremony of Alpha Kappa Gamma the most impressive thing she had seen.

Rats Agree Sophs Are Swell Even If the Day Was Thurs.

By Shirley Ward

"Come down 54 steps off your high horse, rat! Make my bed, rat! Wipe that smile off your face, rat! Step on it! It's over here—over there! Praise '54, rat! Sing 'Red and White'! Roll the coke bottle down the hall with your nose! Climb the Saturday Evening Post! Drop dead, rat!"

These are but few of the familiar echoes you heard around L. C. last Thursday on October 4, better known to us, the freshmen, as RAT DAY.

Those, however, who are still wondering just why there were dead bodies lying all around the campus on that particular day, will be given a sane, logical answer. The freshmen heard that the administration was giving a prize to those people catching the most worms. Little, however, did the frosh know that the worms weren't in the ground but in the sophomore dormitory.

Ah sweet, peaceful, wonderful, nauseating day. The freshmen were running back and forth, fulfilling appointments made with the sophs with the same enthusiasm that they would fulfill appointments made with their dentists to have teeth pulled. The sophs, on the other hand, would always be glad to see them and have parties planned for them cleaning up their rooms, writing mushy love-letters to their boyfriends, counting the floor boards with their noses or singing simple little ditties such as the Hungarian National Anthem or Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

Most of the freshmen rose that morning from a slumberland of the maximum number of hours—two-or three o'clock, dressed in their Sunday attire of red hula skirts, a measled white shirt of '54's, painted faces and legs and fully equipped with the 'sign off' which by five o'clock had changed itself to: "I, (name of rat), from (hometown), am a sensationally, sagicious freshman, and seem to sense that the seditious, sciolistic sophomores—." The sign off had not only changed but the freshmen had changed also from cheery people to hags. But when five o'clock p. m. rolled around on that fateful day—everything was over; all of the sophs nagging, bragging and sagging; everything! Then at approximately eight o'clock that night, doorknobs to many freshmen rooms turned. A stern-looking fifty-fourer entered, handed to the gay (by now) freshmen little slips of paper and left the room with a smirk on her face. These fifty-fivers opened the paper and read: "Report to Little Rat Court."

It was beginning all over again! Rats just can't win!

Cigarettes, Cokes, H-S Boys Result In Many Rec Hall Joys

By Phoebe Ann Warner

Time, nine o'clock p. m. . . . . Scene, Saturday night dance in Longwood College . . . . . Characters, Miss Anxious from Longwood vs. Mr. Nonchalant from Hampden-Sydney . . . . . Musical background, "Sin" . . . . . Lights! Camera! Action!

Miss Anxious is eagerly sipping a Coke with her friends in the Rec as they chew the fat about the daring things they hope will happen at the exciting dance. Over in a corner with his buddies stands Mr. Nonchalant casually checking the prospects for the night, when his eyes fall upon the vivacious Miss Anxious. As he looks her over, her cow eyes and winsome smile are such that he gets ideas . . . . . cut! Mr. Nonchalant's ideas cannot be printed. Now to get back to the scene of this spectacular dance. Mr. Nonchalant strolls idly over to Miss Anxious and inquires smugly if she would like to have the honor of this dance. At this moment Miss Anxious looks up at Mr. Nonchalant and rolls her eyes and flutters those false eyelashes as she takes the arm of great big wonderful Mr. Nonchalant and walks to the dance floor. While the fabulous music fills the room, Miss A. and Mr. N. dance a little closer . . . .Cut. A little bit closer is a little bit closer than they are allowed to get. Sorry you were so rudely interrupted, but to get back to the progressing couple.

Climax . . . . . Miss Anxious looks longingly up at Mr. Nonchalant and he smiles at her, letting her know he has found the girl that he wants to accompany him to all the Gene Autry movies from now on.

Miss Anxious and Mr. Nonchalant dance joyously through the night until a quarter to twelve. Then, as her greeneyed friends look on enviously, Miss Anxious realizes happily that she need no longer be anxious as she and Mr. Nonchalant, now looking quite concerned, walk happily to the doors of the Rotunda.

Sportin' Around

by Lou Jamison

Since this is the season for hockey, practices are being held every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at 3:00 p. m. and also at 4:00 p. m. on Tuesday and Thursdays. If you don't know how to play hockey, now is the time to learn. If you already know how, come out and get in practice. So far, there have been mighty few people out to practice, and remember the class games aren't far off. Let's go, Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors! Get in your eight practices—your class team needs you.

Freshmen, have you realized that the class hockey games mean something extra special to you? If you defeat the Sophomore team, the whole Freshman class may take off their rat caps at Thanksgiving. But if you lose that game, those caps stay on until Christmas. Your sister class will be rooting for you, but you can't expect to win without plenty of practice and team work. Please let a word to the wise be sufficient!

One of the big sports events on the campus this season is the fall singles tennis tournament. It won't be long now before the first round begins. If you like to see girls with that good old green n' white, and red n' white spirit earn points toward the color cup, don't miss the matches.

Varsity Team Plans Game For Oct. 12

The first varsity hockey game will be played this Friday, October 12, on the Longwood A. A. field at 3:30 p. m.

The Longwood team will play the Lynchburg College team. The schedule for the fall varsity games are as follows:

October 12—Lynchburg College —here.

October 27—Westhampton College—there.

November 9—Roanoke College —there.

Patsy Sanford and Elsie Wente, class hockey managers, have announced that class hockey games will begin November 16.

Before a girl is eligible to play for a class team she must have eight general practices being held as follows:

Monday, 3 and 4 p. m.
Tuesday, 3 p. m.
Wednesday, 3 p. m.
Thursday, 3 p. m.

Students are urged to come and support their colors whether they are Red 'n White or Green 'n White ! !

alto are Eleanor Weddle, Libby McClung, and Laura Fritts, with Margaret Perrow and Donnie Devine as alternates.

Dr. Molnar has also announced his tentative plans for this year The choir will sing October 20 at the dedication ceremonies and November 2 in Richmond at the general meeting of the Virginia Education Association, which will be held at John Marshall High School. For December 2, Dr. Molnar has planned an out of town trip, and the Christmas concert will be held on December 9 and 10. The spring concert is scheduled for April 15.

At some time during the year, the choir hopes to do an opera, probably "The Mikado."

The college chorus, which is open to everyone, began practice today, and will meet every Monday and Wednesday at 4 p .m. Membership in the chorus requires no individual audition, and the members will be able to work up to a position in the choir.

Dr. Molnar also plans to start an a capello choir, which will consist of 16 male and 16 female selected voices to do mixed choral work.

Lucy Thwing, Betty Tyler, Helen WatKitman, Mary Ann Ward, Sue Webb, Elsie Wente, and Roberta Wiatt will also receive uniforms.

The varsity squad was chosen after tryouts which were held last week. Other members of this squad are Hilda Brown, Ann Crowder, Hilda Hartis, Molly Hersemon, Juanita Hudson, Mary Hurt Peery, Georgette Puryear, and Anne Shoaf.

Edith also stated that varsity practices will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursdays at 4 p. m. Edith has asked that only varsity squad members come to practice at this time.

Y Holds Installation Service Mon. Night; Sponsors Fall Speaker

The installation of new students into the Y.W.C.A. was held on Monday night in the Episcopal Church. Everyone participating in the service was dressed in white for the candlelight service.

Mary Helen Cook, president of the Y.W.C.A., lighted the candles of the Y cabinet members, and they, in turn lighted those of the new students. Virginia McLean led the worship service and Sarah Harvie sang "I Would Be True". After a prayer which told of the challenge of the circle of light, the service ended with the singing of a hymn.

Yesterday, the Y sponsored as its fall speaker, the Reverend Fred T. Laughton, who is the pastor of the Talbot Baptist Church in Norfolk.

Next week end the Y.W.C.A. Cabinet will have its annual retreat at Longwood Estate.

She also belongs to the Southwest Virginia Club, the Cotillion Club, and Pi Kappa Sigma sorority.

College Dean's List Recognizes Forty-two for High Scholarship During Second Semester '51

Students Obtain Unlimited Cuts

Forty-two girls have been recognized by the college for their superior scholarship during the spring semester of the 1950-51 session. These girls' names appear on the Dean's List which has just been released by the Registrar's office. The Dean's List is composed of those students who made at least a 2.25 average on the preceding semester's work.

Students whose names appear on the Dean's List are entitled to unlimited class cuts. New students will be eligible for this scholastic recognition next semester.

Seven Make All A's

There were seven students who made a straight A record for the spring semester. Hilda Bausermann, Edith Duvall, Anne Norman, and James Orange were graduating seniors who made all A's. Also achieving this record were Celeste Bishop, from Danville, Virginia Manvell, of Vienna, and Pat Tuggle, Wytheville.

The Dean's List includes Patricia Altwegg of Hilton Village, Flora Ballowe of Farmville, Mildred Bessing of Tazewell, Joyce Booth of Farmville, Vera Bryant of Boykins, and Betty Collier of Richmond.

Also recognized were Barbara Ann Cotton of Danville, Nancy Driskill of Roanoke, Lauralee Fritts of Ninevah, Norma Mae Gladding of Mears, Bonnie Goard of Danville, Sarah Ann Graham of Farmville, Fay Greenland of Norfolk, and Dorothy Gregory of Skipwith.

Also among those listed are Betty Lou Harmon of Tazewell, Sarah Harvie of Richmond, John Huegel of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, Maria Jackson of Lexington, and Lou Jamison of Forest.

Beverly Ann Johnson of Palmyra, Ruth Lacy of Farmville, Anne Lawrence of Portsmouth, Lucille Mann of Farmville, Margaret Miller of Front Royal, Calista Ann Moore of Mosely, Anne Oakley of Danville, Roberta Obenshain of Roanoke, Susan Oliver of Meridithville, and Stokes Overby of Danville also achieved the necessary B plus average.

Mary Jo Smith of Front Royal, Helen Tanner of Richmond, Patricia Taylor of Roanoke, Elizabeth Ann Thomas of Newport News, Martha Tomlinson of Waverly, Eleanor Weddle of Roanoke, Elsie Anne eWNte of Hilton Village, Janet Wiggins of Arlington, Mary Denny Wilson of Danville, and Josephine Zitta of Petersburg also appear on the list.

Mr. Patterson, holding the position of audio-visual lab instructor at Longwood, attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute and received his B. S. and M. A. degrees from the University of Virginia. Mr. Patterson comes here from Louisa County where he was principal of the elementary school.

Returning to Longwood as associate professor of history is Dr. Francis Simkins. He formerly taught at Emory University, Longwood, and for three years was an instructor at Louisiana State University. Dr. Simkins, a native of South Carolina, received his A. B. at the University of South Carolina and his M. A. and Ph. D. at Columbia University.

Dr. Simonini is serving as new head of the English department. Before coming to Longwood, he was a professor of English at Eastern Carolina College, head of the English department at Washington College, and lecturer in English at the University of Maryland. Dr. Simonini is a native of Maryland. He received his A. B. degree from John Hopkins and his M. A. and Ph. D. from the University of North Carolina.

Instructor of organ, Mr. Warrington is a native of Catskill, New York. He attended Ithaca College and while there received his B. S. degree in music education and his Bachelor of Music in organ. Mr. Warrington has given several recitals at Cornell University, and served as organist at the Church of the Immaculate Conception and the First Unitarian Church.

Frosh Begin New Course In Problems

A course in freshmen problems, taught by Dean Ruth Gleaves and Miss Nancy Chambers, began Monday. All freshmen are required to take the class which meets once a week and will continue for the entire semester.

The purpose of the class is to help new students adjust to college life. Some of the topics to be covered by the course in freshmen problems are "Learning to Live with Others and Adjustment to College Life", "Wise Expenditure of Time and Funds," "Learning in College," "Personality Development", and "Family and Home Life."

Among the other topics to be taken up are "Developing a Wholesome Philosophy of Life", "Achieving Mental and Physical Health", and "Family and Home Life."

Conditions conductive to good study, use of the library, and note taking will be taken up under the topic "Learning in College".

Ethel Straw, senior from Brookneal has been selected to act as chairman of the senior class's part in Circus. As committe heads, she has selected Pat Tuggie for make-up; Bunny Ricks, seis; and Gene Moore, props. Nancy Garbee will manage the lighting; May Henry Sadler, music; and Jo Price and Anne Oakley will be in charge of costumes.

The junior class has selected Joanne Steck of Fredericksburg and Jean Partridge of Branchville to serve as co-chairmen for the festivities. The committee heads appointed by them were Ann Murphy and Kitty Hamlet, dance; Janice Pinkard, Lillian Shelton, and Betty Jo Jennings, costuming; and Betty Abbitt, booths. Working on sets and props are Barbara Caskey, Lelia Wingfield, Betty Hancock and Roberta Browning.

Blanton Ferguson of Richmond, to be assisted by Cleo Holliday of Suffolk, was elected by the sophomores to act as head of the class stunt. Peggy Hood and Ilia Desportes have been placed in charge of lighting; Lyn Hill, assisted by Mary Ann Evans and June Wilmoth, props; and Betty Lou Garrett, Liz Crockett, and Moneda Key, dance. Mary Evelyn Bennett, Lou Beavers, Jane Branch and Betty Goodson, compose the committee on music while Pat Altwegg will be in charge of floats. Betty Benton and Claire Krienbaum will manage the booths, and June Horton, June Johns and Mary Ann King will take care of costuming.

Freshmen co-chairmen are Nancy Nelson and Carolyn Stanley. Committee heads for the freshman part in Circus have not yet been chosen, and will be announced in the next issue of this paper.

The events of the annual circus will begin at 3:30 p. m. Saturday, October 27 with a parade of clowns, animals, and floats through the streets of Farmville. At 8 p. m. the class stunts will take place in the new auditorium. Following their presentation, refreshments will be sold at the booths in the recreation hall of Ruffner building and a dance will be sponsored by the senior class.

The stunts of each class will be kept a secret until the final dress rehearsal.

Big Top to Unfurl to Tune of 'Merry-Go-Round-the-World' Altwegg to Crack Animal Whip

The big top and the excitement that goes with it will go up Saturday, October 27 at 3:30 p. m. when the annual Alpha Kappa Gamma Circus gets under way with a colorful parade through the strets of Farmville. Pat Altwegg, sophomore from Hilton Village will act as animal trainer for the week end festivities, as announced by Margaret Thomas who is head of circus this year.

The flap to the big tent will be opened at 8 p. m. Saturday night in Jarman Hall when each of the classes will present its act for the spectators. The themes of the acts will not be revealed until that time. The classes will be judged on their skits, according to originality, presentation, and suitability.

"Merry-Go-Round-The-World" which has been selected as the general theme for this year, will be carried out in decorations and the court. Reigning over the annual affair will be a senior dressed to portray the United States, while her attendants, who have been selected from the three other classes, will represent the Orient, the South, and the North. The names of these girls and the countries which they represent will be revealed that night.

Ice cream, popcorn, candy, and soft drinks will be sold in the recreation hall of Ruffner after the skits. A dance, sponsored by the senior class, will conclude the day's activities.

Maria Jackson and Marian Beckner are acting as co-heads of stunts for Circus, while Nancy Walker, with the assistance of Peggy Harris and Lucy Page Hall, is in charge of the parade. Animals and costumes are being managed by Jean Ridenour, Betty Scott Borkey, and Mildred Blessing.

The committee working on advertising is composed of Pat Tuggle, Virginia McLean, and Mary Jo Smith. Acting as co-chairman of the committee for decorations and booths are Shirley Livesay and Mary Crawford. Martha Alice Wilson and Dolores Hoback are in charge of the court.

Drama Group Selects 'Ladies In Retirement' For Fall Presentation

Club Will Present Play November 30

The Longwood Players, under the direction of Dr. C. L. S. Earley, will present "Ladies in Retirement," a play by Edward Percy and Reginald Denham, at 8:30 p. m., November 30, in Jarman Auditorium. "Ladies in Retirement" featuring Flora Robson, the famous English actress, was a Broadway success in 1940.

The theme of the play is laid on the marshes of the Thames River in an old house. The year is 1885. The main character, Ellen Creed, is a friend and companion to Leonora Fiske, ex-musical comedy actress. Ellen brings her two sisters, Louisa and Emily Creed, to live in the old house by the Thames. Within a short time, Miss Fiske realizes that the sisters are insane and demands that Ellen take them back to London. In order to secure a home for her sisters, Ellen kills Miss Fiske. From then on Ellen is pursued by her own conscience and by an arrogant nephew who has stumbled onto her secret.

Six women and one man make up the production. Casting is taking place at present, and tryouts for the roles are being held in Jarman Auditorium. Announcement of the lead will be made early next week.

Faculty Members Administration Go To State Schools

Members of the faculty and administration have begun their annual visits to high schools all over the state, according to Mrs. Mary Watkins, college secretary. Every week since high school sessions began representatives of Longwood have tourneyed to the various Virginia high schools.

On OOctober 11 Miss Watkins visited in the schools of Pluvanna and Mecklinsburg counties. The 18th found her in Buckingham county, and on the 24th she visited schools in Brunswick county.

Dean William W. Savage has also been touring high schools. On October 15, he visited in the Tidewater region. He plans to be on hand for the College Day program which is being held at Thomas JeffersonHigh School in Richmond on the 26th. Also on Dean Savage's schedule is a tour of the Eastern Shore schools on October 29, 30, and 31.

Mr. Raymond French, chemistry professor, visited high schools in his native part of the state, Northern Nevk, on October 19. Another professor making high school visits is Dr. Brumfield, assistant professor of biology. On the 19th of this month he traveled to Halifax County to talk to high school seniors. On the 23rd he plans to go to Campbell and Pittsylvania Counties to try to influence high school seniors to come to Longwood.

Each year similiar visits are made by representatives of Longwood to high schools all over the state in an effort to interest girls

String Quartet To Give Opening Lyceum Program

Noted Conducted To Lead Concert

The Alabama String Quartet will give the first concert of the Farmville Lyceum Series at 8 p. m. in Jarman Hall Thursday, November 15.

The Quartet consists of Ottokar Cadek, leader; Emily Searcy, second violinist; Margaret Christy, cellist; and Henry Barrett, violist. The entire quartet is made up of members of the faculty of the University of Alabama.

Mr. Cadek was violinist of the New York String Quartet for thirteen years and is now head of the violin department at the University of Alabama. He also conducts the University's symphony orchestra and leads it string quartet. During the summer Mr. Cadek heads the violin department of the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Michigan.

Second violinist, Miss Searcy, is a graduate of the University where she studied under Mr. Cadek. She has also studied in New York, Boston, and with the Budapest Quartet.

Miss Christy, who is a native of Minneapolis, has studied with Roentyen, Graudan, Willche, and Roentyen, Graudan, Willche and Silva. She attended the Beach Festival at Prades, France last summer.

Before becoming a member of the Alabama String Quartet Mr Barrett was a member of the Birmingham Civic Symphony Orchestra. He holds a master's degree from the University where he studied under Mr. Cadek.

The Alabama String Quartet has been hailed by critics as representing the highest standards in its field. It has also been called one of the most significant achievements of music in the South today.

Planned to appeal to the interests of all, the program will include classical, modern, and contemporary selections.

Walker Announces Annual Song Contest

The annual song contest between Green 'n White and Red 'n White will be held Tuesday, November 6 during the regular assembly period according to Nancy Walker, president of the Athletic Association.

Each year the A.A. sponsors this competition among the classes and awards to the winners points towards the color cup. All four classes make up original songs and sing them for the judges. The judges choose what they consider the best song on basis of originality and spirit. Last year's seniors had their song chosen as best and the juniors were runners up.

Most of the classes have already chosen a committee to compose the song which they will use in the assembly the sixth.

Governor Comes to Campus For Dedication of Buildings

Among the celebrities on hand for the dedicatory exercises held in the new Jarman Auditorium last Saturday, October 20, were Hon. John Stewart Battle, governor of Virginia; Hon. Blake Tyler Newton, president of the State Board of Education, and Dr. John R. Hutcheson, chancellor of V. P. I.

The exercises began with the academic procession followed with the invocation by Dr. Edgar G. Gammon, president of Hampden-Sydney College. In the opening address which followed, Governor Battle presented the three new buildings—Jarman Auditorium, Stevens Science Hall, and Tabb Dormitory to the school and to the state. Governor Battle closed his presentation speech by saying, "May those who pass through their portals stand always as unshakeable as these buildings of stone and mortar."

As president of the State Board, Mr. Newton accepted the buildings in a short speech. Dr. Lancaster then introduced Mr. William N. Neff, a member of the State Board of Education and a close friend of Dr. Jarman. Mr. Neff paid tribute to Dr. Jarman and gave a brief sketch of his life. Mr. Neff stated that the simple design and muted colors of the auditorium were indeed appropriate for a building dedicated to such simple but great man.

Mrs. E. Winston Cobb Weaver, a Longwood graduate of the class of 1933, next paid tribute to her former science teacher, Dr. Edith Stevens to whom the new science building was dedicated.

An In Memorium speech for Miss Jennie Masters Tabb, former college registrar and author of Alma Mater to whom the new Tabb Hall was dedicated, was given by Mrs. William Cabell Flournoy. Mrs. Flournoy graduated with Miss Tabb in 1933. Following this speech three selections were sung by the college choir.

Dr. Hutcheson then gave the principal address of the day. In his address he brought out the purpose of education and its place in the world today.

Dr. Lancaster then made several announcements. He thanked Mrs. Mattox for the Della Robia murals around which the auditorium was designed. After this the meeting closed with the recessional.

The Jarman Memorial Organ was dedicated in the afternoon. Miss Helen Costan, president of the Alumnae Association, presided over the meeting. The organ was presented to the college on the behalf of the Alumnae Association by Mrs. Maria Bristow Starke. Dr. Lancaster accepted the organ for the college.

Since the president of the organ company was ill, the organ was not completely installed and the concert originally planned for this time could not be given. However, Miss Leola Wheeler, former Longwood dramatics and speech teacher, rounded out the program by reading two poems.

Longwood To Hold Fall VIPA Meet

The fall convention of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association will be held at Longwood November 16, 17 and 18. Attending this convention will be representatives from almost every college in Virginia.

The group will convene first at a steak banquet to be held at Hampden Sydney at 8 p. m. Friday evening. A noted Virginia journalist will then speak to members of the Association. On Saturday morning critique session for annuals, magazines and newspapers will be conducted by authorities invited from all over the state. A dance will be held in the College gymnasium Saturday evening.

A general business session will conclude the convention Sunday morning.

The VIPA, which originated about twenty-five years ago and held it's first convention at this college, is an organization for the betterment of college publication, attended by representatives of newspapers, magazines, and year books from college all over the state of Virginia, is held every spring and fall. At this time pertinent problems are discussed and awards are given to the best college publications.

700 Return To Longwood

Saturday, October 20, found approximately seven hundred alumnae back at Longwood for the dedication services. This year was reunion year for the classes of every fifth year since 1891; however, many more were present.

Two o'clock Saturday afternoon a business meeting of the Association of Alumnae was held with Miss Helen Costan presiding. In this meeting a Longwood plate was presented to each of the five alumnae of the class of 1901, who were celebrating their 50th reunion.

A "Jarman Cup" was given to the class of 1926 for the highest percentage of attendance. Mrs. Anne Smith Green, president of the class of 1926, was recognized also. The Washington Chapter, with Mrs. Emily Green as president, was awarded for having twenty-five of its members to return to the college.

Each reunion class held separate functions. The class of 1926 breakfasted at Longwood House; the Virginia Room was used as the center of activities for the class of 1911, and the other classes met in various rooms.

Freshmen Choose Miss Chambers As Class Sponsor

Committee Chosen For Song Contest

The freshman class elected Miss Nancy Chambers, assistant Dean of Women, as their sponsor at a meeting held Monday night.

Miss Chambers, a native of Tillman, South Carolina, has been associated with the Longwood administration since this year's summer session. Miss Chambers or 'Hoot' as she was nick-named by her classmates while attending Longwood, was graduated in 1948, and was thus a red and white. However, according to "Hoot", she will be a true green and white as the freshman class sponsor.

Miss Chambers served as editor of the Virginian during her senior year at Longwood. She was a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity and Kappa Delta social sorority. Upon graduation "Hoot" entered laboratory work at Merck Company, then taught biology and general science at Great Bridge in Norfolk County.

Miss Chambers, when interviewed, told how she had been nick-named. "While I was at Longwood," she explained, "I sat at a table in the dining hall with a group of girls who were 'wheels' —members of May Court, cadet sponsors and such. I was just Nancy. Then someone remarked that I too had looks—that I resembled 'Hoot' of the Grand Ole Oprey. So I was named and have remained."

Kappa Delta Pi Bids 16 To Membership

Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary educational society, issued invitations October 17 to sixteen upperclassmen on the basis of scholarship and character.

Seniors receiving bids were Peggy Harris of Emporia; Virginia McLean, Richmond; Gene Moore, Lynchburg; Stokes Overbey, Danville; and Elizabeth Wilkerson, Richmond.

Celeste Bishop of Danville; Polly Brothers, Suffolk; Barbara Cotton, Danville; Nancy Driskill, Roanoke; and Sarah Harvie, Richmond were among the juniors receiving bids.

Other juniors honored were Sonia Kile, Drexel Hill, Pennsylvania; Nancy Purdum, Danville; Elizabeth Stone, Rustburg; Helen Tanner, Richmond; Pat Taylor, Roanoke; and Janet Wiggins, Arlington.

Initiation service for the new members of Kappa Delta Pi will take place November 14.

Orchesis Makes Plans For Dance, Recital During Coming Year

Orchesis, the modern dance club, has announced tentative dance plans for the school year.

Between Thanksgiving and Christmas the Fourth Annual Dance Day will be held. The main feature of Orchesis for this occasion will be the "Tidewater Virginia Episode," which was given previously for the Southern Music Education Association last April. Practice for the recital has already begun.

The recital to be given February 15, will have a dedicatory theme, centering around the new buildings. The use of the organ, group voices in song and chorus, and the speaking voice will highlight this phase of the recital. The group is undecided at the present whether to further develop "The Wise in Heart" for the recital or to explore the possibilities of "The Mockingbird," a novel by Robert Ramsey as a dance drama.

According to Marian Beckner, president of the modern dance club, there are 28 active members and apprentices.

The first major project of the club this year concerns the final drawing up of a constitution, which has been under study for the past two years.

What Can We Do?

When the hands of the clock reach 3:30 a. m. and there are lights still shining in at least a few windows of junior and senior dormitories, despite House Council rulings, there is evidently a reason for it. And that reason is worth looking into.

In almost EVERY case, those students who burn the early morning oil, not the midnight, are studying. It doesn't seem probable that those who aren't studying would sit up several nights during the week to play a rubber of bridge or chat with their roommates concerning the past week end. If they're foolish enough to do so, then more power to them—they deserve to feel perfectly "rotten" the next morning and receive the meaningful look sent them by their professors during the morning classes.

This editorial concerns only the students who MUST jeopardize their health, disposition and grades by staying up so late at night. Why? Ask the lucky or perhaps the wise ones who haven't yet been afflicted. Why? Do the students of Longwood spend their afternoons talking, playing cards, or just loafing in the College Snack Bar, forcing themselves therefore to spend the whole night studying so that they may present at least a half-prepared lesson in student teaching or make a passing grade on a test?

Unfortunately so, there are some who spend their afternoons AND evenings in such ways, but more often than not they are the ones who manage to be asleep by one o'clock "lights out." It doesn't seem possible that by belonging to one sixth of the Longwood organizations a student should be so caught up in extra-curricular activities that his or her afternoons and evenings (not one but nearly every day in the week) are spent working on this committe or that group or at least attending a meeting of the organization. But it is possible; in fact, it's so real that the students of Longwood need to get enough sleep one night to look at the thing logically. We are participating in the activities of TOO MANY ORGANIZATIONS. Yet if we do, the questions will arise, "How can I possibly drop this group—I have been pledged, it is supposedly honorary and if my professor finds that I'm not attending, he will think that I'm not interested and down goes my grade. Or how can I drop that one? I'm so involved now that it would be unfair to leave the job I'm doing when all the others are just as busy as I. Or I could drop the organization that takes the most of my time, only it happens to be the one in which I am most interested and in which I enjoy the work".

When a student practice teaches, belongs to eight or even less organizations, and is still expected to maintain a scholastic standing of at least a C average, there is no solution but to stay up late. Some one may suggest that such students use the week ends. Many do, an dstill there are lights burning. Too, week ends are often the only time a student has a chance to relax and make up for sleep lost. The answer is not that simple.

The writer of the editorial is not offering a solution, only putting in print what seems to be discussed from morning to night. "There's too much to do and not nearly enough hours in a day to do it all. I'm so tired I can hardly see, but what can I do about it." What can we do, Longwood students?

A Day To Remember

Longwood experienced one of the most brilliant days in her long and wonderful history on Saturday. Historically speaking, it was a day which will long be remembered, by alumnae young and old, and by every freshman who learns the most important things about her new college home. Socially speaking, it seemed to be one of the happiest, friendliest occasions ever to occur, as alumnae and life-long friends of the College poured in en masse to share in the festivities.

If the day were judged according to the prominence of the leaders present, it could never be forgotten. All Longwood proudly welcomed the Honorable John Stewart Battle, governor of Virginia — proudly because of the high esteem in which he is held by all; proudly because of the progress which she had to show him, and proudly because we love our college. Also participating in the ceremonies were the Honorable Blake Tyler Newton, president of the State Board of Education, and Dr. John R. Hutcheson, chancellor of V. P. I.

The real meaning of the day, however, can be found in the lives of those great individuals to whom the new buildings were dedicated: the beloved Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, long president of our College; Miss Jennie Master Tabb, former registrar of Longwood and author of our Alma Mater; and Dr. Edith Stevens, whose womanly service in the teaching field made her a lasting inspiration.

These three new buildings stand as marks of true progress, for it is not only physical progress but a growth of a deeper sort. As we work and study and live in these modern, newly equipped buildings, and as we thrill to the music of the beautiful Jarman Organ, we will have a certain awareness of a spirit of greatness which swells in the silence of the stately halls. For these are memorials to great people, to people whose spirits and whose deeds have lived after them and will live for time to come. And these were made possible by the hard work of other people who have given of their lives to Longwood. Thanks go to Dr. Lancaster, for it is his untiring effort which has brought about this "real" growth, and to the State Board of Education, and to all alumnae and friends of the College.

We will be proud to come back to a beautiful campus for many years to come, just as we shall always be proud of what the spirit of the leaders of our College through the years will mean to us. And as Governor Battle said in his Saturday address, "May those who pass through these portals stand always as unshakeable as these buildings of stone and mortar."

Don't Forget Circus

Students of Longwood have been forsaking classes, sleep, and even dates during the two weeks for one of the biggest events of the year—Alpha Kappa Gamma Circus.

Let's be sure to attend and show our enthusiasm. Applause may influence the circus judges.

Hello, Joe

By Barbara White

Dear Joe,

Once a year at Longwood College, Founder's Day rolls around. On this occasion lots of alumnae troop back to the college to pay homage to their dear old Alma Mater. This year we almost hit the jackpot—that is we almost had a real founder. One of the returning alumnae graduated in 1891—how close can you get to the real McCoy; next year they are going to award the oldest alumnae a fountain pen guaranteed for life. It should be a pretty safe investment.

One of the ladies was overheard discussing her family. Seems they went on a trip this summer out West and unfortunately had a car wreck. When they looked around, they found that they were all sitting on cacti. The mother jumped up and yelled "ouch." Then the father jumped up and yelled "ouch," but the little boy just sat there. Mother looked at father with tears in her eyes and said, "Pa, have we raised a dead end kid?" I am sorry if you don't get the point.

The dedication of the new buildings which was the highlight of this year's Founder's Day, was most impressive. The American way of dedication is most puzzling. Either some dame dripping with fur breaks a bottle over something or there are many boring speeches. I'm indeed glad that we Russians just, favor a big red party!

Love In Stalin,
Comrade White

Chi, Longwood's secret organization, has recently given the cornerstones for Jarman Hall and Edith Stevens Science Building. We deem it a great honor to give a small part of a memorial to Dr. Joseph L. Jarman and Edith Stevens, two people whom we feel had the true spirit of friendliness and helpfulness, the spirit of Longwood.

Come To Circus

Circus Brings Out Talent Of Would-Be Prima-Donnas

by Phoebe Warner & Shirley Ward

'To be or not to be. That is the question." While strolling along Broadway, if you should pass an open theater door, you might hear these famous lines.

But if you should amble by the many scenes of circus rehearsals at the wee hour of 10 p. m., at Longwood College, you might hear these immortal words: "Take your fists out of your mouth when you're talking!"

When we said "hear these immortal words" we do mean "hear" for you coldn't help comprehending the blast of the various circus chairmen trying to speak above the chit-chat of the talented, excitable prima donnas.

It seems that some (of what we will now term "characters") are having a little trouble in keeping their hands out of their mouths. Let's hope they'll have them out by Saturday night.

Would you like to listen in on one of these rehearsals? Then taking a little of the senior's sophistication, adding a pinch of the freshmen's gullability, and whipping in well the juniors' ambition, not to forget a heaping tenspoonful of the sensational, sagacious sophomores we come out with a brew known as the average circus rehearsal of the contemporary classes.

"I'll have to get a new partner; I just can't sing with this piano," is a familiar refrain that gushes forth from the newly rising Rise Stevenses, Lily Ponses, and Mary Margaret Trumans.

Then, as a usual thing, the circus chairman passes around the collection plate to those persons having their own ideas about how the show should be run—to put in their two-cents worth—ending up with a most tidy sum.

Everything in the rehearsal runs very smoothly, and peace and quiet prevails in the atmosphere of the meeting places on said nights. Committees bang and slam props around while people wander across the stage who aren't supposed to be in the scené or maybe not even in the skit and prompters efficiently yelling wrong lines to the characters.

"Put life into it—act as if it were really happening to you!"

"You're not Mary Jones—you're a monkey!"

"Remember this isn't champagne you're drinking!"

Well, let's leave the circus chairmen and crew with their troubles, but with a reminder that all the trouble will be worthwhile when the circus gets into full swing on Saturday night.

Strollin' with Stokes

By Stokes Overby

At the present time, Student Standards regulates the number of organizations to which a person may belong and the number of offices which one may hold. The numbers are eight and three, respectively. However, there is always a great deal of grumbling around school about the numerous meetings to be attended, the work to be done, etc. These factors prompted us to ask: "Do you think that participation in too many organizations is allowed?"

Anne Moseley declared, "I think that a girl should be able to hold any number of offices for which she can comfortably and efficiently perform the duties." Joan Matthews added, "I don't think participation in eight organizations is too many if the girl is capable. Let each individual be her own judge."

On the other hand, Caroline McDonald stated, "I think the number should be cut down to five organizations. Then people would choose their extra-curricular activities more carefully." Ethel Straw said, "I don't think three offices is too many to hold in small organizations, but in organizations involving large numbers of people such as Government, House Council, and Y. W. C. A. it is too many. There are some relatively unimportant organizations that require more time than they warrant." Becky Mann pointed out, "There are too many organizations on this campus that don't actually contribute anything to the improvement of college life. However, they could make a vital contribution if organizations with similar purposes could be combined."

Mary Helen Cook's viewpoint was: "One of the things we should learn at college is how to budget our time. Each person should decide how much she can take on without interference in her studies, but I agree with the limit placed on three offices in college organizations". Maria Jackson suggests a little more equal distribution of offices, saying, "there is a lot of undiscovered talent in this school."

Madison McClintic's solution was: "Why don't more people concentrate their efforts on one specific organization and get some definite results?" Many of us are inclined to agree with his observation, "There are far too many meetings, far too often, at the most inconvenient hours!"

TENNIS SINGLES

The fall singles tennis tournament is in full swing now. At present the quarter finals are being played off. It will be quite a while though before we know who gets those points toward the color cup. So many people entered the tournament this year that there are many more matches than we've had in the tournament of the past few years. Why not come out and watch a set or two? You'll enjoy the excitement and pick up some pointers on your own game.

LONGWOOD VS. LYNCHBURG

What did you think of our hockey game with Lynchburg College? The varsity team is really rolling this year from the looks of things. In case you don't remember the score of this game was 3-0 in our favor.

This Saturday the hockey team will try for another win. We will play West Hampton College at their field in Richmond. Game time is 11:00 a. mfl

SWIMMING MEET

Our swimming meet this winter will be an intercollegiate one. It wil ltake place in the oLngwood pool sometime in December. As yet we don't known what other colleges will participate, but the H20 Club is writing to Virginia Colleges making arrangements with them. We'll tell you more about this later when plans are definite.

All of you Red n' White and Green n' White hockey enthusiasts, the clas shockey games will begin on November 14. Games will be on November 14, 15, 19 and 20. Be sure you're there!

If you haven't gotten in your eight hockey practices yet, you'd better hurry up. Practices are held every Monday through Thursday at 3:00 p. m. For those of you who are in class at this time, a practice has been scheduled at 4:00 p. m on Mondays. Let's se if we can't get out to practice at one of these times or November 14 will be a sorry day.

Longwood Beats Lynchburg In Opening Game of Season With Shutout Score of 3-1

Borum, Bradshaw Make LC Goals

The Lynchburg College hockey team traveled to Farmville on October 12 to be set back 3-0 by the Longwood varsity team.

The Longwood lassies completely dominated the play during the first half. Clara Borum, Longwood Inner, scored for her team in the firts half and when half time rolled around the score was 1-0 in favor of Longwood.

Lynchburg came back fighting in the second half but they were not able to penetrate the strong defensive team of Longwood. During the second half Longwood made many efforts to score but couldn't seem to get the ball past the Lynchburg goalie, Broyles, who played an excellent game.

Two goals were scored in the second half of the game by Nell Bradshaw, and Clara Borum, Longwood forwards.

Church News

Methodist

Ann Lawrence, Lucille Thompson, Jo Zitta, and Janet Wiggins represented the Wesley Foundation at a Methodist Student Movement Conference held at Natural Bridge the week end of October 13 and 14. The Methodist group plans to hold a similiar conference at Longwood the week end of November 3 and 4.

Baptist

A Y.W.A. meeting will be held on Thursday, November 1, at 7 p. m., at the Baptist Student Center. On Monday, November 5 at 5 p. m., Miss Mary J. Augurstein, a representative from the Baptist Training School in Louisville will be at the center. She will show slides on the Seminary and Training School at the Student Center.

Episcopal

The Episcopal Church observed Youth Sunday October 21. Hampden-Sydney boys conducted the service. The service was read by James Derrickson; Jack Mace read the lesson; and Claud McCauley preached the sermon. The regular Candle Light Service was held Sunday night after which a discussion on the faith of the church was held.

Inter-Varsity

Miss Alice Alter, the Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship staff worker, visited the group on this campus Sunday and Monday, October 14 and 15. The group will hold a Bible study this Thursday at 5 o'clock in the "Y" lounge continuing the discussion of the Gospel of John.

The Public Health Service predicts that this year will be much milder for polio than 1950, basing its prediction upon reports of a continued nation - wide decline in cases of the disease. During the week ending October 6, there were 1,272 new cases reported making the cumulative total for 1951 21,775 cases, compared with 23,341 for the same period last year.

to a great place like that deserves a big space like this.

Visitors

Leonard Collins and Paul Kersey visited Ilia Desportes and Blanton Ferguson.

John Guy and Albert Crigler dropped in a few minutes on Nancy Brown and Shirley Lewis.

And speaking of visitors to the campus, we were all very happy and mighty pleased to see all the old almunae back for our big week end. Let us hope that we will have some more buildings to be dedicated in the not too distant future, so that we will have more company, of course.

West Point

Mary Elva Robinson and Nancy Walker journeyed to West Point for a big week end last week end. They visited Cecil Sykes and Dick Moore.

Randolph-Macon

Sarah Lu Bradshaw and Mary Jo Smith attended the Phi Delt Rush party at Randolph-Macon with Al Chenery and Jerry McCraw.

Choir to Sing In Richmond November 2

The Longwood choir under the direction of Dr. John W. Molnar, will journey to Richmond Friday, November 2, to sing for the general session of the Virginia Education Association.

The concert will be held at 8 p. m., in the auditorium of John Marshall High School. The program will open with the singing of "Flowers O' The Forest," a Scotch folk song arranged by Hugh S. Robertson. "Ave Verum" by Josquin Despres will be the second number. Next the choir will render "My Love Dwelt in a Northern Land" by Edward Elgar. "Open Thy Heart" by George Bizet will be the closing selection.

Students are asked to patronize Rotunda advertising.

Alabama String Four Announces Selections

Group Will Perform In New Jarman Hall

The program for the lyceum to be given by the Alabama String Quartet in Jarman Hall, Thursday, November 15 has been announced by Dr. John W. Molnar. A Quartette, "The Lark" by Haydn will be used as the opening number by the group. The Quartette is composed of Allegro, Andante, Minuetto, and Allegro. The second selection will be "Andante Cantabile" from Quartette No. 1 by Tschaikovsky followed by "Ccherao" from E Flat minor Quartette also by Tschaikovsky.

"L'Oracon de Torero" by Turono and "Italian Serenade" by Wolfe will be played by the String Quartet as the fourth and fifth Program selections. The final number of the evening will be Quartette in d minor, "Death and the Maiden" by Schubert.

The quartet is composed of faculty members of the University of Alabama. All members are recognized musicians, and through the quartet they have done much to build up the musical reputation of the South. The members are Ottokar Cadek, leader; Emily Searcy, second violinist; Margaret Christy, Cellist; and Henry Barrett, violist.

Mr. Cadek has brought the Alabama String Quartet to a degree of perfection which has caused it to be compared favorably with the finest quartets in the country.

Mr. Cadek is a native of Chattanooga, Tennessee, where his father founded a still famous conservatory of music. He studied in Durich, Switzerland, from which he holds the artists diploma. In concerts throughout the country he has played with Bauer, Gabrilowitch, Grainger, Friedburg, Lhevinne, and many others. He was recently presented with the priceless Stradivarius violin, made in 1718, which he has used in concerts ever since he was first violinist of the New York String Quartette from 1919 until 1933.

It has been said that "So completely did these four artists feel and play together, so perfect was the blending and balance of tone that the audience felt that the quartet was but a single instrument,—an instrument played with sincerity and artistic perfection."

From all indications the first concert of the Lyceum Series promises to furnish a real evening's entertainment for music lovers of Farmville and surrounding communities.

Pi Gamma Mu Elects Dr. Moss As Advisor

Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss has been elected new advisor for Pi Gamma Mu, social science society, according to Laura Lee Fritts, president. He replaces Dr. Marvin V. Schlegel, associate professor of history and social science, who recently resigned the position.

Dr. Moss is head of the Longwood department of history and social sciences and was the first faculty advisor to the Women's Student Council, the governing body of the Student Government Association, serving in that capacity from the spring of 1945 to February of 1951.

Colonnade Reveals '51-'52 Winners of Prose Contest

Margaret Perrow, Betty Collier, and Barbara Caskey were chosen as first, second, and third prize winners in the 1951-52 Colonnade short story-essay contest. These winners were announced in a recent assembly by Helen Tanner, essay editor and Laura Lee Fritts, short story editor.

Margaret Perrow, freshman from Altavista, was awarded the first prize of five dollars for her short story The Pine, Where Dead Dreams Go, a short story by Betty Collier, junior from Richmond, was chosen for second place. Betty was awarded a prize of three dollars. Another short story, Justice was judged third place winner. The story was written by Barbara Caskey, junior from Richmond ,and Barbara was awarded a prize of two dollars.

Honorable Mention

Also announced at the same time were seven honorable mentions. Olga Rodriquez received mention for her essay America, As Seen Through the Eyes of a Foreigner. Two entries by Eloise Macon, a short story entitled To Be Free and an essay Another Is Added, were given honorable mention. Gail Moon's The Wax Works and Joanne Steck's Unity, both short stories were also honored. The other two entries receiving honorable mention were essays—Ivy by Betty Jane Staples and I Remember Christmas by Joan De Alba.

Barbara Assaid also won honorable mention for her essay Prelude to Hysteria.

Each of these winning compositions will appear in one of the issues of the Colonnade, according to Nancy Garbee, editor. Nancy also announces that the first issue will appear soon after Thanksgiving holidays.

Frosh Choose Bentley Pres.

At a meeting on Tuesday night, October 30, the freshman class elected Betty Bentley, President of the class, and Georgette Puryear, House President.

Betty attended Washington and Henry High School near Richmond, Virginia, and was secretary of the Senior Class, Secretary and Treasurer of the Monogram Club, and Associate Ecitor of the yearbook. She took part in Circus and has appeared on the Longwood Hour program over WFLO.

Georgette graduated from the Glen Allen High School, Richmond, Virginia where she was a member of the basketball squad and a member of the 4-H Club. She is the scribe of the Virginia Chapter of 4-H All Stars for 1952. Since her arrival here she has become a member of the Hockey Team and a Fire Warden.

Girls Chosen By Faculty-Administration For All-Round Achievement At Longwood

Eleven senior students have been named by a faculty-administration committee to represent Longwood College in the eighteenth edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" for the current year.

Selected by the committee for their all-round achievement during the r years at Longwood, those recognized are Mary Helen Cook and Jean Ridenour, both from Richmond, Betty Borkey of Bowling Green, Nancy Garbee, Lynchburg, Dolores Hoback and Pat Tuggle, both of Wytheville, Maria Jackson of Lexington, Mary Jo Smith, Front Royal, Margaret Thomas from Atlee, Nancy Walker of Marion, and Martha Alice Wilson, Farmville.

Mary Helen Cook is president of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet, and has been associated with that organization throughout her years at Longwood. "Cookie" served as treasurer of the House Council during her sophomore year. Active in class and extra-curricular activities, she is a member of the Association for Childhood Education, the Cotillion Club, and Pi Kappa S gma sorority.

AKG President

Jean Ridenour is president of Alpha Kappa Gamma leadership fraternity. A member of the Monogram Club, and the A. A. Council, she served during her junior year as president of her class, and is vice-president this year. A member of the Cotillion Club, and figure leader for this year, she also belongs to Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

Betty Scott Borkey is editor of The Virginian. She served last year as photographic editor of the annual and was a staff member her sophomore year. Betty Scott acted as vice--president of the junior class, and was business manager of the Dramatic Club last year. Recently tapped to Alpha Kappa Gamma, she is also a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalistic fraternity, Kappa Delta Pi, honor society in education, the Cotillion Club, and Alpha S gma Alpha, social sorority.

Nancy Garbee, who edits The Colonnade, worked during her junior year as short story editor of the magazine, and also as vice-president of the Dramatic Club. She is a member of Boerc Eh Thorn, local English honorary society, Kappa Delta Pi, and the Spanish Club. She served last year as secretary of her sorority, Zeta Tau Alpha.

Student Standards President

Dolores Hoback, better known to Longwood as "Hoey", is president of the Student Standards Committee. She served on the Student Government Council during her freshman year, and is now a member of Boerc Eh Thorn, Orchesis, the Cotillion Club, and Alpha Kappa Gamma. A member of the College choir for several years, she also belongs to Kappa Delta, social sorority.

Pat Tuggle, president of the House Council, is also a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, leadership fraternity. A member of Orchesis and the choir, she also belongs to the Commercial Club. Kappa Delta Pi, and has served on Student Standards. She served last year on the Pan-Hel Council as representative from her sorority. Sigma Sigma Sigma, and is a member of the Cotillion Club.

Maria Jackson, vice-president of the Student Council, is vice-president of Alpha Kappa Gamma, president of the Spanish Club, and a member of Kappa Delta Pi. Pi Delta Epsilon, the College Choir, and the French Circle. She served as house president during her sophomore and junior years, and has been chairman of several class productions and circuses. This year she reigned as queen of the annual AKG Circus; she also represented her class on this court last year. A member of the Cotillion Club, she is also active in her sorority, Kappa Delta.

Margaret Thomas has been active in the Y. W. C. A., serving last year as treasurer. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma leadership fraternity, Kappa Delta Pi, and the Association for Childhood Education. A member of the Student Standards committee for three years, she acted as president of this organization last year. She is a member of the Cotillion Club, and served last year also as Pan-Hel representative from her sorority, Zeta Tau Alpha.

Rotunda Editor

Mary Jo Smith is Editor-in-chief of The Rotunda. She has been associated with the newspaper since her freshman year, serving as news editor and then as managing editor. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Pi Delta Epsilon, and Alpha Kappa Gamma, and was a member of the French Circle for several years. Last year she acted as vice-president of her sorority, Zeta Tau Alpha.

Nancy Walker, president of the Athletic Association, served as treasurer of this organization during her junior year. Active in class and varsity sports, she is a member of the Monogram Club, the H2O Club, and Orchesis. Serving last year as president of the Granddaughter's Club, she has also been recognized for her swimming abil ty by winning the Florida State Diving Championship two years ago. A member of the Cotillion Club, she also belongs to Alpha Kappa Gamma, and to Pi Kappa Sigma, social sorority.

Martha Alice Wilson, president of the Student Government Association, has been associated with this organization throughout her years at Longwood, serving last year as secretary. She served during her sophomore year as president of the Westminister Fellowship, and is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, and Alpha Kappa Gamma. Active in class productions and circuses, Martha Alice is also a member of the Cotillion Club and Alpha Sigma Alpha.

To be nominated for membership in Who's Who, a student must show outstanding effort and accomplishment in academic work extra-curricular activities and service to the college.

Notice

Students must pay for their 1951-52 VIRGINIANS on or before November 15, 1951. They may be purchased in Ruffner Hall across from Dean Sayle's office at specified times or from any member of the staff in their dormitory rooms. No annuals can be bought after November 15.

Dr. Early Reveals Cast 'Ladies In Retirement'

Holladay Takes Lead In Drama Club Play

Dr. C. L. S. Earley, instructor in speech and drama, has selected the cast for the play "Ladies In Retirement", to be presented by the Longwood Players at 8:00 p. m. November 30 in Jarman Auditorium. The play, under Dr. Earley's direction, will feature Cleo Holliday, Sally Wilson, Edwin Stanfield, Marion Thompson, Nancy Nelson, Jean Jinnett and Barbara White.

Cleo Holladay, a sophomore from Suffolk, has been selected to play the role of Ellen Creed, a middle-aged housekeeper-companion who murders her benefactress. The role of Leonora Fiske, an actress, living in comfortable retirement on funds supplied by admirers, will be played by Sally Wilson, a freshman from Hopewell.

The only male member of the cast is Edwin Stanfield, a student at Hampden - Sydney, having transferred this year from Arkansas College. Stanfield has appeared in such outstanding productions as "The Doll's House", "Twelfth Night", and the recent Broadway success, "The Hasty Heart." In "Ladies in Retirement", Edwin Stanfield will portray Albert Feather, who suspects his Aunt Ellen of murder and becomes a cunning blackmailer.

The roles of Emily and Louisa Creed, the two pathetic but insane sisters, will be portrayed by Marian Thompson, a sophomore from Danville, and Nancy Nelson, a freshman from Newport News. Both girls have been active in high school dramatics and Little Theatre productions before enrolling at Longwood.

Jean Jinnett from Richmond and a member of the Junior class, will be Lucy, Miss Fiskes' maid, who falls into Albert's ways and helps uncover the murder. Barbara White, another member of the Junior class from Roanoke, will be seen in the small but effective role of Sister Therese, a good neighbourly nun.

"Ladies in Retirement" was a Broadway success in 1941 and won nation-wide acclaim for Flora Robson, the English actress. A melodrama of suspense, "Ladies in Retirement" is a rather delicate study of murder and its effect on the sensative mind of Ellen Creed.

Marsh Announces Freedom Crusade Opens Here Today

The Student Government Association will sponsor a Crusade for Freedom drive during the week of November 7 through 14. Beverly Marsh, a junior, was elected by the members of the association to act as chairman of the committee.

The Crusade for Freedom, under the direction of General Lucius Clay, is an organization which operates from a giant 135,000 watt medium-wave station in Munich, Germany. It has as its purpose the combatting of Communist propaganda and the giving of hope to enslaved peoples. This station, known as Radio Free Europe, broadcasts hourly to listeners behind the Iron Curtain. Already 16 million Americans have responded to the appeal from the Crusade for Freedom and donated the $1,317,000 necessary to build Radio Free Europe. The results of the broadcasts have been extremely encouraging. This week's nation-wide drive is being conducted in order to make Radio Free Europe into a network of broadcasting stations.

Beverly Marsh urges that all Longwood students make their contributions and enroll in the Crusade for Freedom Drive. The size of contributions is not important. Longwood has not set her goal in terms of dollars but rather as one hundred percent enrollment. "If all faculty members and students join the Crusade for Freedom and give freely in their donations," says Beverly, "Longwood will be able to say that it has done its part in making the nation wide drive a success."

Poarch Announces Fall Cotillion Bids

Bootie Poarch, President of the Cotillion Club, has announced the names of thirty upperclassmen receiving Fall bids. The girls received their bids Thursday, November 1 at supper and those accepting the bids began wearing their green and yellow "goat ribbons" that night.

Among those receiving bids were Grace Booker, of Pamplin, Joyce Booth of Farmville, Clara Borum of Burkeville, Betty Campbell of Glasgow, Mary J. Carlyle of Bedford, Joyce Cutrell of Norfolk, Ann N. Dickinson of Rocky Mount, Pat Donnelly of Roanoke, Mary Ann Evans of Richmond, and Mildred Garnett of Chase City.

Also receiving bids were Joyce Gatling of Suffolk, Lynn Hill of Norfolk, Jean Hodges of South Hill, Peggy Hood of Newport News, Edith Kennon, of Gordonsville, Ann Oakley of Danville, Mildred Parker of Bedford, Marian Parrish of Emporia, Rachael Peters of Moneta, and Nancy Purdum of Danville.

Mrs. Conner Chosen As New House Mother Of Sophomore Dorm

Mrs. Spottswood Roberts Conner, originally from Chase City, Virginia, is the new hostess of the sophomore dormitory. Mrs. Conner, who arrived at Longwood on Friday, formerly did supervisory work at William and Mary College. She assisted the social dean, helped with the interior decorating of the college and supervised the fraternity lodges. Before working at William and Mary, Mrs. Conner was connected with St. Catherine's school in Richmond and with Hollins College.

Mrs. Conner replaces Mrs. Slayton who has served as hostess for the sophomore dormitory since 1950.

Too Young?

We, the college students of today and others of college age, are the younger generation of whom so much has been said and written. We are the wild, the untamed, the shocking youth of today who are unprepared for the problems of tomorrow, or so we have been advised many times. How much do we know about ourselves other than what we have heard (and somehow the worst usually manages to predominate) from our elders?

The November 5 issue of TIME has published an article "The Younger Generation" which is, in our estimation, one that every member of today's youth should want to read. TIME'S correspondents, through research, have revealed opinions of young people, teachers and guardians that clash "but nevertheless reveal a remarkably clear area of agreement on the state of the nation's youth."

Are we prepared to take upon our shoulders the responsibilities of tomorrow's world? They are waiting for us, but are we mature enough to take our places, or are we really the young whom many feel are prepared for nothing?

We have not voiced our ideas or our thoughts as did our elders, at least not verbally. We have been called the "Silent Generation"—not slurringly for have we not been taught that actions speak louder than words? Yet even the college professors who have been questioned say that the American student shies away from class discussion, that he would rather sit and take lecture notes.

May we attribute our silence to ignorance, unwillingness to face what we have learned, fear of the complexity of life caused by war, or is it, perhaps, due to a deliberate calm on our part? We feel it is a calm that speaks loudly of maturity and readiness for America to place her problems on the backs of the youth.

Our young men have shown a great sign of growth by the attitude they have adopted toward their part in the Korean War. Instead of a craze of drunkenness and wildness because of fear, the majority have, after receiving draft notice, kept on working and planning their future.

Are our morals low, our actions sensational, do we lack a faith? It seems evident that all of these questions deserve a negative reply. On the whole, our generation has morals befitting the standards of today, our actions are quiet (for the most part) and determined although tinged with a bit of pessimism, and if we lack a faith it is only because we have not yet found what it is we want to believe in. We do realize it is necessary to have a faith.

We, the younger generation, are ready and willing to serve, but in doing so we want life, liberty and happiness. If we carry out our responsibilities in a way unknown to our fathers, are we wild, shocking untamed youth or are we incapable of doing the work well? No! Every American generation has differed from the last. Yesterday's youth has becomes today's adults, and we are now the "younger generation."

In Regards

On the battlefront as well as at the United Nations Assembly the problem of peace attainment is still unsolved, and is clearly growing further away from settlement every day. On the battlefront, with the Korean fighting growing more intense as the negotiators argue, the Reds threaten once more to throw a monkey wrench into the "works." The Allies have proposed that the buffer zone be established wherever the battline happens to lie when the armistice is signed. This proposal has been termed as a "deceptive manuever" by the Reds, thus hinting that they might decide to reject our decision. A United Nations command spokesman declared today that if the Reds accept this proposal the time necessary to stop the 16-month-old war might be halved. It is obvious from observation of Red behavior that the word of the week is "Stall."

At the sixth United Nations Assembly meeting which is opening in Paris today, the United States and her Allies are expected to open a peace drive on the Reds. There are also a number of highly explosive questions which the Assembly must face: Atomic control, peace between the Arab states and Isreal, raising nationalism in the Middle East, Morocco's case against France, independence for Libya, the problems of Southwest Africa, Eritrea and Italian Somaliland. All of these are listed under the heading of possible of solution, but some of them are not probable.

Give, Forgive

If ever anyone needed help at any time, it is our college newspaper. Why, we hardly realize it is ours. There exists a small band of slave-laborers and people called editors who act as slave-drivers. These people toil all day and all night long on Monday and Tuesday. The students of Longwood when they complain about what's in the paper, and what's left out of the paper, and the mistakes that are made in the paper, and the fact that the paper doesn't come out but once every two weeks this year, should recall that there are people who try to make it a good college newspaper, and who want it to be one, but who need help.

The people on the staff get around a lot. They have their eyes and ears open. But, human enough, they are quite fallible and miss things often. Wouldn't it be grand if each of us would let one of the right people know about some story that we know about? It is too much to assume that they will find out about it themselves. Perhaps they will, and again, they may not. Social notes often leaves names out—names of persons who have been away on big week ends. How in the world can one expect one or two persons to know just where each of the more than six-hundred students at Longwood is over each week end?

In other words, the Rotunda feels that it would be a better newspaper and of greater interest if its readers would help and would deposit every little bit of news they can dig up in the Rotunda box.

It is with real appreciation and feeling that the editors commend those freshmen and other students who have worked so hard on the Rotunda. An unusually large and talented turn-out of freshmen has kept the staff going this year. It is also with pride that we speak of our new advisor, Dr. Robert Simonini, new head of the English department. We have many things to be thankful for, and even with the limited financial resources which necessitated the cutting of many issues, we still have our hopes high for a good Rotunda year. Please help!

Hello, Joe

by Barbara White

Dear Joe,

The past week end at Longwood College is hardly worth mentioning. You have never seen such a great exodus from a college in your life. The halls were so empty it felt like you were yelling down a hollow well every time you spoke. The elementary school was invited to Cunningham Hall to sing "Little Sir Echo" so that they could get the real effect.

Got a letter from Comrade Jensen in Alaska. He says it's really too cold up there among God's frozen people to perpetrate the Great Red Teaching to any extent.

Comrades, these Americans are so stupid. I have been trying to tell them that the inhabitants of Moscow are not called mosquitoes but they just will not believe it!

There are several new professors here at the College. The girls say some of the new men are just great. You just cannot keep your mind on a thing they teach when you are in their classes. The College has also been blessed with a new house mother for the sophomores. Did you know that the word sophomore comes from Greek words meaning "wise fool?"

Two inebriated gentlemen were heard talking outside the freshman dorm last night. It seems that one of the girls had forgotten to lower the shade. One of them said, "That girl is not a bit shy, is she?"

"No," the other replied, "But she certainly is retiring."

Many people are very much perturbed over the change of style in street clothes. It seems that the thigh is the limit.

You know all of that talk you have been hearing about how horribly unsanitary kissing is? Well, you can just ignore it. Most doctors now agree that they don't believe it is true but it is a universally accepted fact that this formerly supposed unsanitary practice does lower resistance.

In my next letter, Comrades, I shall tell you what kind of people live in the Po Valley.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

Crusade for Freedom

Strollin' with Stokes

By Stokes Overby

A most encouraging article entitled "The Younger Generation" appearing in the November 5 issue of Time magazine prompted us to ask a few among the student body, "What do you think of the younger generation?" The answers were quite varied.

Anne Oakley declared, "I believe that we are more honest than other generations have been. We have been accused of moral degradation when actually we are more forthright and plain-spoken." Anne also stated, "Our generation has seen one world war in its entirety and the possibilities of another, causing unnatural anxieties and fears concerning the future."

Natalie Lancaster said, "Up until this time, we haven't felt our responsibilities so keenly, but as we are getting older, we are becoming more conscious of them. When the time comes we will take over gracefully." Nancy Driskill added, "It seems to me that our generation has more responsibilities to take over than ever before."

The fact that "Our generation has better opportunities for becoming independent thinkers, and we are fully capable of accepting responsibilities," was pointed out by Lucy Page Hall. She added, "I definitely don't think we're 'going to pot'". Virginia Manvell declared, "I don't think we are any worse off morally, spiritually and socially than any other generation. Members of our generation have shown themselves capable of assuming leadership in our complex life as evidenced by their work in college organizations."

Jo Price emphasized, "I don't think that older people should stand in judgment of us and rant and rave about what this younger generation is coming to, since we are faced with different situations and problems which they did not have to cope with at the same age."

Betty Barnes concluded, "Our generation has been offered more opportunities for a better way of life than any previous age, yet there are more conflicting ideals and problems pulling at us—Under the circumstances, I think we have maintained as stable a position as possible."

Social Notes

by Barbara Caskey

This season begins to look a little like mating time.

Engaged

Sue Oliver received a diamond from Irvin McKinney, U.S.N., who is stationed in Great Lakes, Illinois.

The third finger of Nancy Wooldridge's left hand is adorned with a ring received from Earl Calohan, Jr., of V.P.I.

Pinned

We are sure that you all will be interested to know that Jean Kreienbaum is now pinned to Lloyd Griffith, a Kappa Sig at Hampden-Sydney. We're afraid though, that it isn't much of a scoop now that the paper comes out but once every two weeks, and she has had the pin since 8:15 p. m., Sunday, October 28, 1951.

Peggy Hood became pinned to Doug Smith, a Pi Kappa Alpha at Washington & Lee that same, now famous, week end.

Last Week

V.P.I.

Joanne Yow, Billie Van de Reit, Jean Pierce, and Ann Foster attended the Homecoming game and dance at Tech last week end.

Hampden-Sydney

Pat Altwegg, Nancy Driskill, Jean Carol Parker, Fifi Carter, Mary Anne King, Jan Van Horn and Frances Motley went to Hampden - Sydney openings last week end.

Also attending were Bet Saffelle, Carolyn Stanley, Martha Alice Wilson, June Manlove, Ann Glenn, Liz Crockett, Sarah Scholler and Jean Kreienbaum. If we've omitted some as we surely must have, please forgive us, but it was a while ago.

This Week

Way Up North

Blanton Ferguson traveled all the way to Philadelphia to see the Penn State-William & Mary game.

Way Down South

V.M.I.

Seems they were coming home all over the country this past week end as Jane Bailey, Jane Jackson, Mary Anne Bresslin, Betty Campbell, Audrey Calhoune, Branchie Fristoe and Ann Bryan attended the festivities at V.M.I.

Emory & Henry - East Tennessee Game

After all that, only one person went. Libby McClung went all the way to Bristol to see it.

R.P.I.

U. Va.

Last but certainly not least, one or two people went to U. Va., if we could only remember who. Let's see. . . . . Betty Collier, Marty Miller, Connie Rice, Lucyle Humphries, Betty Hancock, Jean Talley and. . . . . Florence Blake, Grace Booker, Shirley Ward, Betty Jane Staples, Sarah Graham, Elizabeth Cheatham, Sally Wilson, Caroline McDonald and. . . . . and, Joyce Quick, and Barbara Caskey.

College H2O Club Issues Five Bids To Upperclassmen

The Longwood H2O Club issued bids to five upperclassmen Monday night. Those who received invitations to membership were Sarah Ann Jones, Ilene Russell, Eleanor Weddle, Elsie Wente and Lee Wingfield .

Jean Ridenour was selected to serve as Water Pageant Chairman for this year. She will be assisted by Blanton Ferguson. The theme, according to Bunny Ricks, president of the organization, will be announced at a later date. She has urged that all girls who are interested in participating in the pageant please sign up on the paper posted on the A. A. bulletin board.

Castros, Beckner, Borum, Wente Win

Else Wente, red and white class, defeated rival Ann Crowder 6-2; 6-0 during the tennis singles played last week. Junior Helen Castros won out over senior Nancy Walker by scores 6-0; 6-1 while red and white Marian Beckner took the match played with rival classman Betty Tyler 6-4; 6-2. Clara Borum defeated her classmate Sue Webb by tallies of 6-0; 6-0.

Clara Borum, tennis manager, has asked that the third tennis round be played off during the coming week.

Team Travels to Richmond To Defeat Westhampton 1-0

Forward Bradshaw Scores Winning Goal

Another victory was scored by the Longwood Varsity Hockey Team Saturday, October 27 with the defeat of Westhampton College 1-0 on the Westhampton field in Richmond.

Nell Bradshaw, Longwood forward, scored on a push pass during the first half, giving the team their single tally for the game.

Longwood goalie Sue Webb succeeded in keeping the Westhampton team from scoring during the game, while half-backs Nell Dalton, Ilia Desportes and Marian Beckner played a brilliant defensive game.

The Longwood forward line was ably supported by Nell Bradshaw, Erma Poarch, Jean Ridenour, Rachel Peters and Clara Borum. Betty Tyler and Nancy Park, fullbacks, aided Sue in defense of the goal.

College athletes who traveled to Richmond for the game were Marian Beckner, Clara Borum, Nell Bradshaw, Helen Castros and Nell Dalton.

Ilia Desportes, Eleanor Koch, Nancy Park, Rachel Peters, Jean Ridenour, Betty Tyler, Helen Waitman, Sue Webb, and Roberta Wiatt complete the group.

Miss Rebecca Brokenbrough and Miss Olive T. Iler accompanied the team.

Kappa Delta Wins Scholarship Bowl

The Pan-Hellenic scholarship award was presented to Kappa Delta sorority for having the highest scholastic average among the sororities for the 1950-51 session at a tea held yesterday afternoon in the lounge of the Student Building. Members and pledges of the eight campus sororities were honored at this tea given by the Pan-Hel Council.

An average of 1.92 for last year was attained by the Kappa Deltas, according to Betty Hancock, president of the council, who presented them with a sterling silver bowl. Sigma Sigma Sigma placed second in the scholastic race with an average of 1.77, and Zeta Tau Alpha took third place with a 1.75 average for the year.

Next in scholarship average was Alpha Sigma Tau with a 1.71 average followed by Alpha Sigma Alpha with a 1.69 scolastic average. Theta Sigma Upsilon attained an average of 1.65. Pi Kappa Sigma made a 1.63 average, and Delta Sigma Epsilon averaged 1.44.

A Pan-Hel tea is held once each semester to recognize the scholarship of the various sororities, and an award is presented annually to the group achieving the highest average to be kept for a year.

YWCA Committees Reveal Duties For Advantage of New Students

Frosh, Tramsfers Will Sign Nov. 12

The time is rolling around when everyone is given a chance to sign up to work on the various Y. W. C. A. committees. There will be someone in the hall across from Dean Savage's office Monday, November 12 to give out the necessary cards.

The duties of the committees have been listed so that the students may be thinking about which committee they want to work with.

The duties of the Membership Committee are to have charge of all matters concerning membership in the Association, to serve as a Reception Committee to welcome new students at the beginning of the college year.

The members of the Public Affairs Committee encourage a world outlook among the students, bring to the campus speakers who will help promote world fellowship and cooperate with other agencies having to do with missionary and world outlook.

The work of the Social Committee is to promote the social program of the Association.

The duties of the Service Committee are to study the needs of less fortunate people and to contribute to their relief.

The Prayers Committee plans the devotional services for evening prayers.

Students on the Sing Committee are responsible for an impromptu program each Saturday evening.

The Church Cooperative Committee's duties are to cooperate with the various churches of the community and to encourage church attendance.

The duties of the Publicity Committee are to keep the Student Body informed of the Y' activities and to keep a scrapbook of the activities of the Association.

The Music Committee provides appropriate music for evening prayers and for certain meetings of the Association and Cabinet.

The Library Committee is in charge of the library of the Association.

Hall Gives Date For Opening of ICU, WSSF CampusDrive

Y' Combines Drive To Aid Students

Lucy Page Hall, chairman of the 'Y' public relations committee, has announced that the annual WSSF drive sponsored by the YWCA will begin Tuesday, December 5, and will last through the following Friday. Lucy added that this year the 'Y' will combine with the WSSF drive a campaign for ICU (International Christian University.) The drives are being combined to avoid asking the student body too often for money.

The World Student Service Fund was organized to aid the students and teachers in the war devastated nations all over the world. In the past the fund has helped these students and teachers accomplish a great deal. It has helped them "get back on their feet." They have done much for themselves by printing their own texts, building their own dormitories, and meeting their own needs as much as they could. However, there are things which they cannot create with their own hands—things such as medicines, books containing the knowledge from which they were cut off for so long, and food and vitamins that will help them fight tuberculosis. The WSSF seeks to supply these necessities.

The WSSF appeal for funds is made only to prep-school, college, and university students and professors, and the entire program depends upon their contributions which are its only source of income. WSSF funds together with funds contributed by students of 18 other nations are administered by World Student Relief which has its headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland.

The International Christian University project is a gesture of goodwill on the part of America toward a one-time enemy, Japan. It is a project to establish a great university in Japan. This university will set high scholastic standards in an atmosphere of freedom, democracy, practical internationalism and applied Christianity. Its aim will be to train leaders who can direct Japan's present revolutionary shift from authoritarian to free institutions—leaders with the wisdom and courage to keep that revolution peaceful and democratic.

In the beginning it will include a college of liberal arts, and social work. Other departments will be added as funds become available. The university will offer to young men and women of Japan an opportunity to secure competent professional training.

The university will prove to the

SGA Dance Planned For Saturday, Dec 1

Student Government Association President, Martha Alice Wilson, has announced the plans for the S.G.A. Dance to be given Saturday, December 1.

This year it will not be an elaborate affair according to Bebe. It will be in the form of an informal Juke-box dance, and it will be given in the Rec from 8 o'clock until 12 o'clock.

Dance Chairman, Polly Brothers, stated that though the dance will be more like a juke - box dance, there have been special entertainment and stunts planned.

Dr. Earley Slates Program Schedule Of Longwood Hour

Next Broadcast To Feature Music

Dr. C. L. S. Earley, head of the Dramatics department and faculty advisor in charge of college radio programs, has announced the schedule of Longwood Hour programs for the remaining fall semester. These programs are broadcast every Thursday from 4:15 to 4:30 over the local Farmville station, WPLO, with a different department of the college responsible each week.

The next program will be on November 22 and will feature musical selections by Catherine Glass, Freshman from Farmville. On November 29, Dr. Earley will give a preview of the Dramatic Club play, "Ladies in Retirement". The Foreign Language department under the direction of Miss Helen Draper is to be in charge of the first December program which will be on the sixth.

Other programs planned for this semester are a talk on the Myths and Legends of Christmas by Dr. Robert Simonini on December 13, the Longwood Chorus under the direction of Dr. John W. Molnar on Dec. 20, the history department's program by Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss on January 3, Miss Vera Baron in charge of a Biology department program on January 10, a program by the business department on January 17, and musical selections by Sarah Harvie on January 24.

Dr. Earley works with a student committee in planning these programs. Bobbie Obenshain acts as chairman of this radio committee. Serving under her are Libby McClung, Betty Bentley, Georgette Puryear, and June Wilmoth.

Longwood also sponsors another program over WPLO. Jeanne Lynch Hobbs, Freshman from Salem, acts as Longwood student reporter and can be heard every Monday from 3:00 to 3:15. Jeanne reports on the news high lights of the campus and interviews college personalities.

FTA Group Bids 17 To Club Membership

The Future Teachers of America has issued bids to 17 new members according to Betty Barnes, president of the F. T. A. Among those invited to join were Doris Cassada, Mary Brame, Lois Ash, Mrs. Margaret Cunningham, Ann Moody, Sara Graham, and Mary Helen Cook. Other new F. T. A'ers are Jo Zitta, Becky Mann, Ann Moseley, Norma Saunders, and Margie Hood. Shirley Livesay, Bunnie Ricks, Gladys Baker, Elsie Baker, and Maxine Watts also received bids.

Betty also stated that on November 28 the F. T. A. will hold a joint meeting with Kappa Delta Pi and A. C. E. in the Student Building parlor. The meeting is being held to celebrate the birthday of an iminent educator and philosopher, John Kilpatrick. Dr John Wynne will lead a discussion on Kilpatrick and his philosophy.

Journalists To Convene At Longwood For Meeting

News Leader Editor Will Speak To VIPA At Friday Banquet

Longwood College will play host to members of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association at their fall convention, November 30 and December 1.

The two-day convention will be highlighted by a banquet Friday night at which Mr. John Kilpatrick, editor of the Richmond News Leader, will speak. The steak banquet for the attending delegates will be served at Hampden-Sydney College under the direction of the Pi Delta Epsilon chapter.

The semi-annual meeting of the Association will begin Friday, November 30, with the registration of delegates from 1 to 5 p. m. A movie on the subject of journalism will be shown during the afternoon. The banquet will be served at 8 p. m. Friday night.

Critique sessions and a meeting of the business staffs of all publications will be held Saturday morning, continuing until lunch time. Representatives of recognized printing and engraving companies have been asked to speak to the various groups.

After luncheon Saturday, the group will meet for a general business meeting after which awards for the best publications will be presented. A program of entertainment has been planned for the remainder of the day.

The VIPA is an association composed of representatives of magazines, annuals and newspapers of the colleges of Virginia. The semi-annual meetings are held for the purpose of collecting and judging member publications.

Education Group Initiates 40 Girls

Forty girls have received bids to membership in the Association of Childhood Education, according to Mary Crawford, president of the group.

Initiation services were held last Friday night, November 16, at 10 p. m.

Among those people receiving bids were Frances Andrews, Dot Boswick, Mildred Bright, Mrs. Julia Brown, Dot Cassada, Anne Conley, and Helen Crowley.

Other students invited to membership were Barbara Cotton, Nancy Driskill, Frances Evans, Joyce Gatling, Lucy Page Hall, Kitty Hamlet, Betty Hancock, Ann Harden, Challice Haydon, Ann Hundley and Jean Jinnett.

Catherine Karnes, Jean Krienbaum, Natalie Lancaster, Pat Lee, Virginia Manvell, Caroline McDonald, Beverley Marsh, Annie Lee Owen, Lucy Jane Perkinson, Nancy Purdum, Joyce Richardson, and Judith Spindler also were invited to become members.

Bids were also issued to Mrs. Betty J. Stoots Puckett, Mrs. Carolyn Smith, Billie Rose Spivey, Jean Talley, Lucille Tompson, Serafina Frances Urso, Janet Wiggins, Lee Wingfield, Nancy Wooldridge and Lee Wood.

Students majoring in elementary education who have an academic average of "C" are eligible to join this organization which tends to unite students who have chosen elementary education as their profession.

Dramatic Club To Give Melodrama in Murder, 'Ladies in Retirement'

Seniors, Escorts Will Dance To 'Winter Wonderland'

"Winter Wonderland" has been chosen by the senior class as the theme of their dance to be given December 8 in the College gymnasium, according to an announcement by Bunny Ricks, chairman of the dance.

The song "Winter Wonderland" will be played during the figure which will be led by Betsy Graveley, a graduate of 1951 who was chosen last spring as honorary classman by the seniors, and Peggy Harris, president of the class. They will be followed in the figure by Jean Ridenour, vice-president of the class, Ann Oakley, secretary, Becky Mann, treasurer, and Bunny Ricks.

Committee heads for the dance have been appointed. As head of the music committee, Pat Tuggle will direct the selection of an orchestra. Mary Moore Karr and Ethel Straw will serve as co-chairmen of decorations. Leading the figure committee is Marian Beckner, while Ann Moseley and Mildred Blessing are in charge of the invitation and ticket groups respectively.

Director of the "after-dance" committee is Ann Harding. Lucy Jane Morton will serve as head of the committee on favors, and Winnie Murdock is in charge of the clean-up group.

The general theme will be carried out with Christmas decorations. Following the dance, a party for the seniors will be given either at Longwood or at Cedarbrook.

Colonnade Will Appear November 26

The fall issue of the Colonnade will be released Monday night, November 26, editor Nancy Garbee announced today.

Two prizewinning stories from the recent short story contest will be printed in this issue—"The Pine," first prize winner by Margaret Perrow of Alta Vista, and 'Justice", the story winning third prize by Barbara Caskey of Richmond.

Also included in this issue will be an article compiled by Pat Taylor featuring letters from Virginia poets. Eloise Macon, Olga Rodrigues, and Barbara Mitchell also have entries.

The theme of this issue of the Colonnade will be the dedication of the new buildings, and this theme will be carried out in an editorial on Alumnae and in a copy of the speech made by Maria Bristowe Starke at the dedication of the organ.

Le Cercle Francais Holds Monthly Meet

Le Cercle Francais held its regular meeting Tuesday, November 13, with Helen Tanner, president of the club, presiding. Sally Brickman announced that plans are now underway to present another French movie in the spring.

On December 6, Le Cercle Francais, together with the Spanish Club, will present a radio program of French and Spanish Christmas carols. Maria Jackson will direct the French singing group.

Chairmen for committees to work on the annual Christmas Fete were appointed. It was announced that the Fete would be held on December 7 this year.

Readings and short skits were presented in French by members of the various classes, and the entire club joined in singing French folk songs. The meeting was concluded with the singing of La Marseillaise.

Faculty Approves Honors Courses In Academic Work

The faculty of Longwood College at a recent meeting has approved the offering of Honors Courses in various academic departments. The courses will be designed to give superior students in the junior year an opportunity to do advanced work involving research techniques and will continue for two semesters with an intervening summer for reading in the field of the project.

A student working for honors will be directed in her study by a member of the faculty who will act as sponsor. Upon completion of the Honors Course the candidate will be given an oral examination on her formal paper by a committee of three or more professors from Longwood College and, whenever practicable, from the faculties of other colleges.

A student who passes the examination will be entitled to graduation with honors in the department in which the Honors Course was taken.

Granddaughters Club Initiates 17 Frosh As New Members

The Granddaughter's Club has recently held the initiation of new members. Seventeen freshmen, whose mothers have attended Longwood College, joined the Club. The purpose of the Granddaughter's Club is to uphold the high standards of Longwood College that have been set by its predecessors.

Among the seventeen initiated and four others who were unable to be present for the initiation were Jane Bailey, Mary Lou Barlow, Betty Barr, Nancy Birdsall, Sylvia Paige Bradshaw, Josephine Burley, Nell Cake, Helen Crowgey, Clare Davis, Betty Cook Durfee, Carolyn Giles, and Ann Hamner.

Also joining were Beth Kent, Eloise Macon, Nancy Norfleet, Betty Jean Persinger, Betty Jean Oakes, Jean Talley, Lucy Thweatt, Ann Carter Wendenburg, and Betty Saffelle.

Professor Earley Will Stage Play

by Betty Collier

The Longwood Players will present "Ladies in Retirement", a stirring melodrama by Edward Percy and Reginald Denham, Friday, November 30 at 8 p. m. in Jarman Auditorium. The play will be staged by Dr. C. L. S. Earley, instructor in speech and drama.

Cleo Holladay will portray Ellen Creed, while Sally Wilson will be Leonora Risks. Nancy Nelson and Marion Thompson will enact the parts of Emily and Ellen Creed; Ed Starfield from Hampden-Sydney will be Albert Feather; and Barbara White and Jean Jinnett will portray Sister Theresa and Lucy, the maid.

Production

Harold Hutter, Madison McClintic, Tom Moore and Herbert Goodman are in charge of sets and mechanical production. Hutter and his crew are busy constructing a pre-Tudor manor house on the banks of the Thames. Dr. Earley's play production class will act as stage hands for the performance on November 30. Lucy Jane Morton has designed some appropriate costumes of the late Victorian period. Betty Tyler and the ticket committee will be in charge of the box office and ushering. In charge of programs is Audrey Morse; Gene Moore and Helen Short will manage the properties. Members of the drama group, under the guidance of Ethel Straw are helping with the details of the play.

"Ladies in Retirement", an absorbing study of murder, takes place on the Thames Estuary in 1885. Ellen Creed murders her employer-companion in order to make a home for two demented sisters, Emily and Louisa. Ellen is successful in doing away with the body and living peacefuly with her sisters in Miss Fiske's lovely old home until Albert Feather, her nephew, stumbles into the house on a stormy night. Quite by accident, Albert discovers that Miss Fiske has been murdered and decides to blackmail his aunt.

After much suspense and the clever dueling of wits, the play races to an unsuspected climax. Miserable Little Albert sneaks away to Canada and Ellen Creed faces her inevitable doom.

Several members of the cast were asked what they thought of the play, "Ladies in Retirement." They made the following statements:

Cleo Holladay said, "I am being benefited a great deal by Dr. Earley's able direction. Working in the new auditorium is certainly a pleasure after the small auditorium. I think the play is one which all students will enjoy."

"This is a very thrilling play. It has been a lot of hard work to get it into shape and it still needs a lot of polishing ,but we are looking forward to opening night," was the opinion of Nancy Nelson.

Ed Stanfield remarked of the play, "This is the first thriller I've ever taken part in, and I find it quite interesting for more reasons than one. I think you will too."

Tickets for the play will go on sale after Thanksgiving holidays.

Spunk and Spirit

"School Spirit" is an old subject; but it is one which a lot of Longwood girls seem to think has not been over-emphasized recently. At least the results have pointed in that direction. There is something lacking. Some of the old pep and vigor is gone, and in its place is talk—many words about how little time there is to do things these days.

Now, it goes without saying that the average Longwood student is overworked. Most college students are. But there are still the twenty-four hours in each day that there were just a few years ago. And there is not the school spirit that there was a few years ago, or such is the opinion that came out of a discussion among some of the busiest girls in school in a senior's bedroom late one night last week.

What's wrong? Where in the world is everyone in the afternoon when class hockey games are played? The freshmen are to be commended for their turn-out and support given to their team, but any observer would notice lack in numbers of people, thus, in spirit. It is more noticeable this year than ever before, according to the people who know. If nearly fifty girls can play, couldn't at least fifty of us go out and show them that we appreciate them. Or maybe we don't appreciate them.

The class and school spirit exhibited throughout the Circus practices and performances was wonderful. The turnout at the concert Thursday night was good, so all is not bad. But each one of us, with a little thought, can realize that there is room for improvement.

The usual spirit which is shown through serenades has not had much show this year. Can't we spend just a little more time letting other people know how much we think of them? One of the main things that Longwood has always been noted for is her friendliness. Let's not get in such a rush that we don't have time to recognize people in the halls and speak to them.

This was not meant to be a sermon. However, it is a subject on which each of us could well afford to preach a sermon every day, and it would probably do the most good if preached to ourselves.

This is a plea—a plea for a return to the old spirit of Longwood — that spirit which has the whole school turn out for hockey games, which sees each one of us smiling a little more in spite of the burdens of each day, and which has a little less talk about how we're too busy to do anything.

Mid-semester ,with all of its tests and papers has passed. Let's make a new start!

World Wise

It has been said, "No man is an island unto himself." When we stop to think, we all realize the profound truth of this thought provoking observation. Every individual is influenced directly or indirectly by the actions—the lives of other individuals, and no man can live completely apart from this influence. Thus we owe it to ourselves to keep up to date and informed on the happenings of our fellow inhabitants of this world. The isolationist or escapist who lives only in his immediate world of studying, week ends. new clothes, etc. is being foolishly immature and is not facing reality.

When we do stop to think, we all realize that this is true. Yet, Longwood students in all the rush of meetings, and tests, and classes, and all that goes with college life often lose touch with "the outside world." It is hard to find time to read past the funnies and society page—to listen to news broadcasts instead of music programs. It is a great temptation to go on our merry way forgetting or overlooking the world events that occur day after day. Yet these world events are changing our future lives and in the years to come we will probably regret our neglect.

Even now, many of us are embarrassed at our lack of knowledge when we leave this "Farmville island of ignorant bliss and isolationism" and try to converse with people who keep up to date with current history. Somehow methods of teaching reading or the best way to make a cake seem almost insignificant when others discuss the murder of American prisoners of war by the Reds in Korea or the possibilities for presidential timber in the 1952 elections.

If for no other reason than to be able to carry on an intelligent conversation, we should develop an interest in current events and the habit of reading our newspapers.

In Regards

Although barely four months old, the congressional investigation of corruption in the Internal Revenue Bureau has brought to light alledged "irregularities" on a wide scale—more than a score of Federal tax agents have resigned, been fired or suspended. Two collectors have been indicted. The latest is the firing of Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the department of tax division, Caudle. He has been charged with engaging in "outside activities which the President feels are incompatible with the duties of his office." This, however, is only a drop in the bucket.

The investigation was started quietly last June—chiefly for a quiet look at administration of the internal revenue laws. The subcommittee quickly discovered, however, it had something bigger on its hands.

One scandal after another rocked the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Six collectors of internal revenue were among those who got out of the service or were let out. Two of them later were indicted on charge of bribery, tax shakedowns and other misconduct.

Out of this investigation have emerged some extraordinary findings. The subcommittee has uncovered instances of agents enjoying extended winter vacations with their families, automobiles and multiple bank accounts—while earning around $4,500 to $6,500 a year! Asked where they got the money, some agents said they had "sure thing" systems for horse race betting. One reported luck betting the "daily double" at Belmont Park—on a horse that was not running on the day in question.

Certain measures to eliminate at least part of the existing situation are emerging. First, recommendation that collectors of internal revenue be placed under Civil Service and taken out of the field of political patronage. Secondly, a requirement that collectors be full time job holders. Thirdly, proposal to revise pay standards for internal revenue agents. Finally a move to revitalize the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The whole broad tax inquiry seems likely to continue indefinitely—certainly until next summer and possibly right into the 1952 presidential campaign. Even if it ends before the campaign starts, the inquiry could have a profound effect on the voters when next November rolls around.

Hello, Joe

by Barbara White

Dear Comrades,

Did you guess what kind of people live in the Po Valley? That is absolutely correct. Po people.

A survey has been taken among members of the senior class to find out the three things they would like most to do before they graduate. The following three predominate:

(1) To hug Dr. Moss.

(2) To have Mrs. Beasley serve breakfast in bed.

(3) To have a date.

Several other things were mentioned too, but they admitted that it would be safer to wait until after graduation to do them.

A poll has also been taken among college deans of women and it has been decided that our own Miss Gleaves is far above most of the others.

People are already beginning to think of summer jobs. One wants to be a ship stewardess. I know a girl who was one. On her first trip she asked where the captain was.

"Oh, he's forward, Miss," replied the porter.

"That's all right," she said. This is a pleasure trip."

Did you know that the reason women have cleaner minds than men is because they change them more often?

One poor student here had to have her appendix removed last summer, and she asked the doctor if the scar would show. She didn't feel very dumb when he answered, "That, young lady, is entirely up to you."

Life around here does have exciting spots. I saw a hair-raising wreck last week. The roadster skidded around the corner, jumped in the air, knocked down a lamp post, smacked three cars, ran against a stone fence and stopped. A girl climbed out of the wreck. "Darling," she exclaimed, "that's what I call a Kiss!"

The wreck made me remember the Scotsman who rode in a cab with his girl. She was so beautiful, he could hardly keep his eyes on the meter.

Suite 126, 127 (lucky girls on second floor Senior Annex) won the prize of prizes for the cleanest rooms in Cunningham last week. The prize? A cake, compliment of Mrs. "Tippy Toe" Tabb.

When the girls return from their Thanksgiving meals to the old gripes and discontent. I have big plans to make my indoctrination more successful. I'll report soon on any progress.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

Bishop Paul Garber, Bishop of the Richmond Area of the Methodist Conference, will be at a "Bobby-Sox" banquet to be held in the lecture room of the Methodist Church for all Methodist students, Wednesday night, December 5.

Presbyterian

Nine delegates attended the Roslyn Convention held in Richmond. Attending the Synod Conference were Pat Lee, Barbara Cotton, Lucy Jane Morton, Warren Brannon, Emerson Johnson, Reed Erwin, Bob Matthews and Dick Andrews. There will be a supper meeting for Westminister Fellowship members the first Sunday in December at Hampden-Sydney.

Episcopal

At the regular meetings of the Canterbury Club the "Faith of the Church" is being discussed. Faye Greenland was the delegate from the John's Memorial Episcopal Church at the Roslyn Convention.

Inter-Varsity

The Inter - Varsity Christian Fellowship held their weekly Bible study Thursday at 5:00 in the "Y" Lounge. They are studying the fourth chapter of the Gospel of John.

Ladies in Retirement

Strollin' with Stokes

by Bobbie Brown

(guest columnist)

As the year wears on and commencement grows near, some of us are gazing at men with a new idea in mind. (new idea?) Therefore, the most pertinent question to us is:

In looking for a husband, which would you prefer, physical attractiveness or intellectual companionship?

Ann Mitchell Motley: "Both, if possible; but if not, I think intellectual companionship is essential for a happy marriage."

Peggy Harris: "Physical attractiveness, as well as an intellectual capacity equal to mine is what I'm looking for. But then who has an intellectual capacity equal to mine?"

Marian Beckner: "I guess I'd look for intellectual companionship; but I would like for him to have a little looks."

Jerry Korback Hembree: "Well, I guess it's too late for me to think of that now, but since I'm prejudiced, I think he has both."

Dot Cassada: "I'd rather have an intellectual because I'm so dumb."

Edith Kennon: "Well really now, I don't see how anybody could marry anybody that didn't have both."

May Henry Sadler: "My husband will have to have both to make up for what I'm lacking."

Betty Scott and Cookie: "We'd rather have someone who is intellectual, so he can keep up with our hot dog business."

Nell Dalton: "If it's a matter of choosing between being an old maid and marrying an idiot, I'll marry the idiot."

Ann Mosely: "I want intellectual companionship because beauty is only skin deep. If you marry for beauty, you soon get tired of it, but if you have intellectual companionship, it lasts forever. Look at Tom, I keep telling myself."

Martha Alice Wilson (B. B.): I like intellectual companionship—not lookin' for a brain, just one 'bout my level." Moe's comment: "Guess that would be a Mongolian idiot."

Virginia Dare Woody: "I wouldn't want one that was handsome unless he had a brain; and I don't want one that's a brain unless he's kind of cute."

Betty Barnes: "I prefer Ralph because he has both and more!"

Cindy Mims: "To quote Sociology 441, you can't get along with just one; you've got to have both."

Edith Goff: "Since I don't possess either quality, it's not right for me to expect either."

Social Notes

by Barbara Caskey

For the information of anyone who is interested, the world is not just a bunch of cherries except to those who spit out the seeds.

Pinned

Sadie Creger picked up some extra jewelry last week end from Tom Applewhite, a Phi Delta Theta at Randolph-Macon. Maybe we should have said the world was not all of rosy white apples.

V.P.I. Openings

Liz Crockett, Betty Islin, Betty Hood, Blanton Ferguson, PiFi Carter and Margie Davis attended the fall Formals at V.P.I. last week end. Also visiting were Dianne Murry, Mildred Parker, Jean Hamilton, Bettie and Billie Van de Relt, Ann Keith Hundley, Betty Barnes, Nancy Woolridge, Lois Ash and Mary Hundley.

Randolph-Macon

We hear that the school was well represented at Randolph-Macon last week end but evidently the people involved don't want anyone to know about it. Risking possible disgrace and dishonor however, we will attempt to list a few, fortunate or unfortunate souls. Of course, Sadie Creger went because that is where and when the world stood still. Then, Jean Jinnett, Sara Lu Bradshaw, Mary Moore Karr and Ethel Straw went to keep an eye on her. Also attending the dances were Mary Jo Smith, Dot Boswick, Lee Wood, Betty Frances Gillette, Mary Elva Robinson, Frances Motley, and Frances Thomas. Sis Burton and Harriet Byrd Minnichan went to the game.

Charlottesville

Betty Collier, Caroline McDonald, Wanda Karlet, Jan Van Horn, Barbara Blackman and Sarah Graham went to the Virginia-Carolina game.

William & Mary

Shirley Lewis went to the dances at William and Mary last week end.

Washington and Lee

Nancy Driskill, Pat McLemore and Peggy Hood attended the dances at W&L this week end.

K. A. Rose

It's always nice to save the biggest news until last. By the way, when we use the term news, it is not to be taken literally. Nat Lancaster learned last week that she had been chosen the Kappa Alpha rose by the KA chapter at Hampden-Sydney. Among other things Nat will reign over the K A Ball to be held sometime in January.

In closing, we would like to extend our sympathy to all the broken hearts. Sob, Sob.

Two Frosh Join Staff

Betty Scott Borkey, editor of the Virginian for 1951-52, has announced that two freshmen will serve on the annual staff this year. Jean Carol Parker from Emporia and Donnie Devine from Richmond are the two freshmen who were chosen from a list of girls who signed up for the position. Betty Scott added that this is the first time in several years that freshmen have served as staff members.

Mongram Group Issues Bids To 14

The Monogram Club, honorary athletic organization, recently issued bids to Clara Borum, Nell Bradshaw, Helen Castros, Ann Crowder, Sarah Harvie, Lou Jamison, and Anne Jones.

Also invited to join the organization were Beverly Marsh, Nancy Park, Audrey Ramsey, Joanne Steck, Frances Stringfellow, Betty Tyler, and Sue Webb.

Annual 'Rush' For Colors Will Be Held

Classes To Choose Fasted Runners

The annual color rush will be held this year right after Thanksgiving, on either November 27, or 28, at 5 in the afternoon. No points will be given for the color cup for this event, but banners will be hung on the different buildings by the colors winning them. The contest will be held on the A. A. field.

Each class will have its try-outs before the date of the contest, choosing its fastest runners. Red n' White runners will compete against Green 'n White runners, each race being run for the privilege of hanging a banner of their colors on a specific building.

H20 To Present Christmas Show On December 13

Two Performances Will Be Presented

The annual H2O Christmas water pageant will take place on Thursday, December 13, according to Jean Ridenour, chairman of the pageant committee. The theme of the pageant is to be "A Wet Christmas Eve" or "The Christmas Splash Party." Two performances will be presented, one from 5 to 6 o'clock, and one from 7 td 8 o'clock.

The performance will open with Wee Jane dozing and dreaming under the Christmas tree about the toys she will receive for Christmas. A narrator will read a poem about Jane's dream and members of the freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior class chosen by the H2O Club will enact the poem.

The first routine on the program will be the icicles. Next will be a number of clown acts including the jumping jack, the toy monkeys, jack jump over the candle stick, and several others. The wooden soldiers will go through their routine next ,followed by a duet of the Indian Maid and Hiawitha dolls. Also on the program will be a number by four sailor dollies, and a large

Class Hockey Games Begin With Senior Win of 2-0 Over Green 'n White Frosh Players, Captains Chosen For Teams

The red 'n white seniors defeated the freshmen in the first of the competitive class games yesterday afternoon by a score of 2-0. The games will continue after the Thanksgiving holidays by teams recently selected.

The seniors have chosen Edith Kennon as their captain. Playing in the forward line are Boots Russell, Jean Ridenour, Edith Kennon, Bootie Poarch, and Rachael Peters. While Nell Dalton, Marian Beckner, Eleanor Weddle, Nancy Park, Bunny Ricks, Peggy Harris, and Nancy Walker.

With "Termite" Tyler as captain, the Junior team's forward line consists of Beverly Marsh, Clara Borum, Nell Bradshaw, Mary Hurt Peery, and Ann Crowder. Backfield players will be Anne Jones, Sue Webb, Joanne Steck, Sis Burton, Betty Tyler, Helen Castros, and Lou Jamison.

In the forward line of the Sophomores' team are Joanna Biddlecomb, Mason Moore, Ann Parkinson, Eleanor Koch and Else Wente, and in the backfield, Ilia DesPortes, Patsy Sanford, Molly Heysman, Liz Hoskins, Roberta Wyatt, and Edith Frame. Eleanor Koch is the team captain.

Helen Waltman is Freshman team captain, and the freshman team consists of Virginia Burgess, Ann Shoaf, Hilda Harris, Helen Waltman, Mary Ann Ward, Lucy Thwing, and Georgette Puryear. Other freshmen on the team are Hilda Brown, Ann Wendenburg, Frances Motley, Becky Hines, Audrey Morse, Mary Langhorne, and Janie Harper.

Competition is between Red and Whites and Green and Whites, and points toward the color cup will go to the winners of each game.

Athletes Honored By Blazer Awards

Nancy Walker, President of the Athletic Association, presented Longwood blazers in assembly on Tuesday, November 6.

Receiving white blazers were Jean Ridenour of Richmond, and Marian Beckner, of Lynchburg. Blue blazers were presented to Edith Kennon of Gordonsville, Rachael Peters of Manteo, and Nancy Walker of Marion.

Blue and white blazers are awarded at the beginning of each year to those seniors who have been outstanding in athletics during their college careers. The awards are based on sportsmanship, variety of participation, and scholarship. White blazers are received by those who have participated in a variety of sports, while blue blazers are awarded to those who have been outstanding in only one or two.

Varsity Hockey Squad Whips Roanoke Team

With a score of 4-0, Longwood was victorious in a hockey game at Roanoke College on Friday, November 9.

Juniors Nell Bradshaw and Clara Borum each scored two of the four goals, thus making it possible for Longwood to maintain its spotless record of being undefeated and unscored against during the entire season.

Longwood girls playing in the game were Jean Ridenour, Clara Borum, Nell Bradshaw, "Bootie" Poarch, Rachael Peters, Nell Dalton, Marian Beckner, Ilia DesPortes, Nancy Park, Betty Tyler, and Sue Webb.

Martinsville Alumnae Group Entertains High School Girls

Nine Longwood Girls Attend Festivities

On Wednesday night, November 14, the Martinsville Alumnae Chapter, Mrs. Catherine Chappelle Shaw president, was hostess to 40 high school students at a Longwood party held at the local Elks Club. The party was given in an effort to interest girls in attending Longwood after their graduation. On hand for the festivities were Dr. Robert Brumfield, Dr. C. L. S. Earley, Miss Vera Baron and nine Longwood students. Nancy Nelson, Hilda Hartis, Sally Via, Betsy Hankins, Jean Carol Parker, Jean Ridenour, Blanton Ferguson, Janice Pinkard, and Joan Dyer are the girls who put on a skit entitled "Freshman Year at Longwood College" for the students' entertainment.

Miss Virginia Wall, assistant to the registrar, and Mrs. Ruth Coyner, Alumnae secretary, made a trip to the high schools of Southwest Virginia last week and were entertained by alumnae groups in Bristol, Norton, Tazewell, and Pulaski.

In Bristol Mrs. Mary Darnin Stant and Mrs. Esme Howell Smith acted as hostesses. In Norton Miss Wall and Mrs. Coyner attended a party given at The Pines Tea Room for a group of High School girls. Miss Lennie Blankenship, president of the Norton group, was in charge of this entertainment. The visitors joined a get together of a large group of alumnae in Tazewell at the home of Miss Rachel Royall. The Pulaski group honored their presence with a covered dish supper in the home of Mrs. Mary Kent Hiltzheimer.

Dr. Simkins To Speak On Adventure In La. In Assembly Nov. 27

Dr. Francis S. Simkins, assistant professor of history, will be the speaker for the first assembly after Thanksgiving vacation. On Tuesday, November 27, he will talk on his "Adventures in Louisiana."

Since Dr. Simkins was a member of the faculty at Louisianna State University in Baton Rouge, he feels that he can give a new slant on life in this state.

Ode To Study

by Shirley Ward

and Phoebe Warner

'Twas the night before classes . . . . . and all through the dorm . . . . Not a student was stirring . . . . . Not even a form . . . . . The books had been laid out with delicate care . . . . . In hopes that some knowledge might stir through the air.

The scholars all studied . . . . . So worried with dreads . . . . . While visions of coming test whirled through their heads; . . . . . The girls in their p. j's and thinking caps . . . . . Had just settled down for a two-hour lapse . . . . . When out on the halls there arose such a clatter . . . . . They ran to their doors to see what was the matter . . . . . And what to their wondering eyes should appear . . . . . But a girl yelling "Hot dogs! and ice cold——Coke!"

They devoured their goodies with such startling quickness . . . . . One would think they suffered from starving sickness . . . . . And after this food was gone with a bound, ... They returned to their rooms—not making a sound.

Back to their studies they flew like a flash . . . . . Tore open their text books and then fell with a crash . . . . . for more rapid than eagles the noises they came . . . . . as a shrilly toned siren its force did lay claim.

The students danced outdoors . . . . . All chattering with chill . . . . . Of all the nights to have a fire drill!

No more cramming with all of their might . . . . . They simply gave up, and called it a night.

Snow Maidens to Dance to Virginians

Weaver, Band Will Play For Annual Senior Dance

Mood and atmosphere for the senior "Winter Wonderland" snow maidens and their escorts will be created by the music of Pete Weaver and his "Virginians" Saturday night, December 8 in the College Gymnasium.

The Weaver aggregation from Emporia consists of nine instruments. Among these are four saxophones, a trombone, a trumpet, piano, bass, and drums. Singing with the orchestra is a vocalist who, according to manager L. R. Schlegel is very outstanding.

Virginians Welcomed

The "Virginians" have played for a number of Longwood dances, and have been enthusiastically received by many students of the College, according to Pat Tuggle, music chairman.

Several selections requested for dedications will be played by the orchestra. The title song of the dance theme "Winter Wonderland" will be played during the figure.

Local Combo

Music for the "after-the-dance" party at Longwood Estate will be provided by a local combo of which Mr. Walter Kerfoot, Longwood music professor, is a member. The combo has played for a number of the College activities and has been enthusiastically received. The music will be used as entertainment as well as for dancing.

Tryouts Underway For Dance Recital

Tryouts for parts in "Dedication", the large group work, which will be the main feature of the annual recital by Orchesis, will continue through Friday, December 7, and will be given February 15, according to Mrs. E. K. Landrum, physical education instructor.

Betsy Hankins of Richmond, as the narrator, will have the lead in the production. Marian Beckner, Jean Ridenour, Nell Bradshaw, and Challice Haydon are trying for the senior, junior, sophomore, and freshman figures, respectively. Margie Hood is the Phoenix, a mythical bird of great beauty. The graduate group will be announced later.

The college choir under the direction of Dr. John W. Molnar will sing Bizet's "Agnus Dei" as the Years of the Modern, a group made up of Orchesis members and apprentices, members of the modern dance class, and former modern dance students will portray prayers in movement. A Bach chorale, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," will follow as a two part movement study in which one dance group will use a run in triplet or three-quarter rhythm to the accompaniment, while the other group will move as the choir sings.

Former dance students who are interested in dancing as members of the Years of the Modern Group, as a Cold Germ, or as a Microscopic Germ are to come to the 2:05 Monday, Wednesday, Friday Modern Dance Class by Friday December 6.

The complete cast will be announced by Monday, December 17, Mrs. Landrum has announced.

Rotunda Receives HonorableMention At VIPA Meeting

Group Elects Smith As Vice President

The Rotunda, Longwood College newspaper, received a certificate of Honorable Mention during the presentation of awards at the annual fall convention of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association held at the College this past weekend.

Mary Jo Smith, editor of the paper, was elected to serve as vice-president of the Association for the remainder of the year. She will replace Lon C. Hicks who succeeds Richard G. Ballard as president of VIPA. Dick offered his resignation as head of the group since he is no longer a member of a Virginia college.

First place award for newspapers went to the Flat Hat of the College of William and Mary and second to the Virginia Tech.

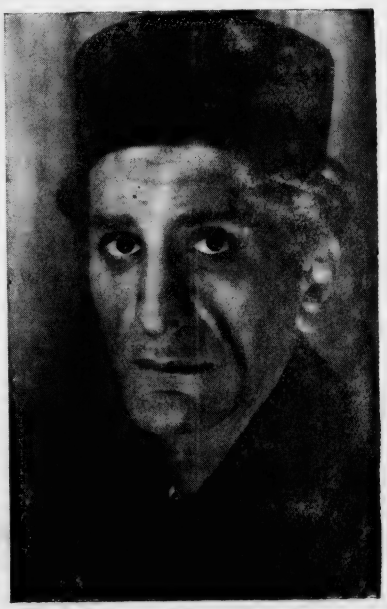
The Southern Collegian of Washington and Lee University won top award for magazines, while second place and honorable mention were taken by the Tatler and the Old Maid of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, respectively.

Winner of the first place yearbook award was the Colonial Echo of William and Mary. Taking second was the Bugle of VPI, and honorable mention went to the Calyx of W. and L.

Five new awards were offered this year to member publications for excellence in various fields of journalism. The Roanoke Times and Roanoke World News VIPA award for excellence in newspaper writing was given to the Richmond Collegian of the University of Richmond.

The Lynchburg Engraving Company's VIPA award for magazine art and photography went to the Tattler of R-MWC.

The Bugle received the Basil-Smith VIPA award for excellence in yearbook layout, and the Web of the University of Richmond was awarded for its originality in yearbook design by the Roanoke Engraving Co. The House of Benson VIPA award for excellence in yearbook art and photography went to the Calyx.



Rotunda Announces Addition Of Twenty Members To Staff

Twenty Longwood students have successfully completed the six weeks tryout period as Rotunda apprentices. The names of these students will be added to the publication masthead this week.

Betty Collier, Elizabeth McClung, Dot Douglas, Betty Abbitt, Carolyn Stanley, Ann Dickinson, Frances Motley, Ann Glenn and Naomi Reed have been named to the news staff.

Other students who have finished their tryouts for this staff are Ann Bryan, Donnie Devine, Wilma Salmon, Ann Gray, Betty Jo Jennings, Nancy Lawrence and Helen Short.

Romoff to Star In Barter 'The Merchant of Venice'

On December 5, The Barter Players will give their production of Shakespeare's The Merchant of Venice at 8:00 p. m. in Jarman Auditorium. This performance will be the second in the College-Community Artists' Series which opened with a concert of chamber music by the Alabama String Quartet.

Woodrow Romoff, whose picture appears above, has the role of Shylock in the Barter Player's production. He has recently won acclaim in another role that has been called an actor's dream: the title role in the world premiere of "Mr. Thing" by Mary Chase.

Critics have said of Romoff, "He attains the high point of his achievement in the role of Shylock. The opening night gave him, first, the perfect tribute of a split -second of awed silence, followed by round after round of applause mingled with shouts of 'bravo!'"

Appearing as Antonio in this production will be Hugh Mosher, this year's winner of the Barter Award for the best actor among the drama majors of Virginia universities and colleges. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and attended the Sorbonne University in Paris.

In the role of Antonio, Hugh Mosher portrays the wealthy but melancholy merchant who promises a loan to his young friend Bassanio in order that Bassanio may have funds with which to continue his courtship of Portia, a rich and virtuous young lady. Not having the full amount of money on hand, Antonio borrows fram his rival Shylock, a Jewish money-lender. Shylock, who hates Antonio bitterly, stipulates in the bond that if Antonio does not pay the money back on time he Shylock) will be allowed to cut off a pound of Antonio's flesh. Antonio becomes bankrupt because his

Conscripted City

Dr. Schlegel Publishes New Book

A new book on wartime Norfolk by Dr. Marvin Schlegel, associate professor of history at Longwood College, has just been published by the Norfolk War History Commission. CONSCRIPTED CITY is the story of Norfolk when World War II broke out.

Events familiar to the thousands of American service men who passed through Norfolk during the war are related in Dr. Schlegel's study of the problems created in a city by wartime expansion. The mounting confusion of the housing problem, the jammed streetcars, the lines in the restaurants, the pleasure-driving ban, the great shortage, the ration board troubles, the beer strike, the raids on vice dens, the blackouts, the scrap drives, and the overwhelming presence of the Navy are portrayed in what has been called "the best account yet written of any American city during World War II."

Dr. Schlegel is one of the country's outstanding historians of the home front in World War II, and CONSCRIPTED ITY is the sixth volume on the subject of which he has been author or co-author.

Scene For Dance Set In 'Winter Wonderland'

Seniors, underclassmen and their escorts will waltz in a "Winter Wonderland" at the annual Senior Dance to be held this Saturday night in the College Gymnasium from 8 to 12 p. m.

The theme "Winter Wonderland" will be carried out in the decorations being planned by Mary Moore Karr and Mary Ethel Straw, and in the traditional figure which will be led by Betsy Gravely, honorary class member. The song of the same title as the theme will be played during the figure. The actual formation will be kept secret until the night of the dance.

An after-the-dance party will be given for the seniors and their dates at the Longwood Estate. Refreshments will be served, and a local combo will provide music for listening and dancing.

Receiving Line

Asked to stand in the receiving line for the dance were Dr. and Mrs. Marvin W. Schlegel, Peggy Harris and A. P. Hall, Jean Ridenour and Stuart Sorg, Anne Oakley and Tom Kellam, Rebecca Mann and Phil Mann, and Bunny Ricks and Milnes Austin.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Landrum, Miss Elizabeth Burger, Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Simonini, Dr. and Mrs. George W. Jeffers, and Dr. and Mrs. Francis B. Simkins have been asked to chaperon the dance.

Tickets for the dance have been priced $2.40 drag and $1.20 stag. They will be on sale during this week.

FreshmenComplete Choice of Officers In Recent Meeting

The freshman class completed the election of their officers last week. The officers are as follows: Barbara Assaid, vice president; Elizabeth Kent, secretary; and Jean Carol Parker, treasurer. Frances Motley and Dorothy Vaden are the Student Government representatives for the freshman class.

Barbara or "Bobby" came to Longwood from Roanoke. During her senior year of high school she was president of the Y-teens and on Student Government. She was also elected DAR good citizen.

"Beth" Kent hails from Richmond. While she was a senior she was president of Quill and Scroll and a member of the National Honor Society. She was, in addition, co-business manager of the Thomas Jefferson annual.

From Emporia, Jean Carol Parker came to Longwood after outstanding high school leadership. Jean Carol was president of the Glee Club, secretary and treasurer of the Photography Club, and Chaplain of the Tri Hi-Y. She was also a cheerleader and co-captain of the basketball team. Jean Carol was also elected best-all-round girl by her senior class.

Freshman government representative Frances Motley resides in Sharps (Va.) She was secretary and treasurer of Student Council and president of the 4-H Club. She also tied for first honors in her graduating class.

Also representing the Freshmen on government is Dot Vaden of Danville. In high school she was on Student Council, was managing editor of the annual, and was president of the Y-teens. Dot was also a member of the Honor Society and attended Girl's State. She graduated first in her class.

Sophomores Choose Beavers, Adkins Head Of Annual Production

Chairman of Sophomore Production, Lou Beavers, of Indian, and Nancy Adkins, her assistant of Richmond, have announced committee heads for the presentation which will be given January 12 in Jarman Auditorium.

Supervising the script writing will be Joyce Kariet, transfer from Keuka College in New York, while Joan Pershing of Fredericksburg has been selected to take charge of the costuming. Make-up committee heads are Ann Dickinson of Rocky Mount and Pat Altwegg of Hilton Village.

The music for the production will be written by Mary Anne King of Rescue, while Betty Lou Garrett of Roanoke will take charge of dancing.

In charge of publicity is Liz Hoskins of Lynchburg, and Paula Dovall of the Canal Zone.

Parisian Girl Enrolls Here

Catherine Ollivary, Longwood's new informant in French, arrived in Farmville on November 25. Catherine, already better known as "Cathy" to Longwood students, hails from Paris, France. Her home is in Saint Germain despres, a district of Paris where the famed "Latin Quarter" is located.

After receiving her degree from the Lycee Fenelon, Cathy enrolled in business school. To fullfill part of the requirements for graduation from the business school she attended, Cathy worked for four months as a secretary in a Parisian business office.

Cathy's love of travel has taken her far from Paris on two occasions prior to her present visit to the United States. In 1949, she attended summer school in Florence, Italy, and shortly before coming to Farmville she spent a month in Sussex, England.

Her parents are dealers in antiques, and Cathy, herself, is very interested in art from the standpoint of interior decorating and fashions. She plans to go to work in the fashion world when she returns to Paris.

Cathy became interested in coming to Longwood through her cousin, Mrs. Rothe, a Frenchwoman who has lived in Farmville for the past few years and at one time attended classes at Longwood.

When asked what he thought of Longwood, Cathy responded, 'Of course it is quite different from the French university, but it is wonderful. The living conditions are more comfortable. There are far more extra-curricular activities. The various organizations and sports activities are not as prevalent in French schools." She also added, "I expected that the first week in a foreign country would be difficult, possibly a little lonely, but I was wrong."

Give and Take

Traditionally, New Year's has been the time to "turn over a new leaf," but inspiration and eagerness to do a better job from now on seemed to run high after the week end convention of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association here.

Students who work on the editing, make-up, and writing of college publications, or at least a portion of them, will someday edit, make-up and write the local, state, and national newspapers, magazines, and yearbooks. To be worthy of working on such large scale publications, we must have experience, but as in everything our own experience is not enough. We are dependent upon the experiences of others as well as they upon ours.

Man would not be the civilized being he is today without the exchange of ideas; he could learn little and only very slowly by the method of trial and error. So it is with us, who work on the amateur side of the press. We find problems that we are unable to solve or we become trite in the constant use of a style that appeals to us. Our readers and our public are important, for it is they for whom we write. They will not follow us unless we keep them interested and well informed.

How can we secure and retain this interest that is so important? We feel that it cannot be done individually, by a paper or book that is the exact copy of the old, whose mistakes as well as virtues are successively repeated. We need to associate periodically with student publishers from other colleges, to hear their suggestions and to offer ideas of our own.

"Give" seemed to be the theme of the group which met here this week end, for the give and take of ideas was done willingly and eagerly. We commend the VIPA for its worthy purpose.

Please

"I just don't have time to go all the way down those stairs to mail my letters." "Mother will be mad if she doesn't hear from me tomorrow afternoon, but I can't go all the way down to the mail box between classes like I used to!" "Why don't they put a box upstairs somewhere for us to mail our letters?"

Members of the student body hear comments like this every day since the post office made its surprise move to its new inconvenient location. Most Longwood students agree with the people who make such remarks, and, in fact, have had a few to make themselves. They felt that the old site in which they received and mailed their letters was just fine. It was a disconcerting jolt to return from Thanksgiving vacation and discover that one more flight of stairs had been added to their daily routine.

Perhaps when the foreign language department moves into its new home in the old post office, the French and Spanish students at least will appreciate the change —it will save steps for them. And the Rotunda is certainly happy to know that it may soon have new quarters. Although finding an empty box is even more of a blow after the long treck downstairs, most students have adjusted themselves to the unwanted change and told themselves it was all in the interest of progress and improvement.

From comments heard around school, it seems that a majority of Longwood students feel that though they can accept the move of the post office as necessary, they also think that the installation of a centrally located mail box with regular collection of letters during the day is a most desirable idea.

It is hard to make a special trip downstairs for the purpose of mailing letters. Parents and friends of Longwood girls and men would perhaps benefit if a box were installed in the vicinity of the Rotunda in that they would hear from them more promptly. Therefore, the student body asks that the administration consider this suggestion.

In Regards

Despite the pessimistic attitude of some of us, America's top ranking military men believe there is an outside chance for an early peace in Korea. The hopefuls back up their view with the idea that the Communists, despite their haggling, want an armistice. In the past year they have suffered tremendous casualties and are convinced that they never will be able to drive the United Nations forces out of Korea. On the other hand, the pessimists declare that the talks could bog down for many more weeks over the questions of withdrawal of foreign troops, exchanging prisoners, and so forth. If a break in the talks were to occur, a naval blockade of the Red coast and Allied bombing of Manchurian bases would be inevitable.

And now another snag has developed in the talks on the armistice. The Allies have objected strongly to any Red buildup of air power during an armistice. Chief Allied negotiator Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy told the Reds that the United Nations command insisted that neither side should repair old air fields or build new ones during an armistice. It has been reported that in the weeks past the Communists have been feverishly trying to complete several airfields in North Korea under steady attack by Allied bombers. To the demands made by Joy the Reds objected, asserting that such a move would "deprive our side forever of the right to defend ourselves."

The Allied objection to Red air buildup was not in the nature of an ultimatum. However, it is another snag in a long series which have continuously barred realization of a satisfactory settlement.

Signs of increasing enemy air power have been noted in daily headlines and tell us of the increasingly vicious jet battles.

The wrangling negotiators have until December 27 to arrive at an armistice based on a provisional cease-fire line adopted last Tuesday. If they fail they will have to reconsider the cease-fire line.

Engaged

Joy Pharis received a diamond this past weekend from Bob McFadin of Martinsville. Best wishes and all that stuff.

Mary Campbell received a diamond from Lawrence Dodson of Martinsville and the University of Richmond.

Pinned

Betty Collier got a Tau Kappa Epsilon pin last weekend from Bill Walker of the University of Virginia. For those of you who don't know Betty, we would like to mention that she has spent quite a bit of time up there lately. It is indeed unfortunate that we couldn't get to you with this information before now, because we know you would all have liked to tell Betty how much you had enjoyed knowing her. But, as she herself has been told, 'Fust things come fust.'

Patty Derring received a Kappa Sigma pin just Sunday from Shep Ames of Hampden-Sydney. On second thought, it could have happened anytime during the past weekend. Still, we are reasonably sure that Patty would tell you herself if you are interested in knowing.

Mary Ellen Booth received a Sigma Alpha Epsilon pin from Swanson Hornsby of William and Mary, but it was so long ago that aMry Ellen have holes in all her clothes by now.

Now we have a new slant. Audrey Mae Sanderson of Madison College received a Tau Theta Pi pin from Eric Robinson, a member of the men's student body. We are glad to see that our men students are on the ball, too.

Recently

We're so confused about just what happened when, why and how, that this will just have to be miscellaneous, with all respects to those of the same name.

Fay Greenland spent the Thanksgiving holidays in Boston, Mass., and New Haven, Conn., where she attended the Yale-Harvard football game and the parties at Yale.

Nellie Lucy, Wilma Spurlock, Ann Mallory, Shirley Perkins, Joan De Alba, Libby McClung and Jane Mallory attended the Emory & Henry-Randolph-Macon football game.

B. B. Wilson and Jean Pearce were among those Longwoodites who attended the Military Classic of the South in Roanoke on Thanksgiving Day. There is one big difference in these two and the others who might have attended. Guess!

Mary Hundley and Marion Thompson attended the Duke-Carolina game.

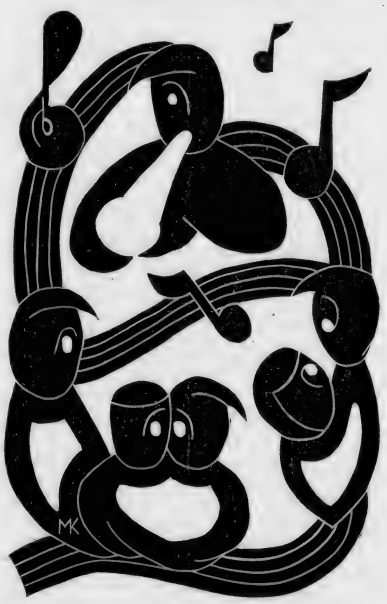
V.M.I. had their Ring Dances on the same weekend that they played ball in Roanoke. Fan Phillips and Wanda Karlet were in the ring figure. Quite nice figure favors, too. Ann Bryan and Jane Bailey went to the dance.

Founder's Day

The Alpha Epsilon chapter of Pi Kappa Sigma sorority celebrated its Founder's Day last month. This year marked their fifty-seventh national anniversary, and the twenty-third local birthday.

Also celebrating their founding during November was Alpha Sigma Alpha. A banquet was held in the Tea Room as a part of their fiftieth year celebration.

National Visitor



Miss Janet Mayer, traveling secretary for Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority visited the Alpha chapter on this campus last week, inspecting and advising the members on various sorority matters.

Note

What with the holiday season staring us straight in the eyes etc., we feel that the news will certainly be flooding in. Let's all try to be just a little raindrop that falls somewhere near the Rotunda box and maybe we can have a continued column like they do in TRUE STORY magazine.

Almost forgot. Gail Dixon and Dot Douglas just got back from Philadelphia where they attended the Army-Navy game (?).

Have come to the end of my paper. Please do remember that life will go on but "where" is the question.

Following the recent presentation of "Ladies in Retirement," the student body was asked for comments, criticisms, or suggestions for improvement in the production.

Betty Lou Harman: "The acting, props, and sound effects were all wonderful. I thought it was the best play I've ever seen!"

Mildred Blessing: "I thought that "Ladies in Retirement" was a sensation, but it lasted a little too long."

Jo Zitta: "It showed that a lot of time and effort had been spent on the production, not only by the cast, but also by the backstage crew. The entire dramatics club warrants praise and congratulations."

Pat Tuggle: "It was the best student production I've seen at Longwood."

Jean Ridenour: "It was a marvelous production which showed how much hard work everyone concerned with the play expended. I was so pleased to see a large turnout."

Folly Brothers: "The plot created such an atmosphere of suspense that it kept the audience on the edges of their seats."

Liz Browning: "The acting was very professional, and the lighting was particularly effective. It beats any play I've ever seen."

Jane Bailey: "I honestly didn't think that college students could do so well. It was a well-cast production."

Ann Bryan: "I thought that Sally Wilson portrayed her roll excellently."

Claire Krienbaum: "They done good."

Betty Islin: "A nice Christmas gift suggestion for Cleo would be a black wig. She looked so good, her own grandmother didn't recognize her. All kidding aside, the play was extremely well done in every respect."

Mason Moore: "It was a great improvement over those given last year. Cleo was, as usual, great."

Betty Benton: "The play was marvelous."

Dr. C. L. S. Earley: "It was a great pleasure to work with the cast; and the new theatre has great chances for development. But no director is satisfied with the play just finished. There were dozens of small things that begged for more attention. No, it was a good show, far from a perfect one. The perfect one will be the next—in the spring."

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor,

With your kind permission, I would like to use your newspaper to thank all the people who helped us present our play "Ladies in Retirement."

I particularly wish to thank Miss Gleaves and the other ladies in the Home Office and Mrs. R. C. Simonini for their help in collecting furnishings for our set. My classes in Speech and English did a first-rate job on ticket selling too.

My profoundest thanks go to the stage crew—Harold Hutter, Madison McClintic, Tom Moore, Charles Benford, Herbert Goodman and Ethel Straw. And there are many others who gave their time to help with our show. Believe me, all your efforts are appreciated.

Sincerely,

C. L. S. Earley

P. S. Don't forget, all you students who would like to have a chance in dramatics, we've got another show coming up in the spring.

Christmas Music

Longwood, Hampden-Sydney Choirs Will Give Holiday Concert Sunday

The Christmas Concert given annually by the combined Longwood College Choir and the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club, under the direction of Dr. John W. Molnar, will be presented this Sunday, December 9, at 8:30 p. m., at Longwood College, and Dec. 10 at Hampden-Sydney College.

Featured in the concert will be a number of selections from Handel's "Messiah" including "For Unto Us a Child Is Born" and "Hallelujah." Other well known selections appropriate for the Christmas season will round out the program.

The newly formed A Cappella Choir consisting of 18 voices selected from Hampden--Sydney and Longwood by Dr. Molnar will make their first public appearance during the concert. They will sing "Lost In The Night" arranged by Morten J. LaVaas, and "Clear and Calm Was the Holy Night" by Alexander Nikolsky.

The choir, as its name indicates, specializes in singing unaccompanied music, although it does limit its repertoire to this type of choral music. The major part of its repertoire, however, is made up of eight-part music of the 16th and 17th centuries, when choral music assumed a vast significance and development.

Other numbers on the program will be sung by the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club, by the Longwood Choir, and by the combined groups. The groups will be accompanied by Billie Dunlap of Longwood and Howard Hanson of Hampden-Sydney.

The program will end with the combined voices singing a selection which has become traditional for the concert — "A Merry Christmas" by Arthur Warrell.

The choir of Longwood College and the Glee Club of Hampden-Sydney College will also appear during the Christmas concert, both separately and in joint numbers. A large part of the concert will be devoted to the choruses from the Christmas portion of 'The Messiah' by Handel.

The public is invited to the concert, which will be held in Jarman Hall in Farmville, December 9, begining at 8:30 p. m., and in the Johns Auditorium in Hampden-Sydney, the following night.

Director Of Theater Relates Experiences, Entertains Students

by Janet Wiggins

Longwood students were highly entertained at the assembly yesterday by Mr. Robert (Legs) Porterfield, Director and Founder of the Barter Theater, who spoke to the gathering on his experiences as a "Ham."

Mr. Porterfield is a "former day student at Hampden-Sydney and a former night 'student' of the Virginia State School for Normal Women." He reported that the majority of his Hampden-Sydney days were spent in the parlors and on the campus of- what is now Longwood where he was known as the boy with the pretty legs.

After leaving College in his senior year, Mr. Porterfield journeyed to New York where his Southern accent proved a handicap. After Yankeyizing his speech, he began to "strut the boards" and continued to do so until the depression "carried him back to old Virginia." Back in Virginia he began the unique institution of accepting produce for box office. Thus the Barter Theater was born.

Since the invocation of his brain child, Mr. Porterfield has crusaded in Virginia for better cultural advantages for the state. In recognition of his outstanding work, Mr. Porterfield was recently awarded a Doctoral Degee by his old alma mater, Hampden-Sydney.

H2O Club Reveals Cast, Theme, Time Of Water Pageant

Toys, Icicles Combine For A Wet Christmas

"A Wet Christmas Eve" is the theme of the water pageant which will be given Thursday, December 13, by the H2O Club. Two performances will be presented, one from 5 to 6 p. m., and another from 7 to 8 p. m.

Opening scene of the performance is Wee Jane, portrayed by Liz Crockett, dozing and dreaming under her Christmas tree about the toys she wants for Christmas. Her dream will be narrated by Cleo Holladay. Wee Jane dreams of icicles which perform in a floating pattern. They are Pat Altwegg, Elsie Wente, Eleanor Koch, Nancy Walker, Marian Beckner, Dorothy Boswick, Blanton Ferguson, and Jean Ridenour.

Next the toy monkeys, jack-jumps and clowns will perform their jack-jump over the candle stick and several other routines. Performing in these stunts are Nancy Huff, Mary Elva Robinson, Ilia Des Portes, Bunny Ricks, Juanita Hudson, Fay Greenland, Ann Harding, Roberta Wiatt, and Eleanor Koch. The diving clowns in Wee Jane's dream will be Nancy Walker and Betty "Termite" Tyler.

Performing as wooden soldiers are Betty Ann Johnson, Roberta Wiatt, Nancy Adkins, Nancy Norfleet, Paula Doval, Eleanor Weddle, Jean Pierce, and Lou Kitts. The duet of the Indian Maidens will be presented by Nancy Walker and Jean Ridenour.

Sailor dolls will be portrayed by Marian Beckner, Blanton Ferguson, and Dot Boswick. Following this the beautiful shining stars will appear and they will be Pat Altwegg, Elsie Wente, Lib Boswell, Joan Ward, Boots Russell, Ann Crowder, Babs Mitchell, Lois Crutchfield, Jackie Sell, Mildred Parker, Lee Wingfield, and Betty Gillette.

The final number will be the candle march and the forming of the letters H2O.

Dr. Molnar Orchestrates Bach Prelude

Arlington Civic Symphony Orchestra will perform an orchestration by Dr. John W. Molnar, head of the music department of Longwood College, during its first concert of the current season, Thursday night, in the auditorium of Washington and Lee Junior High School, Arlington, under the direction of its conductor, Bernard Rosenthal. The composition is the organ "Prelude and Fugue in C Minor," by Bach. The arrangement by Dr. Molnar is for full symphony orchestra.

Dr. Molnar, a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, was formerly the conductor of one of the conservatory's orchestras, as well as a member of the teaching staff. He also served as director of the Univeristy of Cincinnati Glee Club and Oratorio Society before assuming his present position at Longwood College. While at the conservatory several of his orchestrations were performed by the orchestra during its appearances over a national radio chain. He was assistant to Vladimir Bakaleinikoff, now musical director of the Pittsburg Symphony, in conducting, and to Alexander Von Kreisler in opera.

The Arlington orchestra is made up in almost its entirety of professional and working people who perform orchestral instruments as a hobby and relaxation. It plays

'Ladies In Retirement' Marks Beginning Of New Era In Longwood College Dramatics

by Mrs. M. M. Davis

The Longwood Players' presentation of "Ladies in Retirement" on November 30 provided reassuring evidence that our college is well on its way to reestablishing its reputation for outstanding dramatic productions. Since the fall of 1948, inadequate staging facilities and-one year-the lack of a dramatic coach made satisfactory play production well nigh impossible. We owe last Friday night's success in large measure to the able directing of Dr. C. L. S. Earley and to the new Jarman auditorium.

The selection of Edward Percy and Reginald Denham's suspense drama seems to have been a fortunate choice as a first play for the 1951-52 session, and its popular reception no doubt will assure Dr. Early of stiffer student competition in future dramatic tryouts, and adequate box office receipts for his next production.

The play was exceptionally well cast, and all those having any share in it are to be congratulated on providing an evening of laughs and shivers to a responsive audience.

The acting of Cleo Holladay in the difficult role of Ellen Creed, the middle-aged housekeeper who turns tigress in defense of her demented sisters, was most convincing. She left no doubts in the mind of Albert or of the audience that she was entirely capable of disposing of her unprincipled nephew in a second murder, should he persist in his attempts at blackmail; yet the next instant, with her exaggerated sense of family loyalty, she provided him with the opportunity and the means of escaping the police on his own account. Miss Holladay's musical voice, especially pleasing in the lower register, and her flexible body movements marked her again as a young actress of real ability and promise.

Edwin Stanfield, as the nephew, Albert Feather, who was without conscience or loyalties, gave an excellent performance. The part, calling for dramatic suspense and light comedy, for sparkle and finesse, demanded a high quality of acting. The fact that both Miss Holladay and Mr. Stanfield have had more than the usual stage experience in college and little-theatre dramatics was evidenced by their performance Friday.

Outstanding in their character roles were Nancy Nelson and Marian Thompson as the amusing and poignantly pathetic spinsters who demanded and won the home of the sister's employer for their own. The performance of Jean Jinnett as the maid would seem to guarantee her a part in future Longwood comedies. Sally Wilson, as the retired actress, Leonore Fisk, and Jean Jinnett have indeed made able beginnings in their first college dramatics. Another first-night performer was Barbara White, whose role as Sister Theresa was important in resolving the plot of the drama.

On the whole the performance was well staged. Anyone who has attempted to paint and arrange flats, collect props, achieve lighting and sound effects for a completely new and untried stage as yet inadequately equipped for student productions can appreciate the handicaps involved. If the modernistic window and the horn-rimmed spectacles seemed inconsistent with the year 1895, or if certain color combinations in costumes were unfortunate, we can readily admit that the complexities involved in using the new auditorium made an oversight of such details understandable.

The character make-up left something to be desired. It is difficult enough for college teenagers to play the parts of aged spinsters, but their roles would be made easier for them by the effective use of the make-up kit. It is to be hoped that the make-up committee will accept this as a challenge to motivate their efforts for the spring play.

Whatever the next production of the Longwood Players may be, their performance last Friday evening has already won them a warm and sympathetic audience reception.

Art Student Holds Exhibit Of Paintings

Lucy Jane Morton of Farmville, is currently showing her "Exhibition of Oil Sketches—Rockport, Massachusetts Local Color" in the browsing room of the college library. This is the first "one-man" exhibit of work by a Longwood girl to be shown in recent years.

The exhibition, which will be displayed from December 1 to December 14, consists of a collection of oil sketches that are the results of Miss Morton's intensive painting done last summer in the well-known art colony of Rockport, Massachusetts. Her subject matter there consisted of local Rockport landscapes, and was executed in the quick-impression technique, usually in one painting session. Notable local color scenes done at Rockport include a view of "King Street Beach," her impression of the famous "Lobster Boat at Motive Number One," and a scene of "Rockport Lobster Houses."

Lucy Jane studied under Cameron Burnside of Philadelphia during her six-week stay. Mr. Burnside is well known in the New England area for his portrait work. Her New England vacation was a most enjoyable experience and, in fact, came very close to her conception of paradise, she reports.

Besides her art work, Lucy Jane is known, at Longwood for her active participation in college activities. She is a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, national journalism fraternity; The Longwood Players; the staff of the Colonnade, college magazine; and Kappa Delta social sorority.

'Hour' To Feature Language Classes

The Foreign Language Department under the supervision of Miss Helen Draper will present the Longwood Hour program over WFLO on December 6. Members of the French and Spanish Clubs will sing Christmas songs. Maria Jackson and Helen Tanner will announce and explain the songs.

Members of the French Club will sing Michant Veillait, Entre l'are et de boeuf gris, Un Flambeau Jeanette, Isabelle, Minuit Chretiens, c'est l'heure solennelle, Il est ne le divin enfant.

Pastores A Belen, Venid Fieles Todos, Azulnaldo, O Santisimo, Al Quebrar La Pinata, will be sung by the Spanish Club.

Taking part in the program are Esther Acosta, Ellen Porter, Mary Cowles, Martha Thompson, Roberta Browning, Celeste Bishop, Joanne Utley, Betsey Stone, Olga Rodriquez, and Maria Jackson.

Also Barbara White, Pat Taylor, Betty Collier, Pat Altwegg, Barbara Moore, Jane Bailey, Nancy Swinderman, Jean Lynch Hobbs, and Dot Douglas.

Professor Writes On Shakespeare In Fall Quarterly

Did Shakespeare have to study foreign languages in school?

Where did he pick up the French and Italian that he uses in his plays?

These questions are considered in a new field of Shakespearean scholarship explored by Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr., of Longwood College in the fall number of the Shakespeare Quarterly, published this week by the Shakespeare Association of America.

In his study of language lesson dialogues in Shakespeare, Dr. Simonini, who is head of the college's English Department, finds a new source for the dialogue technique employed by the dramatist in a number of plays. He discovers numerous remarkable analogies between scenes in the plays and dialogues used as a teaching device in contemporary language manuals as "ten easy lessons" to linguistic knowledge for busy Elizabethans.

"Here was a quarry of material, rough hewn on any conceivable subject," says Dr. Simonini, "which was fashioned by the genius of Shakespeare into effective stage employment particularly in the comedies."

Annual Fete To Be Given By Students

The annual French and Spanish Club Christmas Party will be highlighted this year by a French play "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame" and the Spanish Bullfight, which is an annual presentation and part of the party, as all French and Spanish students and their guests meet in the rec this Friday night at 8 p. m.

Maria Jackson, president of the Spanish Club will extend a welcome to all the guests, and will sing a solo "O, Magali." The singing of Spanish carols will include "Las Pasadas," "Venid Fieles Todos," and "Pastores a Belen."

The French Club will sing carols to the assembled group, and twelve members will entertain with a folk dance, "La Danse des Bergers." Nancy Lawrence, soloist, will sing "Minuit Chretien", and Barbara Blackman and Celeste Bishop will present a French ballet.

Two plays, "The Eating of Grapes" and "El Dia Los Reyes Magos," will depict Spanish yuletide customs, and Los Aguinaldos, or the presentation of gifts, will be a part of the Spanish half of the program.

'Y' Will Sponsor Festivities For LC Christmas Season

Pageant

The Christmas pageant annually sponsored by the YWCA will be presented on Friday, December 14, according to Joanne Pershing, chairman of the prayers committee.

The traditional pageant, which is centered around the theme, "O Holy Night," will be given during the time of evening prayers in the Episcopal Chapel. Students are invited to participate in the chorus which will sing familiar Christmas carols.

Following the pageant, heads of all organizations will participate in "White Christmas," in which they will contribute to a fund used by the Y' for Farmville welfare. This feature of the annual pageant has been a part of Longwood tradition since the College was founded.

Banquet

The Y.W.C.A. and the Freshmen Commission are sponsoring the annual formal Christmas banquet, which will take place in the dining hall on Monday, December 12. Immediately following the dinner there will be the traditional hanging of the green in the Rotunda.

The program planned for the enjoyment of L. C. students and the special guests - administration and faculty members - includes the singing of Christmas carols between courses and the following menu:

Half grapefruit
Turkey and dressing - giblet gravy
Cranberry sauce
Casserole sweet potatoes
Broccoli - Hollandaise sauce
Tomato Aspic Salad
Rolls - Coffee
Plum Pudding and Hard Sauce
Christmas Candies

The Freshman

I will not waste my time this year,
The Freshman nobly cries;
I will pursue the narrow path,
That straight before me lies.
I will not squander father's coin
In roistering and such
I will not smoke, I will not drink—
At least not very much.
I'll write to Mother once a week
Her loneliness to soften,
But I won't ask for money-no,
Well, not so very often.
But I will work with all my might;
With all my youthful pow'r,
And like the little busy bee
Improve each shining hour.
Yes, I am going to study hard,
So folks won't think me dumb,
For I intend this coming year
To learn to play the drum.

16th Century Anti-Semitism Revealed In Role of Shylock

by Molly Hersman

Shylock is the personification of the Elizabethan conception of the Jewish race. All Jews to the Elizabethans were fawning, despicable, avaricious creatures. Hence they were to be despised, humiliated, and treated with utmost contempt. This sixteenth-century concept of the Jew was confirmed by the discovery of a plot to assassinate Queen Elizabeth in which a Jewish physician, a Dr. Roderigo Lopez, was implicated. But this sensation was not the only reason for contemporary anti-Semitism.

Elizabethans like other Europeans of the time and of succeeding ages too were prejudiced and unreasonspect towards foreigners or towards people who had inherited a different culture from theirs. The Jews through characteristic perseverance and tenacity have managed to retain their culture and their tongue and to keep themselves inviolate as a people, thus perpetuating a homogeneity of race. The Elizabethans regarded the Jew as an alien, no matter if he were born an Englishman. Cruel treatment of an unwholesome alien and infidel such as Shylock was therefore justified by Elizabethan standards.

Shakespeare, the Elizabethan bowed to the demands of his audience and gave them the traditional Jew in the Merchant of Venice; but Shakespeare the artist could not conceive of his Jew as a stereotyped character. Shakespeare gave his audience their Jew, but he gave them one with a soul. He humanizes Shylock by giving us momentary glimpses of the Jew's dignity, his paternal love, his sentiment, and through his demand that, after all, "Hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions . . . as a Christian?"

The climax of the play occurs in the scene where the pride and faith of Shylock is broken, bested, and humiliated. This is the triumph of merciful Gentiles over a vengeful Jew. It is also the symbolic triumph of equity over the letter of the law.

Modern stage representations of Shylock need not be distorted to make him a hero or a martyr if the Elizabethan atmosphere in which he was conceived is understood.

Hello, Joe

by Barbara White

Dear Joe,

All during the past week, people have been suggesting cute, clever things for me to write to you and at the moment they say them, I think that I will surely remember such witty statements. But when I pick up my pen and start to write, my mind is abysmally ignorant of anything clever. It would be nice if these kind people would write their remarks down. The things I remember aren't fit for publication.

Americans are very excited about the Korean peace talks. They all believe it is the end of the war. It is very silly of them to feel thus. Why do they think Americans and Russians can settle a war when the Russians are still trying to convince one another that black is white.

In the last communication from Ivan, he said that the Russians were getting so desperate for soldiers that they are taking anything. A Red doctor was busily examining a prospective draftee when he came to a multiple amputee in a wheelchair. "Oil his wheels," he said to the interne, "and send him through okay."

This is the kind of doctor who, when asked to define the spinal column, replies, "The spinal column is a long bunch of bones. The head sits on top and you sit on the bottom."

Times and parents have changed. The Spartan mother said to her son, "Return with your shield or upon it." The modern American mother says, "Return with your shield or pawn it."

Queen Elizabeth was a fat woman. The demands of the Spanish ambassador she stoutly resisted. Tune in next week and I will tell you where the Declaration of Independence was signed.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

For I Dipped Into the Future Far as Human Eye Could See

by Jean Jinnett

"For I dipped into the future as far as human eye could see—".

It was a warm lazy day—just the kind to take you soaring in the misty blue skies. Things around me became hazy. I was in a different land — at least I thought I was, until I inquired of the information Robot currently stationed at the booth on the corner of 3rd and Main Streets and was told that the name of the flourishing city was Farmville, the year 1999.

As I stood there, I marvelled that the traffic in a metropolis whose population was 8½ million was remarkably uncongested. On observing more closely, I decided that perhaps a partial explanation for this might be the revolving streets. No doubt, the airplane station and helicopter depot had something to do with it, too.

Being immensely hungry, I entered the College Shoppe and with velocity devoured a delicious dinner of fresh dragon meat just imported via space ship from Mars. The most embarassing moment of my life up to that time occurred when I discovered that I had come away and left my purse at home in Tampa, Florida. How definitely disgusting to have to waste a full half hour in traveling all the way home by way of robot piloted plane to retrieve my money!

Just after my return to Farmville, I saw something that caused me to nearly faint dead away—a parade of members of the Class of '53 was running wildly down Main Street ostentatiously displaying the one banner they won in the Color Rush. The most surprising thing of all was the fact that each of them looked and acted just as young and spry as I remembered her when we were freshmen at ye olde Alma Mater. Being naturally surprised, I immediately pulled out my pocket telephone and rang up Charlie Hop, who was leading the parade. He calmly explained to me that this was a reunion of our class, and in response to my inquiry about everyone looking so young, he merely replied that I had evidently not heard about Monkey Glands "Run over and get Dr. Feele to fit you into a pair—I'm sure he'd love to do it for you," he said to me. Three minutes and 41 seconds later, I emerged from the Infirmary, having regained the lovely face and school girl figure that once had been my pride.

If this feature seems a bit familiar to some of you upperclassmen, there's a darned good reason. You read it, or one very similiar to it in the issue of the Rotunda which was released on Saturday, January 31, 1925 . . . . And you thought I was so clever!

Sport Specials

By ANNE C. JONES

A large crowd of L. C. students, with a few Hampden-Sydney boys thrown in for interest, watched a rip-roaring hockey game last Thursday between the freshman and sophomores. Though the sophs won by a 2-0 score, the frosh really put up quite fight—after all look what was at stake. Well, gripes or no gripes, I'm afraid it's Rat Caps until Christmas—You don't mind, do you freshmen? Those hats are so cute, you keep telling yourselves.

Further triumph for the red-n whites came with the color rush. Rachael Peters, Jean Ridenour, and Patsy Sanford were victors in races against Ann Crowder, Betty Bentley, and Termite Tyler, thus enabling the red -n whites to proudly hang their banners on Ruffner Hall and Junior and Senior building. However, this Color Rush wasn't a completely one-sided affair, and gala green 'n white banners adorned Tabb and Library Halls, thanks to the speedy feet of Clara Borum who defeated Jean Baber and Dot Morris who defeated Eleanor Koch. For those of you who have been wondering, your efficient reporter checked and found out that no points are given toward that coveted cup for the Color Rush.

Speaking of the Color Cup, green 'n white raked in five more points when Clara Borum defeated Else Wente in the fall tennis singles.

Christmas is just around the corner, and the time draws near for the H2O Club's annual water pageant. Another treat in store for us shortly after the Christmas holidays in the Orchesis recital, plans for which are well underway.

Though the red 'n whites are now five points ahead of their able competitors, things are just beginning, so everyone plan to come out soon for volleyball and basketball. Don't forget, you have to have eight practices. And remember if you can't play, your participation in the cheering section is always appreciated.

Another exciting sport is fast taking its place among the Longwood athletic activities—namely ping pong. Twenty-five people have signed up to participate in the tournament which will begin Friday.

Red, Green 'n Whites Add Points to Color Cup

Red n' White and Green n' White classes both added points to the color cup as the class hockey and fall tennis tournament struggles came to a close last week. To the Red n' White go ten points for class hockey wins, and the Green n' Whites are the possessors of five color cup points for tennis.

The victory proved to be a profitable one for the sophs as it added points to the red 'n white side of the color cup when coupled with the senior class victory over the juniors.

Rat caps must be worn until Christmas by the freshmen as a result of their defeat by the ratting class.

The two teams played on even terms during the first half of the frame, with both defensive teams seeing plenty of action. Ann Parkinson, early in the second half, changed the equilibrium by breaking through the line for the first goal. The second goal was scored by Mason Moore.

The seniors came to the close of two unbeaten years in hockey, with the close of this year in class hockey. They beat the juniors 3-1, in a fast game which was the first in which they had been scored on in two years, and romped up a 2-0 win over the frosh. The sophs in turn beat the freshmen by a 2-0 margin, and it was left to the juniors to come back with one green n' white win when they too chalked up a 2-0 score, this time over the sophomore team.

Clara Borum, junior Green n' White, brought the tennis finals to a close as she won with 9-7, 2-6, and 6-3 score over Else Wente, defendant and Red n' White sophomore. Borum had already beaten Edith Kennon, senior, in the semi-finals with scores of 6-3, 6-3, and Wente had won over Beckner 6-0, 6-0. Borum's wins gave single-handedly five points to Green n' White.

The next season of competition will be felt during the next few months as the basketball season comes into view, and into reality.

The editors of the Rotunda have recently announced that there are vacancies on the sports section of the newspaper, and that any one interested in writing sport news will be a welcomed addition to the staff.

Dance Group To Perform In Richmond

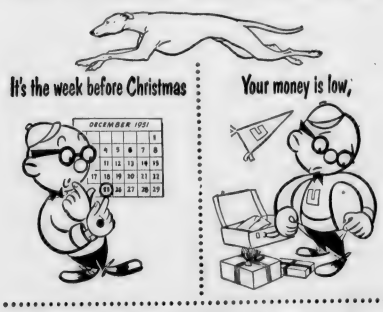
1951-52 Dance Day To Be Held Feb. 21

Seven modern dance students, Barbara Blackman, Joyce Booth, Mary Elizabeth Crockett, Betty Lou Garrett, Georgette Puryear, Ann Moody and Mary Elva Robinson will perform at Hermitage High School, Richmond, Virginia, Tuesday, December 11. Betty Goodson will accompany the group.

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, Associate Professor of Physical Education, will conduct the lecture-demonstration in dance, which will include the basic principles of body weights, body parts, and muscle action in relation to basic movement fundamentals underlying all physical education activities. Specific dance techniques and their subsequent developments technically and creatively into movement patterns and simple dance compositions will conclude the demonstration.

Counting the Hermitage demonstration, fifteen high schools within a sixty mile radius will have been visited by Mrs. Landrum where she has taught junior and senior girls singularly, or has taken some members of the modern dance class or Orchesis, the modern dance club, to demonstrate modern dance for the high school girls of the Commonwealth.

The Hermitage lecture-demonstration is part of the over-all plan of Dance Day for high school girls, a project initiated through the State Department of Education. This year's Dance Day, which was to have been given December 7, has had to be postponed until February 21, because of accompaniment difficulties.



Red 'n Whites Lead As Fastest Runners In Annual Color Rush

The annual Color Rush, although it gave no points toward the color cup, gave plenty of excitement to the spectators who saw three buildings won for Red n' White and two for Green n' White, as the classes fastest runners clashed in races last week.

Senior Building, Junior Building, and the Rotunda were claimed by Red n' White victors, Jean Ridenour, Patsy Sanford, and Rachel Peters, who ran against and beat Betty Bentley, Betty Tyler, and Anne Crowder, respectively.

The Green n' Whites were led to victories and hung their banners on the Student Building, and Library Hall. Winners for them were Clara Borum, who raced against Jean Baber, and Dot Morris, who won over Eleanor Koch.

The results of this annual fall classic were enthusiastically received by the spectators of both sides.

Holiday Fashions-Women's Apparel Will Be Modeled by Longwood's Men

Jarman Hall Setting For Show Tomorrow

The male population of Longwood will don women's apparel tomorrow night from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. in a fashion show sponsored by the Y. W .C. A. in Jarman Hall.

"Holiday Fashions" will be the theme of the show where women's clothes especially appropriate for the Yuletide season will be revealed by the male faculty members and men students. These clothes will include fashions such as party and evening attire, sport clothes, tea ensembles and casual wear.

Those faculty members participating are Dr. George W. Jeffers, Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss, Dr. Edgar M. Johnson, Mr. Christy Snead, Mr. Walter J. Kerfoot, Mr. Norman Myers, and Mr. Peter Sardo.

The men students are Bill Overbey, Madison McClintic, Harold Hutter, Tom Moore, Bob Hawkins and Bob Bradshaw. Betsy Hankins will act as master of ceremonies.

WSSF - ICU Drive

This entertainment is being held by the Y' to raise money for the WSSF - ICU drive which began yesterday and will continue through Friday. The World Student Service Fund was organized to aid the students and teachers in the war devastated nations all over the world. The International Christian University project is a gesture of good will on the part of America toward a one-time enemy, Japan.

The two projects were combined to avoid asking the students too often for money. The goal for the campaign at Longwood is $250 All students are urged to make their contributions as soon as possible to any member of the "Y" cabinet.

Local Kappa Delta Pi Will Sponsor Banquet In College Tea Room

The annual Kappa Delta Pi Christmas Banquet will be held tomorrow night in the College Tea Room, according to Mildred Blessing, president of the group. Among the special guests to be present are Dr. and Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster, Dean and Mrs. William W. Savage, Miss Ruth Gleaves, and all faculty members who are members of Kappa Delta Pi. A short program will follow the banquet, which is to begin at 6 o'clock.

Kappa Delta Pi is a national honorary society in education. Juniors and seniors make up the membership.

Home-Ec Convention Held At Longwood C.

Longwood was host to the East Central District of the Virginia Home Economics Association on Saturday, December 1. The guest speaker for the convention was Mrs. Howard Oldham, chairman of the Home Makers Group of the VHEA.

The members of the association were entertained by the Longwood College Home Economics Club with a coffee on Saturday morning.

Freshmen Choose Class Commission

Twelve freshmen were elected last night to serve on this year's Freshman Commission, at a meeting of the freshman class which was held in the small auditorium at 10 p. m.

Elected to the Commisison are Mary Campbell of Martinsville, Donnie Devine, from Richmond, Nell Cake of Charlottesville, Carolyn Stanley of Winchester, and Bobbie Assaid of Roanoke.

Also serving as members of this group will be Pat McLemore, from Roanoke, Jean Carol Parker of Emporia, Georgette Puryear of Richmond, and Joan DeAlba of Newport News. Nancy Nelson of Newport News, Anne Carter Wendenburg of Sandston, and Frances Motley of Sharps were also elected by their fellow-class members to this position.

The Commissicn, which is a part of the Y.W.C.A., works directly with Lu Leavers, Y' freshman counselor. Their purpose is to work with the Y' Cabinet whenever they are needed and called upon. Special duties which they will have in the immediate future will include the traditional "hanging of the green", which will take place next Wednesday, and the selling of food in the Student Lounge during the intermission of Senior Dance.

LC Alumnae Publish 1951 News Bulletin

The theme of the annual Longwood Alumnae News Bulletin, which will be in the mail by early February, will be the dedication ceremonies at Longwood College which were held on the weekend of October 20, and Homecoming which was also held that same weekend. The cover will carry a picture of Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, college president, and Governor John S. Battle of Virginia, who was the chief speaker. Many of the speeches and pictures highlighting the activities of the day will be included.

Mrs. Garland Quarles of Winchester, Virginia, recently visited the college and presented to Dr. Lancaster an original painting given by Miss Martha Kennerly, a graduate of 1897, who now lives in White Post, Virginia. This picture will be added to a group of paintings for the college and will be on exhibit in the science building.

Plans for the Christmas banquet which will be in charge of the freshmen were also discussed at this meeting.

Longwood College Representatives Visit High Schools

Several representatives from Longwood visited high schools in Virginia during the past week. Dean William W. Savage, Dean Ruth Gleaves, Mrs. Mary W. Watkins and Miss Virginia Wall participated in various college day programs.

Dean Savage attended college day at the Warren County High School on November 29. In addition, he has been in Roanoke for the past two days, attending college days at the three city schools; Jefferson, William Fleming and William Byrd.

A similar visit was made by Mrs. Watkins and Miss Wall to Victoria High School where college day was observed by Nottoway, Lunenburg and Amelia county high school seniors. On the same day, Miss Gleaves was visiting E. C. Glass High School in Lynchburg.

Rotunda Staff

Freshmen Shirley Ward and Phoebe Ward will become permanent members of the feature staff, and Lucy Thwing will serve as assistant on the business and circulation staffs. Joyce Pomeroy will act as aid to Bunny Gibson, copy editor.

The Rotunda urges and invites all interested students to try out for one of the newspaper staffs: news, feature, business and sports. A sports editor and writers are urgently needed.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Longwood Will Offer Courses For M. A. E. In '52 Summer School

Dean Announces Faculty, Courses

For the first time in the history of Longwood College credit toward the Master of Education degree will be offered in cooperation with the Department of Education of the University of Virginia in the 1952 summer session here.

Students who enroll in the graduate courses offered at Longwood must have been approved for graduate study by the Department of Education of the University of Virginia prior to the time of enrollment in the summer session. Application blanks and instructions may be obtained from the Dean of the Department of Education at the University of Virginia.

These graduate courses are open only to candidates for the Master of Education degree. Prospectives may take a maximum of 12 semester hours of credit at Longwood College toward their M. A. E. degree provided courses are available that are suitable for their individual plan of study. Two courses continued through both sessions of the summer school will give six semester hours each and thus make up the maximum load a student may carry.

Under special permission from Dean Savage, advanced undergraduate students may be permitted to enroll in a graduate course for under-graduate credit.

The instructors for the graduate courses will be Dr. Edgar M. Johnson, Associate Professor of Education, Dr. John W. Molnar, Professor of Music, and Dr. Floyd E. Swertfeger, Professor of Education.

Three daily courses are listed in the summer school catalog which will give three semester hours of credit toward the Master of Education degree. Dr. Swertfeger will teach Education 103, a survey course in the various philosophies of education. Education 125, The Teaching of Music, will have as its instructor Dr. Molnar. This course is a consideration of teaching principles and techniques in music for both elementary and secondary schools. A class in the philosophy and psychology of sensory learning and techniques and materials of audio-visual instruction applied to various curricular fields is also listed. This Education 157 will be taught by Dr. Johnson.

Art Class Decorates Longwood Buildings

The Christmas scenes on display in most of the college halls are a product of Mrs. Lemen's Art 211 class. The Art Department annually decorates the bulletin boards in the various halls with either winter or Christmas scenes which are drawn and colored by groups of students. This year's collection is a group of chalk drawings.

Feb. 15 Set For Orchesis Recital Date

"Dedication" has been chosen as the theme of the annual Orchesis Recital to be given on February 15 in the new Jarman Auditorium according to the club president, Marion Beckner.

The roll of the Phoenix, commonly known as a dodo bird, will be interpreted by Margie Hood, a senior from Norfolk. The Phoenix is a mythical bird of great beauty who lived about six hundred years ago and is said to have risen from its own funeral ashes to complete its life cycle again. Because of this, the bird is used as a symbol of immortality.

Plans for the recital were created by Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, modern dance professor, with a theme centering around the newly dedicated buildings on the college campus. Marion Beckner has stated that with the setting of the new auditorium and the music of the new organ, this year's recital should hit a new high in creative enjoyment.

41 Members Join Commercial Club

The Commercial Club held its regular meeting on Thursday, November 29, at which time forty-one new members were initiated, according to Winnie Murdock, President of the club.

Following the initiation ceremonies, Mr. Robert Crawford, owner of the Kilkare Laundry, spoke to the group on "Why We Are In College."

Among those being initiated were Barbara Allen, Juliette Anderson, Mary Lou Barlowe, Linda Bartenstein, Nancy Birdsall, Nancy Brown, Judy Cable, Mary Campbell, and Elizabeth Cheatham.

Nell Copley, Audrey Curfman, Joan Curles, Joan de Alba, Virginia Greene, Hazel Hurt, Nancy Inge, Joyce Jenkins, Beverley Johnson, Ernestine Johnson, Estella Jones, and Mary Jones were also made new members.

Also being initiated were Jane Mallory, Sue Mason, Jo Anne McConchie, Katherine Miller, Gail Moon, Calista Moore, Frances Northern, Sue Oliver, Joy Pharis, Joyce Pomeroy, Shirley Roby, and Ann Ross.

Wilma Salmon, Anna Sanders, Betty Frances Scarborough, Martha Smith, Nancy Tanley, and Frances Young completed the list of initiates.

The club also planned a Christmas party which was given Wednesday, December 12. Margarite Smith was elected to be in charge of the party, with Lynn Hill and Nancy Tanley as her assistants.

Christmas Greets

As we look forward to the Christmas Season, may we remember that we are celebrating the birthday of the Prince of Peace, who preached a doctrine of good will to men everywhere. May we realize that our greatest happiness will come from making others happy.

I hope that each of you will have a safe journey to and from your homes and that the holidays may be happy and joyous. I shall be thinking of you on Christmas Day and hoping that 1952 will be a year filled with fine accomplishment and happiness for all—

A Merry Christmas!

Dabney S. Lancaster

The Home Department Staff joins me in extending to each one of you and your families our best wishes for the holiday season.

May the New Year bring peace, health and happiness to you, and return you safely to Longwood.

Most sincerely,
Ruth Gleaves

Mrs. Savage and I hope that the peace, happiness and love of the Prince of Peace will be in the heart and home of each of you this Christmas. We join with you in a prayer that the New Year will bring His way of life into all nations to the end that there will be peace on earth, good will toward men.

William W. Savage
Dean of the College

Alpha Kappa Gamma Elects Crawford To Vice-Presidency

Mary Crawford, senior from Richmond, was elected to the vice-presidency of Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon. Jean Ridenour, president of the organization, has announced the appointment of committee heads and members.

Automatically heading the Policy committee is Mary Crawford. Working with her will be Lucy Page Hall and Mary Helen Cook. Marian Beckner has been appointed chairman of the Program committee with Nancy Walker and Mildred Blessing as her assistants.

The Library committee will be headed by Dolores Hoback. Virginia McLean and Margaret Thomas are also members of this committee. Heading the Extension committee will be Pat Tuggle, aided by Mary Jo Smith and Martha Alice Wilson.

Peggy Harris has been placed in charge of the Project committee and will work with Maria Jackson and Jean Ridenour. Betty Scott Borkey was chosen to work on the scrapbook.

LC Library Displays Material On Printing Of 'Conscripted City'

The Longwood College Library has now on display material lent to the library by Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel showing the process in the printing of his book, Conscripted City.

Dr. Schlegel, who is associate professor of history at Longwood was asked by the Norfolk War History Commission to write Conscripted City. The book tells about the Norfolk which was considered during the World War II to be a key defense city.

Exhibited in the library are the manuscript-second copy which shows the author's corrections, the manuscript-third copy, the galley proof which shows the author's corrections in black and the printer's errors in red. Also included in the exhibit are the page proof, the pictures used in the book, the production schedule, the index-page proof, the index manuscript, and the actual printed book.

Dr. Schlegel has lent the material to the library because he thought it would be of interest to the students to see a manuscript of the finished product.

Sophomores Announce 'Television Time' Show As Production Theme

Student Body Chooses Cook As Madonna

Mary Helen "Cookie" Cook portrayed the part of the Madonna in the annual Y. W. C. A. Christmas pageant which was held Friday night in the Jarman auditorium. This year, for the first time, the Madonna was chosen by vote of the student body.

The pageant, "O Holy Night," was directed by Joan Pershing, chairman of the prayers committee on the 'Y' Cabinet. It was centered around the birth of Christ, telling the story of the first Christmas in narration, and through the use of solos and group Christmas carols.

Porter Reads

Ellen Porter acted as reader of the scriptures for the pageant, and Dolly Horne sang a solo as the angel who announced the birth of the Christ-child to the shepherds, whose parts were portrayed by Phylliss Issacs, Jean Carol Parker, Sarah Schuler, and Faye Greenland. The parts of the three richly clad kings were taken by Jacque Sell, Nancy Lawrence, and Martha Deam Tomlinson.

The presentation of the manger scene was preceded by the traditional singing of "O Holy Night" by Sarah Hervie. Around the cradle of the new-born babe stood Joseph, portrayed by Bert Browning; two hovering angels, Lu Beavers and Kitty Hamlet; and little angels, Joyce Booth, Challice Haydon, Bobby Brown, and Ginny McLean.

Finale Scene

In the finale scene, singing the hymn "O Come All Ye Faithful," the entire cast assembled in reverence around the manger to worship the baby Jesus. They were joined by wisemen Eleanor Weddle and Frances Marker. Billie Dunlap served as accompanist to the pageant.

The entire cast and the audience joined in singing "Joy To The World" as the presidents of the various organizations brought forward their gifts for White Christmas, an annual benevolent cause of the Y. W. C. A. which helps to bring Christmas into underprivileged homes of Farmville.

Class Registration To Begin January 7

Registration for second semester classes will be held the week of January 7, according to a recent announcement made by Dean William Savage.

Students are urged to consider subjects they plan to take and discuss any schedule difficulties with their advisers. Specific information concerning the time and method of registration will be announced after Christmas.

Beavers, Adkins To Direct Show

"Television Time", the sophomore class production for 1952 will be presented January 11, in Jarman Hall under the direction of Lu Beavers and Nancy Adkins.

This year's show will be handled as a take-off on an average man's view of an average evening at home before his T. V. set. Two of the show's three parts will be musical, and the third will be an adventure from the files of that fabulous detective "Sam Shovel, Private Eyeball." Before the show is completed a fourth part may be added.

Betty Lou Garrett, who is acting as choreographer for the production has already started her group on rehearsals, however the rest of the show will not go into rehearsal until after the holidays.

Liz Hoskins, publicity chairman, has announced that admission tickets will be sold by class representatives opposite Dean Savage's office sometime after January 3. The cost of the tickets will be $.25 for Longwood students and $.35 for all others.

The other committee heads are to be Joan Pershing and June Johns, co-chairmen of the costumes committee; Eleanor Koch, lighting; Paula Dovail, props; Jackie Sell, scenery; Ann Dickinson and Pat Allweeg, co-chairmen in charge of make-up; and Mary Ann King, who is writing the words for the finale. Jane Branch is arranging the music, and Joyce Karlet is writing the script.

Corps Officer Visits Campus

An opportunity to become a commissioned officer in the United States Marine Corps is now being offered young college women of the Northeastern area, including Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey, and New York City, according to an announcement by Lieutenant Jane Pratt, officer in charge of the Marines' area office for women's officer procurement at Philadelphia.

Lieutenant Platt visited the College last weekend and spoke with Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, Dean Ruth Gleaves and Mrs. Kathleen Cover concerning the above mentioned opportunity for college students. She will return to oLngwood near the first of the year to speak to the students.

According to a News Release by the Office of Officer Procurement for Women, Enrollment in the fourth Women's Officer Training Class established by the Marine Corps is open to physically qualified, unmarried women undergraduates, and graduates of accredited colleges and universities. Applicants must be at least 18 years of age at time of enrollment and less than 25 on July 1 of the year in which they expect

Remember

America boasts the greatest road system in the world—three and a third billion miles of highways, byways and streets reaching into every corner of the land. Today, the United States has 76 per cent of the world's passenger cars and 51 per cent of the trucks and buses. BUT along with her proud boasts, this country must ashamedly confess that she has the largest number of traffic accidents.

Many of these accidents, in fact most of them, take place during our nation's holiday season. Christmastime, with its atmosphere of joy and blessedness, must become a time of mourning in many homes where a man, woman or child lost his life rushing eagerly to the place that seemed the best to celebrate the holiday.

Among the casualties of holiday season accidents are many college students going to or from home, shopping, parties. In the thrill and excitement of "going home" little thought is taken concerning the condition of the highway, how fast it is safe to drive, and what the other driver intends to do. Instead there is busy chatter concerning the past semester's work, new dresses, parties, gifts—the fact that these happy people may never reach their homes is obscured.

Longwood students are leaving today and tomorrow for that long-awaited Christmas vacation. Most of them will travel one of the highways that America so proudly boasts, and most of them will reach home safely—perhaps all of them. But there may be one or more whose Christmas will in no wise be happy for it may be spent in a hospital bed. A little time and attention devoted to the most important things we own—our lives—can make our holidays happy ones.

A Thought

The editors and staff members of the Rotunda extend a wish for the merriest Christmas and happiest New Year ever to the faculty, administration and student body of Longwood College.

Some homes will seem a little less cheery on Christmas day—an empty chair at a dining room table spread with the traditional turkey and plum pudding, a pile of unopened gifts that must wait a month or months to be opened, and one less voice to join in Christmas carols around the tree. We'll miss them, but we can and must thank the Christ whose birth we commemorate that they are safe and pray that they will return to us.

The past year has had its disappointments, but placed beside the good and wonderful, the disappointments are small. We should be thankful and in our hearts resolve that the coming year will be a truly happy one.

Never Forget

Christmas is almost here. Christmas with all its rush and excitement, Christmas with its last minute shopping and breathless anticipation. In just one more day all the tests and homework and eight o'clock classes will be over until next year.

Five hundred ninety-seven Longwood girls will soon be eagerly packing and preparing for a nice, long vacation. They'll be going home to parties and presents and overeating—to decorating the Christmas tree and addressing Christmas cards—to all the little traditions that make Christmas Christmas.

With all the excitement, with all the emphasis on the commercial side of the annual holiday, many of us are apt to forget what Christmas really means. We all need to take time out from the busy hustle-bustle to meditate on the fact that nearly two thousand years ago Christ was born. It is the birthday of the Prince of Peace that the Yuletide season commemorates. It is a time of year that should make us all think more than ever on what the birth of Christ meant to the world and to us as individuals. It is a season in which we should think more kindly of our neighbors, be charitable towards those less fortunate, and turn to our churches for a renewal of faith in the Christ child.

Yes, Christmas is almost here. But let us not let the rush and excitement sweep us pell-mell through the festivities without taking some time for carol singing, prayer, and thought on the real significance of the season.

In Regards

The major problems which face General Eisenhower today in Europe are worth consideration. In a blunt and angry speech to the twelve-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) committee of planners, the supreme allied commander reminded his listeners that security is expensive. The committee has drafted a blueprint for bigger arms budgets among some members in order to build up European defenses. However, Eisenhower's speech is in answer to the problem which arose when some nations began rebelling against boosting their military spending in the fear that it would upset civilian affairs at home. These balking nations were flatly told that their security will cost a lot of money and they must pay their share.

The second problem is that of getting Western German soldiers in uniform. NATO delegates were told that they would also have to rush through the build-up of a force of sufficient strength to deter Russia and at that point the defense burden could be lightened.

Eisenhower is reported to be striving for a force of some forty divisions in combat readiness by the end of 1952 and sixty more by 1954. To get forty divisions by the end of 1952, the committee is reported to be asking eight of the twelve NATO nations to do better than they are doing now.

Of these twelve NATO nations, Belguim has earmarked $488,000,000 of defense which represents 26.2 per cent of her overall budgets. The rate in the case of the United States is more than 65 per cent. France, according to top French Cabinet ministers, will probably be unable to meet NATO demands unless her National Assembly gives the necessary amount to meet her military budget.

Under the question of the unified European army is a scheme by which France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxenbourg would pool their military might and place it under the command of Eisenhower.

Hello, Joe

by Barbara White

Dear Comrades,

I declare, if it weren't for the faculty, we students wouldn't have a thing to laugh at. Have you ever wondered what characteristics of the male members of the faculty could be combined to make the world's most perfect man? Not that perfection doesn't exist in the faculty, but anyway, here it is.

If he could:

1. Be as down to earth as Dr. Simpkins.
2. Keep his coiffeur under control as well as Dr. Molnar and Dr. Swertfeger.
3. Have Mr. Snead's sex appeal.
4. Have Dr. Johnson's ivory complexion and brown suit.
5. Have Mr. Myer's legs and Mr. Sardo's hips.
6. Have a bountiful supply of clever, witty jokes like Mr. Coyner has.
7. LOOK as innocent as Mr. Graham.
8. Be as soft-spoken as Dr. Earley.

Then this gentlemen must be said to be perfect. Do you agree? It's always dangerous to print things like this; you never know the results.

After the Christmas Banquet every little girl's tongue was wagging about that Adonis who looked so continental and cosmopolitan in his evening attire. Dr. Moore has been busy giving pills to lower blood pressure. Who was he? None other than Dr. Simonini. Beware, sir; little do you know how many crushes you are the object of.

For us, Christmas begins Wednesday. We will have looked at our last helping of wrinkled peas, cold and gummy, and our last plate of mashed potatoes, glacier-chilled, and our last serving of congealed grease over clammy chicken. This applies equally to the lonesome pickle, the undernourished coffee, and the can grown fruit salad. Did you know that Mrs. Hammond's favorite book is Chicken Every Sunday?

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

I Believe In Santa Claus

Strollin' with Stokes

by Stokes Overbey

It's so close to Christmas that scarcely anyone has a sensible thought in her head. We asked: "What do you want Santa Claus to bring you?" with the following results:

Edith Goff: I've not got time to think—but I'd like to have a good-looking male to help with my student teaching homework.

Anne Rosson: I want Vivian to get home in time for the wedding. (Note: Vivian's the bridegroom!)

Cookie Cook: A candy cane as big as a train and a balloon as big as a moon.

Mildred Bright: I want a Prince Charming on a white stallion.

Lucy Jane Perkinson: An extension of Christmas until February 1.

Betty Jo Jennings: Bill!

Jean Talley: A real honest-to-goodness brain with lots of knowledge.

Betty Collier: A big, fat check.

Ann Keith Hundley: A dozen sweaters.

Jackie Lackey: A rest pillow so I can sleep better while I study.

Mary Hurt Peery: A light blue cashmere sweater.

Termite Tyler: A kiddie car to ride back and forth between buildings.

Bert Browning: I'm not gonna say 'snow' 'cause I know I'm gonna get it. And I'm not gonna say 'Christmas spirit' 'cause I've already got it . . and I won't say 'rest' 'cause I know that's impossible! What I really would like is an eight foot tall man—just my size!

Betty Jane Stoots Puckett: A plane ticket to Elizabethan, Kentucky, and a discharge for Cpl. Leon Puckett.

Anne Harding: My Gene and an A in geography. A marriage license can come with Gene if possible.

Mary Meade Robertson: Just a blue Byrd of happiness.

Barbara Caskey: Presents. . .I've always heard that it is more blessed to give than to receive, but it's more fun to receive than to give.

Helen Castros: A fur coat, 'cause it will make me look like a roly-poly bear.

Lois Marie Ash: A '52 Catalina Pontiac with a certain young man sitting in it.

Jane Allen: A warm fireplace and Don.

Catherine Toxey: A marine sergeant.

Novella Goode: I want him to bring my fiance home from Germany.

Connie Blankenship: If Edward comes home, that's all the Christmas I want.

Book Depicts Dedication

Dean William Savage has announced the publication of For Greater Service, a new booklet describing the services held on October 20 for the dedication of Longwood's three new buildings. The booklet contains excerpts from various dedicatory speeches and biographical sketches of Miss Edith Stevens, Miss Jenny Masters Tabb, and Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, the persons to whom the buildings were dedicated. For Greater Service also contains several pictures taken during the service and exterior and interior shots of the buildings themselves.

Copies of the booklet may be obtained from the Dean's office as soon as they are returned from the printer.

Dance Club Issues Organization Bids To Eight Students

Eight girls have recently received bids to Orchesis, Longwood's modern dance group, according to Marian Beckner, club president.

Monada Key, Betty Lou Garrett, Elizabeth Crockett, and Joyce Booth were named as new apprentices. Also receiving bids were Barbara Blackman, Marian Parrish, Nancy Tanley, and Sis Burton.

The bids were awarded to outstanding members of the modern dance classes and to girls specifically interested in better modern dance. Interest, creativeness, and technical ability are prerequisite for apprenticeship.

College Groups Make Plans For Parties During Christmas

The Northern Neck Club members will give a party at Ty's Inn, near Warsaw December 29. The entertainment planned by the club will include games, dancing, and refreshments.

A tea, sponsored by the Richmond Alumnae chapter under the Direction of Mrs. L. D. Friend, Jr., president, will be given for Richmond club members Friday, December 28. Fifteen prospective Longwood students have been invited. The tea will take place in a private dining room adjoining the Tea Room of Miller and Rhoads. Punch and party sandwiches will be served.

Mary Helen Cook was selected to portray the beautiful Madonna in The Nativity Scene of the annual Christmas Pageant, sponsored by the prayers committee of the YWCA on December 13. This was the first time that the Madonna has been secretly chosen by ballots of the students of Longwood.

Orchids should go to the stage properties committee of the 'Y', consisting of Anne Parsons, Madison McClintic and Tom Moore. They assisted greatly in making the scene more impressive.

The WSSF-ICU Drive, also sponsored by the YWCA ended last week with a collection of a little over one-hundred dollars. However, the goal of two-hundred fifty dollars was not reached. The money was raised by contributions from the students, and from the various campus organizations. Admission charges from the entertaining male fashion show were added to the fund. This money collected for the World Student Service Fund and the International Christian University will be combined with that of other universities and colleges in rebuilding the educational institutes of Japan.

Last night the Y. W. C. A. sponsored the singing of Christmas Carols after prayers in the Rotunda and to the surrounding neighborhood. The students of Longwood seem to be filled with true Christmas spirit. They rush to the Rotunda each night to sing the carols around the traditional tree or gather around their individual trees found in the halls. Longwood has done much to give us the true feeling of Christmas in spite of our being away from home.

Dance Experiment Uncovers Astonishing Results For All

by Shirley Ward

Purpose: To have four hours of fun.

Materials: One Longwood girl in evening wear (with $2.40), one boy in formal attire, a gymnasium, beautifully decorated in cabaret style with Christmas atmosphere, an orchestra (including string, woodwind, brass, and percussion instruments), a group of faculty members to act as chaperones and a peanut gallery of onlookers suspended from the balcony.

Procedure: About two weeks prior to dance night, a boy was asked by an L.C. girl to escort her to the Senior Dance. In the course of asking, she told him that the theme was "Winter Wonderland" and that the dance was formal. Then after his replying "Yes", on December 8, the boys (from U. Va., V.P.I., V.M.I., Hampden-Sydney, University of Richmond, Washington and Lee, Little Creek, or Camp Pickett) invaded the campus.

That night around 7:15 a familiar scene took place in both dormitory and rooming house—the scene of dressing and preparing for the forthcoming event. At 8 o'clock the escort arrived to claim his lady love and after forty-five minutes of anxious waiting, they were on their way to join the festivities in the gym. Upon arriving they were greeted by the smiling receiving line and after a slight confusion of introductions, they hurried on breathing a sigh of relief.

They foxtrotted, waltzed, hopped, did the Mexican Hat Dance, and, picking themselves up from the floor after the latter, and apologizing for knocking others down with them, they continued with stepping on each other's feet. The senior figure was the highlight of the night when the seniors, apropriately attired in white evening gowns and with escorts dressed in tux, formed a bell on the dance floor.

The couple then met, many new and old friends and discussed many serious problems that had risen from the night's activities as what other four girls had worn evening dresses alike or what one hundred boys had worn tuxs alike or who had said what to make somebody mad or whose shoe from the gallery had fallen and knocked whose boy friend out. These questions being unsuccessfully answered, the couple then danced a while longer until 12 o'clock when the orchestra played 'Goodnight, Sweetheart", and everything was over except for the pulling down of the paper stars from the ceiling. The escort then delivered his date back to her building, thus ending the night.

Results: Not only this couple, but everyone had a wonderful time—some were pinned, others engaged, some still hoping, others contented to forget.

Conclusion: Four hours of fun was obtained by dancers — and peanut gallery!

Orientation Classes Entertain With Teas

Freshman Orientation Group One, under the leadership of Miss Ruth Gleaves, Dean of Women, entertained eleven members of the faculty with a tea Friday, December 14, in the Y. W. C. A. Lounge.

Dot Morris sang "There's A Song In the Air" and then led the group in the singing of Christmas Carols. Sue McNeil was the accompanist.

Visiting high school students and members of the faculty were also entertained at a tea in the 'Y' Lounge Saturday, December 15, by the Orientation Group under the leadership of Miss Nancy Chambers. Becky Hines and Phyllis Issacs sang "Silver Bells" for the group, accompanied by Sue McNeil and Caroline Giles.

Undergraduates accepted for the class will attend two summer training periods of six weeks each at Quantico, Va. After successfully completing the two courses, and upon graduation from college, the women candidates will be appointed second lieutenants in the Marine Corps Reserve. Women who are already college graduates may complete both courses in one summer and attend a special four-week women officer's indoctrination course at Quantico before assignment to duty with a Marine Corps organization.

Maximum age limit for enlisted or former enlisted women of the regular reserve Marine Corps is raised to 27 on July 1 of the year in which commissioned.

Recital of Modern Poetry Theme of Dec. 4 Assembly

Dr. Earley Directs Literary Program

Recital of Modern Poetry was the title and theme of the assembly program for Tuesday, December 11, which was given by the students in Dr. C. L. S. Earley's speech and drama classes, and which proved to be one of the outstandingly unique programs presented in the chapel series this year.

The program opened with an explanation of the aims and purposes of poetry in general and specifically those of modern poetry which are to "convey the shaken faith, the bewilderment, and the nervous exhaustion of our age."

Works which began the program were The Listeners by Walter de la Mare recited by Elizabeth Kitts followed by a dramatization of a scene from the greatest play of the twentieth century, St. Joan, which was recited by Nancy Nelson.

T. S. Eliot was also honored by an extract from his The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock given by Elizabeth McClung.

Homage to Millay

Great homage was paid to the great American poet, Edna St. Vincent Millay, who died a few years ago, and who for years received world acclaim for her verse, and in 1923 received the pulitzer Prize for The Ballad of The Harp Weaver. Those poems honoring their authoress were I Like Americans, recited by Roberta Obenshain; To Jesus On His Birthday, recited by Ann Parkinson; Interim, recited by Ann Shoaf; Not In A Silver Casket, recited by Ann Boswell; This Beast That Reminds Me; recited by Isabelle Karnes, and The Ballad of The Harp Weaver, recited by Hilda Harris. Miss Millay was noted not so much as a poet's poet, but as a people's poet, for she expressed the emotions of life ,love, and death which are ever near us all. Nancy Tanley interpreted these emotions in a ballet dance which followed.

The next work was rendered by Sally Wilson, who gave Spectator Ab Extra by Arthur Hugh Clough and Seaside Serenade by Ogden Nash. The Death of The Ball Turret Gunner by Randall Jarrell and an extract from Air Raid by Archibald MacLeish were given by Madison McClintic. Cleo Holladay read an excerpt from The White Cliffs of Dover by Alice Duer Miller.

The final section of the theme was in the form of four soliloquies from Ann of the Thousand Days by Maxwell Anderson as enacted by Betty Bentley and Tom Moore.

Library Gives Exhibit Of Microfilm Reader

The Longwood Library has set up a new portable microfilm reader in the exhibition box of the library. This reader is for the use of the student and faculty. The library receives regularly on microfilm The Richmond Times Dispatch, The Farmville Herald, and The New York Times. The library also has on microfilm The Virginia Gazette, one of the earliest newspapers, for September 10, 1736, through September 26, 1751, and for July 6, 1776, through December 9, 1780. The reading of these newspapers provide amusement and reveal facts of historical value.

College Entertains Visiting Students

Fourteen seniors from five Virginia high schools were week end guests on Longwood campus December 8 and 9. These girls are interested in attending Longwood next year.

From Buckingham High School came Nancy Johnson. Hilda Robertson, Mabel Jane Wells, and Mildred Bing.

Clyde Crickton, June Elder, and Audrey Owen, all from Courtland High School were guests of Betty Frances Scarbrough.

Visiting from Smithfield High School were Nancy Delk and Louise Durner who were guests of Mary Lou Barlow.

Also here for the Senior dance festivities were Barbara Pratt, Mary Ann MacDougall, and Mary Scott Broadees. from Caroline High School.

Pat Rogers from Washington-Lee High School, Arlington, visited Jean Hodges.

While the girls were here they were taken on a tour of the campus and were guests of honor at a tea given by a freshman orientation class on Saturday afternoon. Saturday night the girls were spectators at the Senior Dance.

Alumnae At Teas, Meets

The Washington Chapter met December 16 at the home of Sarah Mapp Messick in Falls Church. Mr. Earnest Stewart, executive secretary of the American Alumni Council spoke, and plans were made concerning the tea. The Chapter will be hostess at a tea December 28 for all of the Longwood students and prospective students. It will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Emily Johnson.

The Richmond Chapter under the leadership of Barbara Tripp Friend is sponsoring a party which the Richmond Club on our campus is giving to prospective students in Richmond.

The regular December meeting of the Lexington Chapter was held last week with president Polly Moore Light presiding. They distributed stationery and Christmas cards to sell and also made plans for the spring meeting.

In a recent meeting held in the home of Lizzie Ewald Lively, the Portsmouth Chapter elected Margaret Johnson president for the coming year.

Mr. French Announces Opening of Campaign For 'March of Dimes'

Funds To Give Aid For Polio Victims

The annual "March of Dimes" campaign to provide financial aid for victims of Infantile Paralysis has begun and will continue through the month of January, according to an announcement by Mr. Raymond French, head of the College drive.

Each class president will be in charge of collecting the contributions from her class. The four classes will have separate boxes in the shape of an iron lung. These will be placed in Ruffner Hall across from Dean Savage's office at alternate times. This is being done to keep the various class contributions separate. Collections will also be made on the halls.

The funds from the drive will be used to aid the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and its local chapters to provide financial aid, equipment and skilled workers for the thousands of children and adults who will be victims of the dread disease this year. Also the money will be used for research in the treatment and prevention of polio and the payment of professional personnel.

Mr. French urges that each student make a contribution and said, "There are nine polio patients in this county now receiving help. These local people need your financial aid—don't let them down."

MR. FRENCH, who will head the College Drive.

LC Educator Will Instruct In Maryland

Dr. John P. Wynne, Longwood professor of education and philosophy, has been invited by Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland to teach two courses in their 1952 Summer Session.

One of the classes which Dr. Wynne will teach is an undergraduate course, "Introduction to the Philosophy of Education," and one is a graduate course, "Philosophical Backgrounds of Education." Dr. Wynne has stated that he looks forward to the experience since both of the courses go along with the two text books which he has written—"Philosophies of Education," which is now in use and "General Education in Theory and Practice" which is being printed. The Johns Hopkins summer session runs from June 23—August 1.

During the Christmas holidays, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Wynne attended a meeting of the American Philosophical Association—Eastern division. The meeting was held at Bryn Mawr College, in Pennsylvania, from December 27-29. While there, they attended discussions devoted to the philosophies of history, knowledge, and value. The social side of the convention included a smoker, a tea, and a banquet.

Dr. Simonini Edits Magazine Article

An essay on "Christmas Literature Through the Ages" by Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr., head of Longwood College's department of English, is featured in the December number of the Virginia Journal of Education. Five beloved and representative Christmas pieces are analysed by Dr. Simonini as showing how the spirit of Christmas has changed from time to time according to the intellectual, cultural, and moral bias of different periods of world civilization.

The earliest Christmas story as found in St. Luke is a simple, direct, and austere account, while the medieval tale of "Our Lady's Juggler" deals not so much with the Nativity as it does with a miracle legend designed to make the teachings of Christianity alive for the unlearned. John Milton's hymn "On the Morning of Christ's Nativity," on the other hand, is a sublime expression of Renaissance art and thought and is essentially a romantic rather than a religious treatment of the theme, writes Dr. Simonini. Dickens' A Christmas Carol is also concerned with the externals of Christmas, the triumph of kindness and fellowship over greed.

Modern Christmas literature, states Dr. Simonini, generally contains a note of disillusionment, irony, or skepticism. Edna St. Vincent Millay's little poem "To Jesus on His Birthday" is indicative of the modern outlook on life. "In a purely materialistic age the spiritual meaning of Christmas is now lost to many people," concludes Dr. Simonini.

Sophomore Class Will Present Take-off, 'Television Time' As Annual Production, Jan. 11

Cast, Theme Given For Dance Recital Feb. 15 Date Set

Hankins To Lead Dedicatory Recital

Betsy Hankins, a junior from Richmond, will have the main lead as narrator in "Dedication," the new work to be given by Orchesis on Friday, February 15.

Solo speaking and dance leads were won by four juniors. Margaret Taylor of Suffolk will dance as the senior figure, Sis Burton of Suffolk, as the junior figure, Anne Murphy of Danville, as the sophomore figure, and Challice Haydon of Harrisonburg, as the freshman figure.

Senior members of the club will be graduate figures who weave in and out through the poetic extravaganza of Whitman, Sandburg, Nash, and Aiken. These graduates are Peggy Harris, Dolores Hoback, Ann Moody, Erma Poarch, Conway Rice, Pat Tuggle, and Nancy Walker.

Margie Hood, senior from Norfolk, has the dance lead of the Phoenix, the mythical bird of great beauty, in the Science Seminar scene. Also in this scene will be Lou Jamison as Fuhrer of the Streptococcracy, and Nancy Tanley leading the Kinetic Energy group.

In the scene depicting the Tidewater Virginia recital, which was given at the Southern Music Educator's Convention last year, Barbara Blackman will be cast as the dancing master and Cleo Holliday as the narrator.

Practice is under way in the modern dance class on the two religious numbers. Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" and Bizet's "Agnus Dei", which will be done jointly with the College Choir under the direction of Dr. John W. Molnar.

Rehearsals of speaking and dance leads are being held on the auditorium stage.

A complete listing of the entire cast will be announced at the beginning of the new semester.

Dean Savage Reveals '52 SummerTerm

Complete plans for the 1952 summer session have been revealed recently by Dean William W. Savage. The program this year has been planned to meet the individual needs of all persons who wish to enroll. Courses on both the undergraduate and graduate levels and workshops are offered for varying lengths of time—the regular eight week term plus concentrated courses of four and five weeks which will run from June 16 to July 19. Students may enroll in two of these courses during the two-week period, earning a total of six semester hours of credit.

In the regular eight-week undergraduate term, courses will be presented in art, business education, English, general science, geography, history, home economics, library science, music, philosophy, psychology, and sociology.

An eight-week term in graduate work is also being held. Classes in philosophy of education, sensory materials in teaching, and the teaching of music are offered for those working for their Masters in Education.

Concentrated courses, similar to those offered in chemistry in the past, will be extended to other subjects this summer. In the four week course, classes in general biology, general chemistry, health education, and physical education methods will be given. Art, education, English, geography, and mathematics are listed for the five-week courses.

Two new work-shops are also being offered this summer. A church choir clinic, giving one credit, will be held from July 14-19, and a three-week work-shop for school librarians, giving these credits will run from July 14-August 1. Another workshop which has been offered before, will be held for teachers from June 23-July 12 and July 14-August 2. Three credits will be given for each period.

More information and details concerning these courses can be gotten from the summer school catalogue.

Juniors Announce 'Basin Street Ball' As Dance Theme

Partridge Combo Will Set Mood

Betty Hancock, chairman of the junior dance committee has announced that this year's junior dance theme will be "Basin Street Ball," and it will be given in the Rec at 8:00, February 16, 1952. Although the dance will be informal, Sunday attire will be required.

To carry out the Basin Street theme the Rec will be decorated cabaret style, which means that there will be table and chairs for couples or parties. Music for the affair will be provided by Pat Partridge of Chase City, and at intermiss on the theme will receive a further boost from the added attraction of a floor show.

Betty also said that Betty Tyler assisted by Clara Borum is chairman of the food committee; Margie Steele heads the decoration committee and will be aided by Mary Meade Robertson, and Bobbie Obenshain, Barbara Caskey is in charge of music; Billie Dunlap is heading the committee sending invitations; Helen Castros and Lee Wingfield are serving as co-chairmen of the ticket committee; and Beebie Hancock and Ann Crowder are directing the clean-up committee.

Tickets for the junior dance go on sale the week before the dance and are one dollar twenty-five cents drag and eighty-five cents stag. All students are invited to attend the "Basin Street Ball."

Notice

The date of the spring play to be given by the Longwood Players has been set as Saturday, March 29, according to Dr. C. L. S. Earley, advisor to the club.

The play under consideration is Light Up The Skies, a modern, sophisticated comedy of theater people, written by Moss Hart. Dr. Earley has suggested that all persons interested in trying out for parts should read the play before tryouts.

Karlet Authors Script of Show

The Sophomores will present "Television Time," their production under the direction of Lou Beavers and Nancy Adkins, on January 11 at 8:00 p. m. in Jarman auditorium. The show is now being rehearsed, and the cast has been announced by Joyce Karlett, author of the script.

The production, a take-off on television, will consist of four parts—the "Draino Dan Commercial," a mystery story, "Snake the Bank," and "Weather Forecast." Members of the cast of the "Draino Dan Commercial" are Eleanor Koch, Nancy Huff, and Ellen Porter, with housewives Ann Moore, Carolyn Pauber, Betty Jones, and Lu Kitts.

The main character of the mystery story is Sam Shovel, played by Marian Thompson. Sam Shovel, private eyeball, solves the mystery of the death of a kindly old millionaire, Phenonius U. Oyster. Cast as Cyrus Shrimp is Mazine Dize, and the other characters are Jeanne Hamilton, June Wilmuth, Frances Marker, Jean Hodges, Molly Hersman, and Patty Derring.

Liz Hoskins acts as master of ceremonies of "Snake the Bank," with Paula Dovel as the announcer. The contestants are Marilyn Thompson, Mary Lou Burnett, Mary Denny Wilson, Ruby Snider, and Joyce Cutrell. Liz Crockett and Barbara Blackman dance solo numbers. Another solo number, "Never" will be sung by Jacque Sell. Members of the "Snake the Bank Quartet" are Billie Thomlinson, Nellie Culpepper, Jolene Dalton, and Martha Dean Thomlinson. Included also in "Snake the Bank" is a singing chorus of fifteen students.

Singing a solo number in the "Weather Forecast" will be Dolly Horne. A chorus will give a musical forecast of the weather. Betty Lou Garrett, choregrapher of "Televis on Time" is rehearsing the chorus line which will consist of Sylvia Reames, Dot Bankhead, Nancy Adkins, Peggy Hood, Nell Copley, Pat Donnelly, with Smith, Mercella Key, Blanton Ferguson, Lib Boswell, Ann Parkinson, Betty Islin, Shirley Ruby, Fay Greenland, and Marian Parrish.

Tickets will be sold by class representatives opposite Dean Savage's office. The cost of a ticket to "Television Time" is thirty-five cents, and they will be on sale tonight after dinner.

Cry for Aid
Longwood Players Open Rotunda Drive

The Longwood Players, the College dramatic club, presented to The Rotunda a check for fifty-dollars in yesterday's assembly to begin the contributions in a drive which was begun yesterday by the staff of the College newspaper to raise funds for publishing the paper next semester.

The gift was made in response to a plea issued by Mary Jo Smith, editor of The Rotunda, to the student body for financial support for the paper. She announced the beginning of a drive which will continue throughout the next two weeks to raise money for publishing the College newspaper. Also disclosed was the fact that all organizations and each student will be given the opportunity to support the cause.

Financial Condition

The staff of The Rotunda has revealed the financial status, which has necessitated the current drive. An accumulated debt of several years which has been caused by several rises in printing costs, made it necessary at the beginning of the year for the staff of the newspaper to make the decision to publish a bi-weekly issue instead of the traditional weekly during the current year.

Even this bi-weekly publication cannot be assured without some financial assistance other than that now being received, the business staff has reported.

With contributions from the student body, the staff hopes to be able to continue the bi-weekly publication at least, and, if possible, to publish an occasional extra issue, or six-page edition. "The results of the drive will largely determine the extent to which the paper will be able to function during the second semester," Celeste Bishop, business manager of The Rotunda has declared.

The staff hopes to obtain a sound financial status by the end of this school year, and to be able to start out the 1952-53 session publishing a weekly paper. With successful results from the drive, this should be assured.

Contribution Boxes

Boxes have been placed in various places around the halls of the College for student contributions. These contribution boxes are located on the first floor of Ruffner Hall across from Dean Savage's office, at the entrance to the dining hall, in the senior and junior parlors, and on the third floor of Tabb Hall near the telephone.

Organizations will be approached individually for contributions.

Le Cercle Francais Celebrates Epiphany

By Cleo Holladay

The season of Epiphany was celebrated at the meeting of Le Cercle Francais, Tuesday, January 8. Particularly associated were the French cakes, galette des rois, served at the party in honor of the coming of the season.

Several students in the advanced French classes told interesting stories of the Epiphany season, its meaning, and how it is received in France.

Happiness Ahead

If the students of Longwood have noticed an added sparkle in the eyes of Rotunda staff members, a new springiness in the usual lagging step, a lilt in their voices, or a straightness in backs that had attained a habitual curve from bending over typewriters, they are simply seeing the heartfelt response to a sparkling beginning of the Rotunda drive.

A vote of thanks — more than that, a ringing applause — goes to the Longwood Players for their contribution that opened the campaign. Perhaps we have been made a little over-optimistic by this pledge and the need of the Newspaper we love, but members of the staff feel that the students and organizations of the College will WANT to contribute so that the Rotunda may be continued during the coming semester.

When Longwood students returned to classes and fun in the fall, many of them seemed surprised and plainly disappointed that the paper appeared only twice a month, for the first time in its history. A decrease in the number of issues was a heartbreaking necessity — but a necessity nevertheless — since the annual income of the Rotunda was obscured by the overwhelming cost of publication. By this method, we had hoped to make ends meet; instead we found that unless there was an added income the newspaper, if it appeared at all, would be greatly in debt at the end of the year.

The campaign which was begun yesterday was an effort to make a bi-weekly issue, with perhaps a few papers of six pages rather than four, possible. From the disappointment which seemed evident at the beginning of the year and from the reports of student's who were willing to pay for copies of the paper, the Rotunda carries a hope that it can become a paper that will be more effective and of greater service to her college and its students.

Happy Old Year

It would be hard indeed to find a person who does not look forward to the New Year as a time for making new beginnings, resolutions, or "turning over a new leaf". However, amid all the gaiety and optimism that traditionally accompanies the turn of the year, there is a more serious and realistic element in the sentiment that goes hand in hand with reviewing the year which has come to an end.

When we look back into the busy days of eventful 1951, we can see much that we would vainly like to change; however, the unpleasant is by far too obscure to cast more than a very slight shadow on the many memorable and truly gratifying events that will be long remembered for their part in making 1951 so successful a year for the college.

The addition of three new buildings, and with them the accompanying enlarged facilities ,have already begun to be a credit to Longwood and an inspiration to many students. Already noticeable, due to the new Jarman Auditorium, is the improvement of music and dramatic activities. Out of this, and with the aid of new faculty members who have already made evident their interest and abilities, will grow a more versatile and competent student body.

1951 brought a new group of leaders to head the various organizations. Each of these has proven her worthiness of the positions she holds.

Before the all-too-brief chapter entitled 1951 is closed and permanently entered into the bound edition of Longwood history, the Rotunda staff would like to give a final vote of thanks to all who helped to make 1951 such a wonderful year for the college.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1952

Here's Why

Christmas over and we're already expected to start giving again? Yes, and this time to a poverty-stricken individual who could have benefited for several years from prsents at Christmastime, or any other time of the year—The Rotunda, our newspaper. She has fought to maintain herself financially, and has found herself losing a battle, making it necessary to call on some reserve strength which she hopes to be able to muster in order to survive.

A group of five sat solemnly together late last week, trying desperately to think of some means by which they might be able to help their friend in her struggle. If one had looked in on this little band, he would have recognized an editor, a business manager, a managing editor, a news editor, and an advisor. If he had waited to hear the outcome of the session, he would have found that this group had decided to call upon the students of Longwood College to come to the rescue, and he would have recognized the signs of hope which shone from their faces as they thought together of these plans and their possible outcome.

So it is that a drive has been launched in order to raise through contributions the money which will put The Rotunda back on its feet. Every student and every organization will be given the opportunity to contribute to the publishing costs of the paper for the remainder of the year.

One might ask "Why all this lack of funds?" This can quickly be explained in the light of the steady rise in the cost of printing throughout the past few years, without a similar rise in income for The Rotunda. Her main source of income lies in the sum given annually to the paper by the College. This is taken from the fees which each student pays. Here, too, the paper has seemed constantly on the losing end of the deal. For with the rising costs of printing, there has come at the same time a decrease in the student body enrollment of Longwood, which has meant that there has come a decrease in the main source of income.

The Rotunda, like all newspapers, is partially supported by its advertisements. A great increase in effort to obtain ads this year has proved beneficial. Even this has not been enough to off-set the deficit which has been accumlated. And the staff has turned to us, students of Longwood.

It has been often and truly said that "the gift without the giver is bare."

Another oft-sung truth is that it matters not how small the gift, or how large. It is the earnest desire of The Rotunda to receive a gift from every member of the student body, and from each organization, not only to better the financial status, but also to feel the backing of all those whom it strives to serve.

Let's all help to make it one-hundred per cent!

Hello, Joe

by Barbara White

Dear Comrades,

Yesterday all of the mail boxes were filled with tender passionate letters from a popular magazine begging the students to partake of their contents for a nominal fee. They point out how really valuable the knowledge contained within the magazine cover is, overlooking the fact that such items of interest can easily be found in the daily paper. Upon receiving this, one wonders just how popular the magazine actually is.

They say that, if you have any trouble sleeping, the best thing to do is to count sheep jumping over a fence. Pretty soon, however, there comes one little lamb who just can't make it across that tall fence and you see this giant hand push him over, then you wonder whose hand it is, trace it to its source and find yourself wondering where that handsome giant came from. All this just proves that counting sheep is not a boon to insomnia.

The next time you find yourself squelched by some smug, overbearing individual try to imagine how he would look in a bathing suit and your anger will vanish.

Love in Stalin,
Comrade White

Strollin' with Stokes

by Stokes Overbey

When Time magazine announced its choice for Man of the Year, quite a few people gave them a blank stare and a "Who's he?" The Richmond Times - Dispatch conducted a poll and found that three out of thirty Richmonders questioned were able to identify this "dizzy old wizard". In comparison, twelve out of thirty-one Longwoodites were familiar with the suddenly prominent Mohammed Mossadegh.

We assumed the attitude of a desperate history student seeking last-minute information and asked anxiously, "Do you know who Mohammed Mossaegh is?"

Marty Miller: "I have no more idea than the man in the moon."

Frances Thomas: "It's some kind of joke."

Elsie Baker: "I have no earthly idea who he is."

Ann Moody: "What is whatever you said?"

Chris Davis: "He's somepin' from Iran, isn't he?"

Anne Oakley: "Huh?"

Connie Blankenship: "Is it a man from Mars?"

Dot Boswick: "Mohammed who?"

Bebe Hancock: "Are you kidding? How do you expect me to know?"

Neil Bradshaw: "He's something from Iran. Sue knows. We read it in the paper."

Challice Haydon: "I saw something about him in the paper one day."

Anne Murphy: "He was in Time magazine, I believe—the man of the Month — a big wheel from India?"

Anne Jones: "Law, I don't know. Does he live in Christiansburg?"

Helen Barrow: "I don't know exactly. He's leader of some country, isn't he?"

Lillian Shelton: "It's some ruler over in India or something, I reckon,."

Winston Johnson: "Why? Are you taking history under Dr. Moss?".

Betty Lou Van Reit: "Never heard of him."

Jean Ridenour: "Sounds like the man who built the first pyramid and who is buried under the Sphinx.

Mary Frances Spurlock: "Are you asking me?"

Peggy Harris: "Oh, does he go to Hampden-Sydney?"

Among the intelligentsia who were abel to give with the right answer (and who, incidentally, read features in the Richmond T-D) were: Becky Mann, Jerry Hembree, Billy Overbey, Sarah Cregar, Lucy Jane Parkinson, Barbara Caskey, Jo Price, Joanne Steck, Cindy Mims, and Edith Kennon.

"Y" Lines

By Donnie Devine

This week has been quite a busy one for the YWCA. Tonight after dinner, the "Y" Cabinet will have a New Year's dessert party. Miss Gleaves and "B B" Wilson will be special guests. The party is to be held at the Home Management House and Audrey Ramsey, chairman of the social committee, is in charge of the party.

Thursday night is "committee-meeting" night. Be on the lookout for a note from your committee chairman, telling you where to meet and at what time.

The cabinet would like to thank all of those organizations that contributed to White Christmas. The offering this year was larger than ever before. The "Y" received a nice letter from the Public Welfare Department of Farmville indicating that the money was used to help many people to have a happy Christmas.

A very happy new year to all from your "Y" Cabinet! !

Special Bulletin Announces Arrival of Year for Women

By Phoebe Warner

Farmville, Va., January 9
R. P. (Rotunda Press)

Late Bulletin . . . This is the official announcement that Leap Year has arrived (finally) and is in 'full swing' activity on the campus of our local institution of higher learning, Longwood College.

All girls who have not previously hooked a delectable, mannish, manly, manlike, masculine male now take heed. Here and now is the chance for each and every member of the fairer (?) sex. Yes, here is your opportunity to make advances, to promote the flowering romances, and to take the offensive if necessary (and in some cases it will be necessary).

According to statistics, polls, surveys, and general public opinion, the male situation really looks bad for all of us women. However, the situation begins to look vividly better, as 1952, the Leap Year, makes its debut, bringing with its 366 fabulous, romantic days. All members of the female sex are hereby given a warning: don't become anxious, for you don't wish to frighten your object of interest. At first, try the serene, unruffled, smooth tactics of approaching the frail, delicate, coy species known as man. Then, if that fails to bring about what is known as as a favorable response, which may cause the resolute character to present you with his pin, a miniature, or if you're really lucky—a diamond (or a white sapphire), you will receive further instruction.

Try the above plan for thirty days. If you are not definitely pleased with the results, I'm sure you'll have to try the Cruder Approach. Of course, this comes as a last, last resort to attract irresistability and to delight exceedingly those individuals who are violent, uncouth, uncivil, unpolished, bashful, but still males. Let them think that they are doing the pursuing and taking the bold steps. Remember it's now or never, so get on your toes and start to work.

Can you picture a big heaping platter of steaming hot waffles with rich yellow butter and sweet maple syrup dripping from the sides of the cakes? Can you picture a good hot cup of coffee or a tall glass of ice cold milk sitting beside this delicious platter?

Can you also visualize this meal sitting at one of numerous tables in a neat, quaint room just bursting with a homey atmosphere?

If you are of the people who can picture this scene, you, then, have undoubtedly been out to Longwood Estate for one of its famous Sunday night waffle suppers. Also if you are one of these same people, then you already know about the facilities offered at the estate for recreation, relaxation and "just" plain fun.

But, however, if you did not quite grasp the complete picture, then you are the one who must be told more about the well known house which is just one mile from our campus.

Since we all are interested in the food "angle", let's discuss this phase first.

As well as the Sunday night suppers, meals are served on Sunday afternoon for dinner and on every week-day night, except on Monday when the house is closed. Reservations may be made by simply calling the estate and informing them to expect you. On the other hand if you want to conserve money, you are always welcome to hike out to the estate in the afternoon for milk or a coke and one of their famous Longwood buns. Those desiring meals or afternoon snacks will find the prices very reasonable.

Our minds away from food for a moment—with the setting of the historical dwelling in the country, you will find it a very good place to loaf by sitting near an open fire, playing the piano or reading the books in the library on the second floor. It is also a splendid place for picnics, group gatherings for a week-end, and an interesting place for parents or visiting relatives for the afternoon, the latter find the gift shop in a small room which opens from the dining room of particular interest.

The estate could not be what it is today however, without the constant willingness and helpfulness of Miss Moran who is in charge there. She deserves the hearty praise from the students and faculty members here.

In closing, it can be said that Longwood estate has every possibility of being the social center of the campus if the student body will take advantage of the opportunities offered there.

Eight Seniors to Finish Diploma Requirements As February Graduates

Candidates To Get Sheepskin In June

Eight seniors will complete the requirements for their diplomas at the end of this semester and are candidates for graduation in February 1952 according to Miss Virgilia I. Bugg, College Registrar. These eight graduates will return to Longwood to receive their diplomas at the commencement ceremony in June.

Anne Lawrence from Portsmouth and Margaret Thomas of Atlee will complete their work toward a Bachelor of Science in Elementary Education. Completing work for a Bachelor of Science in Mathematics are Mildred Blessing of Tazewell and Anne Mitchell Motley of Sharps. Anne Mitchell will also have enough hours for a major in history. Also completing work for a Bachelor of Science in History is John Huegal of Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

Eligible for a Bachelor of Science in Chemistry is Bonnie Gerrells Goard of Danville. Elizabeth Harman of Tazewell will have met the requirements for her degree in Business Education, and Ruth Lacy Smith of Farmville will have completed her work for a Bachelor of Science in Spanish.

Most of these graduates have made plans for what they will do after February. Five of the eight will go into teaching. Mildred Blessing plans to teach in Gloucester, Bonnie Gerrells Goard in Chatham, and Elizabeth Harman in Cumberland. Anne Lawrence will begin her teaching career in Portsmouth, and John Huegel will

College President Declares Increase In Semester Fees

Rise In Living Costs Necessitates Action

Tuition for the coming semester will find an increase of $22.-50 according to a recent announcement by Dr. Lancaster. This fee will also prevail for the session 1952-53.

The increased charges were found necessary for operation due to the rapid rise in costs of food and supplies as well as the living costs for members of the faculty. Of this increase college fees will claim $10, while $12.50 will go towards board. This will bring the over all rates to $550, a total increase of $45 for the entire year.

Letters of explanation have been sent to all parents with information concerning the new change. Dr. Lancaster expressed regret at having to take this step, but referred in his letter to a statement found on page thirty seven in the College catalogue to the affect that the College reserves this right at any time.

Governor Battle has made a recommendation to the General Assembly for provision in the budget for all state institutions for the fiscal year 1952-54. Dr. Lancaster stated that Longwood has been reasonably well taken care of in so far as operation costs are concerned. The governor has not been able to recommend requests for general campus improvements though which are much needed. So, Dr. Lancaster will be at a number of hearings before the legislature during the next few weeks in an effort to secure needed appropriations.

Staff Forms 24 Member Library Club

The Longwood Library League, Tri-L recently took form on the College campus. The new organization, headed by Elizabeth Browning, was originated with twenty-two charter members and two honorary members.

Bunny Gibson was elected to serve as vice-president of the club, while Shirley Ward, will act as secretary; Nancy Picinich, treasurer; and Hazel Hart, reporter.

The purpose of the Tri-L is to bring together those students interested in any phase of the Longwood Library work. It is both social and educational in that it integrates the various activities connected with the library. The Library club grew out of a study of similar organizations on other campuses, conducted by a group of library science majors under the guidance of Dr. Beverly Ruffin. Shirley Livesay, Rebecca Mann, and Maxine Watts presented final plans for the formation of the club to a group of library science students at a tea given by Dr. Ruffin. A constitutional Committee has been appointed.

Membership in the Tri-L is open to all library science majors and library assistants. Members of the groups voted to grant membership to the Longwood librarians and honorary membership to Miss Kate O'Brien, Farmville high school librarian and Miss Lucille Johnson, Farmville elementary school librarian.

Student Reports 'News and Views'

A program "News and Views," produced by the students of Longwood for the students and townspeople of Farmville and surrounding communities, is broadcast every Monday at 3 p. m. over the local radio station WFLO. Jeanne Lynch Hobbs, freshman from Roanoke, does the weekly reporting.

"News and Views" was begun on October 13 as a five-minute broadcast. Reviews of past events and previews of those coming, plus comments on each of these by the reporter, make up the weekly program.

Also a regular feature of this program is interviews with people who are in the limelight at Longwood. Already this year the Circus heads, and leading characters in the fall Dramatic Club play have been guests on this radio listening hour.

Jeanne attended Andrew Lewis high school, working on the school program "Teen-Time Capers" over the local Roanoke station. Jeanne is intensly interested in the type of work she is now doing and hopes to make advertising her career.

Organizations Donate $145 To Campaign For Rotunda

Paper Extends Drive One Week

Longwood organizations and individual contributors have donated approximately $145 to the Rotunda drive begun January 8 by a plea from the editor of the paper to the student body. The campaign will be continued through next Tuesday.

The Rotunda is sponsoring this drive in an effort to raise enough funds to be able to publish a bi-weekly issue during the coming semester. Higher costs of printing, unmet by a similiar rise in advertising rates or student fees, has caused a serious deficit in the financial standing of the newspaper.

In order to publish the College sheet nine times during the spring semester, the Rotunda must spend, at the least, $900, and at the same time will receive from the state and local and national advertising only $700. Therefore, a total of $200 must be raised by the campaign, if the Rotunda is to appear.

Organizations were asked to donate by check or cash to the editor or business manager of the paper, and boxes have been placed in junior and senior parlors, across from Dean Savage's office, outside the dining hall, and on the third floor annex in Tabb Hall for student contributions.

Organizations and individual contributors who have aided in the campaign thus far are:

Longwood Players
French Circle
Delta Sigma Epsilon
Theta Sigma Upsilon
Miss Nancy Chambers
Kappa Delta Pi
Lester Smallwood
Sigma Sigma Sigma
Y. W. C. A.
Miss Nancy Foster
Baptist Student Union
Freshman Class
Association of Childhood Education
Sophomore Class
Alpha Kappa Gamma
House Council

These contributions are greatly appreciated, and the editor urges that other organizations make their donations as soon as possible. The Rotunda is counting on student backing, too.

Frosh Choose Assaid To Act As Chairman Of 1952 Production

Barbara Assaid, freshman from Roanoke, was elected chairman of the annual Freshman production which will be given on March 14 in Jarman Auditorium. Bobbie was graduated from Jefferson High School in Roanoke. She was president of the Senior Y-Teens, vice-president of the Roanoke City-County Y-teen Inter-Club Council, and was elected DAR "best citizen."

She is serving as vice-president of her class here at Longwood and is a member of Freshman Commission.

Plans for the performance will be made after exams and committee chairmen will be announced at a later date.

Traditionally two productions are presented each year, one by the sophomores and one by the freshmen. This year the Sophomores presented their "Television Time," on January 11.

LC Placement Bureau Helps Seniors to Obtain Positions

Seniors have begun filling in the material which provides the Longwood Placement Bureau with the information necessary for recommending and placing Longwood graduates.

Mrs. Mary W. Watkins, Executive Secretary of the College, is head of this bureau which helps Longwood girls secure jobs after graduation. Mrs. Watkins reports that there were 115 graduates in 1951. Of these ninety are teaching, twenty are married, thirteen are in other types of work, and two are attending graduate schools. This means that approximately seventy-eight per cent of the 1951 graduates are now in the teaching profession.

These students secured their positions largely through the services of the Placement Bureau. Twenty - four superintendents visited the college last year to interview seniors. Forty-five other superintendents wrote to the Bureau for recommendations to fill vacancies. The Bureau received calls for teachers from New Jersey, Idaho, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Florida, Maryland, North Carolina, Colorado, Hawaii, and overseas. The largest number of requests came for the elementary field. Next was home economics; then commercial, science, and mathematics.

Mrs. Watkins went on to say that all Longwood graduates do not necessarily have to go into public schools. Last year the Placement Bureau also had calls for people to do radio script work, to fill secretarial positions, to do demonstration work for light and power companies, to be statistitions at Langley Field, to work with physical education at Y. W. C. A.'s, and to teach in private schools.

According to Mrs. Watkins, again this year superintendents from all over the state will be visiting the campus during the spring. The first such visit was made by Mr. Walsh, assistant superintendent in Arlington, who was here January 23 to interview senior elementary majors.

Students To Hear U. S. Navy Officer Speak in Assembly

Commander Robert A. Noe of the United States Navy will speak to the student body for the first assembly program in the new semester on February 5. "The Naval Approach to Audio-Visual Learning" is to be the subject of his lecture-demonstration.

Commander Noe's presentation will give Longwood's future teachers a chance to profit by the facts and means of training which the Navy has developed over ten years of war and peace experience and through the expenditure of some seventy million dollars. Naval audio - visual training devices which could be used in junior high school and high school for teaching general science, geography, and physics will be shown. Included in the demonstration will be three new units in testing, orthographic projections, and educational measurements which have been developed during the past year. Commander Noe will also show how student teachers can reproduce any desired units for their own use.

In addition to his officer's training, Commander Noe holds a B. S. degree in Education which he earned at State Teachers College of West Chester, Pennsylvania. He also has a Master of Education and a Doctor of Letters degree plus several degrees from other colleges both in the United States and overseas. Commander Noe's experience of three years in a non-military classroom further qualifies him to speak to future teachers on his subject.

NOTICE

Any student desiring a copy of the dedication booklet, "For Greater Service" may obtain it from Dean Savage's office.

Organist Fox Will Present Recital Here

The Virgil Fox organ recital, orginally scheduled for the Dedication Weekend program, is to be presented Tuesday night, February 12, at 8 p. m. in the Jarman Hall. This concert will be the first to be given on the new Jarman Memorial Organ, gift of the Longwood alumnae.

All alumnae will be given free tickets to the performance. They may secure them by contacting Mrs. Ruth Coyner, alumnae secretary. Student tickets will be twenty-five cents and can be obtained from Dr. Lancaster's office. Tickets for faculty, administration, and townspeople will cost $1.20. All seats for the concert will be reserved.

Mr. Fox will present the same program that was orignally announced for the Dedication concert. The dedication recital was postponed because the installation of the organ had not been completed at that time.

Council Announces Exam Period Rules

Pat Tuggle, president of the Longwood House Council, has announced the rules which will govern the student body during exam week and the week preceding.

Freshmen and sophomores may keep their lights on until 12 o'clock midnight the week preceding and the week of exams for study purposes only.

There will be no 10 p. m. bell for the end of study hour during the two weeks mentioned above.

One call-down and one week's campus will result from any unnecessary noise at any time during examinations. The one week's campus will go into effect immediately upon receipt of the call down.

Chairman Chosen At Called Meeting

Marian Beckner, senior from Lynchburg, was elected general chairman of the Longwod College May Day festivities at a called meeting of the student body.

Voted to serve as chairmen of the May Day committees were Winnie Murdock, business; Marjorie Hood, dance; Sue Webb and Betty Tyler, staging; Lauralee Fritts, transportation; Betty Goodson, music; and Isabelle Karnes and Joanne Pershing, costumes.

Chairman Beckner has been active in May Day productions since her freshman year, and is president of Orchesis, modern dance club, which figures importantly in the annual spring festivities. Marion holds the office of secretary of Student Standards and is an active member of the Athletic Association, Monogram Club, H2O, Cotillion Club, Future Teachers of America, Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, and Sigma Sigma Sigma social sorority. She has held a position on the varsity hockey and basketball squads for the past four years.

Winnie, who is serving as business manager for May Day this year holds the presidency of the Commercial club and is chairman of the Service committee of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet. She is also an active member of the Longwood Players and the Wesley Foundation Council.

Dance chairman Marjorie Hood is secretary-treasurer of Orchesis. She holds membership in the Athletic Association, Monogram club, Cotillion club, Future Teachers of America, Biology Seminar, and Alpha Sigma Alpha social sorority. "Margie" has taken spirited part in the annual May Day and circus productions.

Sue, who serves as co-chairman of the staging committee with Betty "Termite" Tyler, is a junior from Danville. The Athletic Association Council Orchesis, Monogram club, and Cotillion club claim her as a member. Sue has played varsity hockey for three years and varsity basketball for two years. She is a member of Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority.

"Termite", also a junior, hails from South Boston. Besides holding positions on the varsity hockey and basketball squads, she is a member of the Athletic Association, Monogram club, and Cotillion Club.

Transportation chairman Lauralee Fritts is a senior from Ninevah. She is serving as president of Pi Gamma Mu, honorary social science fraternity, and vice-president of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational society. "Fritzy" holds the position of short story editor of the Colonnade and conference chairman of Wesley Foundation. She is a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, Future Teachers of America and Theta Sigma Upsilon social sorority.

Heading the music committee, Betty is a junior from Hampton. She is a member of the College Choir and A Capella singers. Betty also serves as a reporter for the Rotunda.

Sophomores Isabel Karnes and Joanne Pershing hail from Bedford and Fredericksburg, respectively. Isabelle is a member of the

Think Twice

January 23 to January 28. Even I am good enough to know that's only — how many days? Well at least I know that it's less than a week. It seems hardly more than a week ago that I came back to college all charged with fall energy. This year I was going to start studying with the first day, play a bit everyday, and make something out of this year.

Now, however, the time has come when the piper does have to be paid. And oh, I've just got to pass biology, or history, or make a "C" average. I can't let the family down again. I've just got to graduate this June.

Aren't thoughts such as the above the thoughts that stare us all in the face these end - of - the - semester days? And if we are frank with ourselves we must admit there lurks the further thought, just beyond the conscious, of how ridiculously easy it is to cheat on exams. — Oh, no, not to steal, but just not to be fully aware that we left those important notes in our exam papers, or that our eyes just happened to see those facts so clearly written down by the girl to our left, or was it to the right?

To be thoroughly honest with ourselves we all must admit that we have our weak moments, that sometimes that pressure can become too great. Hence we must all of us give thought in the depths of our hearts to that greatest tradition of our college — a Longwood woman is a woman of utter honor. Now are the days when that tradition can by our individual action be made to live, and flourish and burst into glorious existence, or be tarnished and cast under foot. Nothing — passing grades, academic honors, the right to continue at college — can be worth the shame that would live with us to the end should we take some academic reward which we had not earned.

—Dr. C. G. G. Moss

Be Proud

If there were a colorful May Pole about which to trip the light fantastic, a gay and enthusiastic song to sing, or a million hands to shake, members of the Rotunda staffs would go about it happily in an effort to show how wonderful they have been made to feel by Longwood and her students. Instead we can only say editorially: THANK YOU FROM THE BOTTOM OF OUR HEARTS! !

Better than having a lucky star to wish upon or depending on a dream to come true, the Rotunda had a tangible thing upon which she could base her hopes and optimism — the backing of her Longwood. College organizations have unselfishly given of their own meager bank accounts into the grateful, ink-smeared hands of the newspaper.

Didn't the Rotunda express optimism at the beginning of the drive? She did, but her hopes are being more than upheld. Checks and pledges for sums that must surely have made pocketbooks seem considerably lighter have managed to send more than one wonderful chill down the spine of a paper that feels like holding its head a little higher and grinning a little broader. Can the students blame her? No, for they are the ones who are responsible.

Students were asked to give for a reason: that the Rotunda might be more effective and of greater service to the College. The newspaper WILL NOT let down in any way the school which has expressed its faith in her. If working hours must be longer and later, if legs more tired from walking farther, eyes a bit more circled from too much reading, and more classes cut, we're willing — even eager.

Success thus far has not turned the head of the College sheet; willing contributions have not made the paper want a bank account at the end of the spring semester, only a treasurer's book that shows no bills owed or big debts that could not be paid. A goal, which will make it possible for students to read nine issues during the spring, has ALMOST been met. IT'S GOING TO BE FULFILLED, PLEASE? Another week of being just half as wonderful as you have already been will put YOUR paper on top. There's a smile on her face, a twinkle in her eye. THE ROTUNDA HAS FAITH IN YOU.

A Word To The Wise

There has been much weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth throughout Longwood and the College world. The reason? Examination week is fast getting closer than just around the corner. Signs of this are the cessation of all meetings, reviews and tests in classes, and a general air of gloominess which is gathering as each one considers the need for buckling down and the nearness of exams.

There are several standard practices during this week of weeks. Most people stay up all night, doing the proverbial last-minute cramming. Some few others attend the nightly movie, and play cards, assuming an attitude of "what's the use?" General peace and quiet settle down upon the College for five hazardous days, and even the maids on the halls are aware of what days they are.

Warnings to the wise and to the unwise are always in order as exams change from an expectation into a reality.

Several freshmen have admitted their fearful anticipation of these final grade-determiners. It might be suggested that fear certainly does not help the situation, and that exams should not be feared, anyway. Usually, they are of the same sort as the tests to which each student is well accustomed, and can be faced with confidence if classes have been well and atttentively attended.

Unlimited light privileges which are in effect throughout the school during this week, make it possible for both studious and playful souls to lose so much sleep that by the time the last examination rolls around, they are complete physical wrecks. History has repeated itself each year with several near-breakdowns during this examination period. We can avoid this by a systematic and sensible schedule which will include adequate sleep and rest as a part of the week as well as last-minute studying.

Not to be overlooked is the fact that we live among a large number of people. They are studying, or sleeping most of the time. Rules have been made concerning the rigid "quiet" which must be maintained during exams. Let's each make it our goal to be completely considerate of everyone during these few days, just as we will want them to be to us, and make this as successful an examination period as possible for everyone concerned.

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor:

The editorially expressed hope that the present bi-weekly Rotunda can be more effective and of greater service to the College and students through a successful fund-raising campaign is seemingly a short sighted illusion.

The only practical way for the ad-crowded growth stunted Rotunda to meet the rising costs of publication with any permanent degree of stability, is to raise the student-required subscriptions in order to meet these unwelcome higher costs.

The current campaign for funds may solve the Rotunda's financial debts temporarily, but these plans still toss the real problem on future staffs of the Rotunda: debts will again reappear year after year until the underlying causes are taken into account, and it isn't probable that Longwood will come up with the nation's solution to today's general rising costs of living.

Almost all of us agree that the student at Longwood gets more per dollar in educational opportunities than in 95% of other colleges in the state and country. A few pennies more a week in raised subscription rates would be felt less by all than the loss in many ways (educationally, recreationally, and socially) to each by the Rotunda continuing to operate ineffectively because of the limitations of deficient financial backing.

Enclosed is my small but enthusiastic contribution to the Rotunda's current campaign.

Sincerely,
Lester H. Smallwod, Jr.

Facts for Fearful Freshmen

by Jean Jinnett and Barbara Caskey

Do you feel that you might not mind exam week so very much if you only had some vague idea of what to expect in the way of exam questions? If so, read on, and you will find a list of typical excerpts from probable examinations.

English

1. Diagram this sentence: Hanging over the Rotunda rail, the statue looks so much like Joan of Arc does that you know it is her.

2. Differentiate between the sagacious superfluous anacronisms of Aristophistal and the hypertonic repercussions prevalent in the factual information provided in the "Three Little Pigs".

3. Identify Donald Duck, Bay-Wolf, and the dangling participle.

History

1. Whose beard was singed?

2. Name the first ten kings of Afghanistan, and give their birthplaces, putting a star by the names of all those who were lefthanded.

3. Fill in the blanks: —and—were—in the year—.

4. Imagine yourself face to face with a Neanderthal man. What would be your first impressions?

Biology

1. Why does a mosquito bite itch?

2. If a tall yellow split leaf climbing vine is crossed with Gregor Mendel, who or what will be the resulting individual resemble?

3. Give the life cycle of an anteater.

4. Diagram a sloppy, messy, slimy, greasly, squirming earthworm.

Orientation

1. True or false: To wash your hands is unsanitary.

2. True or false: Mental health depends on what college you attend.

3. Discussion: Are you happy?

Physical Education

I. Imagine yourself a referee for the following hypothetical questions:

A. If one player strikes another in the face with her foot while playing soccer, and the result is fatal, the player hit receives a free kick. Is this statement false or true?

B. In the above incident, which player is at fault?

Now that you have some idea of what you can expect on your exams, you'll have to admit that it isn't really going to be so very bad after all.

LC Students To See Ballet

On Saturday, February 23, a group of 107 Longwood Students and faculty members will travel to Richmond to attend the Mosque's performance of the Sadler Wells Ballet.

Consisting of approximately 60 dancers, the cast of the coming performance is the same group that was seen in the movies "The Red Shoes" and "Tales of Hoffman".

The English Sadler Wells Ballet which is making its third annual tour of the United States and Canada, will be in Richmond one night only.

Green 'n White Classes Win Points Toward Cup By Ping Pong Victory

Sophs Elect Evans As Class Treasurer

At a recent called meeting, the Sophomores elected Mary Ann Evans from Richmond to serve as treasurer of their class. She will replace June Horton, also from Richmond, who does not plan to return to college after this semester. Mary Ann will take over her duties at the beginning of the second semester.

Mary Ann is a member of the Richmond Club, Cotillion Club, and serves as circulation manager of the Rotunda.

Tyler Downs Russell In Telling Contest

Betty Tyler, junior from South Boston, has won the final match in the annual ping-pong tournament, bringing the victory and five points toward the Color Cup to the Green n' Whites, it has been revealed by Sue Webb and Betty Abbitt, managers of recreational activities for the Athletic Association Council.

Betty defeated Boots Russell in the final match by scores of 21-14 and 21-7. In order to reach the Finals, she had already beaten Mary Denny Wilson 21-15, and 21-7 in the semi-finals, and Boots had defeated Helen Waitman 21-9 and 21-19 wins.

Twenty-one point games were played by the contestants, with 2 out of 3 games constituting a win. A several-round elimination battle has been going on throughout the past month to determine the ping-pong champion.

Committee Announces Competitive Class Sings

The annual Competitive Sings sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. are scheduled to start the first weekend of next semester, according to an announcement by Lyn Hill, Sing Chairman.

Competitive Sings are traditional contests between the individual classes in stunt presentations. Each class' stunts are observed and judged by student and faculty judges, and a prize is awarded to the winning class at the end of the four weeks.

The Freshman Class will give the first Sing Saturday night, February 9, followed by the Sophomores on February 16. The Juniors will present their Sing on February 23, and the Senior Sing is scheduled for March 2.

Chairmen of these skits will be elected by their classes in the near future.

The award for the prize-winning sing will be five dollars. Judges are to be several members of the faculty and students whose names will not be disclosed until the winner is announced.

Read And See If You Can't Guess . . . . . How Many Names Are In This Mess

by Phoebe Warner & Shirley Ward

Are you feeling Moody these days with exams coming up? Do you feel as if you want to lock yourself up in a Boothe somewhere? If so, then why not Steele a little time from your studies and try to figure out this riddle? If you are a very Quick person, you will soon catch on to this article as you see that the Key lies in people's last names. So, let's take a peek at the college register and see what we can dig up.

Wouldn't it be Devine to have a streamlined Hudson with a deluxe Hood that works merely by pressing a Button, and a Horne that you don't have to Tuggle with to make it blow? To Ridenour in this luxurious automobile will thoroughly convince you that you should Sell your old Graham for a newer model. You could take this new Karr Overstreet and Hill and watch the Beavers in the Wood. Now what could be more pleasant than a Southern trip with a Short Holladay!

The files show that movies are better than ever, so let's head for the theater where there is an all star cast of Davis, Taylor, Turner, Young, and Crawford, with Bright remarks supplied by Martin and Lewis, Harris and Allen. The plot of the movies concerns a Porter, a Tanner, and a Miller, who are preparing to Lynch two Brothers for trying to sell Brown Assaid as Koch. The setting is laid in one of the Straw-filled Barnes. The moral of the story is that the accused thought that they were doing the Wright thing.

Moore or less miscellaneous facts can now be disclosed for the benefit of those ignorant of certain discoveries. White Cake in the snack Barr ranks highly among favorite desserts. There are a Bishop and numerous Parsons in our midst as well as a King to Foster better relations. More girls prefer Mann to use Gillette Brown blades as was reported in Collier's magazine.

To Hunt some more facts about your fellow students would cause someone a long Waite, so we'll end here which will probably come as a Blessing to you.

Y' LINES

"Christian Marriage and the Family" was the topic of a discussion led by Ellen Porter at Union Vespers sponsored by the Y and held at the Methodist church last Sunday night.

Prayers during exam week will be held at John's Memorial Church as usual but in the form of a silent meditation.

Religious Emphasis Week will be observed here February 11-13 when Mr. Hugh M. Burleigh, a Methodist minister from Lynchburg, will speak at the chapel program on Tuesday, February 12.

Famed Organ Virtuoso Will Present Concert In Jarman Auditorium

Virgil Fox, renowned organist, will present a concert of organ music in Jarman Auditorium, February 12 at 9 p. m. Mr. Fox will give the same program which was previously scheduled as part of the dedicatory exercises held October 20.

Widely acclaimed as one of the world's greatest exponents of organ music, Virgil Fox is an internationally known concert organist and recording artist. At present, Mr. Fox is organist at the and will fly to Farmville to present this concert.

MR. VIRGIL FOX

His program, as formerly announced, will consist of organ works by Handel, Bach, Mendelssohn, Bingham, Middelschulte and Dupre. The first selection to be played by Mr. Fox will be Handel's Concerto in F, followed by Come Sweet Death and Toccata in F, works by Bach. Next on the program will be Dreams by Hugh McAmis and Mendelssohn's Sonata I. The recital of organ music will be concluded by Mr. Fox's presentation of Roulade by Seth Bingham, Perpetum Mobile by Wilhelm Middelschulte and Prelude and Fugue in G minor by Marcel Dupre.

Alumni Organ

The four - manual organ on which Mr. Fox will present his recital, is one of the most complete instruments in the State. It was built through funds amounting to $25,000 raised by the Alumnae Association in memory of Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, president of Longwood College from 1902 to 1946.

Student tickets for the Fox recital may be obtained in Dr. Lancaster's office for twenty-five cents. Courtesy tickets have been sent to alumnae, and tickets for the remaining seats will be sold for $1.25 to the general public who wish to attend.

Mrs. Ruth A .Coyner, secretary of the Alumnae Association, is in charge of plans for a reception for the alumnae following the concert at Longwood Estate.

Srs. Discuss Future Jobs

Beginning on Thursday, February 14, Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster and Dean William W. Savage will offer to all interested seniors a series of discussions designed to aid the future job holders in developing more confidence in seeking employment.

There will be three such meetings in all, and they are to be held from 4 to 5 p. m. in the small auditorium on February 14, 21, and 28. Dr. Lancaster and Dean Savage will discuss with the group such things as "How to write a letter of application", "How to prepare a portfolio in seeking a position", and "Choosing the school in which you wish to teach."

On February 14, Dr. Paul M. Munno Superintendent of Lynchburg schools will be here to participate in the program and to put on a demonstration interview. A discussion on "How to interview a prospective employer" will follow Dr. Munno's demonstration.

"How to dress when seeking a position" is another topic which will be discussed. Dean Savage stated that he hoped to illustrate this discussion by having several seniors dress in correct and incorrect attire.

This series of discussions is something new to Longwood. It has developed in response to a desire expressed by students in the past. All seniors are invited to take advantage of the meetings but attendance is entirely voluntary.

Juniors Announce Basin Street Ball For February 16

Basin Street, its blues and Bohemian atmosphere, will set the mood for the Junior Dance to be given February 16 from 8 to 12 p. m. in the College Recreation Hall.

Pat Partridge and his combo, of Chase City, will provide the music for the occasion. During intermission time, special entertainment carrying out the Basin Street theme will be given by selected members of the junior class.

Betty Hancock is chairman of the dance committee and will be assisted by Betty Tyler and Clara Borum on the food committee. Aiding Marjorie Steele, head of decorations, will be Mary Meade Robertson and Bobbie Obenshain. Barbara Caskey has been placed in charge of music for the dance. Helen Castros and Lee Wingfield are serving as co-chairmen of the ticket committee while Ann Crowder and Betty Hancock will take charge of clean-up.

Tickets will go on sale during the week preceding the dance, prices standing at $1.25 drag and $.85 stag.

Campaign Chairman Announces Results

The March of Dimes Campaign which has lasted throughout the past few weeks came to a close on January 31 and yielded $136.47 which was collected from the college students and faculty members according to Mr. Raymond French, chairman of the campus drive.

The sophomore class led the other classes in donations with $13.05; the freshman class was second with $12.55; and the seniors ranked third. Mr. French stated that he wished to extend his appreciation to the students for their contributions and to the faculty members for their donaitons which amounted to $83.75.

Longwood fell below their $300 donation received in last year's drive. Over a hundred dollars of this 1951 contribuiton was given

Dance Group Will Present 'Dedication' February 15

Music, Dance, Poetry Combined In Presentation

"Dedication," the large group work in extended form which will be presented by Orchesis Friday, February 15 in Jarman Hall, is a composite of dance, music and poetry.

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education, Dr. C. L. S. Earley, professor of speech, Mr. Clarence Warrington, professor of music, and Dr. John W. Molnar, head of the music department, are collaborating on this extravaganza of the interrelationship of the arts.

With the poetry of Walt Whitman as the substance and core of the whole, the narrator Betsy Hankins moves across the stage, leading, goading or guiding the students Margaret Taylor, Elizabeth Burton, Anne Murphy and Challice Haydon. At times the narrator assumes the role of a great teacher, at others a voice of the past or a prognosticator of the future. The spectator is aware, at all times, of many people coming, going and moving in an awareness of space as the voice, blending words with dance, brings drama in its oldest, elaborate form in Aiken's Prayer, makes music have new meaning.

"Dedication" is a first attempt at the union of arts. There is no line of demarcation between music, dance and drama as each are a part of the whole — students peering into the three new additions on campus through not only doors and windows, but the very walls as if they too hold something of the traditions in the hearts of Longwood girls.

Rotunda Receives $182 in Donation

Longwood students, administration and organizations have backed the College newspaper drive to a total of $181.84, according to Celeste Bishop, business manager. The drive was ended Tuesday, January 29.

Contributions from alumnae, administration members and the College clubs have been generous and frequent. They will enable the newspaper staff to publish the nine required issues during the Spring semester. A few of the organizations have pledged donations which may be turned in anytime during the next four months.

Spanish Students Will Present Film 'The Mad Queen'

American Critics Approve Picture

"The Mad Queen" or "Locura De Amour" will be shown in Jarman Hall this Friday night. A Spanish movie, which has been unanimously approved by American critics and received the equivalent of our "Oscar" from Spain's Film Critics' Circle will be presented by the Spanish Club for all students and others who are interested Friday night. For those who do not understand Spanish, sub-titles are supplied.

Aurora Bautista, Europe's newest acting sensation, gives a warm and human protrayal of the Spanish Juana, "La Loca", daughter of Isabel and Ferdinand and wife to Philip the first. This is history—yes, but "history in flesh and blood", the passions of a jealous wife and queen, the political intrigues of a ruthlessly ambitous nobleman pitted against the weakling Philip. The film shows the love of Juana for her husband and her insanity brought on by his infidelities. She was unaware that her husbands philanderings with a Moorish girl were conspired to diminish Philip's love for her and drive them apart. As it was planned ter of Isabel and Ferdinand and her away. Yet they could not kill her love. After his death she would not part with his body, thereafter living in sight of his tomb.

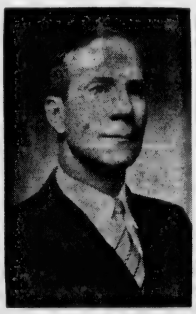
The supporting cast give admirable performances; Fernando Rey as Philip, Jesus Tordesillas as the evil nobleman De Vere, Felix Fernandez as a comic innkeeper and others. The distinguished musical score was composed by Maestro Juan Quintero, and Perik Hermanos designed the fifteenth century costumes effectively depicting that period.

Tickets of thirty-five cents are available for this showing which begins at 8:00 p. m.

Enthusiastically received in the United States, this picture was named best of the year by the Spanish American Film Congress. Among numerous other awards was that given it in Hollywood for the best foreign picture of the month of May. In addition box office records were set in Havana, Mexico City, Buenos Aires, Lima, Bogota and the Republic of Panama by "Locura De Amor".

New Students Enroll For Spring Semesters

Eleven new students were added to the Longwood Student body after second semester matriculation last Saturday, February 1, according to Miss Virgilia I. Burg, college registrar. Included in the number are seven women and four men.



Four of the newcomers are former Longwoodites who have returned to finish work toward their degrees. They are Mrs. Graham Trent Chappell of Andersonville. Mrs. Anne Pauline Graziani, and Mrs. Evelyn Doyne Price both of Farmville, and Mrs. Mildred

Dinner To Welcome Speaker

The annual Religious Emphasis Week, sponsored by the College Y. W. C. A., will be held on campus during the week beginning February 11. During this time, lectures and discussions will be held for the benefit of Longwood students.

The Reverend Hugh M. Burleigh, guest speaker for Religious Emphasis Week, will arrive at Longwood on Monday, February 11 and will be welcomed with a dinner given by the Y' Cabinet at 6 p. m. Among those invited to the dinner are various faculty members and advisers to the cabinet. The dinner will be followed by an informal reception at which Mr. Burleigh will be introduced by the Y' to heads of Longwood organizations, faculty members, and ministers of the Farmville churches.

REV. HUGH M. BURLEIGH, who will speak in the Y. W. C. A. Religious Emphasis Week programs to be held February 11, 12, 13.

Throughout the coming week Mr. Burleigh will expand the topic "One Life to Live, One Life to Give." He will speak to the student body in the regular assembly and will lead prayers in the Methodist church following dinner Tuesday evening. A very informal discussion group will be held by Mr. Burleigh at 5 p. m. on Wednesday. Following the discusion, the week's guest will present an evening address in Jarman Hall, at 8 p. m. on Wednesday. An invitation to the program will be extended to the people of Farmville through their churches, to the Presbyterian church at Hampden-Sydney and to Hampden-Sydney students.

Born in Amhurst County, Mr. Burleigh received his Bachelor of Arts degree at Lynchburg College. He also attended Yale University Divinity School where he received his Bachelor of Divinity degree.

The Reverend Burleigh, a member of the Virginia Annual Conference since 1929, has held pastorates in the Lynchburg, Farmville, Richmond and Alexandria Districts. Serving at present as pastor of Court Street Methodist Church, Mr. Burleigh had the pastorate of Prospect charge from 1940 to 1943 and of the Fredericksburg Methodist Church from 1947 to 1950.

Miss Draper Announces Honor Course

Longwood College's new program of Honors Courses will get underway this semester, according to an announcement by Miss Helen Draper, chairman of the faculty committee administering the courses. Elizabeth Anne Stone, junior from Rustburg, will initiate the program by enrolling in the Honors Course in English. Her research dealing with a topic on the concept of the Renaissance in historical fiction will be directed by Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr.

Honors Courses are open only to outstanding students who are approved by the head of the department in which they plan to work and by the honors committee. In general students will begin honors work in the second semester of the junior year and complete the program in the senior year, with an intervening summer for study and reading. The work will consist of the study of a specialized topic agreed upon by the student and the faculty sponsor. The results of investigations will be presented in a formal research paper, prepared in the proper form for professional articles.

An examining committee of three or more professors, appointed by the honors committee, will conduct an oral examination on the student's paper. Whenever practicable, members of faculties of other colleges will be invited to serve on the examining committee.

A student who passes the examination will be entitled to graduation with honors in the department in which the course was taken. Otherwise, six semester hours of credit will be given if the sponsor considers the work done worthy of such credit.

Tryouts Will Begin For Staff Positions On '52-'53 Rotunda

Tryouts for editor-in-chief, managing editor, business manager, and staff positions for the 1952-'53 newspaper year will begin with next week's issue of the Rotunda.

Tryouts will continue during the month of February, during which time members of the staff who have signed up with the editors may try out for any position they desire. Each person trying out for a new position will assume the regular duties of that position for one issue of the paper.

Members of the student body who are interested in newspaper work may write or learn to write for the editorial staff or work on the business staff of the paper by trying out during this period. A meeting will be held tonight after supper in the publications office to sign up for try-out positions for the issue of the paper which will come out next Wednesday night.

Sports writers, column writers, and news and feature writers are urged by the editors to participate in this trial period, as well as those who are interested in trying out for editorial positions.

Court Material

Tomorrow Longwood's student body will be faced with a difficult task. From the bevy of beauties selected by student nomination, we must decide which girls are the truest representation of the loveliest Longwood has to offer — we must decide who the May Court royalty will be.

As Longwood's lovelies' promenade through the Rec displaying their charm and beauty, many of us will feel that to make a final decision is an impossible task. Just what are the precise qualities that we want embodied in our May Court — just what "check list" of attributes can we use to help in our choice? The prime requisite which immediately occurs to everyone is BEAUTY. Indeed attractiveness of face and figure are very important for the person who is before the public eye so long.

If a girl passes this first test, we will all agree that another important trait is GRACE and POISE. We should all remember that the court does not merely sit quietly and review the May Day pageant. Never has May Day come and gone that the Longwood lovelies have not had to walk and dance in public. Thus the ability to do both of these gracefully and with ease is another necessary accomplishment for Court and Queen if the annual pageant is to be effective.

We feel that if a girl posesses beauty, grace, and poise she is May Court material. A crowd of spectators can tell little or nothing about a girl's personality, leadership ability, or school-spiritness from merely seeing her walk gracefully up to a stage and sit regally through a ceremony. Furthermore honors such as Who's Who and Circus Court provide for these intangible qualities. Therefore, these should not be considered as we try to reach a decision.

Tomorrow is the day. The choice will be difficult, but if we keep these suggestons in mind, the queen and her court spotlighted in the 1952 celebration will make this truly a May Day to remember.

Success!

Success! Pride! The two go hand in hand, and they belong to us—success of the drive for money to enable the Rotunda to appear the required number of times during the second semester and pride in the student body and organizations of Longwood. The College may rightfully be proud of her students who have so wholeheartedly backed their newspaper.

The drive was begun with an optimism that, rather than being short-lived as optimism often is, has grown with every contribution made. Nickles and dimes donated by students and larger checks from the organizations have each carried their own message: "We have confidence in the Rotunda and will do our utmost to support it."

Although the tentative goal set by the paper has almost been met, some of the College groups, which have not yet contributed, have pledged a donation. These and any others will be welcomed during the coming semester.

Thank you, wonderful Longwood! We shall do our very best to live up to your display of confidence in us.

One Life

"One Life to Live—One Life to Give," a pertinent theme which should provide inspiration, and which will certainly give food for thought, will be considered as the central idea of next week's Religious Emphasis Week.

To what are we giving our one life? Don't think of it in the light of what we will give in years to come. What are we giving now in the life we are living? Are we giving that one precious life to worthwhile practices and pursuits? These will be some of the questions which will probably be brought to mind and heart among the student body of Longwood, and the whole town of Farmville, as they are led in services next week by the Reverend Hugh M. Burleigh.

The Y' Cabinet is bringing to the campus a person whose wide background of religious youth work will make him very vital in his speeches and in the personal conferences which students will have with him. The townspeople will be given the opportunity of benefiting from this great speaker's worth in an evening service held during the week. This is something new to the annual "Week," and should add to its far-reaching effects.

This can be just another week at Longwood. Or, it can be the most outstanding Week we have had this year or any other year. We give of our time limitlessly to academic pursuits, extra-curricular activities, play. Think about how much it will mean to us to give of our time and our selves to hearing Mr. Burleigh every time he speaks, and to enter whole-heartedly into the Wednesday afternoon discussion. Let's put a little emphasis on the religion in our lives; let's give a little thought about the effect of our lives on other people. And let's all benefit from next week.

Resolved

New Year's resolutions are a tradition in this country — a tradition laughingly described as ". . . made to be broken." But often, when an individual finds himself inadequate as a result of poor habits or comes face to face with proof that his work could be more effective, resolutions are made to be kept. These self-made promises may fall on New Year's day, Christmas, or any of the other 363 days of the year — BUT THEY'RE KEPT.

How many students of Longwood will find themselves lacking this week when grades appear? Doubtless, many of us will —yet the tendency will be to regret, resolve, forget. Some need to study a little harder or perhaps just need to study (period), while some few would profit by less studying and more sleep and relaxation. Learning how to study and budget time might send those low grades soaring beyond belief or at least to satisfaction.

Little things like fewer unnecessary class cuts or added interest in what the professors spend time preparing for the students might open the eyes of the instructors in astonishment and pleasure and the eyes of the students in realization of what they've been missing. After all, didn't we come to college to learn; it's our own back we're breaking.

Letter and number grades don't always tell what the student has learned, but they usually hit somewhere close. Besides, those grades mean something to outsiders— future employers and parents—and the higher the better.

There's no need to wait for New Years to make a promise to bring up those marks. Monday began a New Semester, next Monday or even tomorow can begin a GOOD new semester if students will make and keep resolutions to buckle down and show that they came to college to learn.

Given a try, New Semester Resolutions might become a tradition described as ". . . made to be met." Why not?

Social Notes

by Barbara Caskey

Now that we all (?) have some new cuts, maybe life will be a little brighter.

Pinned

Phyllis Isaacs received a Sigma Chi pin recently from Harry Beatty of Hampden-Sydney. Let's all give Phyllis a big smile. (By the way, we want everyone to know that all our news this week came directly from the marvelous opportunity to be in such direct contact with the Gossip Bureau.)

V. P. I.

Virginia Polytechnic Institute chose this week end to show off their fur - lined eveningwear. Among those to attend the dances were Bobbie Allen, Jeanne Hamilton, Liz Crockett, Betty Hood, Betty Islin, and Mary Ann Breslin.

Sweetheart

Margie Steele was recently elected Sweetheart of Sigma Chi at Roanoke College. She is engaged to Ed Sutphin, a Sigma Chi at that institution.

New York Trip

Betty Scott Berkey spent last week end sightseeing in New York City.

Next week, business will be booming because there are several dances coming up at the various Boy's Colleges, (please note) about this state and the other forty seven. Speaking of geography, it is about time that someone here met a dashing cabellero from the University of Mexico or a debonaire Frenchman from New York City College so that they could go to dances beyond the borders and foster international relations. It is up to you!

"Dedicate your Vocation" will be the theme for Vocational Emphasis Week, February 4-10. Special inspiration programs have been invited. Included in the week's activities was a special, free supper Tuesday night at 6 p. m.

Dean Savage will speak Sunday, February 10 at the Training Union meeting on "Choosing a Vocation." We will divide into discussion groups afterwards and will rejoin in the annual Life Commitment Service at the evening worship at 8 p. m.

Methodist

Longwood College girls, led by Miss Helen Krause, recently visited Virginia State College, a negro coeducational school at Petersburg. Racial segregation was the topic under discussion.

Presbyterian

The Westminster Fellowship will meet Sunday night at Hampden-Sydney College. A movie will be shown.

Newman Club

The club is sponsoring a series of lessons on Catholic beliefs and instructions for several weeks.

Inter Varsity

A miniature conference will be held in the Y' Lounge on Saturday, February 9 by the Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship. Outstanding speakers and stimulating discussions will be held with "Christian Living" as the central theme. The conference will begin at 1 p. m. and continue through the afternoon.

Dr. R. C. Simonini Publishes In Journal

The leading article in the winter number of the Romanic Review, a quarterly journal published by Columbia University, is by Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr., head of Longwood College's English department. The article on "Italian-English Language Books of the Renaissance" contains a descriptive bibliography of all the known books for the study of Italian published in England during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

Strollin' with Stokes

by Stokes Overbey

With the election of the May Court just in the offering, we decided to sample the opinion of the student body on the following question: "What do you think should be the basic considerations in choosing a May Queen, Maid of Honor and court members?"

Shirley Livesay: "A beautiful face as well as a beautiful personality.'

Bobbie Blackman: "Personality as well as beauty. I think the queen and maid of honor should really have what we call the Longwood spirit. After all, they're representing the school."

Bette Safeile: "Natural beauty and poise, a queenly and stately appearance."

Shirley Lewis: "They should have poise and should be someone whom the class is proud to have as a representative."

Pollyanna Martin: "I think the girls should definitely be good-looking, and that includes personality since personality is one of the leading factors which makes a person attractive."

Elizabeth Kitts: "I think poise and personality are most important. The queen, in particular, should possess an unusual amount of these qualities.'

Ellen Porter: "Beauty, shape, a friendly and sweet attitude."

Dawn Eastridge: "It should be someone who has a lot of poise and beauty."

Gwendolpn Michael: "I think it should be someone with a pleasant air about her and someone who has contributed a lot to our school."

Janie Harper: "Looks, personality, tact, poise, and a graceful carriage."

Becky Hines: "Well, first, I think they should have some beauty and poise, but above all, their personalities should be considered."

Juanita Hudson: "When you think of May Day everybody naturally thinks of beauty, but the all-roundedness of a girl counts too."

Shirley Ward: "I think they should be judged on natural beauty and on a nice, friendly personality — not someone who's stuck on herself."

Sarah Graham: "Pulchritude, pulchritude, and above all else, pulchritude." (Editor's note: Sarah couldn't spell it either.)

Pat Lee: "I think the queen should be chosen for beauty rather than popularity."

Catherine Toxey: "Other honors such as Who's Who and Circus Court provide for people with personality and school-spiritedness. Therefore, I think the May Court should be based on beauty alone."

Your Fate Is Great, So Wait. 'Tis Now Too Late to Rate

A. B. C. D. E. F. No this isn't the first grade in training school reciting the alphabet. These are our grades.

The question is arising: Who got which grade on what subject and why?

Were the majority of student teachers able to make A on teaching?

Was the curve low enough in Dr. Wynne's class for certain people to pass on a 1?

In guessing eeny, meeny, miney, moe, did most of the right answers land on moe or meeny in Georgraphy exam?

Were the Geology students able to tell how many tablespoons full of water drop from Niagara Falls per second? If they were they may make at least a B on such a CRIP course.

If Dr. Molnar's music classes are prepared to recognize every movelng question: "What do you think may expect to pass.

Can the Freshman Physical Education classes get the feeling of being in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia when they do the square dance? This inspiration should bring about a B.

It's a sure shot that all students writing a theme on La Theatre can be sure of an A on English in Dr." Earley's class.

Can all of Miss Patterson's little song birds who are passing, sing "Everything Is Growing" on tune and key with very good diction?

Can Miss Hall's home economic classes cook tarter sauce smooth, creamy, and delectable? If not you can improve when you take it a second time:

I hope this information has enlightened you on what your grade should be. Could you be one of the 40 per cent who according to statistics make Dean's List? If it isn't you, maybe it's your roommate or a friend or a classmate. Well, somebody in this school makes it!

LEGGETT'S

Ann's Analysis

by Ann Gray

Recently a well read magazine ran an article, the theme of which asked the aim of America's young college women. The author, a minister, said that the nation as a whole was going on the assumption that female college students were egotistical, intellect building, career minded women, but he says this is only a shadow of the real aim of these women.

When polls are taken which ask what the aim for the future is, the answer is almost invarably "To get married, raise a family, and forget about all these nerve racking national and international problems." This is true, and this college exemplifies the author's conclusion.

Perhaps this desire to retreat from the world is derived from a psychological desire for security which was brought about by the late years of the depression which we all witnessed, but what are we as college women going to do with our future? We are training to become teachers, the finest profession a woman can enter, but are we going to use our training? Certainly we will use it in raising our children, and maybe some of us will continue to teach even after we do become mothers. Will we fall in line with the general trend or will we refuse the pattern and take our place as leaders in the community, and even the government? Will we try to make the whole life scene a better place for the children we hope to rear? Will we use the opportunities college education have made possible for us, or will we drift passively out of the scene? This isn't just a generalization of college life on some remote campus —it concerns us. Think about it!

Course To Enable Girls To Instruct

The annual Red Cross Water Safety Instructors Course will be given during the week of March 17-21. Howery Camp, Red Cross field representative for this area of Virginia, will be here for three hours each night.

This course will qualify students as swimming instructors. Students eligible are those who have completed life saving or those taking it. According to Eleanor Weddle, student instructor, any person who wishes to enter the class but does not meet the above requirements must enroll in the advanced swimming course now offered at 2:05 on Tuesday and Thursday.

If desired, they may discontinue this class after satisfactorily completing the instructors course. All persons interested in the Red Cross Course are asked to contact Eleanor Weddle.

College To Celebrate 68th Founder's Day; Alumna Will Speak

The sixty-eighth annual Longwood Founder's Day will be held on March 20, this year with the well-known Virginia author, Mrs. Gordon Willis, Jr., of Fredericksburg, as alumnae guest speaker, according to an announcement by Mrs. Ruth A. Coyner, alumnae secretary.

Mrs. Willis, the former Carrie Hunter, is a Longwood graduate of the class of 1911. During her four years here she was an outstanding student. Mrs. Willis' daughter, Caroline Hunter, is also a Longwood graduate, receiving her A. B. degree in 1939.

Listed among the 100 most prominent women in Virginia, Mrs. Willis is outstanding in civic and club life by reason of the same qualities that made her a leader in college. In the midst of her busy life, she has found time to write several books. Her best known is "The Story of Virginia," which she and Lucy S. Saunders, the superintendent of elementary grades in Norfolk, collaberated on in 1930. The book has been used in the fourth grade since then and was revised in 1950 by Mrs. Willis.

High School Visits

Longwood faculty representatives will visit high schools thoughout the state next week.

Dr. Robert T. Brumfield will attend Patrick County College Day and Martinsville College Night on February 13. He will also participate in Henry County College Day on February 14.

Varsity Will Meet W & M In Opening Game of Season

Home Game Set For Saturday Night

The Longwood varsity basketball team will officially open its 1952 season on Saturday night, February 8, Rachael Peters, squad captain, has announced. The team will play against William and Mary at 7:30 p. m. in the Longwood gym.

The game with Notre Dame that was originally scheduled for February 8 has been cancelled by Notre Dame.

The starting line-up has not yet been announced, but the players will be selected from the 18 varsity players, who are Dot Baldwin, Mary Lou Barlowe, Marian Beckner, Clara Borum, and Nell Bradshaw.

Other members of the varsity squad are Virginia An Burgess, Dorothy Edwards, Juanita Hudson, Edith Kennon, Eleanor Koch, Lucy Mann, and Jean Carol Parker. Rachael Peters, Jean Rideout, Patsy Sanford, Betty Tyler, Mary Ann Ward, and Roberta Wiatt complete the varsity roster.

Other basketball games thus far scheduled are:

Westhampton—February 16 here
Lynchburg—February 20 .... there
Roanoke—February 22 ..... here

Orchesis Members At Annual Forum

Orchesis members will represent Longwood College in dance at the annual Arts Forum to be held at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro on March 13, 14, and 15.

The club is undecided as to who will go as choreographer-dancers, and, at present, has not decided which compositions from this year's annual recital will be presented at the Student Choreography Program. This student program is to be evaluated by Jean Erdman, noted dancer-artist.

To date, only the dance portion of the painting, sculpture, music, creative writing program is announced. Jean Erdman, concert dancer and teacher, formerly a member of Martha Graham's company, will teach a master technique class and evaluate student compositions on March 14. She will also direct dance composition using the workshop method on March 15.

Longwood Program To Feature Holladay

The regular Longwood Hour this week will feature Cleo Holladay, a sophomore from Suffolk. She will recite the poem, "The White Cliffs of Dover," written by Mrs. Alice Duer Miller.

"The White Cliffs of Dover' is the story of a woman who was born and raised in America, and who makes her home in England. In spite of the arrogrance, ignorance, and folly in England, this woman develops an everlasting love and devotion for her adopted country.

Cleo is an outstanding member of Dr. C. L. S. Earley's speech class, and she previously presented her recitation of the poem to the student body.

College Education Majors Become Student Teachers As Spring Semester Begins

Total Of 71 Will Teach

Thirty-two upperclassmen will do their secondary student teaching in the spring, according to Dr. Edgar M. Johnson, professor of education. Most of the girls, who are juniors and seniors, will do their student teaching in the Farmville High School; however, two of the girls will have a class at Rice Elementary School.

Teaching English will be John Crafton, Ada Fristoe, Lauralee Fritts, Nancy Garbee, and Norma Gladding. Nancy Garbee, along with Lucy Jane Morton, is also teaching Spanish.

Virginia McLean, Mary Jo Smith, Rebecca Mann, and Martha Alice Wilson will teach mathematics, and Gladys Baker, Mildred Garnett, Dot Gregory, Joy Humphries, and Elsie Rae Page will teach home economics.

Teaching physical education will be Janet Cline, Joan Missmer, Marjorie Hood, Rachel Peters, Erma Poarch, Nancy Walker, and Eleanor Weddel. Marjorie Hood will also have a class in biology along with Mary Frances Spurlock who will teach both biology and general science.

Having classes in the business department will be Lois Ash, Ann Moody, Winifred Murdock, Ann Mosely, and Jo Ann Yow. Clara Cullip, Lauralee Fritts, and Jane Watts will teach history, while Bill Overby will have a class in governemnt. Library instructors will be Shirley Livesay and Maxine Watts.

Thirty-nine Longwood upperclassmen will teach in the elementary grades during the coming semester. Carolyn Lusk Smith and Betty Jane Puckett will take charge of the kindergarten.

Barbara Brown, Mary Helen Cook, Virginia Manvell, Lucille Thompson and Nancy Alice Walthall will do their student teaching in the first grade. In the second will be Doris Cassada, Sarah Conley, Mary Crawford, Ann Harding and Mary Jane Tyus.

Third grade student teachers for the coming semester are Betty Campbell, Patricia Lee, Lucy Jane Perkinson, Joyce Richardson, Frances Williams and Josephine Zitta. Experience in the fifth grade will be acquired by Vera Bryant, Nancy Driskill and Shirley Duncan.

Ruth Cullip, Juanita Edwards, Natalie Lancaster and Sue Nelson will teach the sixth grade, while Jean Dillard and Branchey Fristoe will student teach in the seventh.

Teaching physical education second semester will be Janet Cline, Nell Dalton, Jean Ridenour and Illene Russell. Art teachers are Mary Moore Karr, Eugenia Moore and Lucy Jane Morton.

Lucyle Humphries and May Henry Sadler will teach music in the elementary grades. Going to Rice for their student teaching will be Erma Poarch and Nancy Walker.

English Students Reorganize Former Honorary Society

Beore Eh Thorn, a local honor society in English, has been reorganized this year with Norma Gladding as president and Mrs. Mildred D. Davis, Assistant Professor of English and Dr. R. C. Simonini, head of the English Department, as advisers.

The club has been inactive for the past year, but was reactivated with the first meeting in January. Another meeting is planned for next month in which a definite program of work will be planned and new members to receive bids will be decided upon.

Beore Eh Thorn was founded at Longwood in October, 1935. The name is three old English rune letters and was chosen to symbolize the literary quest to which the members are pledged. The society seeks to encourage creative writing and the study of litrature.

Library Gives Abrams Show

The Longwood College Library has now on exhibit in the Browsing Room a collection of 15 woodcuts by a Richmond artist, William Ross Abrams. The exhibit is a loan from the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts and will be kept by the college until February 15.

Abrams graduated from Thomas Jefferson High School, Richmond, Virginia, in 1938, and that summer he studied at the Cape School of Art, Provincetown, Massachusetts. In the fall of that year he enrolled in the Richmond Profeassional Institute of the College of William and Mary, and upon his graduation, he was inducted into the army.

After having been discharged, he enrolled in the Art Students' League of New York City. Abrams has been a member of the Printmakers, a group of ten artists exhibiting through the Jacques Seligmann Galleries in New York. He has taught at Richmond Professional Institute and has been awarded the Guggenhein Fellowship in order to do additional college work or special work in woodcuts.

Abrams has done work in painting, sculpture, and printmaking, and he considers woodcutting his principal creative interest according to critics. His cuts are full of color and give the impression of depth. His cut entitled "Forest" which is a design in red, brown, and greens, 2nd "Potted Plants" which is a black and white study.

Congrats May Court

Turner, Ridenour Will Reign In May

'Scandinavian Festival' Named May Day Theme

"Scandinavian Festival" will provide the color and background for the Longwood May Day this year, its theme finally evolving as Leap Year and centering about the College and its beauties.

The theme for this year's festivities stems from one on the oldest and most distinctive of the seasonal festivals of Scandinavia in recognition of June 24 as the longest day of the year. When traced, the celebration originated as "St. John the Baptist Day," a religious holiday.. Becoming lost in varied rites as a commemoration of the coming of spring and the burning of midsummer fires for June's lovers is timely this being Leap Year.

The Festival will be divided into three sections, each showing Scandinavian folkways concerning phases of the historical holiday: Midsummer's Eve, Midsummer Fires and Midsummer's Day. Native folk songs and dances by physical education classes will provide movement and background for the annual celebration.

Midsummer's Eve

Midsummer's Eve, the eerie beginning of the holiday, will feature good spirits, Fairies and Nocks, and evil spirits, Witches and Wraiths of the Living, creatures roaming through the shadows of the night.

Fires are kindled on Midsummer's Eve when lovers clasp hands across the bonfire, toss flowers across it to each other, and leap through the fire together. The Queen of May, her Maid of Honor and Court will be the center of this phase of the Festival.

Carrying out the idea of Leap Year, the Court will dance with two escorts selected by them from the upperclassmen.

Midsummer's Day, the culminating celebration of the Scandinavian Festival, will feature the May Pole, the singing of traditional songs and the performance of the old and beloved folk dances of the people.

Freshmen Present First Annual Sing

by Carolyn Stanley

"Ah? Ah!" this was the fascinating title of the fascinating program that the fascinating freshman put on in Jarman Hall Saturday night.

The scene took place in the Senior Dorm where several girls were in the deep meditation over a bridge game when suddenly the horrid villian, Nell Cake, entered to steal the lover's fraternity pin. The villian was spied and the girls were all excited when the president of Student Government, B. B. Wilson, played by Marion Stone, and Tippy Toe, portrayed by Betty West, entered to try to catch the villian who was causing such annoyance in the senior building. Finally the night watchman, played by Fan Phillips, came in capturing the villian and returning the pin to the disturbed girl.

Others in the cast included Donnie Devine, Mary Hundley, Nancy Norfleet, Joan Curles, Nancy Nelson, and Beth Kent. Also Phoebe Ann Warner, Pat McLemore, and Frances Young.

The sophomores will have charge of Sing next Saturday night, and a big treat is in store for all of us. The juniors and seniors will also give a Sing in the future and the judges consisting of faculty members will award the prize of five dollars to the winning class.

Dorr Combo To Set Pace At Junior Ball

Class Will Present Intermission Show

Norman Dorr and his combo, of Chase City, will set the pace for the Basin Street high-steppers at the Junior Dance to be given Saturday night from 8:30 to 11:45 p. m. in the College Recreation dall.

The cabaret styled room, Bohemian atmosphere and Basin Street blues will also set the stage for the floor show headed by Anne Murphy, chairman of this committee. Those participating are Sis Burton, Ann Boswell, Betsy Hankins, Lucile Thompson, Kitty Hamlet and Anne Murphy. It will last approximately twenty minutes.

Refreshments including cokes, potato chips, nabs and cigarettes, will be sold by Betty Tyler and Clara Borum who are on the food committee. Adding color to the dance, Marjorie Steele, aided by Mary Meade Robertson and Bobbie Obenshain, will decorate the Rec in appropriate attire while Barbara Caskey will be in charge of music. Helen Castros and Lee Wingfield will serve as co-chairman of the ticket committee. Ann Crowder and Betty Hancock will take charge of clean-up. Betty Hancock is general chairman of the dance.

Tickets are now on sale prices standing at $1.25 drag and $.85 stag.

Students Make Plans In Regular Meetings For Future Activities

At the last Freshman class meeting committees and a theme for the annual freshman production were chosen, according to Barbara Assaid, recently elected production chairman. The production will be given March 14 in Jarman Auditorium.

Martha Donaldson and Dorothy Douglas have been selected to write the script for the presentation. In charge of music will be Helen Sue McNeil and Nancy Franklin was chosen to plan costumes. Sets for the production will be planned and managed by Marlene Lucas and Mary Dabney Langhorn will be in charge of props.

Stokes Overby from Danville was elected senior student government representative at a recent class meeting. Stokes will replace Ann Mitchell Motley who graduated in February. The seniors also elected Anne Oakley of Danville as chairman of Senior Sing.

At their regular class meeting the sophomore class chose Joyce Karlet of Roanoke to head Sophomore Sing.

JEAN RIDENOUR, who will serve as maid-of-honor to the 1952 queen.

FRANCES TURNER, who will reign as queen of the 1952 May Day festivities.

Newspaper Begins Position Tryouts For Coming Year

Tryouts for editor-in-chief, managing editor, business manager, and staff positions for the 1952-53 newspaper year began with today's issue of the Rotunda. Janet Wiggins, present news editor of the paper, is acting as editor-in-chief, with Jean Jinnett, present feature editor, as managing editor.

Acting as news editor for this week's issue of the Rotunda is freshman Shirley Ward. Phoebe Warner and Else Wente are heading the feature and sports departments respectively. The position of social editor is being filled by Libby McClung, while Bunny Gibson is acting as exchange editor. Betty Collier is filling the newly formed position of desk editor. Mary Ann King is art editor for this issue.

Ann Gray is author of this week's news column; Barbara Caskey, of the humor column; and Carolyn Stanley of Campus Cogitations. Ann Thomas wrote an original column. In the business departments, Carolyn Leffel is serving as manager, Peggy Ilyus head of advertising, and Lucy Thwing is in charge of circulation. Joyce Pomeroy acted as copy editor.

Tryouts will continue in the next issue of the Rotunda and members of the staff who have signed up with the editors will tryout for any position they desire. Each person trying out for a new position will assume the regular duties of that position for one week.

Assembly Speaker To Review Books

Mrs. Fred Dixon, wife of the principal of John Marshall high School in Richmond, will speak to the student body in the regular assembly Tuesday, February 26. Mrs. Dixon will review three books.

The Reverend Hugh M. Burleigh from Lynchburg spoke to the students yesterday. He has been leading discussions and has been giving lectures here, expanding the topic "One Life to Live, One Life to Give."

In connection with Religious Emphasis Week, he will give a final address in Jarman Hall at 8 p. m. tonight.

Miss McCraw Will Present Piano Recital

Miss Helen McCraw, concert pianist, from Gaithersburg, Maryland, will present a recital Sunday afternoon, February 17, at 3:30 p. m. in Jarman Hall for the entire student body and community.

Her program will include selections from Bach, Haydn, Debussey, Beethoven, and others.

Recipient of the Naumburg Music Award in a nation-wide contest, she has played extensively in this country and abroad, in concerts, as soloist with orchestras, and with other artists in chamber music.

Miss McCraw studied under the eminent Russian pianist, Alexander Sklarevski, at the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore where she was awarded its Artists' Diploma, and thereafter continued her studies in Paris. She was given the honor of opening the first annual Festival of American Music held at the National Gallery in Washington in 1944. The success of the program led to her re-engagement to open the second Festival in 1945.

For the past five years Miss McGraw has given recitals for Longwood but has had to perform either in private homes or small studios, thus enabling only piano students to hear her.

Srs. Name Valentine As Birthday Theme

Valentines will be the theme of the monthly birthday dinner to be held tomorrow night. The senior class, headed by Peggy Harris, is in charge of the banquet commemorating Saint Valentine.

A program to be presented between courses has been planned by Jean Ridenour, program chairman. Bunny Ricks is in charge of decorating the dining room along the "hearts and cupid" theme. Cindy Mims headed the committee which prepared the menu for the dinner. She has announced the following menu for the dinner.

Grapefruit
Ham Steak
Fruit Cocktail Salad
Mashed potatoes — Gravy
Green peas — Pickled beets

Students Elect Beauties To Serve on May Court

College beauty, Frances Turner, will be crowned Queen of May at the 1952 Longwood May Festivities this spring, with her lovely Maid of Honor Jean Ridenour at her side, and flanked by a bevy of class beauties. The queen, maid of honor and court were chosen by the student body at elections held last Thursday.

"Turner" is a senior from Cheriton, majoring in elementary education. She has represented her class for the past three years on May Court and on the Circus Court during her sophomore year. The Cotillion club, Eastern Shore club, Association of Childhood Education and Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority claim Frances as a member.

Maid of Honor Jean Ridenour, secondary major from Richmond, has also represented her class on May Court for the past three years. Active in class activities, she is serving this year as president of Alpha Kappa Gamma and vice-president of the senior class. Jean is a member of Who's Who, Cotillion club, A. A. Council, H20 club, Monogram club, and Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

Court Members

The three members of the 1952 May Court who were elected from the senior class are Bunnie Ricks, of Waynesboro; Pat Tuggle, Wytheville; and Martha Alice Wilson, Farmville.

Elected to represent the junior class this year were Betty Abbitt, of Madison Heights; Kitty Hamlet, South Hill; Anne Murphy, Danville; Margaret Steele, Roanoke; and Margaret Taylor, Suffolk.

Mary Ann Breslin from Roanoke; Elizabeth Crockett, Richmond; Ann Foster, Farmville; Sylvia Reames, Petersburg; and Faith Smith, Suffolk, were the beauties elected from the sophomore class.

Freshman lovelies Barbara Assaid of Roanoke; Frances Motley, Sharps; June Page, Richmond, were also elected by the student body to reign in the May Court.

Dance Group Will Present 'Dedication'

Drama, Dance, Music Combine

"Dedication," an extended group work combining dance, poetry and music through the combined efforts of Orchesis, modern dance club, the Longwood College Choir, and the Longwood Players, will be staged at Jarman Hall, February 15 at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education, will direct the entire program, which is divided into two sections, "19th Century Tidewater Virginia," a dance episode from the pageant, "History Sings," and "Dedication," the major work, which has been two years in the making as students have watched the construction of the three new buildings on campus and have formally witnessed their dedication. With the thread of thought that buildings can neither be danced or sung, but that the individuals within them may, 'Dedication" unfolds.

Selected Poetry

The poetry of Whitman, Sandburg, Nash and Aiken form the substance of thematic materials for all the movements, for the dramatic intent, action, or portent.

Betsy Hankins, junior from Richmond, as the narrator, will guide, goad and lead the representative students who, weave in and out throughout the whole work. Margaret Taylor will be the Senior Figure; Elizabeth Burton, the Junior Figure; Anne Murphy, Sophomore Figure and Challice Haydon, the Freshman Figure.

The Alumnae group of Seniors (as a body) weave imperceptibly among the student figures in the first and second passages. Seniors of the Dance club who make up this group are Marian Beckner, Peggy Harris, Dolores Hoback, Ann Moody, Erma Poarch, Conway Rice, Pat Tuggle and Nancy Walker. Members and apprentices of Orchesis as the "Years of the Modern Group" augment the whole in the first passage where dance is exposed in its true meaning as the matarix of all the arts. Nancy Tanley, central figure of this group, is aided by Joyce Booth, Ann Boswell, Elizabeth Boswell, Mary Elizabeth Crockett, Betty Lou Garrett, Hilda Ann Harris, Lou Jamison, Mary Hurt Peery and Jacqueline Sell.

The second passage of the pageant is slated to create a visual, verbal and sensory image of student life waiting for the doors to open as Graduates in the background emerge with the contemporary students. "My malady is a common cold," opens the Science section in which the four

Dean Announces New Cut System

Students are no longer required to obtain their instructor's initials on their absence slips according to a recent announcement made by Dean William Savage.

The change in method of handling absences has been simplified and students now merely fill out slips as before—being sure that the last name of the instructor is shown on the slip for each class missed—and submit them to the Registrar's office.

Dean Savage also announced that beginning March 1 the policy towards dropping a course will change. After this date the student dropping a course will automatically receive an F on that particular course for the semester.

NOTICE

Dr. C. L. S. Earley requests that all persons who wish to try out for the Longwood Player's next production, "Light Up the Sky", come to his office on Friday, February 15 at 4 p. m.; on Monday, February 18 at 4 p. m.; or on Tuesday, February 19 at 7:30 p. m. There are scripts available in the college library.

Time Saver

The Student Standards Organization—an organization which serves as a link between the faculty, administration, and student body—has done a highly commendable job this year in its effort to bring about many corrections and improvements for the benefit of Longwood students.

One of the first projects of Student Standards was the limitation of the number of offices held by the individual students by the installation of a point system. According to the point system, a student is not supposed to act as head of more than one organization. In cases where the presidency of more than one group was held by the same student, Student Standards requested that the student drop his presidential duties in all but one organization.

Next the Student Standards set to work on the improvement of the system of making announcements—a temporary bulletin board, which will soon be replaced by a permanent one, was set up outside the dining hall so that announcements could be posted there. This bulletin board serve a double purpose. It makes it easier for town students to inform themselves of the various meetings scheduled for the day, and it alleviates the reading of many announcements in the dining hall.

Besides this bulletin board for announcements concerning the meetings of organizations, Student Standards has set up new bulletin boards for special notices. Two bulletin boards have been placed in Cunningham Hall to be used for those announcements referring to juniors and seniors only. Freshmen have a new bulletin board in their dormitory where phone calls and special messages may be posted. The board directly opposite Dean Savage's office has been sectioned off so that notices about rides, sale of books, and other miscellaneous announcements may be posted there.

In order for this new system to work, the co-operation of each student is required. Student Standards requests that no notices be made in the dining hall at all without special permissions and that no announcements involving long lists of names be read. Students are also requested 1) to place miscellaneous notices on the board opposite the Dean's office under the proper heading, 2) to print these notices on cards, and 3) to have them as neat in appearance as possible.

Student Standards is now in the process of working on many new projects for general improvement. Plans are being made to install badly-needed lights in the area behind Jarman Hall. A new arrangement for assigning seats in the dining hall, which will benefit freshmen in finding places to sit will be put into effect next year. And new standards for election are being drawn up.

Student Standards has in the past brought about many improvements; it gives great evidence of continuing to do so. For the projects which it has completed, for the efficient system which it has instigated, and for the improvements which it intends to make, Student Standards deserves much praise.

It's About Time!

Shouts of "Hallelujah" and "It's about time!" could be heard in the halls last Thursday, as Longwood students read Dean Savage's announcement concerning the change in the method of handling class absence slips.

In confabs following their happy discovery the majority of the students agreed that the change was a most desirable one. No more will busy "class-missers" have to wear themselves ragged chasng down an elusive faculty member's signature in order to meet the four o'clock deadline. No longer will they have to tie strings around their fingers to remind them to ask Professor So-and-So to sign the little white slip. At last the student body can act and feel like the adults they are. They are being trusted to make their own decisions concerning the worthwhileness of their excuses for missing classes. It is up to them to decide how they can use their time most profitably.

Members of the student body are not the only ones who will benefit from the newly instigated absence slip system. Most of the faculty members felt that the old procedure calling for their initials everytime a student missed their classes was both inconvenient and unnecessary. Therefore the professors and instructors also welcomed the change announced by Dean Savage. No longer will the calling of the roll be a drawn-out process hampered by many pauses to ask for absence slips. In fact, many faculty members will now be able to take attendance for the entire week at one time and thus cut out some of their roll callings.

From both sides of the picture the new system is a great improvement. Therefore we say "Thank you, administration," for a needed and welcomed change for the better.

What Time Is It?

In a recent radio broadcast, a story was told of a scientist who believed that the earth's system of regulating time was degenerating into total inadequacy—that it had not progressed parellel with the advancement and accellerated pace of the earth itself, its inhabitants, and their activities. In other words, the concept of time is breaking down.

To bring this idea closer to home (while Longwood students are in agreement that this theory is rather radical, perhaps even fantastic) there seems to be shared opinion that the college's system of regulating time is in need of improvement.

With the aid of radio time and the clocks located in Ruffner Hall, the home office, the library, and the science building, it stands to reason that there should be little difficulty in getting to classes and meetings on time. How true this would be, IF only these clocks would be in at least general agreement as to the approximate time of day. However, few will argue the point that it is indeed disheartening to one who leaves his dormitory room for a class at 7:55 (radio time), notices on her way the clock in the home office, and thus is reassured that she has seven minutes before class time, then walks right around the corner to her class only to learn that she has arrived ten minutes late for class, since her professor goes by the big clock in Ruffner Hall.

This situation, which must annoy the professor whose lecture is interrupted equally as much as it does the student who receives an unexcused absence after being "tardy" three times, could be remedied easily, if only those responsible would take the trouble to see that it is done.

In a school where there are so many activities that there never seems to be sufficient time to get everything done, punctuality becomes increasingly important. Wouldn't it help if this desirable attribute were made possible by synchronizing Longwood's many clocks? Or is time really breaking down at Longwood College?

Miss Take

by Barbara Caskey

Now, as in the future, this column will attempt to interview the most talked about people on the campus. This week we are fortunate to have with us several important personages, who will talk to us honestly, frankly, and intimately about themselves, their lives and their futures—Genevieve Take

First, Mr. Once I Was A. Chicken (translated from the original Henish, omitting, of course, the fowl phrases).

Q. Mr. Chicken, can you honestly say that you are not stewed, but fried?

A. Well, Genieve, that is a boiling question that cannot be hashed over easily. To be perfectly diced, I often become stewed when I have had it too much, too often and too long, but for the most part, I do try to hang on to my own skin.

Q. Privately, who are your closest acquaintances?

A. Well, I think I am most compatible with White Stew — you know, he graduated from "Rice." Then, of course I rather enjoy the company of all of the Bean family from Peru, South America. Maybe you are acquainted with their oldest, Lima Bean.

Q. Have you anything you wish to say to our reading public?

A. Just tell them the little poem I baked up while awaiting my turn tonight.

"As we all are here in Longwood land
I wish to tell you man to man
An unplucked chickie in the hand
Is worth 12 thousand in this pan."

Our second guest was Joan of Arc (translated).

Q. Tell us, are you any relation of Noah's?

A. Yes, he is my mother.

Q. May we ask you why have you decided to break your long sitting silence?

A. (Giggle) Well, let's just say it's "that" time of year.

Q. One more question, is there anything you wish to say to our readers?

A. Well, yes, Miss Take, there is. I would like to say just one thing to the crowd that mills about me on Saturday and Sunday nights. "Please don't lean on me, I'm plastered, too."

Campus Cogitations

by Carolyn Stanley

It will not be too long before the Rotunda will be operating under new management. Your reporter has inquired around this past week to find some helpful hints from various people on, "How do you think the Rotunda could be improved?"

Donnie Devine: There should be at least one article on world news and current events.

Ann Crowder: Show more interest in the paper concerning the sports activities in the school.

Grace Booker: More cartoons and pictures—please.

Nell Cake: How about a joke column or a little more humor?

Ginny McLean: The greatest improvement would be to have more student interest and contribution because there are too few people that have to do all the work.

Helen Tanner: There should be a column summarizing the most important events of the week in world and national news.

Betty Bentley: A "letter to the editor" section would provide a place for suggestions by the students all the time." (Editor's note: There is always room for letters, but we can't print what we don't get.)

Carolyn Traynham: There ought to be more of the students' drawings and illustrations in it.

Dot Boswick: If the Rotunda wishes to gain financial support from campus organizations it should in turn support those organizations by publishing activities and events taking place in interest of the students.

Billie Miller: Encourage the students to make contributions to their college newspaper so that they will feel that they are a part of it.

Dot Vaden: We need more photographs and pictures in the Rotunda.

Liz Hoskins: I'd love to see a joke section!

Joanne Steck: How 'bout a strip of Pogo?

Any other suggestions of any nature that you have to offer to the Rotunda staff will be greatly appreciated as we want you, the student body, to be satisfied.

CULTURE CRITIQUE

by Ann Thomas

Dame Ninette de Valois, England's first lady of the ballet, will direct what is proclaimed the finest ballet theatre of the world today at the Mosque in Richmond next week. The Sadler's Wells is young—five years old to be exact—and youth is its formost quality. Possessing perfection in every technical aspect, corps de ballet, orchestra, setting, and leading stars, perhaps the outstanding impression of the Sadler's Wells is its accent on the freshness, exuberance, and charm of youth.

Elaine Fifield, the Australian-born ballerina, is only eighteen years old, but she dances delightfully the part of Swanilda in the three-act ballet "Coppelia" which will be presented next Saturday. "Coppelia" is a new arrangement of an old ballet, a story of a young girl who masquerades as a doll to vie for the love of the boyish, gay, Franz.

Now for those who would rather have the "arts" for less than $3.75, there's a little of this and that.

On Sunday the 17th, students will have an opportunity to hear something a little more dignified, but nevertheless delightful. Helen McCraw, a gifted pianist who decided to put marriage before a full-fledged career—a trait which we all admire—will present a concert in Jarman Hall at 3 p. m. Miss McCraw has been especially praised for her brilliance in modern American music and the ability to "make her listeners enjoy something the first time they hear it."

Do you feel that every time you enter the Library someone is staring at you—perhaps it is the leading actor of the French stage or his feminine counterpart. Dr. C. L. S. Earley has loaned the library his collection of portraits of the first actors and actresses of the French theater today. Therese Le Prat has made an art and a career of photographing these people, not just for black and white prints but to capture the emotion and depth of their very lives.

Around the world, all nations have been saddened by the death of the King of England, but they are gladdened by the charm and dignity of the new Queen. For a delightfully personal glimpse of Elizabeth and her sister read the biography "The Little Princesses" by their childhood governess, Marion Crawford. You'll like it because it shows how Elizabeth grew up to face realistic living in a realm of royalty.

If, however, you are one who never darkens the library door or has a date on Sunday afternoon, you can always listen to the radio for outstanding entertainment—"The Big Show" at 6:30 p. m. Sunday is Tallulah Bankhead at her international best.

Students Take Preliminary To Red Cross Water Course

Fourteen students are taking the preliminary to the Red Cross Water Safety Instructors Course which will be given during the week of March 17-21, according to Eleanor Weddle, student instructor.

These girls will be instructed by Howard Camp, Red Cross field representative for this area of Virginia. He will be at Longwood for three hours each night during the week of March 17. After satisfactorily completing this course, the girls will be issued an instructor's certificate which will entitle them to teach swimming.

Those who are taking the preliminary course are Elsie Baker, Ann Crowder, Frances Stringfellow, Johnnie Cline, Gene Moore, Illene Russell, Elizabeth Boswell, Lois Crutchfield, Paula Dovel, Cleo Holladay, Juanita Hudson, Sue Oliver, Mildred Parker, and Sue Webb.

Faculty Members, LC Administrators To Visit Schools

Trips To Instruct Senior Students

Several members of the Longwood faculty and administration will visit Virginia high schools in the near future to interest the seniors in attending Longwood next year.

During this week Mrs. M. A. Watkins, executive secretary of the college, will make a three-day trip to Handley High School in Winchester and James Wood High School in Frederick County.

Dr. R. T. Brumfield, associate professor of Biology, will attend "College Day" at Stuart High School in Patrick County on February 13. That night he will be at Martinsville High School for "College Night." The following day he will attend Henry County "College Day."

Dean Savage will attend "College Day" in Mecklenburg County on February 14 and will be in Danville on the following day at George Washington High School.

These visits are to enlighten seniors in Virginia high schools on the courses offered at Longwood and on the college life

Longwood, College of W&M Struggle to 45-45 Tie In Varsity Basketball Game

Longwood To Hold Meet With W & M

A swimming meet between Longwood and William and Mary will be held in the Longwood swimming pool on Saturday afternoon, March 22. Two members from each team will participate in each event.

The events in which the teams will participate are 20-yard free style, 40-yard free style, 75-yard free style, 40-yard back stroke, 40-yard breast stroke, 75-yard medley relay, and 200-yard free style.

All are urged to come to the swimming practices held on Monday afternoon at 5 p. m. and on Thursday at 1 p.m. More practices will be scheduled later, according to Jean Ridenour swimming manager.

There will also be some diving events included in the meet, and anyone interested in participating in these is asked to see Nancy Walker.

The women's varsity basketball teams of Longwood and William and Mary fought to a 45-45 tie last Saturday night in the Longwood gymnasium. Some expert playing was presented by both sides, but neither team was able to keep the lead long enough to edge out its opponent.

At the half William and Mary had a 26-20 lead, but Longwood rallied in the second half and managed to gain a four-point lead late in the fourth quarter. Notwithstanding the excellent playing by the Longwood team, William and Mary sank four more points into the basket before the whistle blew, tying the game, 45-45.

Led by their newly chosen captain, Clara Borum, the others who played in the game were Nell Bradshaw, Betty Tyler, Lucy Mann, Patsy Sanford, Rachael Peters, Marian Beckner, Eleanor Koch, Jean Ridenour, and Roberta Wiatt.

Miss Frances Ramser was referee for the game, and Miss Jean Beamer was umpire.

The team will play its second

Wanta Join the Upper Set? Easy Course In Etiquette

by Phoebe Warner

Do you give the appearance of being smooth, polished, and refined, or do people remark to you, "You ain't got no couth!"

Well, if they do, don't worry about it because with a few lessons you can become a second Emily Post. Begin with these multiple choice questions and you may see how you rate in the world of society.

1. If you get bored in history class should you:
   (a) Take a cot to class with you and sleep.
   (b) Suggest to the professor a more interesting subject to lecture on.
   (c) Take up knitting in class for a pastime.
2. If a boy offers to pin you should you:
   (a) Ask him if it will hurt.
   (b) Tell him none of your bottons are missing.
   (c) Ask him if he can spare it.
3. If you're offered a piece of assorted candy should you:
   (a) Take one of every kind.
   (b) Pinch every piece till you find the one you want.
   (c) Tell them they don't have the flavor you want.
4. In the dining room if water is in your chair and you sit in it, should you:
   (a) Offer the waitress a pair of glasses.
   (b) Run around the table until you're dry.
   (c) Remark, "Oh, that's alright, my skin needed washing anyway."
5. If the same person keeps bumming your cigarettes should you:
   (a) Put a fire cracker in the next one.
   (b) Start rolling your own.
   (c) Give out an I. O. U. with every cigarette.

Well, how'd you do? If you chose any of the answers as correct, you are on the way to becoming one of those in the upper-set, you just can't fall.

students seated around a table lead a projected discourse on research and researchers as germs seemingly squirm, wriggle and swarm all over the stage.

Kinetic Energy

"Kinetic Energy", with Barbara Blackman and Nancy Tanley as the leading characters, will portray reckless merriment in pure dance form. Aiding Blackman and Tanley will be Joyce Booth, Elizabeth Crockett, Betty Lou Garrett, Kitty Hamlet, Moneda Key, and Marian Parrish. The Phoenix, a solo dance by Margie Hood, will be punctuated by the Narrator perched atop a dunce's stool as the Junior Figure sits deep in the study of eugenics.

With the strains of the Alma Mater, the third passage begins and those about to graduate enter on a stage dominated by the narrator. "Dedication," the final number for which the whole work is named, features the College Choir and the Jarman Organ.

Cleo Holladay will open as narrator in the "Tidewater Virginia" episode. Barbara Blackman will be cast as the dancing master in this episode in which she will lead the young ladies and gentlemen in a dancing lesson.

Leadership Group Taps Five Longwood Students As Fraternity Members

Two Seniors, Three Juniors Recognized

Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, tapped five girls for membership at a recent assembly program.

Those recognized for their leadership and service to Longwood College were Polly Brothers, Nell Dalton, Nancy Garbee, Winnie Murdock, and Roberta Obenshain.

Marian Beckner and Pat Tuggle, two members of Alpha Kappa Gamma, spoke to the student body about the fraternity and the Alpha Kappa Gamma hymn was sung by Dolly Horne.

Polly Brothers, a junior from Suffolk, is now serving as a representative of her class in the Student Government Association. She also holds the position of Assistant Business Manager of the Virginian. Polly is a member of the Granddaughters' Club, the Cotillion Club, and Kappa Delta Pi. She is president of her sorority, Sigma Sigma this year.

A senior from Red Oaks, Nell Dalton is active in the Y. W. C. A., filling the position this year of Vice-president. Nell is also treasurer of Pi Gamma Mu and the literary editor of the Virginian. The other organizations of which she is a member are Pi Delta Epsilon, Future Teachers of America, the Monogram Club, and the Cotillion Club. Nell belongs to the Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority.

Hailing from Lynchburg is another active senior, Nancy Garbee. Nancy has worked several years on the Colonnade staff and this year she is serving as editor. She is also a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Pi Delta Epsilon, Boerc Eh Thorne, Future Teachers of America, and the Spanish Club. She is representing her class on Student Standards and is vice-president of Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority. This fall, Nancy had the honor of being elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Winnie Murdock, a senior from Roanoke, has always been an active member of her class. Winnie is president of the Commercial Club and chairman of the Service Committee of the Y. W. C. A. She is a member of the Wesley Foundation Council, the Southwest Virginia Club, and the Dramatic Club. The finances of the forthcoming May Day will be handled by Winnie who will serve as Business Manager.

The city of Roanoke can boast having another of its citizens, Roberta Obenshain in Alpha Kappa Gamma. "Bobbie", a member of the junior class, is now serving as treasurer of the Student Government Association. She also serves on the House Council and is a member of the Cotillion Club, the Southwest Virginia Club, and Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority of which she is treasurer.

Five SGA Members Attend Conference

Five members of the Longwood Student Government Association journeyed to Chapel Hill, North Carolina, Saturday, March 1, to attend the Reginal Conference of the National Student Government Association held at the University of North Carolina.

Bobbie Obenshain, Nancy Driskill, Polly Brothers, Eleanor Koch, and Lucy Page Hall, along with Dr. George Jeffers, sponsor of the local council, drove to Chapel

Registrar Names 81 L. C. Students On Fall Dean's List

Five Scholars Attain Straight 'A' Average

Eighty-one students attained the necessary average for Dean's List for the first semester of the current college year, according to Miss Virginia Bugg, College Registrar.

Through the Dean's List, the College recognizes students for superior scholarship, the required average being 2.25 or B-plus.

Five Longwood students obtained a straight A record for the 1951 fall semester.

Those girls who achieved this superior record are Mildred Blessing of Tazewell, Betty Scott Borkey of Bolling Green, and Fay Sharon Greenland of Norfolk.

Virginia Hilda Manvell of Vienna, and Mary Patricia Tuggle of Wytheville also obtained a straight A record.

Dean's List students for this semester are Barbara Allen, Patricia Altwegg, Barbara Asslad, Flora Ballowe, Betty Barnes, Lu Beavers, Marian Beckner, Betty Bentley, and Celeste Bishop.

Others recognized were Dorothy Boswick, Vera Bryant, Elizabeth Collier, Sarah Conley, Barbara Cotton, Christine Davis, Billie Dunlap, Lauralee Fritts, Elizabeth Gillikin, and Norma Gladding.

Bonnie Gerrells Goard, Sarah Graham, Dorothy Gregory, Elizabeth Louise Harman, Peggy Harris, Sarah Harvie, Dolores Hoback, Elizabeth Hoskins, Juanita Hudson, John Huegel, Maria Jackson, and Lou Jamison also obtained the necessary average for Dean's List.

The list also includes Beverley Ann Johnson, Anne Lawrence, Carolyn Leffel, Virginia McLean, Patricia McLemore, Eloise Macon, Lucy Mann, Pollyana Martin,

Jinnett Edits Paper During Tryout Issue

During the second week of tryouts for positions on the Rotunda, Jean Jinnett, present feature editor, is acting as editor-in-chief, and Janet Wiggins, present news editor, as managing editor.

Phoebe Warner and Shirley Warder, both freshmen reporters, are filling the posts of news and feature editors respectively. Social editor for this week is sophomore reporter Ann Thomas, with Mason Moore acting as sports editor. Mary Jean Sandvig is art editor for this issue.

Ann Gray is author of today's news column, and Joyce Pomeroy is acting as copy editor. Lucy Thwing and Wilma Salmon are assuming the positions of circulation manager and advertising manager respectively. Naomi Reed wrote this week's Campus Cogitations.

This is the final tryout issue for editor-in-chief, managing editor, and business manager; however tryouts for staff positions will continue through at least one more issue of the Rotunda.

Drama Head Names Cast For Hart's 'Light Up Sky'

Thespians to Give Annual Spring Play On March 29, 31

Tryouts have been completed and the cast chosen for Moss Hart's drama, "Light Up the Sky" the Longwood Players' spring production to be given March 29 and 31, according to Dr. C. L. S. Early, director of the group.

The play, which ran for 216 performances on Broadway in 1948 and 1949 is a sophisticated comedy about theater people who are staging a Boston tryout of an idealistic young writer's first literary attempt. When the play is panned by the first night audience, a naive young man finds himself among a pack of wolves, each of whom is trying to shed the blame for the show's failure.

The role of Carleton Fitzgerald, the stage director, will be played by Edwin Stanfield, junior from Hampden-Sydney.

Cleo Holladay, a sophomore from Suffolk, will play Irene Livingston, the actress. Both Cleo and Ed will be remembered for their first-rate acting in the fall play, "Ladies In Retirement."

The part of Frances Black will be played by Betsey Hankins, junior from Richmond, with Ellen Porter, sophomore from Portsmouth, taking the part of Stella Livingston, the actress' mother.

Joyce Karlet, sophomore from Roanoke, will play the part of the secretary. Other members of the Longwood Players who have parts in the show are Madison McClintic as Peter Sloan, author of the play; Tom Moore as Sidney Black, the producer; and Harold Hutter as the masseur.

This show is being presented by the joint efforts of the Longwood Players and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs. Members of the Jongleurs who are participating in the play are J. Wilson Kolimer as Owen Turner, a playwright; and Peter Cheek as Tyler Rayburn, Irene's husband.

Ann Parsons and Ann Carter Wendenburg have been appointed stage managers for the production.

Head of Department Signs New Contract For Book Publication

Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr., head of the English department at Longwood College, has recently signed a contract for the publication of a book "Italian Scholarship in Renaissance England."

The book will contain a study of the development, scope, and significance of Italian language study in England with particular reference to the influence of linguistic scholarship on Elizethan literature. It is scheduled for spring publication as volume three of the University of North Carolina Studies in Comparative Literature.

NOTICE

There will be a student body meeting tonight at seven o'clock in Jarman Auditorium. The purpose of the meeting is to elect a chairman for the coming election of Major officers, and to vote on a proposal that is being made by Student Standards. (see editorial).

Freshman Class Will Present Fantasy 'Over the Rainbow' As Annual Production Mar. 14

Play's First Scene Set in Dorm Room

"Over the Rainbow", a fantasy in two acts, will be presented by the Freshman Class on March 14 in Jarman Hall.

The production will open with a scene set in a dormitory room. Freshmen are frantically trying to think of a theme for production. These girls are portrayed by Beth Kent, Betty Crump, Hazel Hart, and Nancy Nelson. As these girls fall asleep after much effort, the lights fade, and the setting is in fairyland, where Cinderella, played by Betty Jane Staples, sings " A Dream is a Wish Your Heart Makes". In this scene are Phyllis Isaacs, Frances Speegle, Mary Ann Ward, Lucy Thwing, Wilma Salmon and Eloise Macon.

Thumper and Flower

Next there appears a love scene between the famous Walt Disney characters Thumper, played by Florence Blake, and Flower, played by Dawn Eastridge. Also in this scene are Dot Douglas, Lib Forrest, Barbara Hough, Barbara Moore, Nancy Ingrams, Claire Davis, and Betty Persinger. Other participants are Joyce Walton, Virginia Phelps, Lewana Rutland, Phyllis Powell, Daniese Johnson, Lou Siebel, Betty Sue Ruckman, and Jane Harper. These girls will appear as birds and animals centering around Tom Moore, who will play Uncle Remus.

Moving now into Alice's famous Wonderland, the spotlight will focus upon Nancy Jane Jones, the little white rabbit, who will sing and dance to the song "I'm Late." Alice will be portrayed by Jean Carol Parker and the cheshire cat by Nancy Brown. Others participating in this scene will be Shirley Ward, Jeanne Lynch Hobbs, Bobby Allen, Carolyn Stanley, Joan Curles, Jane Bailey, Patti Poffenberger, Jo Ann Dyer, Nancy Norfleet, Judy Cable, Carolyn Giles, Bessie McCarthy, and Nell Cake.

Snow White

Act two will open with the seven dwarves dancing around Snow White, played by Katherine Glass. The seven dwarves will be Margie Smallwood, Dot Vaden, Christine Carr, Lynette Talley, Mary Campbell, Betty Jane West, and Barbara Southern. Herb Goodwin as Prince Charming and Donnie Devine as the witch.

With the entrance of Jiminy Cricket represented by Mary Cowles and the goldfish by Mary Hundley, Pinnochio, played by Carolyn Vanture, weaves itself into the Wizard of Oz. Dot Baldwin is acting as the Wizard Trianne Lampkin as Dorothy, Peggy Worthington as the scarecrow, Phoebe Warner as the tiger, and Elizabeth Cheatham as the tinman.

Arabian Nights

In the scene from the Arabian Nights, Bob Hawkins will play the Shiek, and Nancy Tanley, Ann Carter Wendenburg, Shirley Lewis, Anne Parsons, and Jo Burley will be the dancers.

The script for the production was written by Dorothy Douglas and Martha Donaldson, assisted by Phoebe Warner and Shirley Ward. Barbara Asslad is chairman of the production.

Miss MacGregor Performs In College Lyceum Series

On Monday night, March 3, in the Jarman Auditorium, the Farmville Artist's Series presented a concert featuring Evelyn MacGregor, contralto soloist.

Miss MacGregor, a native of Pittsburg, Massachusetts, is widely recognized both as a concert singer and an operatic figure.

The featured artist began her recital with "Lesperto Noccheiro" from "Astorto," "My Heart Ever Faithful," and "Worship of God in Nature."

The second portion of the recital included "Das Fishermadchen," "An die Musik," "Les Papillons," "Le Moulin" and "Divinites du Styx" from "Alceste."

Next in her group of selections were three tunes from "London Fantasies," "Flower Sellers," "Gog and Maygog," and "The Mcnkey House," followed by the "Tuscon Peasant Song," and "Petite Valse."

Further selections rendered were "All Thru the Night," "Go Where Glory Waits Thee," "O, I See Great Anes," and "My Laddie."

Miss MacGregor concluded her concert with "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," "Moonbeams" from "The Red Mill" "O, Dry Those Tears," and "Two Hearts in Waltz Time."

Miss MacGregor's singing was accompanied by Alfred Patter.

Miss Evelyn MacGregor, contralto soloist, who appeared in a concert in Jarman auditorium on Monday night, March 5.

Prof. Gives Committee Additions

Several additions have been made to the May Day committees, according to Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education.

Eleanor Weddle has been appointed to work with Marian Beckner as general chairman of the Scandinavian Festival. Marian will assume responsibility for all court dances and figures, which will include the Oxen Dance, a mock fight by the court's escorts who will be students chosen by the members of May Court; To Ting, a flirtatious Danish waltz danced by the court; and the traditional May Court procession.

Eleanor Weddle will assume responsibility for co-ordinating the folk dances and songs of the freshman groups as they appear throughout the festival. She will also be responsible for the planting, moving, and dancing around a typical Scandinavian May pole in which the entire assemblage takes part.

Margie Hood, as dance chairman, will be assisted by Neil Bradshaw, Ann Crowder, Anne Murphy, Jean Ridenour, and Nancy Tanley. Definite assignments as to their specific duties will be made to these girls as soon as tryouts for dance leads are completed.

Additions to the costume committee, headed by Isabelle Karnes and Joan Pershing, will be made as soon as all costume plans are completed. With the color scheme dominated by two Scandinavian colors, blue and yellow, the court will be gowned in blue, and all other costumes must radiate, bend, or enhance. All costumes will be currently in fashion.

Additions to the other committees will be made sometime in early April.

Orchesis to Dance At 1952 Arts Forum

Orchesis will perform at the 1952 Arts Forum, which will be held at Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, on March 13, 14, and 15.

Ten members of the club, with Betty Goodson as piano accompanist, will present "Set Ope the Doors", the all architecture suite, at the student choreography program on Friday, March 14.

Two classes, one in technique and one in choreography, will be open to those registered for dance. These will be conducted by Miss Jean Erdman, noted dancer and teacher, on Friday and Saturday mornings.

The other events of the forum will include drama, music, and writing. In the drama field there will be the production of one-act plays written by undergraduates of invited colleges; in music, a

Drama, Speach Dept. To Present Program

On Tuesday, March 18, the speech and drama departments under the direction of Dr. C. L. S. Early, will present a program entitled "Words and Music" during the regular assembly program.

The program will feature a choral speaking recital of poetry by members of Dr. Early's speech classes and English class.

Selections to be given include "Sea Fever" by John Masefield, the "Picture That Is Turned Toward the Wall", by Charles Graham and "Gone", by Carl Sandburg. "Heaven Will Protect the Working Girl", by Edgar Smith and "The Congo", by Vachel Lindsay will also be recited. A choral arrangement of "Begin the Beguine" and selections from "Spoon River Anthology", will round out the program.

Think Seriously

A question of importance has been placed before the students of Longwood, one which will affect them in various ways. A wise decision should be made.

The Students Standards Committee has proposed that in order that those people who wish to sleep, study, or have quiet maintained for any reason may have this quiet period from 8 p. m. on each Monday through Friday night without the distractions of a 10 p. m. bell or meetings scheduled at 10 p. m.

The suggested system seems to present many advantages for the students of Longwood. If such a quiet period were effected, any student who was unable to complete studies or teaching plans in the two hours now granted would not have to stop her work for a noise-filled hour, only to try (perhaps vainly) to pick it up an hour later. Some few, lucky enough to finish work early, and others who need rest because of illness or late hours the night before, would be able to go to sleep early if a quiet hour were introduced. Often the period from 10 to 11 p. m. takes away a much-needed hour of rest because of noise.

Another advantage of the system proposed would stem from the rescheduling of 10 p. m. meetings. If, for a change, a hall does remain quiet after study hour, the homework is usually interrupted by a required meeting.

It should be remembered that serenades, special practices, and visiting between buildings could be carried on as usual. The system would affect parties on the hall only in that they should be held a little more quietly, or that they might be held in the rec' halls and Snack Bar rather than in rooms.

The proposed plan may contain disadvantages for some students, in that afternoon meetings may increase in number due to rescheduling. Still the number of meetings per week would remain unchanged.

A few may feel that a quiet hour would place new resrictions upon them. This would depend entirely upon how the system is viewed, since parties and visiting could be continued, but in a more quiet way.

Students will be asked to vote upon the proposal tonight in a student body meeting. Such a change would affect the lives of Longwood students in many important ways. It should be considered wisely.

Give Freely

On a college campus where there seems always to be some group, organization, or drive pleading frantically for financial aid, it is quite understandable that the students often develop an antagonistic, or at least a passive attitude toward the causes for which they are continually being asked to donate their badly needed money. It seems indeed unfortunate that there is so great a number of financial drives that their philanthropic nature is often obscured when viewed through the eyes of students who are necessarily mercenary.

During the Red Cross drive that is being held this week, it will be all too easy for Longwood Students, unless they really give the cause of the drive serious thought, to simply forget to drop a bit of change into one of the many boxes that will be placed in convenient places.

Some few students, however, to whom the Korean (or some other) crisis is particularly, often even tragically, close, may realize that had more people given more freely to previously held Red Cross drives, there would certainly have been fewer deaths of wounded soliders due to lack of good medical aid, and fewer losses in the many national tragedies, such as floods and mass wrecks that have been aided to the fullest possible degree by the Red Cross.

All of these things, when encountered only as big headlines on a newspaper or startling exclamations by a radio news announcer, seem quite distant, almost foreign. However, within the past two years, the activities of Americans in the Far East have come increasingly close to so very many college students, and it is thus their duty, their responsibility to think about the current Red Cross drive and to realize that this is not merely another cry for money—it is the opportunity and the necessity to make available funds for this organization whose sole purpose is to safeguard the welfare of Americans. It is understood that any contribution made carries with it a certain degree of sacrifice on the part of the giver; however, this small sacrifice becomes of little consequence when compared with conditions that might prevail without the aid of the organization that is promoting the drive.

All things considered, it is hoped that Longwood, as well as other college students, will look upon the current Red Cross drive not as merely another sponge to eagerly absorb as much money as possible in as short a time as possible. On the contrary, if given any thought at all, the drive will and should be looked upon as an opportunity to express, in minutely small degree, some bit of gratitude for efforts that are being made to protect and safeguard American people.

In a country tha boast of democratic practices, as well as principles, surely one of the most admirable and essential attributes that a citizen may produce is that of caring for and looking after any fellow citizen whom misfortune has befallen.

Stay Healthy

With an alarming percentage of the student body either sick in the infirmary, at home because of illness, or dragging themselves to class in spite of raw throats and aching heads, it appears that now is an opportunity time to issue some oft repeated but little heeded advice. .

Good health can be a person's most valuable possession. Without it an individual can not be his best self. One's personality, mental allertness, enjoyment of life are all hampered when one is not feeling well. Therefore, students and faculty members alike owe it to themselves and to the people with whom they associate each day to safeguard their physical well being.

Most of us, when we stop to think, realize all this to be true. All of us want to be "hale and hearty," "fit as a fiddle," "sound of mind and limb," and all the other phrases that describe someone who is "the picture of health." Yet it is a general characteristic of college students to go on their merry way staying up late, eating irregularly, refusing to dress properly and warmly in rain and bad weather, eating after each other, and generally inviting sickness and a trip to the infirmary.

Since flu germs are in the air, let's all remember and practice the health rules we've heard all our lives and keep our names off the daily "sick list."

I dreamed that I was floating along on a little cloud, and I saw lots of Longwood girls, al having lots of Longwood girls, all having and there was Charlottesville, and I saw Patti Poffenburger, Betty Jane Staples, Betty Barr, and Bobby Allen attending mid-winters at U. Va. Down at Davidson, Nat Lancaster received a Beta Theta Pi pin from Yancey Robertson.

I whirled along on my dream cloud, and there were the Hampden-Sydney mid-winters, where I saw Lanier Gurly, Nell Copley, Nancy Nelson, Joyce Hunt, Jean Southern, Barbara Southern, Carolyn Traynham, Pat Altwegg, Mattie Thomas, Blanton Ferguson, Betty Benton, Carolyn Giles Ruth van Houtten, and Joyce Hunt. Also attending were Bunny Ricks, Ann Dudley, Louise Lloyd, Frances Speegle, Doris Underwood, "Cookie" Cook, Margie Hood, Pat Lynch, Lucy Jane Perkinson, Betty Abbitt, Ann Murphy, Beth Kent, Joan De Alba, Mary Ann King, Barbara Blackman, Florence Blake, Peggy Ilyus, June Manlove, Margie Davie, Bessie McCarthy, and Martha Dean Tomlinson.

As I leaned over the side of the cloud I saw Pat Tuggle being presented as a princess at the Va. Tech Engineers' Ball.

Back in Richmond, I peered around and saw Peggy Stiff, Betty Jean Tuck, Mary Dabney Lancaster, and Frances Speegle dancing at the S. A. E. Ball at the University.

Later, my little cloud blew over to Blacksburg and there were Joanne Yow, Shirley Livesay, Dot Cassada, and Mary Brame at the Cotillion Club private dance. Attending the Military Ball were Virginia Berry, Diane Murray, Liz Crockett, Jeanne Lynch Hobbs Faith Smith, Betty Ann Johnston, Pat Donnelly, and Elsie Rae Paige.

And the last thing I saw before my little cloud disappeared and those wonderful week-ends over was Isabelle Karnes, Joanne Utley, and Joan Pershing at the Hargrave Military Ball.

Specta-Scopic Views

by Ann Gray

The year of 1952 is election year as we all know. Through all our schoolyears we have been indoctrinated with the value and importance of participating actively in government. This year for the first time in our lives many of us will vote. We will have a chance to put into practice what we've theorized about for so long.

We have been told countless times how lucky we are to have the right to choose our own governing officials and that for this right men have sacrificed their life's blood. Does that last phrase sound familiar? It should, for it has been thrown to the American people in a thousand varied forms by politicians.

Perhaps we who are facing our first election must decide the issues which we will oppose and those which we will support. Although elections are held in November, October is not the time to start forming opinions. Nominations take place this summer, and from then on the "mud-racking" and debunking will have the sky for a limit. We must start no later than now to commence preparing ourselves for one of the most important events in our lives—the casting of our first ballot.

How will we form our opinions? Will we vote as our parents vote? Will we keep up with current congressional and civic events by gullibly listening to paid political broadcasts and movie news? Will we read only our local newspapers which are influenced by local office-seekers?

America is a great nation, but so have other nations been great. Nations only achieve greatness through their people. We the young people who vote for the initial time have the power to make this government of the United States better than we have ever known. This is your year to shine, so make the most of it.

Campus Cogitations

"WHAT DO YOU THINK OF DINING ROOM BEHAVIOR?"

Nancy Gilbert: "I think they could be more dignified when Miss Gleaves isn't present and guests are here."

Virginia Phelps: "I like a good time without rowdiness at meals and not too much formality."

Betty Newsom: "I'd rather not be quoted."

Liz Stone: "I think it's pretty bad."

Pollyanna Martin: "I think ther should be more consideration of waitresses."

Barbara Boyd: "I think meal time should be a time of pleasure but, not carried too far, for it isn't pleasant to have a roll or hamburger sock you on the noodle."

Mary Perrow: "I think there should be more respect when the blessing is being said.'

Betty Jane Puckett and Ann Foster: "I think dining room behavior has improved considerably, since last year."

Lititia Ward: "I think the behavior in the dining room is like that in any other college.

Margaret Perrow: "Lately the food has improved and I think most of the complaints have now ceased."

Ann Thomas: "The dining room seems noisy."

Phyllis Entsminger: "You can not say this is a finishing school by the way we act in the dining room.'

Grace Garnett: "I think it is very good and has improved since last year."

Murdock Announces Heads of Publications

Winnie Murdock, election chairman has released the names of Longwood publication heads for the coming year. Betty Collier will take over as editor-in-chief of the Colonnade; new editor of the Rotunda is Janet Wiggins; and Ann Keith Hundley has been appointed editor-in-chief of the 1953 Virginian.

June Mercer, Celeste Bishop and Pat Altwegg will serve the Colonnade, Rotunda, and Virginian respectively as business managers. Subordinate staff and departmental heads will be announced later by the new editors and business managers.

Betty Collier, who succeeds Nancy Garbee as editor of the Colonnade, is a junior from Richmond. A transfer from Wake Forest College in her sophomore year, Betty has become active in the French Club, where she holds the position of secretary; Richmond Club, Longwood Players, and H2O Club. She acts as editor for her social sorority, Kappa Delta. Betty has been a frequent contributor to both the Colonnade and the Rotunda.

Janet Wiggins, junior from Arlington, who succeeds Mary Jo Smith as editor of the Rotunda, served this year as news editor of the Rotunda and worked as a reporter for the college newspaper during her sophomore year. She also worked on her college newspaper at Western Maryland College, where she studied as a freshman. Janet is a member of Kappa Delti Pi, honorary educational fraternity; Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalism fraternity, and the Association of Childhood Education. She serves as press chairman of Kappa Delta, her social sorority. Orchesis, Longwood dance organization, recently bid Janet to apprenticeship.

A junior from Boydton, Ann Keith Hundley served this year as photographic editor of the Virginian. She is a member of the Association of Childhood Education, the Cotillion Club, and the Canterbury Club. She is a member of the Granddaughter's Club. Ann Keith is treasurer of Alpha Sigma Alpha, her social sorority.

Reappointed to the position of business manager of the Rotunda, Celeste Bishop is a junior from Danville. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Pi Delta Epsilon, Cotillion Club, the French Club, and the Spanish Club. Celeste is treasurer of her social sorority, Kappa Delta.

The new business manager of the Virginian, Pat Altwegg, is a sophomore from Hilton Village. Pat, who replaces Mary Crawford, is a member of the Cotillion Club, the H20 Club, and treasurer of the Granddaughters' Club. Pat, who is a member of Kappa Delta social sorority, served this year as a member of the annual staff.

Men Publish Letter

The first annual newsletter to the "Men of Longwood" has been recently published by the men students of the College. Copies have been sent to all available alumni.

The newsletter is an experiment attempted by the class of 1952 and will be continued if proper interest is shown by the recipients.

Alumnae, Students To Observe 68th LC Founders Day

Annual Celebration To Occur March 29

The Sixty-Eighth Founders Day of Longwood College will be observed March 29, 1952. This annual observance marks the founding of the college in 1884. A program of social and business events has been planned for the many alumnae expected to return to their Alma Mater on that weekend.

Mrs. Ruth Coyner, secretary-treasurer of the Alumnae Association, has issued the program and noted several important and outstanding events.

Registration will begin on Friday evening, March 28, and continue on Saturday morning. At eleven o'clock the Founders Day program will be given in Jarman Hall. For the first time in the school's history, this program will begin with an academic procession of faculty and seniors of the college, attired in cap and gown.

Miss Helen Costan, president of the Longwood Alumnae Association will preside. Dr. Lancaster, president of the college, and Martha Alice Wilson, head of the Student Government, will extend greetings and welcome to the returning alumnae.

A member of the graduating class of 1911, Mrs. Carrie Hunter Williams will be the main speaker of the morning. Two other features of this program will be choral speaking selections by members of the speech and drama departments and a program of organ music by Mr. Clarence R. Warrington.

In the afternoon a luncheon and business meeting will be held in the recreation hall at 4:00.

Pastor Will Address College Student Body In Tuesday Assembly

"Assurance of the Gospel" will be the topic of an address by Rev. J. A. Vache, pastor of the Johns Memorial Episcopal Church, at the regular chapel program March 25 in Jarman Hall.

Mr. Vache came to Farmville in December 1949 and is well-known to most Longwood students. Before coming to Farmvile he was a minister in Greensboro, North Carolina where he worked with college students for 14 years. While there he also worked with the Playlikers.

"Working with young people and dramatics are my hobbies," said Mr. Vache. "I enjoy both very much, although I have been too busy for dramatics here in Farmville."

Mr. Vache is a graduate of the University of Richmond, and also attended the Union Theological Seminary.

Mrs. Fred B. Dixon will give book reviews on April 1 at the regular chapel program.

Holladay, Moore Will Appear In Hart's 'Light Up the Sky' As 'Players' Spring Drama

Cleo Holladay will be seen as a temperamental actress and Tom Moore will play a flamboyant producer in the Longwood Players' production of "Light Up the Sky," which will be presented at Jarman Hall, March 29 and 31, at 8:00. Others starring in the cast are Betsy Hankins as a former skating star who is now the producer's wife, Ellen Porter as the star's caustic mother, and Ed Stanfield as an overly-aesthetic director.

Madison McClintic will be seen as the sensitive young author of the play being tried out; Joyce Kariet will appear as the secretary; and J. Wilson Kolmer will portray a sympathetic older playwright. Others in the play will be Harold Hutter, a senior from Longwood, and Joe Rushbrooke, Bill Norcross and Sam Chilton from Hampden-Sydney.

"Light Up the Sky" is about a group of Broadway stage people in the throes of whipping together a new play during its tryout stages in Boston. Assembled in the living room of a Ritz Carlton suite, they are shown both in a sentimental and in a cynical light for the span of one evening. Before the play has its opening night they are warm and ardent. When they return after the premiere, believing the play to be a failure, they squall and brawl and show their pettiness and selfishness. But they are triumphantly united in the climax, after the "rave" reviews have appeared to convince them that they have a hit on their hands.

Moss Hart, author of "Light Up the Sky", has drawn from his many years experience in the Broadway theatre to write this racy salute to show business. Hart is the celebrated co-author, with George Kaufman, of such well-remembered comedy successes as "You Can't Take It With You," "The Man Who Came To Dinner," and "George Washington Slept Here."

Dr. C. L. S. Earley, director of the play has announced that Anne Parsons and Ann Carter Wendenburg have been appointed stage Managers for the production. The stage crew will consist of Charles Benford, Harold Hutter, Tom Moore, Madison McClintic, Herbert Goodman and Ethel Straw. In charge of props will be Gaynelle Edwards and Helen Short; Sally Wilson will handle the sound effects, and Natalie Lancaster will act as wardrobe mistress.

Tickets for "Light Up the Sky", which went on sale yesterday morning, are being handled by members of the Speech classes. There will be no reserved seats and general admission will be .65

SCA To Meet At Longwood

The twenty-sixth annual Student Cooperative Association of Virginia high schools will be held at Longwood College March 21 and 22.

"Our Part in Democracy at Home and Abroad" has been selected as the theme of this convention, the first of its type to be held since 1948. The General Assembly in Jarman Hall will be open to Longwood students Friday and Saturday afternoons.

Closing the convention will be an address by Dr. Willis A. Sutten, Superintendent Emeritus of Atlanta Public Schools, Atlanta, Georgia and a founder of the National Association of Student Councils. An exhibit of the Student Cooperative Association's publications will be displayed in the Browsing Room of the College library during the session.

Approximately 427 students representatives and 75 teachers and sponsors are expected to attend and participate in the various discussion groups.

House Council Rule

A vote of the student body to accept the proposal presented by Student Standards at a meeting on March 5, resulted in a new regulation concerning study hour. This new regulation, which involves the continuation of the quiet hour between ten and eleven o'clock, was put into effect on Monday, March 10, 1952.

According to the new rule, the quiet hour begins at 8:00 p. m., and continues throughout the entire evening. Visiting is permitted between 10 and 10:45 p. m., pro-

VIPA To Convene On March 21, 22

College delegates from all over the state will assemble at the University of Richmond and Westhampton on the week end of March 21 and 22 for the spring convention of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association.

Anne Gibson, a student at Westhampton, will act as convention chairman. Speakers have not yet been chosen.

Delegates will stay at the William Byrd Hotel. The cost of the entire meeting will be $14 per delegate. All entries must be in by March 10.

Items of business which will be considered this year by the group are the possibility of holding a convention only once a year, ways of improving convention attendance, judging methods and the association's constitution.

The keeping of more complete records and better control over publications, new projects and elections will also be taken into consideration.

Included in the week end convention will be a banquet, business sessions and critiques, a dance or informal party, and the presentation of awards for the best publications.

The VIPA is an association composed of representatives of magazines annuals and newspapers of the colleges of Virginia. The semi-annual meetings are held for the purpose of criticizing and judging member publications.

The fall convention was held here at Longwood where the Rotunda won honorable mention in the newspaper judging.

Obenshain, Castros Jones, Tyler Elected

Roberta Obenshain, Anne Jones, Helen Castros and Betty Tyler were elected by the student body yesterday to fill the post of president of the Student Government, Y. W. C. A., House Council and Athletic Association respectively. The four new organization heads will serve for the year 1952-53

Nominee for the major offices were held Monday afternoon when students voted for two out of three on the slate presented by the committee of nominations. Final elections were held Wednesday.

Student Government

Bobbie Obenshain, junior from Roanoke, has been elected president of the Student Government Association for the coming year. She served as sophomore representative to the Association last year and is acting as treasurer this year. Active in many College groups, Bobbie is a member of the Cotillion club, Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, and is now serving as treasurer of her social sorority Alpha Sigma Tau.

Y.W.C.A.

Anne Jones, newly elected president of the Y. W. C. A., is a junior from Christiansburg. She has served as treasurer of that organization for the past year. Active in many organizations, "Jonesie" has acted as secretary of her class for the past two years and is a member of the Cotillion Club, Monogram club, and Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority. She has played hockey for three years and class volley ball last year.

House Council

Helen Castros, elected to the presidency of House Council, is a junior from Roanoke. She hav served as junior House President during the past year. "Castros" is acting as treasurer of the A. A. Council, vice-president of the Southwest Virginia club this year. Cotillion club, Monogram club, and Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority claim her membership. Active in College sports, she has played varsity hockey and basketball. She has also participated in tennis, archery and volley ball.

Athletic Association

Filling the position of president of the Athletic Association is Betty Tyler, junior from South Boston. Qualifying "Termite" to head the College athletic organization is her membership on the A. A. Council for the past two years. She is also a member of the Monogram and Cotillion clubs. "Termite" has played varsity basketball and hockey for the past three years.

President Reveals Dean's Resignation For New Position

President Dabney S. Lancaster of Longwood College has recently announced the resignation of William W. Savage as dean of the college. Dean Savage will assume duties on May 1 at the University of Chicago as coordinator of the program on consultant services of the Midwest Administration Center.

Prior to becoming dean of Longwood College in 1947, Savage was on the staff of the State Department of Education in Richmond. During this year he has served as secretary - treasurer of the Association of Virginia Colleges and as a member of the board of managers of the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

In his new position at the University of Chicago, Dean Savage will direct evaluations of the consultant services offered to school administrators in the Midwest by state departments of education, universities, colleges, and other agencies. Related to this will be work designed to stimulate improvements in consultant services.

Geog. Society To Meet Here

The Virginia Geographical Society will hold its fifth annual spring meeting Saturday, April 19, at Longwood College. Mr. Raus Hanson of Madison College, who is president of the society, urges that all professors, students, and interested persons attend the meeting.

Mr. Peter T. Sardo, Assistant Professor of Geography at Longwood, is serving as program chairman. Mr. Sardo announced that the speakers will be Dr. Josephine Mayer, Head of the Department of Geography at State Teacher's College, Kertztown, Pennsylvania; and Mr. Wayne McCabe of Harrisonburg.

Dr. Mayer will discuss the roll of geography in the elementary school and will stress the dynamic nature of geography as the key to world understanding and geography as a means of developing the observation powers of the child.

Mr. McCabe will speak from first-hand experience gained while working with the Chinese Nationalist Police in China from 1945 until 1947. His topic will be "What Next In China."

The meeting will also feature a display of student-made geography projects.

Dr. Charles F. Lane, head of the Longwood Geography Department, will direct the afternoon field trip to places of geographic interest in the local area.

College Redecorates Old Offices, Parlors

by Shirley Ward

Have you noticed some "face uplifting" improvements around Longwood recently?

The Virginia Room has taken on "a new look" as a result of its being recently refurnished. It has been done over in the colors of gold, turquoise blue, and cocoa brown. The room will now be used as a formal parlor to entertain parents, to give small teas and for guests to assemble before banquets.

Also the old office of the Dean of the College is in the process of being redecorated. At night it will serve as the freshman dating parlor and during the day it will serve as a room for the faculty members to read mail and to relax. It will be furnished with sofas, easy chairs, tables, and bridge tables.

Congratulations

Congratulations go from the Rotunda to the newly selected student officers and publications heads .They are quite capable of fulfilling the duties demanded by the high positions they have been chosen to fill.

Congratulations are also in order to the student body for the wise choice they made in their selection of officers, and to the members of the Publications Board for their thoughtful judgment.

The four officers, president of the Student Government Association, president of the House Council, president of the Y. W. C. A., and president of the Athletic Association Council, elected yesterday, hold the highest student positions in the college. They will serve on the Student Council, whose purpose is to preserve student honor, to unite the students of the college for more efficient service, and to train the students in personal responsibility and loyalty.

In all these things they are strongly supported by the three publications, the Rotunda, the Colonnade, and the Virginian. It is through their voices the students may express themselves. It is within their pages that the high traditions and outstanding purposes of the college are preserved and pushed ever forward.

The responsibility of the student body does not stop, however, with the choice of outstanding leaders. The officers are depending on our support and co-operation throughout their terms of office. Without our assistance it will be impossible for them to efficiently fulfill their many and weighty duties.

Congratulations, too, are in order for every nominee, for each one of them would have made an outstanding president of her organization, and again to th students for being able to choose from among this fine group.

Next year should see great progress in Longwood's climb toward better education. With fresh and outstanding leadership, and with the co-operation of the major organizations and publications, this will go speedily along.

Yes, Longwood herself is to be congratulated for having a group of girls who know how to choose those who can lead them best.

Goodbye

There's a song title that well applies to the feelings of this year's retiring editor and managing editor—"Mixed Emotions," for it is with such feelings that we take leave of our beloved Rotunda.

A well-deserved (we hope) sigh of relief escapes our lips as we think of the past years of runing, begging, cajoling and typing fingers to the bone. Monday and Tuesday nights that have slipped into morning will soon become Monday and Tuesday nights of sleep. All woes and worries will be placed upon newer, younger and stronger shoulders.

Combined with this feeling of gladness at the prospect of long worked-for rest, is one of sincere sadness. For to us the Rotunda has been a child whose growth and development has been in our hands. We have attempted to nurish it boosting it toward a maturity in which it can be a great service to its alma mater.

We have learned something in our years on the newspaper—something that we feel is worthy of being considered seriously by Longwood students. First, a paper cannot be published single-handed by an editor, her manager and few (usually very few) helpers. There must be those among the students who are willing to spend several hours a week writing, typing and proofreading stories and writing headlines.

Almost weekly there are complaints that the Rothnda dos not contain news of this or that event. How can it when there are so few people willing to find and submit that news? Work and co-operation are important in everything we do.

We bid a fond and sad farewell to our "child" and God Speed to the new publishers of the College news, but in leaving we ask the student body to remember that without them there can be no growth.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 19, 1952

Loyalty

March 29, 1952, marks the 68th anniversary of the founding of Longwood College. On this day large numbers of alumnae will return to their alma mater to attend the annual Founder's Day Program.

In honor of the college birthday the student body has been asked to wear all white for the occasion and to be on the campus to give a friendly welcome to the returning "old grads." Classes will be suspended after 10 a. m. on that Saturday in order that everyone may be free to attend the morning's program.

Many students may feel that this is an excellent and ideal opportunity to leave the college for the week en. They can miss their 10 and 11 o'clock classes without taking cuts, and furthermore, they don't relish the thought of seeing visitors swarm over the campus.

This is a very poor attitude. The annual Founder's Day is a part of Longwood tradition. It is just as much a part as Circus, Production, Color Rush, May Day, or any of the other activities that Longwoodites look forward to with anticipation and take part in enthusiastically. Most of the studnt body are proud of Longwood's well known school-spirit. Surely a large part of this school spirit is based on the students' pride in their school. Can anyone, then, who claims to be school spirited run off on a week end that is so important in the school calendar and which marks another milestone in the history of the college?

Furthermore, doesn't the present student body owe it to the many returning alhmnae to be here to cordially welcome them and make them feel at home? If graduates from as much as fifty years ago can journey to Farmville to show their love and loyalty to their alma mater, can't the members of the classes of '52, '53, '54, and '55 sacrifice one week end trip to match their school spirit?

Another point to consider is the fact that much time and effort has been spent on the part of those in charge of planning of the program for this year to draw up an interesting and worthwhile schedhle. Those who decide to show their school spirit and loyalty by remaining here for the annual occasion will have several interesting high lights to their week end. Besides the morning session, there will be a special luncheon and dinner and the Longwood players' will present their spring drama, "Light Up The Sky."

As the students consider the possibilities, the advantages and disadvantages, etc. of a week end trip on March 29, they should include in their consideration the above points. Will they let their Alma Mater and her alumnae down? We hope not!

Social Notes

by BARBARA CASKEY

March has brought us a variety of interests, among them breezes, April drizzles and lots of society. Society???

Engaged

June Page received a diamond from Clay Camp of Hampden-Sydney this past week end. Since then, she has been wearing her left arm in a sling, so you can imagine.

Marian Davis recently received a ring from Otis Sheppard of Farmville, formerly a student at V.P.I.

Pinned

Mattie Thomas became pinned this past week end to Joe Bagley, a Lambda Chi at Hampden-Sydney College.

Hang on, here we wo on the best ride we've had in a nice long time. The highways were jammed between here and every male institution in the state.

Randolph-Macon Pan-Hels

Betty Frances Gillette, Frances Motley, Cleo Holiday, Polly Brothers, Joan DeAlba, Sara Lu Bradshaw, and Mary Hundley tripped the light fantastic at Randolph-Macon this past week end. Jean Jinnett, Ann Hardin, and Mary Jo Smith also attended.

William and Mary

Betty Islin, Peggy Worthington, Joyce Hunt, Shirley Lewis, Betty Benton and Mary Ellen Booth journeyed to William and Mary to attend their Mid-Winter dances. Also making the trip were Pat McLemore, Betty Bazemore, and Gail Dixon.

University of Virginia

Blanton Ferguson, Joanne Yow, Marion Beckner and Edith Kennon attended the St. Anthony fraternity party at Virginia this past series of holidays, better known to most of us as week end.

Medical College of Virginia

Beth Kent, Ann Parsons and B. Beth Cheatham went to the dance and parties at M.C.V. this past week end.

V.M.I.

Ann Bryan and Pan Phillips went to Virginia Military Institute this past week end. We trust they had a nice time.

W.&L.

Claudia Hood, a new sophomore transfer, went to Washington and Lee.

Wedding

Betty Lou Garrett, Moneda Key, Jean Hamilton, Peggy Hood, Sylvia Reames, and Liz Crockett went to Newport News and attended the wedding of a former Longwoodite, Jean Farmer.

Note

For her final address, your social editor would like you all to know that though you have all been popular, attractive and thoughtful of your editor, she is glad to be finished with her term. (The splotches on the paper are true tears.) Goodbye to you all and very pleasant journeys. This is the last time your editor's name will appear anywhere near the social notes. Bob, Bob!!!

Music Instructors Wil! Attend Meet

Miss Jessie Patterson, associate professor of music, and Mr. Walter Kerfoot, assistant instructor in music will attend the biannual Music Educators National Conference to be held in Philadelphia, March 21 through March 26.

Musicians from all over the country will discuss plans to improve music in the school systems. Other aims for the meeting are to observe new techniques and materials and to see demonstrations of the musical accomplishments of schools throughout the nation. The theme selected for the convention is "Music in American Education."

Miss Patterson will lead a discussion group on junior college music, and of interest to Mr. Kerfoot will be the brass ensemble of his alma mater, Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

Music for the convention will be furnished by the University of Michigan band.

Cannonball, Coal Bring Love To Wealthy, Willing Witch

by Joyce Karlet

Once upon a time, when men were men and girls sometimes had money, there lived a young maiden named Lotta Gottroc, who was loaded due to the untimely demise of her wealthy father. Lotta had loved her wise old pater dearly, and on a chain around her neck she carried a stone tablet on which was engraved his final deathbed words to her.

"Daughter," he had said, "after I am gone you'll be rich, but you ain't got no personality to speak of, and with a face like that I'm afraid no man will love you for your sweet self alone, so you gotta watch that you don't get snatched up by no lousy fortune hunter." and then he passed away.

The years passed and although Lotta grew into a dumb, ugly, hunchback (a defect brought on by the weight of the tablet), she had many sterling and golden qualities such as miserliness, cleanliness, and the ability to make hamburger steak taste like filet mignon. One day, however, her normal peaceful life exploded into bits, for she fell in love. It was all most unexpected.

She had left the castle bright and early to make her weekly tour of the coal yards, where she collected the family fuel supply by gathering stray bits of bituminous which often fell from the delivery carts as they left the loading platforms. But business had been slow that day, and about five o'clock Lotta had been ready to turn her discouraged feet homeward, when suddenly to her delight she spied a huge piece of coal lodged between two boards. She leapt for it, but just as her finger closed around the precious rock, it was snatched from her grasp by a beastly-looking gypsy who was also making the rounds that day. In a fit of pique over her loss, Lotta lunged screeching at his throat, and a horrible battle ensued. They grappled back and forth for an hour, but finally the gypsy's superior strength began to tell and Lotta felt herself pinned to the ground by a hammer lock which she could not break. Suddenly a beautiful well modulated voice said, "Sir, why are you messing around with that

SPECTRA-SCOPIC VIEWS

by Ann Gray

What is happiness and where does one find it? It is a quality in life for which everyone aims, but no one knows how many achieve it. In college, a process known as reasoning has been known to make some students change their whole outlook on life, either for the good or the bad of himself or society. Certainly, college students are changed beings after having lived in the academic world for four years, but what do they think of during the four years? That problem baffles many bystanders who surmise that today's collegians believe college is an end in itself, and not a means to an end.

However, contrary to such belief, some young men and women are looking to the future—not in the occupational sense, but in the meaning of their lives. The greatest underlying fear today is the sense of insecurity and the accompanying quest for happiness which must be grasped where and whenever it may be found. That may be a broad generalization, but it is a truth whether or not we recognize it in our lives. Recently a coed at a California college wrote John Dewey, asking how she could find happiness. She didn't write only for her personal benefit, but she represented a group of young people who had realized they couldn't say how to achieve and obtain happiness. They sent letters to such well-known personalities as George Santayana, Albert Schweitzer, Arnold Toyenbee, Carl Jurg, Fannie Hurst, and others asking how to achieve happiness.

These people were too wise to answer directly such a tangent, but they did offer suggestions. When they were sorted, the answers were generally that they were not alone with their problem; they as individuals could do much for society; don't look for happiness to come to them, but do something; and get out of themselves and help others.

We, at this college, should think now about the contentment we will derive from life, although we won't all achieve it in the same way, but perhaps the advice of George Santayana who formerly held the chair of Philosophy at Yale and is now in Rome is most applicable. Santayana says, "Cultivate the capacities in yourself—ask yourself what possibility there is in you to do any particular thing well and you needn't bother any more about duty or happiness."

State High School Seniors Visit College

Seventy-four students of various Virginia high schools spent the past week end on the Longwood College campus. Most of those present were seniors interested in selecting a college to attend after graduation.

Richmond was represented by students from Hermitage high school, and members of the student bodies of Granby and Norview high schools in Norfolk, of Woodrow Wilson in Portsmouth, and of Clifton Forge and Covington high schools were among the visitors.

Seniors from Kenbridge, Newport News, Hampton, Franklin, South Hill, Madison Heights and Kempsville also spent the week end at Longwood. From Henry Clay high school in Ashland, William Campbell Warick in Hilton Village and E. C. Glass in Lynchburg came other visitors. There were also visitors from high schools in Victoria, Rocky Mount, Roanoke, Suffolk, Pulaski, Oceania, Marshall and Falls Church.

Longwood students who acted as hostesses and guides to the visiting seniors were Faye Greenland, Billie Tomlinson, Ann Crowder, Wanda Doll, Jane Harper, Shirley Likenhaker, Betty Persinger and Gaynelle Edwards. Patti Poffenberger, Nancy Nelson, Ann Mallory, Betty Abbitt, Becky Hines, Mary Evelyn Bennett, Lou Seibel, Jo Burley, Eloise Macon, Carolyn Vanture, Harriett Minichan, Joan Curles, Nancy Norfleet, Pat Linton, and Judy Cable also acted as Longwood hostesses.

The high school students were entertained Friday evening by the Freshman production in Jarman Hall. On Saturday morning they were taken on a tour of the College campus, at which time they were shown the auditorium and heard Mr. Warrington play the organ.

Buns and cokes were served the visiting seniors Saturday afternoon at the Longwood Estate, after which they returned to the school to watch the rehearsal of the coming drama "Light Up the Sky." A tea was held in their honor at 4 p. m., in the Student Lounge. Many of the visitors attended the juke box dance in the rec' hall Saturday night.

Rival Class Teams To Begin Matches In Basketball Soon

Swimming Meets To Follow In April

Matches between class teams have been scheduled to begin in the near future both in basketball and swimming. The basketball games will start Thursday with the sophomores playing the seniors and the freshmen challenging the juniors.

The games which count for color cup points, those played between the rival red and white and green and white classes will begin next week. Students are urged to come out and support their class colors.

The class swimming meets will begin near the end of April. Novelty relays are to be featured this year; therefore, entries do not have to be experts. Eight practices are required.

Home Ec. Majors To Attend Meet

Five home economics majors will journey to Richmond March 20 to represent Longwood at the annual Virginia Economics Association convention to be held at the John Marshall Hotel.

Wanda Karlet, Betty Jo Jennings, Lillian Shelton, Helen Barrow, and Phylis Isaacs are the girls who will go to Richmond for the weekend convention March 20, 21, and 22. The theme of the convention is to be "Home and Family, the Heart of Democracy."

On Friday Wanda Karlet will represent Longwood on a panel discussion of Student Home Economics Club representatives. Friday night Betty Jo Jennings will model at a "Preview of Spring" fashion show three costume which she constructed in her clothing class.

Helen Barrow, president of the Longwood Home Ec. Club, will be the college's official delegate at the business session Saturday morning.

Swimming Events To Begin At 3:30

The Longwood swimming team will meet the College of William and Mary in a number of swimming events Saturday afternoon at 3:30 p. m. in the College pool.

Swimming in the 20 yard free style will be Nancy Norfleet and Marian Beckner, and Jean Ridenour and Eleanor Koch in the 40 yard free style.

Participating in the 75 yard freestyle and 40 yard breast stroke will be Eleanor Koch and Roberta Wyatt and Blanton Ferguson and Marian Beckner respectively.

The 40 yard back stroke will be swum by Nancy Walker and Jean Ridenour, while Fay Greenland, Blanton Ferguson and Nancy Norfleet will take part in the 75 yard relay medley.

Swimming the 200 yard free style relay will be Pat Altwegg, Eleanor Koch, Roberta Wyatt and Jean Ridenour. Miss Josephine Hubbell of Mary Washington will be head official for the meet.

Library Displays Paintings By 14 of Virginia's Artists

Four of Selections Chosen For Awards

In the Browsing Room of the Longwood library, there is currently on display an exhibit consisting of original oil paintings done by 14 outstanding Virginia artists.

The paintings were chosen from the Thirteen Virginia Artists exhibition which took place at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts last spring, and are representative of the Virginia's young artists of the present day.

Four of the paintings on display were chosen for the Virginia Museum Purchase Award by the Biennials nationally known jury of selection which includes several New York artists. These paintings are "Watermelon Stand" by Roy C. Craven, Jr.; "Flowers with Souvenir" by Jean Craig; "Wrath, Wreath, and Final Horn" by Arthur Hall Smith, Jr.; and "Chimneys" by Benjamin Wigfall. Each of the paintings in the exhibit is accompanied by a label which gives the artist's own explanation of his work.

The exhibit will remain in the library until April 7.

Dr. Simkins Writes Review For Magazine

Dr. Francis B. Simkins, professor of history at Longwood College, has contributed a review article to the current issue of the Saturday Review of Literature, a widely-circulated book review magazine. Dr. Simkins, who is well-known for his numerous studies of Southern history, was asked by the editors of the Saturday Review to review a new book Origins of the New South by C. Vann Woodward.

In his review, Dr. Simkins notes that the author "proves that ancestors who were brave and self-sacrificing on Virginia battlefields were not necessarily honest and unselfish in later civilian life." It is Woodward's thesis that Southern Bourbons were as willing as the carpetbaggers to sell the resources of their people to the despised Yankee.

Cannonball, Coal

girl," and through her tears Lotta saw the handsome stranger on a white horse who had come to her aid.

After dispatching the gypsy in an exemplary style, the knight, who introduced himself as Sir Valentine lifted Lotta to her feet, brushed away her tears, recovered her coal, and asked her if he might see her home. Ecstatic with happiness, Lotta acquiesced. But as they galloped through the streets, Mr. Gottroc's warning beat against her heart, and Lotta knew that before she could give her heart completely to this man, she had to test him. Quickly she decided upon a plan. When she dismounted, she would contrive to cripple his horse, so that he would be forced to spend the night at the castle as her guest.

The rest of her plan was easily executed; during dinner Lotta managed to sneak up stairs long enough to hide a cannonball in Sir Valentine's straw tick. If her guest was a man of fine breeding and character she felt that his sleep would be disturbed by the hard object; if he was a coarse imposter unused to fine things, obviously he would not notice anything wrong with his bed.

At last came the dawn and the bustle of a new day. One by one the household arose, and at last when it seemed she could wait no longer Sir Valentine hobbled down the steps. With fearful eye the girl searched his face for some sign that would tell her what she wanted to know. When she could stand the suspense no longer, Lotta said, "Did you have a good night's sleep?"

"Sleep," cried the Knight, "did anyone ever on that bed?"

At those words, Lotta flung herself into his arms and explained her little ruse. Sir Valentine forgave her for her lack of faith, they were married, and lived happily ever after.

The Moral of the story is that if you think there is a cannonball in your bed, go ahead and complain, it might be worth a couple million bucks to you.

Cotillion Club Chooses "I'll Remember April" As Spring Dance Theme

Karr Names Band As 'Aristocrats'

"I'll Remember April" will be the theme of the annual Cotillion Club dance to be held in the College gymnasium April 5, at 8 o'clock. The announcement was made by Mary Moore Karr, chairman of the cabaret style dance.

Featured musicians at the dance will be Bill Harpers' Aristocrats, of Roanoke. Highlighting the evening will be the senior figure led by Jean Ridenour. Erma Poarch, president of the club, Ann Moseley, Conway Rice, Jean Ridenour, and Mary Moore Karr, accompanied by their dance escorts, will be in the receiving line. Chaperones for the dance are Dr. and Mrs. Lancaster, Dean and Mrs. Savage, Miss Ruth Gleaves, and Dr. and Mrs. John W. Molnar. Also, Miss Nancy Chambers, Miss Virginia Wall, and Mrs. Katherine Tabb.

Heading the various committees for the dance are Ethel Straw, decorations; Jean Ridenour, senior figure; and Conway Rice, chairman of the music committee.

According to tradition Cotillion "Goats" will do the decorating and undecorating for the dance.

Decorations of green and yellow, the colors of the Cotillion Club, will set the mood for the "I'll Remember April" theme. The spring atmosphere will be further carried out with vases of yellow daffodils placed on the tables.

"With the co-operation that has been shown by both 'Goats' and Cotillion Club members, and with the prospect of a very large attendance, I feel certain that the dance will be a success," said Mary Moore Karr, dance chairman.

JEAN RIDENOUR, who will lead the figure for the Cotillion Club dance Saturday, April 5.

French Students Will Sponsor Film

"Symphonie Pastorale", the film production of Noble prize-winning Andre' Gide's story, will be pretented on Friday, April 4, at 8 p. m. in Jarman Auditorium of Longwood College. The movie will be presented by Le Cercle Francais, a club for the French students at the college. The admission price is 35 cents.

Co-starring in "Symphonie Pastorale" are Michele Morgan and Pierre Blanchar. The movie will be presented in French, but it will also carry English sub-titles.

The scene of "Symphonie Pastorale" is laid in the Alps against ice, snow, and white slopes. The story is one of a minister who takes a blind girl into his house when her grandmother dies. She is very illiterate, but learns quickly under his tutilage After she is grown, the preacher falls in love with her—a fact recognized by everyone but himself. The outcome of this situation is the movie.

Winning a large number of prizes at the Brussels film festival, "Symphonie Pastorale" has been well acclaimed both in France and in the United States. The Boston Herald says it is "the best film from France in 1948". Le Cercle Francais presents this as its annual French film, open to the public.

Tickets for 'Symphonie Pastorale' are currently being sold, and may be purchased from any member of Le Cercle Francais.

Virginia Libraries To Convene Here

Sessions To Begin Saturday, April 5

On Saturday, April 5, the third annual School Library Conference will be held at Longwood College. The conference is being sponsored jointly by the Longwood Department of Library Science and the Libraries and Teaching Materials Section of District D of the Virginia Education Association.

Between fifty and sixty delegates representing Norfolk, Richmond, Martinsville, Arlington, Petersburg, and the surrounding counties are expected for the convention. Among those present will be Miss Ruby Curdiffe and Miss Fern Hoover, professors of Library Science at Madison College; Miss Margaret Rutherford of the State Department of Education; Miss Julia Robinson, supervisor of the Petersburg Public School Libraries; and Miss Mildred Kelly, supervisor of Library and Audiovisual Materials, Campbell County.

The speaker for the morning session will be Miss Nancy E. Hoyle, whose topic will be "From Aachen to Zwingli or, The Building of a Young Peoples Encyclopedia." Miss Hoyle is well known by librarians and educators in Virginia. She served twelve years as supervisors of school libraries and textbooks of the State Department of Education. Later, she was head of the Library Science Department at the College of William and Mary.

Newly Elected Heads Attend SGA Meeting At Newcomb College

Bobbie Obenshain and Lucy Page Hall, newly elected president and vice-president of the Longwood Student Government, journeyed South last week end to attend the Southern Intercollegiate Association of Student Government Convention which was held at Newcomb College, New Orleans, Louisiana.

The theme of the convention, which met March 28-29, 1952, was "Student Government Of the Students, By the Students, and For the Students."

At the convention, the delegates attended discussions held on the honor system, parliamentary precedure, and student participation in Student Government. On Saturday, the delegates were divided into groups according to the size of the college they represented. At this time the group discussed problems peculiar to colleges of their size and type.

"I thoroughly enjoyed the trip and felt it was well-worthwhile," remarked Lucy Page.

The delegates also went on a tour of the famous New Orleans French Quarter.

Alumnae Secretary Says 300 Graduates Return

This year's sixty-eighth Founder's Day brought nearly 300 alumnae back, over 200 more than last year according to Mrs. Ruth A. Coyner, alumnae secretary. Mrs. Coyner added that to have had such a large representation was amazing because the alumnae had been back previously this year to Dedication and to the Virgil Fox recital.

This year's program opened Saturday morning with Dr. Lancaster making his annual "State of the College" address. At a meeting Saturday afternoon the Nominating Committee of the Alumnae Association presented its slate of officers for the coming year. The new officers elected are first vice-president, Mrs. Jessie Brett Kennedy of Washington, D. C.; second vice-president, Mrs. Mary Lou Campbell Graham of Wytheville. Director, Mrs. Jane Royal Phlegar of Norfolk. Serving as the new nominating committee are Mrs. Martha McCorkle Taylor, director from Farmville and Miss Dorothy Diehl, Norfolk; and Miss Kate Trent of Farmville.

A tribute by Miss Helen Draper to Miss Minnie V. Rice was read at one of the afternoon meetings Miss Rice was Professor of Latin here for more than fifty years.

Just before the Longwood Player's presentation of "Light Up the Sky", the Jarman Silver Cup was presented by Dr. Lancaster to Virginia Potts Redhead, president of the class of 1927, for having the largest percentage present. The class had its 25th anniversary.

Mrs. Mary Katherine Dodson Plyler, president of the class of 1942, had her class here with the greatest number present. Mrs. Jane Royal Phlegar, honorary member of the class, was here to help celebrate the reunion at a breakfast at Longwood on Sunday morning.

A graduate of 1887 was among the returning alumnae. She is Mrs. Joseph D. Eggleston, wife of the former president of Hampden-Sydney. Mrs. Eggleston has been coming back for 65 years and stated during the week end, "If the present senior class keeps coming back as I have done for the past 65 years it will be to the year 2017."

During their business session, alumnae voted to lend financial assistance to refurnishing the interior of Longwood House, but voted not to tak over active management of the estate as an alumnae headquarters, on a proposed lease offered by President Dabney Lancaster.

The week end began with an academic procession to Jarman Hall, an innovation this year.

Award Committee Chooses Painting By Virginia Artist

'Kathie with Pearls', a painting by Mrs. Greta Matson, has been selected by the Longwood Purchase Award Committee to be bought with the fund set up for the purpose of collecting works of Virginia artists.

The fund used to purchase 'Kathie with Pearls' was begun by the August 1949 graduating class and has been contributed to by each succeeding class. The committee which chose 'Kathie with Lemen and consisted of Miss Virginia Bedford, Miss Ruth Gleaves, and Dr. C. L. S. Earley.

The artist is a native of Claremont, Virginia. She has had exhibits in the Carnegie Institute, the Art Institute of Chicago, the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts and the National Academy of Design. Mrs. Matson has been awarded an impressionable number of prizes for her works.

In 1949, she received the Stroud Prize of the American Water Color Society, Popular Prize of the Art Association of New Orleans, and first prize, State Teacher's College, Indiana, Pennsylvania. In 1950 she received the first purchase prize from the Water Color Society of Alabama and the second oil prize from the Mississippi Art Association.

Mrs. Matson has already given several "one man" shows. In 1942 and again in 1947 she held exhibits in the Norfolk Museum of Art. Other of her shows have

A." was president of her freshman class and vice-president of her sophomore class She is a member of Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority.

A. A. Vice-President

Natalie Lancaster, newly elected vice-president of the House Council, is a junior from Wardonsville, West Virginia. "Nat" served this year as treasurer of the House Council. She is a member of the Association of Childhood Education, the Cotillion Club, and Sigma Sigma Sigma social sorority.

The Athletic Association's new vice-president, Clara Borum, is a junior from Burkeville. She has been active in varsity basketball, tennis, and hockey for three years. Borum is a member of the A. A. Council, Monogram Club, and Orchesis, dance organization.

The student body also elected Betty Islin as secretary of Student Government and Eleanor Koch as treasurer. Koch served this year as her class representative to Student Government.

The Y. W. C. A. officers will be secretary, Ann Foster, and treasurer, Lu Beavers. While Ann is a newcomer to the Y Cabinet, Lu served during the past year as Freshman Counselor. This year's freshman Counselor will be Jean Carol Parker, who served this year on Freshman Commission..

House Council

Jane Branch, a sophomore this year, will be secretary of the House Council, and Georgette Puryear will act as treasurer. Georgette was freshman house president this year. Jane is a newcomer to House Council work.

Filling the posts of secretary and treasurer for the Athletic Association will be Patsy Sanford and Else Wenge, respectively.

Both Patsy and Else are physical education majors, and have been active for two years in both class and varsity sports activities.

Margaret Steele will serve as head dining room hostess for the coming year, and her assistants will be Beverly Marsh and Margaret Taylor .

We'll Do Our Best

With this issue of the Rotunda a new group of workers assumed the responsibility of publishing the college weekly. Last Thursday the 1952-53 staff took over the week-to-week grind and the senior members of the old staff began their well earned rest. We of the new staff look forward to the job that lies ahead of us with mixed feelings of pleasure, and trepidation. Therefore, our farewell to the old staff is a fond yet wary one.

The job which the new staff assumes is difficult. We must strive to meet the objectives which have been set up for the paper. As we understand them, the Rotunda's objectives are three-fold—to keep the students, the alumnae, the faculty, and the administration informed about the current events of the college; to reflect their opinions on matters pertaining to the college; and to serve as a current chronicle of all areas of college life.

We of this new staff will attempt to the best of our ability, to fulfill these objectives and to serve the college through the impartial printing of news and opinions. We will try to live up to the standards set by the retiring staff. However, without the cooperation and support of the student body, faculty, and administration, our task will be an impossible one. The Rotunda belongs to the student body, and without their help and the help of the faculty and administration, the paper cannot be a success. We will always welcome any suggestions and all tips for news items. We want to be told how and when we fall down on the job, and we will be looking for helpful hints as to how we can improve our service.

We salute the retiring members of the staff for their job well done, and for their splendid leadership. We hope that eventually we can measure up to the excellent example they have been for us and meet the standards that they have left behind.

Easter's Promise

In her Easter bonnet with all the frills —and everything else—upon it, every Longwood girl will soon be off for a few days of fun. Spring has "sprung" with fat robins, fresh green leaves, a warm sun, not to forget the promise of summer's coming. Just look around! Everything seems new and alive. This is it— an annual time of reawakening for earth and its people.

To the Christian world especially it is the most hopeful and the loveliest of all seasons. This is the commemoration of the founding of Christianity when One more powerful and merciful than any gave His promise of life to all. It is a promise of faith, hope, and love to all who will accept it and each year spring renews this pledge in the freshness of all living things.

This year it is made again in the face of a world struggling with war, hate, dispair. Many don't have Easter bonnets. They haven't hats at all. Many don't even have food.

Nations are beset by both political and economic difficulties and every individual has his own private problems.

Young people in America, just as in other nations, are caught in a myriad of uncertainties about the future—where does it lead, what plans can be made for careers and security? In consideration of man's own capacities these problems often seem unanswerable. The world, however, has faced them for centuries and must continue to work out the answers

But man does not stand alone in striving to solve his questions and attain happiness in life. He has been given a very real aid in time of trouble and a hope in time of despair. The ideal Christ's life offers the guidance and encouragement that is so much needed. He is the promise of the world.

Spring is the time to stop a while to think of that promise, to renew faith and be thankful for the hope that Easter brings.

Stop and Think

Today, estimate grades were submitted to the Registrar, and before the end of the week, every student will have received a copy of the marks that she has earned thus far in the semester. Bad news? In many cases, this will unfortunately but definitely be the case, and for these people there will be disappointment, followed either by an attitude of unconcern, or by a soon to be forgotten resolve to do much better during the remainder of the semester.

It is true that these grades are merely estimates and are not officially recorded; however not to be overlooked is the fact that they are the professor's estimation of the value of the student's work, and low estimates are definitely indicative of a need for some type of improvement. Are there reasons, especially on Longwood's activity-filled campus, for a student's not maintaining a reasonably high, or even an average scholastic standing? Surely when a person belongs to seven or eight active organizations, participates in the various college productions, circuses, and plays and tries to enjoy a reasonably satisfying social life, she has little time remaining for actual study.

Considering all this, the prime question seems to be "Of what importance is studying?" Few will dispute the fact that a well-rounded person will ultimately make a better citizen than the so-called "walking encyclopedia." However, for a group of persons who are enrolled in a scholastic institution in preparation for a career and at a definite sacrifice, in most cases, to their parents, still fewer will argue the fact that when these persons leave that institution, they will want to carry with them some improvement as a result of their four years' stay. In view of this desire, some consideration should be given, by these students now to the fact that they are preparing for the career that will mean their livelihood in the future. Not many people in judging a good teacher, will require that he or she be able to recite many insignificant facts learned while in college, but nearly all of them will expect that the individual have certain attitudes and ideas that grow out of conclusions drawn only from study of other people's experiences.

All this may seem quite far-fetched to students who are lost in a whirl of happy-go-lucky activity and fun; yet it does offer some food for thought. Going to dances, sunbathing on the roof, being the president of an organization—all these things and many more are a real and vital part of college life and should not be overlooked. However, each student at Longwood does or should have a purpose for being here, and this purpose should be the core of her activity, around which all the extra-curricular activities should be arranged.

Wish It Were True

Ju-Jitsi Necessary Course For Longwood Girls' Future

by Peggy Ilyus and Phoebe Warner

Dear Readers,

After sitting in a conference with Miss Iler, Miss Brockenbrough, and Mrs. Landrum, I have startling news for you which will make you sit up and take note.

It has been found that the majority of you girls are not physically qualified to compete with the He Man (??) at Hampden-Sydney; therefore, the state has agreed to add a required subject to your curriculum—ju jistu. Those whom the state felt best fit to teach this course are Dr. C. L. S. Earley, Mr. Raymond French, and Dr. C. G. Moss.

Before a girl is permitted to graduate from Longwood she must have mastered such holds as "The Embraceable You," "You Can't Catch Me or You'll Be Sorry If you Do," and the "Octopus Hold."

I hope my news will brighten up your day and make your future an easier job.

So long until next week,

Lirpa Loof

Idiotic Interview

by Barbara Caskey

This week, on the tip of everyone's tongue (just like a vitamin pill) is talk of Founder's Day. Let's speculate on just what they found when they arrived here those many years ago.

Many of our guests smiled in unison when mention was made of the various wagon trains that stopped in our little prarie town on their way to the tiny outpost known as Charlotte's Village.

Excitement showed in their eyes when they remembered how much trouble they had in keeping the wild, ferocious anteaters out of their tents.

They reminisced about that day long ago when Joan of Lorraine ,on her flashy charger, was stopped dead in her tracks when she looked into the window of the gym at the Classics Dance group, the Minuets, wallowing about on the floor while practicing their recital piece, "The Black Bottom."

They told about the favorite snack in those days, the Black Burger, now replaced by the Vinegar Hill Mob.

Yes, this week end was exclusively for the Founders and we hear that roomers were really flying in these three dormitory walls. For our interview this week, we have chosen Mrs. Mabelle Violet Johnson, better known to her old college friends as "Shrinking" Violet, but better known to us now as just plain "Budding." Mrs. Johnson has the very distinct honor of having been the 100,187th student to register at this fair institution.

Q. Mrs. Johnson, first I must say that you are looking very chipper today in your lovely green and white shawl.

A. I beg your pardon. Did you say something, Lady?

Q. I say, you certainly are looking chipper today.

A. That's because we didn't have any gentlemen students when I was here.

Q. I'm afraid you must have misunderstood me. I mean, you are looking nice. Your red sneakers are very handsome—were you a physical education major?

A. I've told you once, lady, there weren't any gentlemen students here in those days. As for my major, I don't believe I've pried into your personal interests.

Q. Thank you very much Mrs. Johnson. (This will never do!)

Before we leave today, we should do a little reflecting on another subject of the day-chickens. I interviewed several chickens just this afternoon and asked the corkscrewing question: "What would you do if I told you a dirty joke?"

Chick number one—red, must have been very embarassed.

Chick number two — green, must have been something he et.

Chick number three — purple, poor thing, got cold just thinking about it.

Chick number four—pink, just peep-peeped.

Observation: no problem about chick number 4—I knew he was yellow, too.

Social Notes

by Carolyn Stanley

Good evening, ladies. I trust almost everyone enjoyed a nice quiet week end at home with their beaus who were there on spring vacation, but a few of our roving ladies did get around a little. . . .

University of Virginia

Several girls journeyed to the fair city of Charlottesville last week end. Betty Collier, Fan Phillips, and Lucy Jane Morton visited Bill Walker, Terry Davis, and Sam Fowler. Seems that everyone had a grand time!

Fraternity Parties

Phoebe Warner attended the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity party at Roanoke College this past week end.

Ila Desportes was among those who enjoyed the Kappa Alpha Ball last week end at the University of Richmond.

Pinned

Pat Donnelly received a Cotillion Club pin from her Teck man, Bob Johnson. Congratulations, Pat!

Flash—Bulletin

Mary Helen Cook, Challice Hayden, Betty Abbitt, Nancy Park, and Winnie Murdock motored to Lynchburg to attend the movies! ! !

Week End Visitors

With several male institutions closed for spring vacations, the Longwood girls have been swarmed with callers the past two week ends. Virginia callers were rated at the top of the list. Edith Goff and Sonia Kile were visited by Jack Ritter and Bob Kelley, while Marshall Carper and Rodger Fitch were guests of Joyce Quick and Dot Baldwin; also, Al Kemper was here to visit Wanda Karlet. Betsy Hankins had a visitor from V.M.I., David White. Walter Wilman, from Tec also, visited Boop Islin, and Ann Thomas was visited by Ralph Wilcke of Tec.

Marty Miller had Phil Mason as her guest for the week end, and Joe Barlow came to visit Margaret Taylor. Jimmy Mills of Roanoke College, came to see Bobbie Assaid.

Several of the former Longwoodites were also on campus this week end as special guests of the students. Anne Mitchell Motley visited Nell Dalton and Maria Jackson and Pat Tuggle were hostesses to Emma Bibb Harris.

Week End Visits

Dot Douglas spent the week end visiting in New York City and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Hope she had a nice trip.

Nat Lancaster was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Robertson and Mr. Yancy Robertson at Fayetteville, North Carolina and Myrtle Beach.

Last week end Nancy Inge entertained the girls of third floor "tackey alley" at a "house party" in Blackstone, Virginia. Among those that attended were Marlene Lucas, Helen Criedel, Beth Kent, Nancy Nelson, Jane Bailey, Katherine Miller, and Nell Copley. Everyone had loads of fun.

Note

Here's hoping the Easter bunny is real good to all of you and takes you hopping into the social whirl—for your sake and mine!

Girls to Sign For Rooms

Room Registration Set For April 16-18

April 16 through April 18 has been designated as the time for all students who plan to be at Longwood for the 1952-53 session to apply for room assignment according to Miss Ruth Gleaves, Dean of Women.

Freshmen and sophomores may secure application blanks in the office of the Dean of Women on Tuesday, April 15 to be filled out and returned to the same office not later than Thursday, April 17.

Juniors may secure application blanks in Mrs. Eastham's office on Tuesday, April 15 to be returned to her office not later than Thursday, April 17.

The room deposit fee of ten dollars which students have previously paid will be left intact until the time that they are graduated or withdraw from the college. At that time it is returned to the student unless a part of it has been absorbed for damage to their room.

Miss Gleaves stated that since it is impossible to make these assignment satisfactory for everyone, it is hoped that all students will give their wholehearted co-operation by taking their turn at living on the various floors and by avoiding requests for too large groups on any one hall. By so doing everyone will have an opportunity to know more of their class members.

All students will be notified on the bulletin boards in the respective buildings when assignments have been made.

Minister Will Speak At Easter Assembly

The Reverend Mr. Robert P. Parker, chaplain of Randolph-Macon College and pastor of Duncan Memorial Church, Ashland, will be the chapel speaker on Tuesday, April 8. Reverend Parker's topic will be "Look We For Another?"

Reverend Parker is a native of Roanoke, and has degrees from Randolph-Macon College and Yale Divinity School.

Yesterday, April 1, at the regular chapel program the Reverend Mr. J. A. Vache', pastor of the Johns Memorial Episcopal Church, spoke on the "Assurance of the Gospel."

Pi Gamma Mu Bids 12 Juniors, Seniors

This week, Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, is issuing bids to twelve members of the junior and senior classes, according to Laura Lee Fritts, president of the organization.

Among those receiving bids were Catherine Karnes, Barbara Cotton, Mary Jo Smith, Ann Gray, and Bunny Gibson. Elizabeth Wilkinson, Janet Wiggins, Lucile Thompson, Mrs. Anne Graziani, Sarah Graham, John Crafton, and Julia D. Brown were also invited to join.

Membership is offered to juniors and seniors who have taken a required number of courses in social sciences, who have maintained high academic standards, and who have demonstrated that the social phase of education is their predominant interest.

Laura Lee also announced that this year Pi Gamma Mu will present an honorary key to a junior or senior who has been outstanding in social science. The candidate will be chosen by the Social Science Department and the members of Pi Gamma Mu. She must also be approved by a majority vote of the faculty. To be eligible to receive the key, the candidate must meet both the social and scholastic requirements set up by the fraternity.

The scholastic requirements are that the candidate be a member of the Junior or Senior class, have least 18 hours of social science, and have a cumulative average of "B" with no grade lower than "C".

SPECTRA-SCOPIC VIEWS

by Ann Gray

Last year a book appeared on the market which caused quite a stir in the academic world. A young man of Yale, William F. Buckley, Jr., has written a criticism of the true import of religion at his Alma Mater, and he called it simply, God and The Man at Yale.

While at Yale Mr. Buckley had written editorials for the Yale Daily News, in which he persistently and openly criticized the various departments and professors. Although he studied business, Mr. Buckley takes a stand against the materialism which has been squeezing the spiritual blood from our veins for years.

Mr. Buckley has taken no poll, but he says he speaks for the Alumni in exposing the existing amount of agnosticism and atheism in all departments of the university, including the Divinity Department. God and The Man at Yale is so astounding in its accusations that it is bound to bring some explosive results.

Mr. Buckley's book is not only important because it expresses dissatisfaction in the treatment, at Yale, of a quality and experience of life so near to us as religion, but whether or not he says so, Mr. Buckley is a spokesman for an older generation who sees its mistakes developing in its offspring. I agree with Mr. Buckley's interest and believe something should be done to offset the on-rushing avalanche of atheism in college. God and The Man at Yale may start the ball rolling, but who is going to keep it going?

In a society such as ours, we cannot stand still, and action taken now might gain enough momentum to start reform.

Longwood Players Entertain In Delightful Performance Of Hart's 'LightUp the Sky'

by Jean Jinnett

On Saturday, March 29, 1952, the Longwood Players entertained a highly receptive audience with a truly successful presentation of "Light Up the Sky." Dr. C. L. S. Earley, as the club's director, is again to be congratulated for bringing such delightful entertainment to the Longwood Stage and further hailed for his untiring and effective work in bringing the Longwood Players out of a period of necessarily growth - stunted dramatic endeavor.

After making such an able beginning with their fall production of "Ladies in Retirement", it must have been indeed difficult for the director and the club members to choose and enact a play that could come up to the expectations of the audience. Their selection of Moss Hart's comedy description of "life upon the wicked stage" was certainly a fortunate one, followed through with wise casting and effective acting.

Cleo Holladay was extremely well-cast in her role of Irene Livingston. She gave an effective portrayal of the actress, her domineering personality, and her attitudes toward her co-workers of alternating adoration and contempt, depending upon the success or failure of their joint efforts to stage a play. Edwin Stanfield gave ample proof of his versatile acting ability, as he portrayed Carlton Fitzgerald, the emotional director—quite a change from his role of the heel in "Ladies in Retirement".

Many congratulations are in order for both Betsy Hankins and Ellen Porter, as they make a triumphant return to the Longwood stage. Betsy, in her role of Frances Black, noted ice-skater and wife of the producer, all but literally 'brought down the house' with her comical portrayal, and Ellen was no less entertaining in her hilarious antics as Stella Livingston, the actress's mother.

Tom Moore as Sydney Black, the producer, and Madison McClintic as Peter Sloan, the playwrite, gave added proof of their value to the dramatic association as they moved from the backstage crew into the limelight. Another member of the club who made his debut on the Longwood stage was Harold Hutter, who played the part of Sven, the masseur.

The poise and grace displayed by Joyce Karlet in the part of the secretary, gave no indications of her claimed lack of dramatic experience.

The success of this presentation of "Light Up the Sky" is due in large measure to the co-operation of certain members of the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs. Two, who gave particularly admirable performances, are Wilson Kolmer who portrayed Owen Turner, another playwrite, and William "Petey" Cheek, who played the actress' oblivious husband, Tyler Rayburn. The performance of Link Antrobus, Bill Norcross, and Sam Chilton also added much to the humerous aspect of the play as well as to the development of the plot.

The spontaneous burst of applause as the curtain went up at the beginning of the play left no possible room for doubt as to the effectiveness of the attractive, colorful, atmosphere-building set. Much credit belongs to all who worked backstage in the creation of this lovely Boston hotel room.

A major improvement seems to have been accomplished since last fall in the make-up field, as each actor gave a true picture of the character he was portraying, at least so far as physical appearance is concerned.

As the Longwood Players end their active year (at least so far as big productions are concerned), every one who had anything at all to do with the final presentation gets a well-earned vote of thanks for a performance that showed evidence of a talented cast, a hard-working dramatic club, and an indeed able director.

Did You Know?

by Shirley Ward

Have you noticed recently that many people have been wandering around with puzzled looks upon their brows. Some say that this is due largely to the lack of sleep, the lack of reading daily newspapers or sheerly from the lack of knowledge about things. All of these factors may very possibly be true, but the last factor stands out to be the most dominant—the lack of knowledge about things around the school.

Overheard recently was a conversation that went on something like this:

"I don't know! Now why in the world did you ask me a question like that, I'll be worrying about it all day!"

"Well, if you find the answer let me know, it's been bothering me too."

This is an example of the uncertainty—uncertainty that may soon lead to the nervous and mental breakdowns of many Longwood students. What are the answers to some of these questions? Who can give a statement of the urgent facts needed by these confused students?

Printed here will be those summarized statements wanted so badly. These are the answers to the tormenting questions that have left many of us breathless!

There are 10,924,099 bricks on the front side of the Rotunda!

There are lots of cars that go by Longwood everyday!

There are 74 slots in each Venetian blind!

Each flourescent light in the library blinks 116 times per hour!

Initiation is Held For New Members Of English Society

Beorc Eh Thorn, honorary English society, held a meeting on Thursday, March 20, at which time eight new members were initiated, according to Norma Gladding, president of the organization.

Elizabeth Stone, a member of Beorc Eh Thorn, spoke to the group on the organization's past history, and Dr. R. C. Simonini, head of the English department and also a member of the organization, spoke to the group giving suggestions for possible future activity in Beorc Eh Thorn.

The eight girls who were initiated are Rebecca Baird, Ann Conley, Laura Lee Fritts, Sarah Graham, Molly Hersman, Jean Jinnett, Catherine Karnes, and Janet Wiggins. Each spring, bids are issued to students who have shown interest in English and have maintained a suitable grade average on a required number of English courses.

The outstanding event of the year for Beorc Eh Thorn will be a picnic to be held in May at the home of Mr. James A. Grainger, former head of Longwood's English department.

Bids Are Presented From Kappa Delta Pi To 7 Upperclassmen

Bids have recently been issued to seven juniors and seniors to become members of Kappa Delta Pi. These girls will be initiated sometime in early May according to Laura Lee Fritts, president of the organization.

Juniors receiving bids were Sara Ann Conley, Billie Dunlap, Ann Gray, Lou Jamison, and Dot Boswick. The two seniors who were invited to join were Catherine Karnes and Jean Ridenour.

Membership in Kappa Delta Pi is a recognition of scholarship, character, and service. Only juniors and seniors whose grades are within the upper quartile are eligible.

Laura Lee also announced that the annual scholarship tea will be given on April 17 from 4:30 to 5:30 in the Student Lounge. The tea is given each year in honor of all freshmen and sophoomres who have done superior work in their studies.

Question: What did you think of the Longwood Players' presentation of "Light Up the Sky?

Mary Meade: "I thought it was very entertaining. The acting and directing were good."

Dot Gregory: "It was wonderful. I liked it in general."

Barbara Ballowe: "Tom Moore and Cleo were very good, but so were they all."

Mary Evelyn Bennett: "I sympathize with Tyler."

Jean Ridenour: "Terrific!" I thought each character fitted his part. The plot and scenery were good."

Norma Saunders: "I thought the part about gin-rummy, also the toast to the woman in the balcony was good. I think the cussing should have been left out."

Betty Hood: "I liked the last two acts better than the first one."

An Alumnae (overheard): "They never had plays like that when we were here—darn it!"

Audrey Morse: "I liked the part about the maid in the balcony. Ed Stanfield was hilarious."

Roberta Watt: " I liked it because it was realistic."

Virginia Berry: "Very terrific." Ilia Des Portes: "It was what Longwood needs."

Marian Beckner: "Very good! It was an excellent performance on the part of the female leads."

Ann Thaxton: "It was a typical Earley masterpiece."

Ann Thomas: "I thought it was a rather good idea to balance the dramatic year by following up last fall's mystery drama with this light comedy."

Nancy Brown: "Hankins stole the show."

Donna Kunkler: "It was terrific—you better believe that!"

Janet Wiggins: "I was awfully sorry that I didn't get to see it, especially since I've heard that I really missed a good show."

Jean Jinnett: "I could cry!"

'Melody In May' Theme And Music by Virginians To Set Mood For Dance

Court To Perform In Featured Figure

With "Melody in May" as the theme and Pete Weaver's Virginians providing the music, the 1952 May Day Dance will provide the climax for the May Day activities in the College gymnasium Saturday, May 3, at 8 p. m.

Repeating some aspects of the theme of the annual pageant held at the Longwood Estate Saturday afternoon, the dance will center about "Melody in May" and the May queen and her court. The decorations will carry out the theme with pastel colors, May poles, and sheets of music picturing the notes and words of songs used in the pageant.

Music for the evening will be provided by Pete Weaver and his Virginians from Emporia. The orchestra has 10 members and a vocalist. Dance chairman, Pat Tuggle, stated, "The Virginians need no recommendations at Longwood. Everyone knows them from this year's senior dance and from the junior dance of last year!"

The figure preformed by the queen and her court will be the featured event of the last formal dance of the College session. The figure, which will also carry out the dance theme, is to be performed at 10 p. m. before the intermission begins.

Chairman of the dance annually sponsored by Orchesis is Pat Tuggle. Heading the various committees for the dance are Dolores Hoback, decorations; Janet Wiggins, publicity; Ann Crowder, tickets; Ann Murphy, floor committee; and Challice Haydon, invitations.

Tickets for the dance are priced at $1.20 stag and $2.40 drag and may be purchased after dinner at the table across from Dean Savage's old office or from any member of Orchesis.

Pete Weaver and his orchestra, the Virginians, who will provide the music for the May Day Dance, May 3.

LC Choir Will Sing In Joint Concert

On Monday, May 5, the Choir of Longwood College will go to Richmond for a joint performance with the choirs of Richmond Professional Institute, Hampden - Sydney College, and William and Mary College. According to Dr. John Molnar, head of the music department and director of the choir, the performance will take place in the WRVA Theater.

Each choir will sing several selections alone and combine for two choruses from Handel's "Messiah." Dr. Lester S. Burcher, State Supervisor of Music, will conduct the massed choruses.

The choir will join forces with the orchestra from Richmond Professional Institute for a joint concert on Saturday, May 17, in Jarman Hall. Each group will present a number of selections alone and will close the concert with several combined numbers.

A feature of the concert will be the performance of the first movement of the Mozart A Major Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, by Billie Dunlap, a junior music major of Longwood College.

The public is cordially invited to attend the concert, for which a small admission charge will be made. Tickets may be purchased from members of the choir or at the door.

Application Blanks May Be Obtained For Scholarships

Application blanks for state scholarships for the 1952-53 regular college session are now available in the President's office. All students who want one of these scholarships, including those students now holding a scholarship, must apply on the provided forms. Applications for the regular term scholarships will be received from April 1, 1952 to July 1, 1952.

Students of Virginia colleges, both state supported and private institutions, who are residents of Virginia and who are preparing to teach in Virginia are eligible for these scholarships. Cancellation is obtained by teaching one full school year immediately following graduation in the public elementary schools of the state, or by teaching specified subjects in the public high schools. The amount of the scholarships varies from $300 available to college juniors and seniors to $400 available to sophomores who plan to teach in the elementary grades.

Further information concerning these scholarships may be obtained from the President's office.

Competitive Award To Be Given By M & R

$1,000 competitive scholarship is being awarded by Miller and Rhoads, Inc., of Richmond, for one year of graduate study leading to a Master of Science in Retailing. This announcement has been made by Dr. Landrum of the Business Education Department.

This scholarship winner will enter the New York University School of Retailing next fall to engage in a program of advanced study and experience in the retail field, learning every detail of retail store operation. Any senior interested in the work of big department stores and the field of retailing see Dr. Landrum for rule booklets and application blanks. Entries must be in to the Scholarship Committee on or before May 3, 1952.

Dramatics Group Will Leave College On New York Trip Thursday, May 8

On Thursday, May 8, a group of Longwood students will leave Farmville for a three day stay in New York City under the sponsorship of the Dramatics Club. Dr. C. L. S. Earley, professor of speech and English, will accompany the group as chaperone.

While there, they will attend some of the shows now playing on Broadway and see the sights of the city.

Those making the trip will be Lois Ash, Mary Lou Barlow, Robert Bradshaw, Sylvia Bradshaw, Nancy Brown, Fifi Carter, Wanda Doll, Gaynell Edwards, Hazel Hart, Molly Hersmen, Lynn Hill, Becky Hines, Cleo Holladay, Dores Hoback, Harold Hutter, June Johns, Audrey Johnson, Isabelle Karnes, Beth Kent, and Claire Kreinbaum.

Also visiting the "Big City" will be Madison McClintic, Virginia Moon, Gene Moore, Mason Moore, Dorothy Morris, Ann Murphy, Anne Parsons, Patricia Parkins, Lucy Jane Parkinson, Nancy Purdum, Betsy Jean Robertson, Anna Mae Sanders, Betty Frances Scarborough, Marion Thompson, Edna Trader, Ann Carter Wendenburg and Elsie Wente.

Assistant Business Manager will be Mary Denny Wilson. Mary Denny, a sophomore from Danville, has also served on the '52 Virginian staff.

Mary Anne King will serve as photography editor while Polly Brothers will be literary editor. Anne Carter Wendenburg will will act as art editor.

Other staff members include Betty Abbitt, Mary F. Carter, Lou Kitts, Jean Carol Parker, Donnie Devine, Dorothy Vaden, Peggy Worthington, and Nancy Nelson.

R-M Singers Will Present Vocal Recital Friday Night

Methodist Group Sponsors Concert

The Randolph-Macon College Glee Club, composed of forty male voices, under the direction of Mr. William S. Troxell, will appear in concert, at Jarman Auditorium, Friday, at 8 p. m.

Included in the concert are sacred selections, folk music, spirituals, popular songs, semi-classics, and classics. One of th program's highlights is the "informal session", which features solos by Harold Smith, former soloist with the Princeton University Glee Club, and Bill Cashatt, collector of American folk-music.

The "Yellow Jacket" Glee Club, one of the oldest organizations of its type in the state of Virginia, is in the midst of their spring concert season and will appear all over the state in concert. They are also featured in an album of R. C. A. Victor recordings. This Victor album contains the recordings of all of the college's repertoire of school songs—the Alma Mater, the athletic songs, and several well known songs of popular note.

The program of music is being sponsored by the Wesley Foundation. A silver offering will be received.

Dean Savage Says Goodbye

As Mrs. Savage and I leave, we should like to take this means of saying goodbye to the students, faculty members, and administrative staff. During the five years that we have been here, we have come to love Longwood and all that it represents. It is truly difficult to leave.

We are grateful for your kindnesses, your assistance and cooperation in so many ways, and, above all, your friendship. We shall miss you greatly but we shall carry with us the pleasant memories of our stay in your midst.

May God bless each of you.

Sincerely,

William W. Savage

Holladay Wins Award Of Virginia Barter Theater

Cleo Call Holladay, sophomore from Suffolk, won the annual Barter Theater Apprenticeship at the state-wide audition which took place at Richmond Professional Institute, April 19. This audition was held for the purpose of selecting a young woman and a young man for positions at Barter Theater in Abingdon during the forthcoming summer season.

Cleo had previously won first place in the preliminary Richmond area auditions at R. P. I., April 11.

In the finals, Cleo competed with five girls who had won first places in the preliminary auditions held in various cities in the state.

Using the same dramatic selections with which she won the preliminary Richmond area audition, Cleo inacted a scene from The Madwoman of Chaillot, a play by Giraudoux in which she performed the leading role before Longwood audiences last year. She followed this with a pantomime and a reading.

As this year's female apprentice, Cleo will spend the summer working with the Barter Theater at Abingdon. She has not yet received word as to the exact date when she will start work, but she plans to leave for Abingdon shortly after the end of the school term.

Cleo, who is well-known as "the first lady of the Longwood stage," plans to make a career of the theater. She has already had valuable experience toward her goal with the Longwood Players, in a Little Theater Group, and in summer stock.

The final readings at R. P. I. were judged by Raymond Hodges, chairman of the committee on Barter Apprenticeship of the Virginia Speech and Drama Association, and by Roger Boyle of the University of Virginia.

Longwood Students Pick Top Candidate As Gen. Eisenhower

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Longwood students' choice for the next president of the United States.

Leading Democrat Is Sen. Kefauver

The results of yesterday's presidential preferential poll showed that General Dwight Eisenhower is Longwood student's first choice for the next president of the United States.

During the regular assembly program Tuesday, 485 members of the student body took part in Longwood's first mock primary sponsored by the Rotunda staff. The compiled results of the questionaires disclosed that 275 of the voters would vote for a Republican candidate in the November elections while 210 would cast their vote for a Democrat.

Eisenhower

Eisenhower was by far the favorite Republican candidate. 317 students indicated that they would vote for him in a Republican primary. Governor Earle Warren was second man among the Republican candidates and received 62 votes. Senator Robert Taft talleyed 57 and former Governor Harold Stassen 47. There were no write-in Republican candidates.

Senator Estes Kefauver led for the Democrat party with 301 votes. Senator Richard Russell had 104 students indicate that they would choose him in a Democrat primary. Other write-ins were President Harry Truman, 2; Representative Sam Raeburn, 2; and Governor Adlai Stevenson, 1.

Though the combined votes of both Democrats and Republicans showed Warren as second Republican candidate and Taft as third, those who would vote Republican in the November elections indicated that Taft was the second most popular candidate and Warren third.

Democrats

Interestingly enough, the Democrats agreed in their order of favorites with the over all voting for Democrat candidates.

The results of Longwood's first presidential preferential poll will be sent to the editor of the Cavalier Daily, University of Virginia's news paper, to be combined and compiled with the results of similiar polls being held in colleges all over Virginia. It is hoped that these polls will arouse more interest in the coming elections and perhaps gain national publicity for the participating schools.

Dr. Simkins Wins Fellowship Award To Assemble Book

Dr. Francis B. Simkins, associate professor of history, has been awarded a John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation Fellowship for the next academic year to enable him to collect materials for a biography of Jefferson Davis. Professor Simkins has a contract with Alfred A. Knopf, New York publisher, for the publication of the projected book.

In applying for the Guggenheim award the Longwood teacher pointed out that no book devoted wholly to the late president of the Confederacy has been published in the past fifteen years, whereas several dozen books are published annually on Davis' great antagonist, Abraham Lincoln. It is not his intention, Professor Simkins explains, to measure Davis by the Lincoln principles of democracy, nationalism, freedom, and military aggression against the opponents of these principles.

After graduating from the University of South Carolina, Professor Simkins studied at Columbia University where he was awarded the Ph.D. degree in 1926. Subsequent teaching posts have taken him to Randolph-Macon Woman's College, the University of North Carolina, Emory University, Louisiana State University, the University of Mississippi, and finally to Longwood College. He is the author of a number of studies of Southern history, among which is his widely-known "The South Old and New," and is currently writing a history of Virginia for use in the public schools.

Fire Chief Appointed

Jean Hodges, a sophmore from Buggs Island, has been recently appointed Chief Fire Warden for the 1952-53 session. Betty Abbitt of Lynchburg, who is serving as Chief now, will act as her assistant next year.

Jean, a physical education major, is serving on the A. A. Council and is active in interclass sports and activities. She is also a member of the Cotillion Club.

Past President Tells Pan-Hellenic Leaders For '52-53 Session

Officers of the Longwood College Pan-Hellenic Association have been selected, according to Betty Hancock, retiring president of the association.

The president of the Pan-Hellenic Association for the 1952-53 session will be Lillian Shelton, representative of Theta Sigma Upsilon sorority. Ann Mallory, representing Delta Sigma Epsilon, will be the new vice-president.

The new secretary will be Wanda Karlet, Sigma Sigma Sigma, and Libby McClung, as Alpha Sigma Alpha's representative, will be treasurer.

Pat Altwegg, Kappa Delta, has

It's Time To Think

Tuesday in assembly Longwood students were given an opportunity to vote in a political preferential poll. The results have been announced in this issue of the ROTUNDA and will be sent to the University of Virginia to be compiled with other results from colleges all over Virginia.

In this poll the student body examined a list of candidates and indicated that Eisenhower was their choice for the next occupant of the White House.

The ballot did not, however, ask for the reasons back of each choice. If it had, many voters would have been at a loss. How many students voted blindly? How many knew little or nothing about the candidates? How many voted by an "eenie meenie" process or followed the example of the person next to them? How many realized just how politically ignorant they were?

Many Longwood students have recently become "of age," and this election year for the first time in their lives will be eligible to vote. Surely they owe it to themselves and to their fellow citizens to become acquainted with the candidates—what they stand for. Even those who will not be casting a vote should also become well informed if for nothing more than to be able to carry on an intelligent conversation.

Americans are blessed with a democratic government won for them by the labors and sacrifices of their ancestors. Few stop to realize how truly lucky they are to have the right to choose their own governing officials. To deserve and capably carry out this trust one must decide what he wants in his leaders and look for the person who most nearly realizes this ideal. How can one know who is the best man unless he keeps well informed on current congressional and civic events and looks into the political past of the individual candidates?

Yesterday's "political" experience opened the eyes of many to a need for a little study before next November's election. As new voters or as future voters let's decide that NOW is the time to become well informed citizens.

A Vote Of Thanks

About this time last year, anywhere on the Longwood campus, the general opinion was that assemblies were one activity in which all students took part but which for the most part provided only a topic of complaint. And, the complaints were many—too long, too often, too dull, too monotonous.

These complaints were often well founded. Of course, limited facilities for assemblies greatly hampered the planning committee, but a long series of speakers is bound to become tiring in its very monotony. Because of lack of interest, students could be seen doing everything from knitting to sleeping in assembly. It was not hard to see that the student body was just plain bored.

In one year boredom has changed to interest.

Assembly programs this year have been tremendously improved and both student and faculty interest has soared. Aided, of course, by the new facilities of Jarman Hall variety has been much greater. The programs have been both entertaining and informative, ranging from round table discussions to musicals. The speakers chosen by the committee have been selected with thought and care with the interests of the students and the suitability of the speaker's own vocation and interests in mind. These speakers have become a highlight of the programs rather than something to dread. Religious discussions, current affairs, dramatic and musical events, an international lecturer from France, and the impressive ceremonies of AKG have made assemblies of special note. Another outstanding factor evidenced this year has been the increase in student participation such as the excellent programs given by the speech and drama departments. The addition of programs dealing with lighter topics as well as the more serious subjects have been welcomed by the student body.

Altogether, Longwood College students are highly gratified by this wonderful improvement, and at this time we would extend our appreciation for such good programs, to the faculty and student planning committees. Every program has had something to offer the student, and the year's schedule has contained variety and vitality. Assembly has become an event.

Compulsory, yes. But the question of compulsory attendance rose on the spur of the moment and vanished almost as quickly, students agreeing that the administration makes the rules! After all, assemblies are the only regular opportunity for the entire student body to meet together for the purpose of both entertainment and information.

Once more then let us say thanks to the committees for a good job. We think the year has been really outstanding.

The propoganda campaign with the "I like Ike" slogan seems to be reaping benefits, and perhaps the Republican Party will have a winner with the people's choice. Washington announced a few days ago that General Eisenhower will be relieved of his position as Commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and will be allowed to come home.

The problem of a successor as head of the NATO has not yet been announced, but all indications point to either General Matthew Ridgway or Alfred Gruenther. General Ridgway with his experience in Europe and in Tokyo will be the probable successor, although General Gruenther has had experience with NATO while working with Eisenhower.

The Republican Convention, which will take place in early summer, will probably pick Eisenhower, not because of his experience in government, but because of his appeal to the public. He appears to be gifted with an ability to coordinate the thinking of statesmen and generals. That is perhaps what this country needs — someone who is able to make wise decisions from the conclusions of experienced and trained experts. There is always one wheel which fits in with coordinating the other wheels to make the clock run. Maybe Eisenhower is the needed wheel in making the Washington watch tick.

Eisenhower will have competition, but if and when he wins he will have the backing of his Republican competition. Your vote is worth knowing what you are voting for. Consider now the background and future policies of this man.

Julie, Gertie, Rosie, Grace All Join the Roofward Race

by Joanne Steck

Yep! It's that time again. Its the time around ole L. C. when you see 'em every color—the lights, the darks, the mediums. You know when it's sun-bathing time at Longwood, it's really a curiosity. We have all types.

Now we have Rosie. She's the naturally dark type anyway, but, yet, she always stays on the roof the longest, gets the blackest and tries to run around with the "lilies" Some call it pride.

Then there's Gracie. She's the kind that really wants the tan, but by the time she's gotten her oil, sunglasses, movie-book, blanket, pillow, eye-pads, sun-cap, cigarettes, matches, coke, portable radio, cards, score-pad, pencil, writing paper and stamps all on the roof, the sun has gone down. And oh, well, it was a good day! !

Then there's Julie who lies on the roof for hours on end year after year—and year after year gets the most burn and blisters in the whole school, and peels off the most skin and complains the most.

Then of course there's Gertie who tries to run a race with polka-dot material and tries to make people think they've had one too many when they see that barge of freckles moving in masses down the hall.

One thing the frosh have got to look forward to when they move over to junior building is an even sun-tan—in some degree anyway. Just think no more blotches due to the constant convoy of painters who find it necessary to paint the roof of the Rotunda along 'bout this time every year.

Seriously, though, through it all keep your heads—will ya? Sunburn can be awful painful and harmful to boot. So be careful and don't land in the infirmary peeling off skin to make the time pass, 'Cause, even if you do, you're right back where you started from anyway with that creamy white skin. So please—as somebody once said, "Be moderate."

Campus Cogitations

by Naomi Reed

Everyone has recently signed up for her next year's room and roommate; therefore we thought an interesting question of the week would be: "What characteristics did you consider important when choosing your roommate for next year?"

Barbara Cotton: "I'd want my roommate to be considerate and also have some of the same interests I have."

Joan Pershing: "A sense of humor, pleasing personality and consideration."

Jean Anderson: "Consideration for one thing. I like a well-rounded girl."

Anne Hamner: "Full of life. She's friendly."

Isabel Karnes: "A sense of humor."

Phyllis Powell: "She should have a consideration for her roommate's feelings."

Helen Waitman: "Any poor mortal that can stand it — not particular."

Betty West: "I believe in cooperation in keeping the room clean and all.

Phoebe Warner "Plenty of money, lots of boxes of food from home, good looking clothes (that will fit me). I looked for all these things but couldn't find any of them, so I decided to keep my same old roommate.

Shirley Ward: Well, Roomie, you can't have everything.

Frances Evean: "Being understanding."

Sadie Bain: "Neat and friendly."

Frances Evans: "Being undergood disposition is most important."

Nancy Birdsall: "I want a roommate who does her studying during study hour and doesn't stay up late."

Audrey Powell: "I want her to be congenial and understanding."

Ann Bell: "Someone who is patient and waits for me when I'm slow."

Martha Elder: "One who knows when to be quiet."

Wanda Doll: "Someone who can get me up in time for breakfast."

LeWana Rutland: "I like a roommate you can meet on equal terms, also one who follows the Golden Rule."

Gladys Baker: "A willingness to give and take."

Barbara Southern: "She should be considerate of my wishes as I would be of hers.

Social Notes

by Carolyn Stanley

Spring is here, ushering in severe cases of spring fever, baking protoplasm on the roof and Longwood girls suffering from headaches caused by overwork while trying to decide just which spring dances to attend this week end! But it looks like they made some pretty good choices and we hope everyone had a "goodie"! !

V. P. I.

Soft lights, dreamy music and a host of Longwood socialites made the Tech Spring dances, a huge success this year. Among those who attended were Nan Picinich, Joyce Welsh, Marlene Lucas, Bobbie Allen, Elsie Ray Page, Faith Smith and Pat Donnally. Also, Liz Crockett, Margie Smallwood, Pat McLemore, Ann Keith Hundley, Barbara Caskey, and Shirley Livesay. Several others that were there included Mary Moore Karr, Eloise Macon, Pattie Deering, Marty Miller, Nancy Walker, Jane Bailey, Cindy Mims, Jean Lynch Hobbs, and Barbara Allen.

Davidson

Nancy Nelson, Natalie Lancaster, and Janice Pinkard all journeyed to North Carolina where they attended the spring dances at Davidson College.

Duke University

Lucy Page Hall attended the Spring dances at Duke University with Ted Kennedy.

Annapolis

Donnie Devine went to Annapolis, Maryland this week end and attended the Easter dances at the Annapolis Naval Academy there.

Engaged

Emma Wilson received a beautiful diamond ring from Charles Jordan, who is now working in Staunton, Virginia.

Jean Hamilton, also received a beautiful diamond from Mike Lafoon of Farmville, Virginia.

And Claudia Hood came back with a diamond and a Pi Kappa Alpha pin from Tommy Bradshaw who is a senior at North Carolina State.

Many congratulations, girls! !

University of Virginia

Connie Rice and Lucille Humphries were among those that attended the Kappa Sigma cabin party this past week end.

Grace Booker, Gail Dixon, Betty Basemore, and Jo Anne Yow also went to the University.

Kappa Sigma Picnic

Shirley Perkins, Nellie Lucy, and Jane Mallory all went to Ashland last week end and attended the Kappa Sigma picnic at Randolph Macon College.

Washington and Lee

Spring dances were also held at Washington and Lee this past week end and Maria Jackson, Mary Jo Davis, and Dee Steger all attended and had a big time!

Idiotic Interview

by Barbara Caskey

Today, as Spring has finally sprung and Mae has finally dropped around, we have decided to speak to a well-known personage on this campus—one who probably knows and has seen more of the students in this college than any other person in the administration or on the faculty, with the possible exception of the painters—Mr. Sun (I hope you didn't miss anything in that last sentence.) First just a little bit about Mr. Sun. He was married in 1952 to the former Miss Johnnie Rae-Burn and now they are the proud parents of Three Suns — who, by the way, sing like their mother.

Q. Please, Mr. Sun, tell us about your occupation.

A. I am a tanner, you know, I make great things out of leather, with the devoted help of my dog freckles. You might not know it, but lots of these girls are pretty low-down so both of us are always very busy.

Q. To what do you attribute your great success?

A. Bikini and Yudini.

Q. What is your biggest disappointment?

A. I'm very near-sighted.

Q. Marvin! How about a parting word?

A. Roses and blondes are red
Poppies and brunettes, too
Pansies and redheads are spotted
But lilies are white—Nasty breaks! !

Mass Practices Will Begin For Scandinavian Festival

The first mass rehearsal for "Scandinavian Festival", the annual May Day celebration which will be staged in the ampitheatre at Longwood Dell on May 3 at 2:30 p. m., has been set for tomorrow night starting at 6 p. m. in the college gymnasium according to Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, Associate Professor of Physical Education.

Two hundred and fifteen dancers will take part in the pageant this year. "Scandinavian Festival" which will be divided into three episodes, Midsummer's Eve, Midsummer's Fires, and Midsummer's Day will give students who have never had dance before an opportunity to perform. Also taking part will be members of Orchesis and other students with a dance background.

With the music of Grieg, and the traditional folk songs and dances of the peoples of Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Finland, Scandinavian Festival will become Longwood's first all folk pageant. "Scandinavian Festival" is one of three festivals stemming from folk song and dance. "Waltz Ballad", which traced the development of the waltz was staged in 1950. "Polka Mania" followed in 1951. "Scandinavian Festival" was to have been an exposition of the schottische as another derived and stylized form of dance. It became so interwoven with both the polka and the waltz that its identity as a dance form in the same sense as the polka and waltz was lost. Folkways became the dominant theme with song and dance forming the substance and core.

Students Sign Up For Tennis Match

Winners Receive Color Cup Points

Tennis doubles will begin soon. All those who wish to play must be signed up on the A. A. bulletin board by Thursday at six o'clock.

The first round of the tournament will begin Friday. This must be played off by May 2 and all games must be played off by May 15.

The list of players in the first match will be posted Friday morning on the A. A. bulletin board.

Thus far, more red and whites than green and whites have signed up. Students are reminded that these games count for color cup points, and are asked to come out to support their classes, as there is very little time left before time to present the color cup.

Athletic Association Council Has Installation of Officers In Small Auditorium Mon.

Tyler Installed New President

The Athletic Association Council held installation service on Monday, April 21, in the small auditorium. Betty Tyler, incoming president, was installed by outgoing president, Nancy Walker. Betty then installed as vice-preasident, Clara Borum; as secretary, Patsy Sanford; and as treasurer; Else Wente.

Next followed the installation of sports managers and committee members. Nell Bradshaw will serve as varsity basketball manager. Sue Webb will be varsity hockey manager.

Class basketball games will be managed by Mary Ann Ward and Virginia Burgess. Class hockey will be managed by Hilda Hartis and Helen Waitman. In charge of class volleyball will be Caroline McDonald and Jean Baber.

Installed as recreation managers were Betty Abbitt and Mary Dabney Langhorne. Swimming managers will be Ann Crowder and Roberta Wiatt. Archery and tennis will be managed by Jean Hodges and Ann Parkinson, respectively. In charge of golf will be Beverly Marsh. Mary Lou Barlow will be in charge of softball.

Installed as the publications committee were Eleanor Koch, Ann Carter Wendenburg, and Mason Moore. The social committee will consist of Johanna Biddlecomb, chairman; Helen Castros, Lucy Thwing, Joan Ward, Frances Motley, and Juanita Hudson.

+ SENIOR SPOTLIGHT +

There seems to be one brown eyed, brown haired senior who delights in telling jokes. Her friends say these jokes are quite corny and that this senior is always giggling, but I'm sure all get lots of laughs from this good-natured gal, and I'm positive she's loved by all who know her. This little maid also has a fascination for of all things — dyed chickens. She says she loves eating and trips to Virginia Beach.

An active member of many organizations, this senior now serves as Business Manager of the Virginian. She is also a member of Kappa Delta Sorority, Westminister Fellowship, and Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalistic fraternity.

Still guessing? In that case, here's another clue. You can't miss when you find out that cute lil' girl is president of the Association of Childhood Education.

The saying "Yo Yo Carlo" is a sure-shot trademark of this senior gal in question. This little blue-eyed, brunette lady also has a special habit of not wearing her socks. The senior on which the spotlight is shining this week is an elementary major and is now teaching the first grade in the training school. She has a very special interest in baseball and Hampden - Sydney, also spending summers at Craig Healing Springs.

What more need I say after I've said that this young lass has slaved her senior year away working at the post of president of the Y. W. C. A. She is also a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity; Pi Kappa Sigma, social sorority; Future Teachers of America and Association of Childhood Education, educational clubs. Student Standards and Student Government also claim her membership. This senior was selected as one of the college members of Who's Who for the past year.

Can you guess? If not, tune in next week and learn the identity of our "Miss of Mystery."

Dunlap Will Present Classical Recital On Saturday, May 4, In Jarman Hall

On Sunday, May 4, at 4 p. m. in Jarman Hall, Billie Dunlap will be presented in a piano recital.

The program for Billie's recital has been announced and will include "Sarabande" by Rameau-Godowsky, "Prelude and Fugue in E Minor" by Bach, "Sonata in E flat major" by L. Van Beethoven, "Papillons" by Shumann, and Chopin's "Nocturne in F sharp minor." Also, she will play "The Maiden and the Nighingale" by Granados; "Six Little Piano Pieces" by Schoenberg and Debussy's "Ministrels."

On Sunday, May 11 at 4 p. m., Lura Beavers will give her recital and on May 9, Friday evening at 8 p. m., there will be a general recital of nine students. Presented at that time will be Gwendolyn Michael, Sarah Harvie, Helen Sue McNeil, Lura Beavers, Sally Wilson, Mary Evelyn Bennett, Betty Goodson, Nancy Jones, and Jane Branch. These May recitals are an annual event of the Music Department.

May Day Festivities Set For Saturday

'Melody In May' Dance Will Climax Celebration

"Melody in May," the queen and her court, and Pete Weaver's Virginians will join to set the tempo for the 1952 May Dance to be held in the College gymnasium Saturday, May 3 at 8 p. m.

The dance will center above the theme "Melody in May" which is to be carried out in decorations, music, and the figure by the May Court Pink, aqua, white and lavender will be the colors used to decorate. The ceiling will resemble a Maypole and the walls will be hung with streamers and sheets of music picturing the words and music of May Day songs. Figures dressed in May Day costumes complete the decorations.

Featured event of this, the last formal dance of the college session, will be the figure performed by the May Queen and her court of college beauties. The figure will carry out the dance theme, but the exact nature of it will not be revealed until that night.

Pete Weaver and his Virginians, from Emporia, will provide the music for the evening. They are expected to play songs with a spring theme to help set the mood for the dance. The Virginians have played for several other Longwood dances.

Members of the faculty and administration who have been invited to chaperone the dance are Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Coyner, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Landrum, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Brumfield.

Tickets for the dance, priced at $1.20 stag and $2.40 drag, may be purchased after dinner at the table across from Dean Savage's old office or from any member of Orchesis.

The May Day Dance is sponsored annually by Orchesis, the college modern dance group. Advisor to the group is Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, professor of physical education.

College President Attends Meeting Held At Richmond

Dr. Lancaster Talks On Education Phase

This past week end, Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster attended a meeting of the Virginia Social Science Association at the University of Richmond.

"The morning session was devoted to the present political situation, led by the managing editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, Mr. Colbourne," remarked Dr. Lancaster. Mr. Colbourne attended the President's recent press conference and will represent the Richmond papers at both political conventions this year.

On Saturday afternoon, a panel discussion was held dealing with Federal and state responsibilities in the fields of education, public welfare, public health, and economics and business.

Dr. Lancaster talked on the educational phase of the discussion; Dr. W. C. Sanger of Randolph-Macon, on public health; Senator Charles Fenwick of Arlington, on public welfare; and Dr. W. H. Stauffer, Research Director of the State Chamber of Commerce, on economics and business.

Dr. Edward Gregory, President of the Association, and a professor of Sociology at the University of Richmond, spoke at the evening meeting. Colonel Herbert Fitzroy, Director of the Richmond University Center, also delivered a message at that time.

Attending the meeting with Dr. Lancaster were Dr. C. G. G. Moss, Dr. Francis B. Simpkins, and Dr. M. W. Schlegel.

On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week, Dr. Lancaster will represent the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education at a conference called by the Federal Office of Education for the Preparation of Teachers for the Elementary Schools in Washington.

Science Students Make Field Trips

During the past week, students from both the biology and geography departments made all day field trips to out of town places that are of special interest to their particular types of study.

On Friday, April 25, accompanied by Dr. Robert Brumfield, associate professor of biology, the members of Longwood's biology seminar journeyed to Gloucester Point to the Virginia Fisheries Laboratory.

The trip was made to observe the laboratory, methods of conservation, and various types of marine life. Dr. L. J. McHugh, director and secretary of the laboratory, met the group and pointed out the necessity of the bureau and the work it is doing.

Longwood students making the trip were Marian Beckner, Lou Jamison, Mary Meade Robertson, and Jackie Lackey.

On Thursday, April 24, the geology class under the leadership of Dr. Charles Lane, head of the geography department, also went on an all day field trip covering about 250 miles through the Piedmont, Blue Ridge, and Ridge and Valley regions.

The different classes of rocks were studied in each region, and the ages of the rocks were also observed.

A highlight of the trip was a conducted tour through the Calco Chemical Division of the

Jones Reveals Names Of Committee Heads

Ann Jones, incoming president of Y. W. C. A., has announced the new committee heads. The girls who will have charge of the various committees are Ann Carter Wendenburg, Helen Barrow, Nell Cake, Joyce Cutrell, and Nancy Nelson as chairman of Membership, Social, Service, Library, and Sing committees respectively.

Also, Bobbie Assaid, Ann Crowder, Carolyn Stanley, Dolly Horne, and Fay Greenland will head Public Affairs, Church Cooperative, Publicity, Music, and Prayers committee respectively.

JEAN RIDENOUR, who will serve as maid-of-honor to the 1952 queen.

FRANCES TURNER, who will reign as queen of the 1952 May Day festivities.

College President Selects Ridenour Festival Princess

Jean Ridenour, a senior from Richmond, has been selected by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster to represent Longwood College as princess at the twenty-fifth Annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival to be held on May 1 and 2 at Winchester.

She will serve along with 35 other princesses from Virginia and surrounding states as attendants to the queen, Nina Warren, daughter of Gov. Earl Warren of California. Among the activities planned for the two days will be a tour of the apple orchards, formal luncheons and dinners, parades, Princesses' Ball, Queen's Ball and the Coronation and Pageant.

Jean is president of Alpha Kappa Gamma, vice-president of the senior class, figure leader of Cotillion Club, and a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma social sorority. Also, she is on the A. A. Council, in Who's Who, and active in varsity sports.

Dr. Wynn Publishes "General Education," New Book On Theory

A new book on the theory and practice of general education by Dr. John P. Wynne, professor of education and philosophy at Longwood College, has just been released by Bookman Associates, New York publishers.

In "General Education," Dr. Wynne analyses the aims, techniques, tools, and pitfalls of this new educational concept. He delineates the roles that administrators, faculty members, and students must play in the construction of a total program of general education. It is his aim, states the Longwood philosopher, "to assist in the systematic, critical analysis of the idea of general education."

Dr. Wynne wrote "General Education" for use as a textbook, as a reference work, or as general reading on the subject. His acomplishment in his latest work has been called "a landmark in the development of education in the twentieth century" by Dr. E. George Payne, vice-president of New York University.

College Gets Applications For 1952-'53

One hundred sixty students have applied for admission to enter Longwood next fall according to Mrs. Mary Watkins, executive secretary.

These applications have come from West Virginia, North Carolina, New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania and 55 Virginia counties. The largest number of applicants come from the Roanoke, Richmond, and Norfolk areas and Mecklenburg County.

Applications have also come from west of Roanoke, Montgomery, Pulaski, Wythe, Tazewell, and Wise counties. However, the majority of applicants were sent in by students in Eastern sections of the state. To date there are 45 counties from which no applications have been received. Of these Botetourt, Bedford, Buchanan, Fluvanna, Louisa, and Greensville are installing the 12 year school system this year and will not have any graduates. Longwood normally receives several applications from these six counties.

According to Mrs. Watkins, the 160 applications are a normal number for this time of year. At this time the number of students is very tentative and many changes will be made before September.

Association Selects Longwood Professor President Of Group

Dr. Charles Lane, head of the Longwood geography department, was elected president of the Virginia Geographical Society at the fifth annual meeting of the group held at Longwood, on April 19.

Peter T. Sardo, assistant professor of geography, was named counsellor. Other officers were also elected. C. W. Crittenden of the department of geography at the University of Virginia was chosen vice-president. Miss Rosalind Carter of John Marshall High School in Richmond was elected secretary.

Dr. Lane has been a member of the Longwood faculty for two years. Before taking up his duties here, he was assistant professor of geography and geology for three years at the University of Georgia.

Students Will Present 'Scandinavian Festival'

With the traditional folk songs and dances of Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Finland, "Scandinavian Festival" will be the theme of the 1952 May Day celebration at Longwood. 215 students will present this first all folk festival in the Longwood Estate amphitheater at 2:30 p. m., on Saturday.

Frances Turner, from Cheriton, will be crowned Queen of May Day. Reigning over the festivities with her will be Jean Ridenour, Maid of Honor, from Richmond. They, with a court of class beauties, will be presented at the pageant Saturday.

Bunny Ricks, Pat Tuggle, and Martha Alice Wilson will represent the senior class in the processional. Junior court members will be Betty Abbitt, Kitty Hamlet, Ann Murphy, Margaret Steele, and Margaret Taylor. Mary Ann Breslin, Elizabeth Crockett, Ann Foster, Sylvia Reames, and Faith Smith are sophomore representatives. Freshmen Barbara Assaid, Frances Motley, and June Page will also appear in the court.

"Scandinavian Festival" will portray in dance the traditional Scandinavian holiday of Midsummer. The celebration of the longest day of the year, June 24, is of ancient origin. It was originally called "St. John the Baptist Day."

The May pageant will be divided into three parts, each depicting a part of the celebration.

Midsummer Eve

"Midsummer Eve" the first episode takes place in the eerie shadows of the night before June 24. On that night the supernatural, the enchanted, and the evil portray the magic of the season. On Midsummer's Eve all magic, both good and bad, is particularly potent. Members of Orchesis and Modern Dance classes will perform the Dance of the Good, Dance of the Evil, and Dance of the Wraith in this scene.

Episode II, "Midsummers Fires," portrays the ancient fire rites when fires are kindled to drive away the evil spirits. Crowds of lovers gather for the merry-making under a midsummer moon. In this scene, freshman classes will portray the village young people in singing and dancing to traditional Scandinavian songs.

Midsummer Day

"Midsummer Day" concludes the May Day pageant. The day is culminated with the gay and colorful May Pole dance.

The last scene centers around the May Court processional whose first appearance will be inconspicuously in the crowds of dancers in the second episode. All of the 215 participants will encircle the May Pole singing and dancing in the last colorful finale scenes.

A group of committees directed by Mrs. Emily Landrum has produced this May Day Festival. Co-chairmen of May Day are Marian Beckner and Eleanor Weddle with Winnie Murdock as business manager. Isabelle Karnes and Joan Pershing head the costume committee, Margie Hood, dance committee; and Betty Goodson the music committee. Staging is under the direction of Betty Tyler and Sue Webb while Laura Lee Fritts was transportation chairman.

LC Art Students To Display Works In Annual Exhibit

Display Opens May 5 In Art Dept.

The annual student art exhibit will go on display in the art department and the browsing room of the library on Monday, May 5, and will continue through May 9. This annual exhibit is representative of the types of art work completed by the students in the department during the year and includes a variety of mediums and subject matter.

Outstanding in the exhibit is the work of 6 upperclassmen art majors. These are Margie Steele, Blanton Ferguson, Mary Jean Sandvig, Bunny Ricks, Mary Moore Karr, and Gene Moore.

The feature of the exhibit will be the oil paintings hung in the browsing room. Also featured will be a one man watercolor show by Margaret Perrow. This will be displayed in the entrance hall to the art department.

Works on exhibition will include examples of drawing, painting, design, color, oil painting, water color, crafts and art education.

The exhibits will be from all classes and will include work by both art majors and non-majors.

Work by five outstanding freshmen art majors will also be shown. Ann Carter Wendenburg, Mary Need, Carolyn Stanley, Patsy Waite, and Margaret Perrow are majors exhibiting for the first time.

According to Mrs. Janice Lemen, assistant professor of art, Lucy Jane Morton, Harold Griffin, Elizabeth Forrest, Joan Prichard, Mathews and Betty Jones have done outstanding work in oil painting.

Other students whose work will be represented in the art exhibit are Barbara Assaid, Janet Cline, and Mary Anne King. Beth Kent, Marlene Lucas, and Clair Davis will also contribute selections.

Underclassmen Elect New Class Officers

Election of officers for the 1952-53 session have been completed.

The sophomore class elected Ann Moore, secretary, of next year's junior class with Joyce Cutrell as treasurer. Serving as Student Standards representatives will be Lib Boswell and Lou Kitts.

Nancy Franklin was chosen treasurer for next year's sophomore class. Barbara Assaid and Shirley Ward will serve on Student Standards. Re-elected to act as class sponsor is Miss Nancy Chambers.

CORRECTION

The Rotunda staff wishes to correct an error made in the last issue. Faith Smith, a sophomore member of Theta Sigma Upsilon socail sorority, will serve during the 1952-53 session as president of the Pan-Hellenic Council.

Be Satisfied

Maytime and roses and room assignments—it is that time of year again, when Longwood's students can be seen scurrying back and forth between Ruffner, Tabb, and Cunningham Halls, deciding upon their room and floor preferences for next year. There is the familiar routine of filling out application blanks with all the required information and leaving them in the Dean's office. Suspense, mystery—will it be the room requested or the one on the end with the drab view of the back drive?

Every student wants her room to be near her best friend's; to be convenient to telephones, pressing rooms, kitchen, and stairs; to have sun in the morning, noon and afternoon; and to have all new furniture. Rooms and roommates are among the most important parts of college life, and every girl, naturally, wants hers to be perfect.

Sometimes, however, it must seem to those who make the room assignments that only one room in each dormitory fits these requirements and that the entire enrollment of each class desires to live on the same floor. By simple mathematics, one can see that it is impossible for six girls to live where two are supposed to fit.

Thus, it is a particularly hard job that the Dean of Women and her assistant have in making room assgnments. It requires diplomacy and tact to please every girl, and, usually, the majority of girls are satisfied. The method by which assignments are made is the one which is most satisfactory to all and more often than not everyone finds that she is well pleased with her room for the coming year.

Many colleges give their student bodies no choice at all as to where they will live. Students draw slips from a hat, are assgned alphabetically, or get thier rooms in some other equally impersonal manner. Longwood students should realize how lucky they are to have so much voice in the question of where they will live.

It is a part of Longwood's good sportsmanship policy to understand and accept the decisions which the administration has made. We should appreciate the fact that assigning rooms is a long and complicated task and should show our appreciation by being satisfied with the assignments we receive.

Farewell

In the few days that Dean Savage has been away from Longwood, the student body has keenly felt his absence. They have missed his friendly word of greeting in the hall, his understanding word of advice, his quiet work "behind the scenes." Indeed it is hard to believe that the person who had become such an indisepnsable part of Longwood has actually left for good.

Last Wednesday night the student body joined in giving the Savages a farewell sernade. As they stood in front of the familiar white house on Pine Street, many were suddenly struck with the realization that the man who had been their Dean through the whole of their college career was leaving Longwood. No longer would he be on hand to approve their schedules, to advise them on their problems or to perform all the multitude of little jobs that a Dean has on his shoulders. Yes, the man who had served as a member of the administration for five years was leaving to assume a new position.

Longwood has profited much by Dean Savage's stay. While here, he instigated many needed changes and improvements. It is hoped that the administration will continue to follow the practices which he initiated. Among other things, Dean Savage was influential in the change to spring registration for classes and in the doing away with the professor's signature on absence slips.

Besides helping along administrative lines, Dean Savage was also a personal aid to many students. More than one bewildered girl turned to the Dean as one person who could be depended on for good sound advice.

Though there were pangs of regret and sorrow in the hearts of the student body last Friday, when in midst of an April downpour, the Savages and their furniture left Farmville for Chicago, most Longwood students realized that their friend was leaving to assume the position of coordinator of the program consultant services of the Midwest Administration Center at the University of Chicago. This is a promotion for Dean Savage and Longwood's best wishes for success go with him.

Thus the students of Longwood join in saying thank you, Dean Savage, for your invaluable service during the past five years and the best of luck to you in the future.

The human mind is a wonderful thing. There is no point in making an issue of the superiority of the human mind over the other animal minds, or of the superiority of some minds over others, since by this time every college student is well aware or he isn't capable of awareness. Some people are today criticizing their contemporaries for not using their intellect to full capacity, and maybe this is just criticism, although there have been individuals who have made this stab at mankind for generations. Evidently there is some gram of truth in this.

The art of concentration seems sadly lacking in our college today. Many students study while listening to a conversation. Sure, he can say he went over the lesson, but it did seem vague. Well, why not? He probably knows more about the conversation than text materials.

This whole topic is really aimed at the end-of-the-term rush to finish up term papers, parallel, reading, text reading, and any left-over projects. There is a difference between running through this work and acquiring a vague idea of the subject matter, and of concentrating and deriving some knowledge from it. Why go to college if you don't want to learn? There are certainly less regimented ways of passing four years. With only five more weeks of the semester remaining, why not make them productive and of personal value?

"Scandinavian Festivals"

Social Notes

by Carolyn Stanley

With the big May Day week end on its way, cabin parties galore and a host of other things to keep them busy (not to mention the big dance down yonder a piece) the Longwood gals, for the most part, stayed pretty close to home.. never a dull moment though!

Hampden-Sydney

Our own "other half" staged their final dances this past week end and everyone seemed to agree that they were tops! As per usual the Longwood girls were well represented (and chaperones, too!) at the gala occasion! Among those that attended were Pat Aitwegg, Sadie Bain, Dot Baldwin, Betty Bentley, Barbara Blackman, Sis Burton, Judy Cable, Mary Cowles, Ellen Brent Dize, Martha Donaldson, and Blanton Ferguson.

Also there and looking their best were Betty Lou Garrett, Jeanne Hobbs, Peggy Ilyus, Joyce Karlett, Beth Kent, Pat Lee, Louise Lloyd, June Manlove, M. Katherine Miller, Harriet Minichan, Ann Murphy, Betty Ann Myers, Nancy Norfleet, Stokes Overbey, Ann Ross, Jean Southern, and Betty Jane Staples.

Others that attended were Pat Taylor, Mattie Thomas, Martha Tomlinson, Ruthie Van Houten, Carolyn Vanture, Ann Carter Wendenburg, (pause for breath) Phoebe Warner, Donna Kunkler, Jo Ann Yow, Joyce Hunt, Mary Ann King, Patsy Lynch, Liz Crockett, and Moneda Key — whew! A Madison girl couldn't have gotten in, if she tried! Ho! ho!

V. M. I.

The Easter dances at V.M.I. were held this week end, too, and several girls attended, among them, Mary Ann Breslin and Diane Murray.

Ann Bryan also attended the dances and while there she received a V.M.I. minature from Swede Larson-mucho congrats, Ann!

University of Virginia

Visiting at U. Va. this week end were Betty Bazemore and Fan Phillips.

V.P.I.

Mary Brame and Betty Barnes visited their cadets at Teeh this past week end.

Engaged

Dawn Estridge received a diamond from Jimmie Stout this past week end and wedding bells will be ringing soon I hear! Best of luck to you, Duffy!

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

(Seniors in last week's spotlight were "Cookie" Cook and Mary Crawford.)

"Five foot two, eyes of blue," describes this mystery senior who is appearing in the spotlight.

This busy girl is probably best known for her work as editor of the Colonnade.

At present she is looking forward to what is to be her most exciting moment—getting married. Her roommate declares that this Miss talks in her sleep of bridesmaids and how many more days until June 14.

This secret lass is an English major and is now experiencing true excitement in her student teaching. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, Kappa Delta Pi, Boerc Eh Thorn, and Longwood Players. Miss G was chosen to be in Whole Who among seniors and was vice-president of Zeta Tau Alpha, social sorority.

If you're still in a daze maybe things will be clearer when I tell you she has a special interest in a student at Washington and Lee. As of late this senior has taken up tumbling and has become quite a sport.

Long, lean, and lanky, with big feet, and a red raincoat, is the young lady who has been chosen as one of the outstanding members of the senior class.

During her four years at Longwood, this secret Miss has become noted for her wide variety of interests and capabilities. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Pi Delta Epsilon, Future Teachers of America, Kappa Delta, and the college choir. She was also chosen to be in Who's Who and Alpha Kappa Gamma leadership fraternity. This outstanding senior reigned as queen of Circus and was recently revealed as a member of Chi. She is president of the Spanish Club.

For those of you who need still more hints to her identity, she hails from Lexington, Virginia, and is known throughout school for the way she sings the song, "A Good Man Is Hard To Find." This gal also likes camping, and I imagine she's the life of any camping party she attends.

Idiotic Interview

by Barbara Caskey

Rain, rain, go away!
Little Sally wants to play.
How can Sally sit in the sand,
If the rain has come and not the man?

Mr. Mackintosh was going to speak to us today, but he has gone hunting because it's fowl weather. We would like to give you a public service feature, however—the weather report.

Havana, Cuba: a Cuba ice moved on Havana last night.

Moscow, USSR: Something has very definitely gone wrong.

London, England: The weather has been kind to our fair city. The fog has lifted, and as I walk out of my door (slam, crash, ouch!), window, I can see the leaning tower of Pisa.

Rome, Italy: It is rather rainy here. We just lost the isle of Sicly.

Hollywood, U.S.A.: At their present personal appearance, the City "Slickers" are enjoying much popularity — playing "Drip, Drip, Drip, Sloppy Lagoon."

Haiti: We Haiti weather.

Bull Moose, Jacksonville: The favorite song here is "Drinking Muddy Water."

Quebec: Contradictory; Canada Dry, Sparkling Water.

Farmville, Virginia: The town is washing away. All the students at the college are fighting for the flood-free third floor dormitory rooms.

Mexico City, Mexico: Cold today, but Hot Tomale!

Learn anything?

I've been asked to announce that the dining room will serve Hungarian Goulashes tomorrow evening.

Now wouldn't you know it would stop raining just when I thought I was giving you a scoop!

That nasty rain
It went away
So I'm left with an inch
And nothing to say.

Campus Cogitations

by Naomi Reed

Now that summer vacation is only a month away, to what do you look forward most?

Mary Jane Tyus: "Loafing."

Carolyn Van Ture: "Going to the beach and playing."

Barbara Allen: "Rest."

Ellen Sinton: "Work and play as usual."

Julia Rowe: "Sleeping."

Joan Curles: "I'm looking forward to the first week end when school's out and the parties at the beach."

Barbara Mitchell: "Summer school."

Mary Lou Burnette: "Home cooking and plenty of sleep."

Margie Smallwood: "Beach parties and slot machines."

Barbara Hough: "Same as Margie."

Dot Baldwin: "Relaxation."

Pat Bodkins: "Raymond."

Mason Moore: "I ain't looking forward to nothing."

Anne Parsons: "Just Willie."

Betty Goodson: "The joy of summer school."

Eugenia Korahaes: "Fun at the beach."

Gaynelle Edwards: "Being able to ride to the movies instead of walking."

Hazel Hartis: "I'm looking forward to living; instead of just existing."

Nancy Taylor: "Lazy living."

Jeanne Lynch Hobbs: "Masses of men."

"Skee" Gillikin: "To a summer time job and going to Illinois."

Matilda Creasy: "Summer school."

Hilda Brown: "Sleep and food."

Jean Partridge: "Getting out of school for three months."

Betty Tuck: "Working on the farm and painting."

Dot Boswick: "Eight very hot, very boring, and very uneventful weeks at Longwood College."

Celeste Bishop: "Just make up something and write it down."

Betty Jo Jennings: "Not quotable."

Crowder and Wiatt Announce Dates For Intercollegiate Swimming Meet And Annual Color-Cup Competition

Two swimming meets have been scheduled to take place in the Longwood pool during next week, according to Ann Crowder and Roberta Wiatt, new swimming managers.

On Monday, May 5, Longwood will take part in a Virginia Intercollegiate telegraphic swimming meet. Ann explained that in a telegraphic meet each college swims in its own pool and wires the results to the sponsoring school.

The annual swimming competition between the Red and White and Green and White classes will be held on Wednesday, May 7. This year many unusual events are being featured. The events include a 10 yard kicking race, a 25 yard free style, a 20 yard side stroke, a 50 yard back stroke, a 10 underwater race, and a 50 yard breast stroke.

Other events are the 20 yard free relay, a 100 yard free style, a 15 yard individual medley, a 150 yard medley relay, and a 25 yard pajama race.

Thus far more Red and Whites than Green and Whites have signed up.

Swimmers are urged to come out and support their colors. The variety of events should provide a chance for everyone from the beginner to the senior life saver.

Barlow Announces Softball Date Set

Mary Lou Barlow, newly installed softball manager, has announced that dates for the softball tournament have been tentatively set as May 5, 6, and 7.

To be eligible to play in the tournament, the students are required to have the usual eight practices. Mary Lou added that freshmen who are now playing softball in Miss Brockenbrough's and Miss Iler's gym classes need only four practices.

Tournaments in all sports must be played off by May 15.

Alpha Kappa Gamma Honors Miss Burger With Recognition Pin

The National Organization and local officers of Alpha Kappa Gamma presented Miss Elizabeth Burger, associate professor of Science, with a jeweled pin. The pin was given in recognition of her eight years' outstanding services as national executive secretary.

Miss Burger, has been a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma since she was initiated into the Joan Circle while a student at Longwood College. Although she has recently resigned her national office, she will remain closely affiliated with AKG as advisor for the local chapter.

"Miss Burger has been so keenly interested in AKG that she has practically made it her life's work," was the tribute made to her by Jean Ridenour, president of the Joan Circle. The presentation of the pin was made at a recent meeting of the Longwood chapter at which time those girls who were tapped at the last Alpha Kappa Gamma chapel program were iniated into the organization.

LIBRARY WILL DISPLAY ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATIONS

An exhibition of original children's book illustrations will be on display in the Browsing and Periodical Rooms of the college library on May 14.

Dr. Simonini Writes Essay

Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr., professor of English at Longwood College, has contributed an essay to a volume of Renaissance Studies just published by the University of North Carolina. In his study of "The Italian Pedagogy of Claudius Hollyband," Dr. Simonini analyses and evaluates the work of Claudius Hollyband, a refugee teacher and scholar living in Elizabethan England.

Dr. Simonini studies particularly the innovations in both method and materials of Hollyband in the development of early language teaching techniques. Hollyband, concludes the Longwood professor, was one of the first writers to emphasize an early reading facility of a foreign language rather than becoming entangled in rules of grammar at the outset.

LC Radio Shows Change Air Time

As a result of time changes, "News and Views," a weekly program presented by Longwood, is now heard every Monday at 5 p. m. instead of 3 p. m. Jeanne Lynch Hobbs is student reporter for the program.

Also the Longwood Hour is now heard at 5:15 p. m. on Thursdays instead of 4:30 p. m. Jeanne acts as announcer for the broadcast. These time changes are a result of the opening of the baseball season.

Tomorrow, the Longwood Hour will feature a fifteen - minute sketch on the lives of the famous Bronte' sisters to be given by the speech class under the direction of Dr. C. L. S. Earley, head of the speech class. Ann Thaxton will read the part of Charlotte Bronte' who narrates the story.

Through tentative arrangements, the program on May 8 and May 16 will be the great tragedy, Medea.

Leadership Group Taps Four Longwood Juniors As Fraternity Members

Harvie, Jones, Hundley, Tyler Are Honored

Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, tapped four girls for membership at the student body meeting held Monday night in Jarman Hall.

Those girls honored for their leadership and service to Longwood were Sarah McElroy Harvie, Ann Keith Hundley, Ann Jones and Betty Tyler.

Maria Jackson, senior from Lexington, read the dedication passage from the new Alpha Kappa Gamma handbook honoring Miss Florence Stubbs, professor of sociology at Longwood, for her service to Alpha Kappa Gamma. Winnie Murdock read the scripture, and Sarah Harvie sang the Alpha Kappa Gamma hymn.

Sarah Harvie, a junior from Richmond, is now serving as president of the junior class and treasurer of the choir of which she has been a member for three years. She is also a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Future Teachers of America, Monogram Club, Cotillion Club, and Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority.

A junior from Boydton, Ann Keith Hundley has worked several years on the Virginian staff and will act as editor next year. She is also a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, Future Teachers of America, Cotillion Club, ACE, Granddaughter's Club, and Canterbury Club. Ann Keith is also treasurer of her social sorority, Alpha Sigma Alpha.

Ann Jones, newly elected president of Y. W. C. A., is a junior from Christiansburg. She served as treasurer of the Y' this year, was secretary of her class, and is a member of the Monogram Club. Zeta Tau Alpha is her social sorority.

Betty Tyler, better known as "Termite," a junior from South Boston, is now president of the Athletic Association. The Monogram Club and Cotillion Club claim her as a member. "Termite" has played varsity basketball and hockey for the past three years.

Dr. John W. Molnar, who will direct the Longwood College Choir in its annual Spring concert, May 17.

Molnar Announces Concert Program For Sat. Evening

Varied Selections To Be Presented

The program for the annual Spring Choir Concert to be presented in Jarman Hall this Saturday evening at 8 p. m. has been announced by Dr. John A. Molnar, head of the music department of Longwood College.

The recital is to be made up of a variety of instrumental and vocal selections ranging from the classical period to songs from a light operetta.

The College Choir will present as their guests the orchestra of the Richmond Professional Institute.

Tickets for the performance may be purchased at the door or from members of the college choir. The price is $0.25 for all members of the student body. The proceeds of the concert will be used to purchase music and equipment for the department.

The first part of the program will consist of four selections by the orchestra which are Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," Mozart's "Symphony in G Minor No. 40, Allegro Molto" Shubert's, "Entra 'Acte from 'Rosamunde'," and Strauss' "Emperor Waltz." Billie Dunlap, Longwood junior music major, will be featured with the orchestra in Mozart's "Concerto in A major for the Piano."

The choir selections include "Oh, God Our Help In Ages Past," by Mueller, "Waters Ripple and Flow," by Taylor, "At Times My Thoughts" by Brahms, and William's "Ora Pro Nobis."

Completing the program will be a group of selections by the combined groups which include six songs from "The Mikado" by Gilbert and Sullivan. Soloists for these selections Lu Beavers, Sarah Harvie, Doris Horne, Herbert Goodman, and Winston Johnston.

Other selections in this last group will be "Song of India" by Rimsky-Korsakov, "Serenade" by Schubert, "Dance a Chachucha" by Gilbert and Sullivan and "Open Thy Heart" by Bizet.

Annual Senior Chapel To Be Held May 20 In School Auditorium

Senior Chapel will be held on Tuesday, May 20, in Jarman Auditorium. The assembly will open with an address by a local minister of Farmville, who will be announced at a later date.

Following this, the president of the Athletic Association, Betty Tyler, will present the color cup. The farewell from the seniors will be delivered by Peggy Harris, president of the senior class.

Polly Brothers, class president, will give the junior response and call upon a senior, elected by the juniors, to be the Honorary Classman. This senior will return next year and lead senior dance. The seniors will then rise and sing their farewell songs.

When the songs are finished, the seniors will march out to Red and White, and form an arch with their caps. The juniors will then march out under the arch while the Alma Mater is being played. This act has traditionally been the juniors first step toward becoming full-fledged seniors.

LC President Explains New Study Course For Next Year

Changes Are Result Of Faculty Study

Significant changes in the courses of study will be incorporated in the new catalogue of the college and will be put into effect beginning with the next academic year according to Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president.

These changes are a result of the completion of a two-year curriculum study made by the Longwood faculty. The study has consisted of a self-analysis and an inquiry into the nature of course offerings and methods of presenting course content.

Dr. Lancaster stated that "The faculty has come to appreciate more fully the work done in the college by the rest of the faculty." Broader and more liberal programs will be offered in all curricula, he states.

Duplications and minutiae in course work have been largely eliminated as a result of the study. It will be possible, therefore, to offer more elective hours to students in elementary and secondary curricula.

According to Dr. Lancaster, elementary education majors may also take a major in a subject-matter field of their own choosing. Likewise, secondary education majors may now take enough hours of subjects to become qualified to teach on the elementary level where the greatest shortage of teachers still exists.

The Longwood College curriculum study is part of a cooperative enterprise among a number of colleges in the State. Radford College, Madison College, Longwood, Lynchburg College, Virginia State College, and the education departments of William and Mary and the University of Virginia initiated the original program.

Lieutenant-Governor Will Give Graduation Exercise Address For Graduating Class of 1952

Jackson to Study Abroad; Receives Fulbright Award

Maria Jackson, a senior from Lexington, has received word from the Department of State that she has been selected by the Board of Foreign Scholarships for a Fulbright exchange scholarship to study in France for the academic year 1952-'53.

Maria will report for a month to an orientation course for student grantees in Paris on October 1. At the end of this time she will take up classes at the University of Lyon, France, where she will study the French language and literature.

The qualifications from which Maria was chosen for this honor were based on leadership, character, scholarship, good health, ability to understand and speak the language fluently, adaptability, personality, a serious purpose of mind, and on being a good ambassador of the United States.

With the calculation of living expenses for a full nine month's period in France, the grant covers all expenses including travel and maintenance. She will also receive a liberal allowance.

Under the Fulbright Act, two applications from colleges and universities in each state are sent in to the Department of State which in turn sends them for final approval to the national Board of Foreign Scholarships. One hundred grants are allocated to applicants nominated by these State committees and territory committees.

This plan, to facilitate international understanding by means of educational exchanges between the United States and foreign countries, has been in effect previously at Longwood. The college has had personal contacts with exchange students from the University of Lyon since 1945.

Maria has been an outstanding leader in extra-curricular activities at Longwood College, having served this year as vice-president of the Student Government, president of the Spanish Club, a member of the French Club, the choir, Alpha Kappa Gamma leadership fraternity, Kappa Delta Pi honorary education society, and Kappa Delta social sorority. She has been majoring in French and Spanish for her four-year period here. She also took two years of both languages in high school.

Martinsville Gives Alumnae Luncheon

On Saturday, May 6, 1952, an alumnae luncheon was held in Martinsville. Among the twenty-five present were Mrs. Frances Simpkins, Miss Vera Baron, and Mr. Raymond French of Longwood College. Mrs. Katherine Chappelle Shaw, president of the Martinsville alumnae group, presided. Mrs. Frances Collie Mitton gave a report on Founder's Day and Mrs. Simpkins made the principal address.

Set-Up Meet YWCA Holds

The annual Set-up Conference of the YWCA was held Wednesday, May 14, at Longwood Estate, with a picnic following the conference meeting.

Both old and new cabinet members attended, at which time the new officers and cabinet members received instructions as to the duties of their offices. Plans for the coming year were also made during the conference, as president of the YWCA.

Baccalaureate Will Be Delivered By Dr. Haddock

The honorable Louis Preston Collins, Lieutenant Governor of Virginia, will deliver the commencement address to the class of 1952 at the graduation exercises in Jarman Auditorium on June 2. The subject for Mr. Collins' address has not yet been revealed.

Mr. Collins is a native Virginian. He was born in Lynchburg and is now from Marion.

He attended Washington and Lee University and received his degree from the law school of that college. After receiving his degree he did post-graduate work at Yale University.

As a young man he served in World War I and continues to show interest in both civic and military affairs as a member of the American Legion.

Previous to becoming Lieutenant Governor, Mr. Collins was a member of the House of Delegates representing Smith County. He served as Chairman of the Courts of Justice in the House of Delegates and was president of the Senate. He was a very outstanding member of the House of Delegates. The commencement speaker is known as a very able lawyer and orator.

Baccalaureate Service

The Reverend Dr. W. Kenneth Haddock, Superintendent of the Farmville District of the Methodist Church, will deliver the Baccalaureate sermon to the seniors in the Jarman auditorium at 8 p. m. Sunday, June 1.

Dr. Haddock is a native of Richmond. He attended Randolph-Macon Academy at Bedford, Randolph-Macon College and the University of Richmond. Dr. Haddock received his theological degree at Union Theological Seminary.

Prior to his coming to Farmville in October 1949, he served pastorates on the Eastern Shore and in Richmond.

East Side, West Side ....

by Ann Parsons

Last Thursday, May 8th, Longwood's lovely bride, Dr. C. L. S. Earley started on a northern holiday, amid a shower of rice, wearing a corsage of red radishes and celery tops and soothed by the din of traditional tin cans tied to the back of the bus. He was accompanied by thirty-five young ladies, and three charming young men, all in high spirits.

After a long and sleepless night the group was a little subdued but when Pete, the bus driver, pointed out the New York skyline, life returned to our numbed bodies.

After consuming large quantities of food and coffee, we bid farewell to Dr. Earley and began to run the big city ragged. The elevators and revolving doors of the Taft Hotel were in action constantly with the fast moving traffic of the L. C. travelers.

While some groups toured Rockefellow Center, others went to see the fancy stepping Rockettes at Radio City Music Hall. Others wandered through China town peering into dark dingy shops, that were filled with more curious objects than you could look at on one visit. The general opinion was that gas masks should be furnished for these tours. Chinatown by any other name would still smell.

After the first subway ride, all fear of these underground monsters was either quelled or developed into hysterics, but most of us found them a wonderful means of getting from one place to another in a hurry, especially when going to the Staten Island Ferry or Coney Island. Where else can you ride so far, so fast, and see so many people for ten cents.

Some of our tourists were fascinated by the Automats. They're like big post offices with tables, only food comes in the boxes instead of mail. You drop your nickles in a slot, open the little glass door and there's your food. It's very simple and it saves tipping.

Even though we tried very hard not to look "small townish" the natives spotted us as being from the south at a distance of two blocks. Some of them even whistled Dixie as we walked by.

Of course, our real purpose for the trip was to see the current Broadway plays and we certainly were thankful for them. It was while seeing the plays that we rested; we had to sit down then. Aside from the rest they provided entertainment by some of the finest actors in the profession.

All in all the trip was very successful and we hated to leave the big city and lug our souvenir laden suitcases back to school. However, we are consoled by the prospects of another trip next year that will be bigger and better.

Home Ec Students Elect New Officers For Coming Session

The Home Economics Club has recently elected its officers for the coming year.

New president of the organization will be Wanda Karlet, junior from Roanoke, with Mary Elizabeth Bennett taking over as the new vice-president.

Martha Donaldson was chosen secretary for the club, while Isabelle Karnes will act as the new treasurer. The club's reporter for next year is Betty Jane West.

At its last regular meeting the club had a guest speaker.

The club is also planning a picnic in the near future, which will be held in honor of the Home Economics Club senior members, who are Marty Miller, Frances Thomas, Elsie Baker, Gladys Baker, Edith Goff, Elsie Ray Page, Aubrey Ramsey, Mildred Garnett, and Dot Gregory.

The Books Balance

Many people have complained during the past year that the Rotunda has been printing too many ads, that often times all the news has not been published, and that the paper has appeared too seldom. We of the staff have been doubly sorry that such money saving devices have had to be employed. We hated to feel that we were not giving the student body what they wanted and expected in their school paper and it hurt our pride to publish a paper that fell below our own standards of excellence.

However, as has been pointed out to the students before, we were forced to adopt these measures because we began the year with a debt of nearly $350 and faced rising prices with no hope of a similar rise in income. We saw no other way to balance our books.

Thus, we have economized by cutting publication to a bi-weekly schedule and by printing more ads. This has meant that we have had less space for news items and that many groups have been left out. Furthermore, we were forced to turn to the students for financial aid and received in reply to our plea a generous donation totaling $230.

Now we are happy to announce that our "penny-pinching" has paid dividends — that your contributions were not in vain. As we near the end of the 1951-52 school year the Rotunda finds itself out of the red and at last solvent.

We thank the student body, faculty, and administration for their patience and generosity as the Rotunda struggled to balance its books. However, we must add to our thanks a dampening note. Though we have reached the end of this year with balanced books, our outlook for next year is none too bright. There is little chance that our income will increase and it is a certainty that our expenses will not drop. Therefore, once again we must ask that our readers accept an ad crowded bi-weekly.

The staff has appreciated the understanding attitude which you—the student body and administration—have displayed in the past and hope that you will continue to cooperate with us during the coming year.

Keep Singing

Longwood wouldn't be Longwood without its many and varied songs. Whenever and wherever a few college girls gather, there are sure to be voices raised in song, accompanied by ukelele, piano, phonograph, or just by clapping of hands in time with the music.

Visitors to Longwood have noted this as one of the outstanding features of that famous Longwood spirit. Those who have come to our campus this year have been heard on more than one occasion to praise and approve the Longwood "songbirds." They have sometimes expressed amazement at the spontaneity of "Green 'n White" and "Red 'n White." It has been noted that no one in particular seems to start a song; it just begins and everyone joins in.

Singing has long been a favorite pastime on this campus. Joining in a song serves several purposes for students. In the first place, it's just plain fun to sing and its a good way of "letting off steam." If you have any energy left after a day of strain and toil at the training school or an evening among the math books, singing with the crowd is a means of relaxation.

Many occasions demand a song or a serenade at Longwood because singing is a method of showing our appreciation to class teams, a faculty member, or a sister class. A serenade extends Longwood hospitality to the visiting S. C. A., or a new freshman class. Most of all, singing is a unifying element that brings the student body together in all activities.

Many people have remarked about the number of songs in the college collection. Many of these songs are original, having been written for various occasions, by talented members of the student body.

For seniors singing in the rec, or anywhere else with an LC crowd, will soon be a cherished memory. Underclassmen have another few years of serenades yet to come. For all, singing together has been a wonderful part of Longwood life and a part that not only the student body but visitors and others have enjoyed. It is a wonderful way to express school spirit—it is part of Longwood tradition — so continue your singing, girls!

You'll Be Sorry

Longwood's sunbathing craze has long been a tradition, perhaps a wise one, for who more than a group of girls who have "weathered" a winter of indoor activity, needs the good health and lifted morale that a good suntan affords?

Yes, many are the advantages of this almost perpetual basking in the sun that has become the Longwood girl's current favorite past-time; however, for the unthinking, impatient young lady whose main purpose is to get as 'brown' as possible in as short a time as possible, many are the disadvantages.

Secondly, even if she had all the time in the world and not a thing to do with it, no girl can subject herself to such concentrated doses of direct heat from the sun without doing what might be serious damage to her health. Medical authorities today say that a person who wishes to acquire a beautiful ,as well as a healthful tan, should begin by staying in the sun only a few minutes at the time and gradually increase the length of her sunbaths until she reaches a half-hour.

If a girl is so shortsighted as not to be concerned with her health, the fact that an overdose of sunburn does definite damage to her personal appearance should be of some concern to her. A glimpse of some few of Longwood's most conspicuous specimens of broiled humanity should prove that even a lily white skin presents a better personal appearance, even in its paleness, than does the beet-red skin that is almost always prerequisite to blistering and peeling.

It is hoped that all of Longwood's students will take advantage of these wonderful warm days of spring, but it is also hoped that those who have not already done so, will not trade their health, their studies, their personal appearances, for a few hours of sunbathing that can result only in discomfort and an unpleasing appearance.

+ SENIOR SPOTLIGHT +

(The seniors in last week's spotlight were Nancy Garbee and Maria Jackson.)

Probably known by everyone in the school for her friendly nature is this week's outstanding senior.

Short, with blonde wavy hair, bright blue eyes, and a friendly smile is this mystery girl. A mathematics and English major from Richmond, Virginia, she is a member of Kappa Delta social sorority and Alpha Kappa Gamma leadership fraternity. Miss ? was managing editor of the Rotunda during this year. She is also a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, Kappa Delta Pi, and is president of the Richmond Club.

This gal has a great yearning for learning to play the organ. Her friends state that she is always smiling or smirking.

If there is anyone remaining who hasn't guessed the name of this week's featured senior, I believe I can quickly remedy that by telling you that the name Macon Pharr often enters her stream of conversation. Few people realize that this gal is a senior, if this will be a help.

Pumpernickle bread and cheddar cheese please this week's Miss Mystery to a T. She says she never gets enough of that wonderful appetizing delicacy. This gal also puts a great deal of her attention on Randolph-Macon College and a certain curly-headed, blue-eyed boy by the name of Gerry.

But not all her time is devoted to eating and a certain lad, for Miss ? also devotes much of her time to college activities. This year she was chosen to be in "Who's Who among College students." She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Future Teachers of America, and Alpha Kappa Gamma. This year she was also vice-president of Pi Delta Epsilon and Historian of Zeta Tau Alpha, social sorority.

Are you still stumped as to her identity? If so, here are a few hints that are sure to put you straight on the name of this mysterious senior gal. She is a math major. She delights in playing bridge on Second Floor Annex. She was editor of the Rotunda.

Red 'n White Victorious In Competitive Swim Meet With Final Score of 78-35

10 Color Cup Points Given

The Red and White Classes earned ten more points toward the color cup when they defeated Green and Whites in the annual swimming meet held May 12. Red and Whites captured 78 points to the Green and Whites 35 points.

The meet, held in the college pool, consisted of eleven events. They were a ten yard kicking race, 25 yard free style, 20 yard side stroke, 25 yard breast stroke, 40 yard free style relay, 50 yard free style, 150 yard medley relay and 30 yard individual medley. Featured event was a novelty relay, a 25 yard race with swimmers clad in pajamas.

Green and Whites participating in the meet were Ann Crowder, Joan Ward, Nancy Norfleet, Helen Castros, Phyllis Isaacs, Sue Webb. The Red and Whites were represented by Jean Ridenour, Marian Beckner, Nancy Walker, Pat Altwegg, Blanton Ferguson, Roberta Wiatt, Ilia DesPortes, and Eleanor Koch.

Jean Ridenour was manager for the meet. Her assistant was Blanton Ferguson. Nancy Huff, Elsie Wente, Clara Borum, and Lois Crutchfield served as judges. Inspector was Mason Moore and clerk for the event was Mary Denny Wilson. Miss Brockenbrough acted as scorekeeper and starter.

Journalistic Society Elects New Officers

Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalism fraternity, elected new officers for the coming year, at a recent meeting of the organization.

Harriet Minichan, a junior from Pulaski, was chosen to lead the group. Other officers are: Barbara Caskey, vice-president; Pat Taylor, secretary; Jeanne Mercer, treasurer; and Helen Tanner, librarian.

Those receiving bids were: Pat Altwegg, Barbara Caskey, Betty Collier, Ann Keith Hundley, Nancy Lawrence, Jeanne Mercer, Harriet Minichan, Helen Tanner, and Barbara White.

Informal initiation was held last Thursday. Formal initiation will take place next fall.

Notice

All library fines for overdue books must be paid to the college library on or before Wednesday, May 28.

Color Cup Events End With Softball

Red 'n White came up with another victory and 5 more points for color cup when they won the archery competition by default from the freshmen and junior classes.

Tomorrow afternoon at five p. m., there will be a competitive softball game between Red 'n Whites and Green 'n Whites. Since there are not enough people to make up complete class teams, the Green 'n White team will be made up of both juniors and freshmen and the Red 'n White participants will be both seniors and sophomores.

Everyone is urged to come out and support her colors in this last sport event of the year.

Feeling Dull, Half-Awake? Want to Cure a Tummyache? Try a Picnic at the Lake

by Phoebe Warner

Come rain, come shine,—come ants, come bees, the picnics must go on. Now that spring has sprung, and the grass has riz, young guys and gals fancies turn toward that ever lovin', everlastin' "lake" (you know the one.)

Days and even weeks are taken preparing for that great day when the gang is off to the lake. First of all, there must be plenty to eat—chickens, weiners, biscuits, cake, pickles—and guess where some of those delacisies come from. You're right the first time —the haven that produces such delectable food—the dining hall! Girls dash to and fro, hither and thither, capturing rolls and such to take upstairs and prepare for the big event. Of course, they realize the stakes involved are great, and they may be doomed to eat every meal in the dining hall for such a terrible offense.

After getting all the food ready and dressing in best shorts and shirt, the Longwood gals are finally ready to start on the much anticipated picnic. The Hampty-Damptys drive up in their glorious 1920 model auto and before Mrs. Rex has time to call up for them, the gals are running wildly out of the Rotunda and into the car! And they're off! Hampty in the lead with Dampty running a close second. . .

Reaching the lake with its cool clear water and sandy beach, the gals and guys unpack all the delicious food they're going to enjoy? One gal, deciding she is thirsty after a game of baseball, Ring Around the Rosies, and Hiding Go Seek, asks her date to get her a drink. He proceeds to open an icy drink for the little daisy, when much to his amazement he discovers that he doesn't have a bottle opener. Finally, after much ado, he rigs up an apparatus on the car for opening the drink and all is fine and dandy again. A feeling of hunger is beginning to creep upon the crowd, and they decide to eat. After finding ants in the potato salad, burning the hotdogs, and singeing a few eyebrows while trying to roast marshmellows, the weary group regret fully decide to return to school and back to the grind.

It was agreed by the group as they told each other sweet goodbyes that the picnic was a terrific success, and never did they have such a wonderful time. The boys went on their way as the gals dropped into the Home Office to sign in, as the clock struck eight o'clock—ending an unbelieveable day.

2 Locality Clubs Choose Officers

Girls Name Hankins Richardson Heads

In keeping with the spring picnic spirit, Miss Katheleen G. Cover, sponsor of the Richmond Club, gave the club a picnic at Longwood Estate on May 8.

During a short business meeting officers for the coming year were elected. Betsy Hankins was chosen to serve as president, Eleanor Kock as vice-president, Elizabeth Cheatham as secretary-treasurer and Bobbie Allen serving as reporter.

Northern Neck Club

Joyce Richardson, a junior from Tapahannock, was recently elected president of the Northern Neck Club. Other officers for the 1952-53 college year are Frances Northern, vice-president, and Marjorie Smallwood, secretary. Serving as treasurer of the club will be Lynette Talley.

Ellen Brent Dize and Jeanne Mercer will fill the posts of reporters. Mr. French, professor of chemistry, is club sponsor.

116 Seniors to Receive Degrees At 68th Graduation Exercises In Jarman Auditorium June 2

Mr. McCorkle Gives Commencement Plans For Graduation Week

Week End to Begin With Sr. Class Day At 4 P. M. Saturday

The schedule for commencement week May 31 through June 2, has been announced by Mr. Thomas McCorkle, head of the graduation exercises.

Senior class day exercises will begin at 4 p. m. on Saturday, May 31, with a welcome by Peggy Harris, president of the class of 1952. Following that will be the class song. Maria Jackson will give the class history, followed by the presentation of the symbol of office. The presentation of gifts will then be made by Betty Barnes. Miss Helen Costan, president of the Alumnae Association, will then induct the graduates into the association of Longwood Alumnae. The singing of the Farewell Song will be succeeded by the forming of the traditional Daisy Chain outside on the campus.

A reception for seniors and their little sisters will be given by President Dabney S. Lancaster at his home on Saturday at 8:30 p. m., and the traditional Lantern Parade will begin at 10:30 p. m.

The Baccalaureate sermon on Sunday, June 1, at 8:00 p. m. will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. W. Kenneth Haddock, Superintendant of the Farmville District Methodist Church. The Reverend John Wynne Myers will give the invocation at this service, and the Longwood Choir, directed by Dr. John W. Molnar will sing "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

The Honorable Lewis Preston Collins, Lieutenant Governor of Virginia, will deliver the Commencement address on Monday, June 2 at 10:30 a. m. The Rev. Benjamin R. Bruner will give the invocation and the choir will sing "Waters Ripple and Flow."

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster will award the degrees and the honor graduates will be announced.

Science Academy Holds Convention

The Virginia Academy of Science held its thirtieth annual meeting on May 15, 16, and 17 at the Chamberlain Hotel, Old Point Comfort. Those attending the convention were Mr. Raymond French, associate professor of chemistry, Mr. T. A. McCorkle, professor of chemistry, and Dr. Charles Lane, professor of geography.

Representing the Biology Department were Dr. George Jeffers, Dr. Robert Brumfield and Miss Vera Baron. The students who attended are Marion Beckner, Mary Hurt Perry, Mary Meade Robertson, and Jackie Lackey.

These students are all majoring in one of the sciences.

Miss Baron was elected secretary of the Biology Section. Dr. Brumfield was chosen editor of the Virginia Science Magazine for the next five years.

The purpose of the annual meetings is to enlighten the delegates in the various fields of science as to the latest discoveries in their respective interests. Nearly 500 people attended this convention.

'52 Senior Class Announce Plans For Coming Year

64 Graduates Enter Teaching Work

Of the one hundred and sixteen seniors who will graduate from Longwood College on June 2 or at the end of the summer session, eighty-two already have made definite plans for next year.

Audrey Ramsey has accepted a position with the Virginia Electric Power Company. Ida Mims plans to go into social work. Mildred Garnett will serve as assistant home demonstration agent in Roanoke County.

Maria Jackson will attend the University of Lyon, France under a Fulbright scholarship. Harold Hutter and William Overby will serve next year with the United States Army.

Marriage

Eleven graduating seniors are planning to be married after graduation. They are Betty Barnes, Barbara Brown, Jean Dillard, Lauralee Fritts, Nancy Garnee, Norma Gladding, and Novella Goode. Also Anne Oakley, Dorothy Missimer, Jean Ridenour, Catherine Toxey, and Frances Ramsey.

The majority of the seniors will enter teaching profession. Sixty-four have already signed teaching contracts for next year, according to Mrs. Mary Watkins, executive secretary of the college.

Flora Ballowe, Martha Blankenship, Mildred Bright, Nell Dalton, Ada Fristoe, Stokes Overby, Alma Jo Price, Lucy Perkinson, and Jane Watts have accepted positions in Danville.

Norfolk county will receive Jane Allen, Vivian Bunn, Mrs. Jerline Hembree and Pat Lee in the education field.

Teaching at Virginia Beach will be Mary Helen Cook, Sarah Graham, Shirley Livesay, May Henry Sadler, and Martha Alice Wilson.

Arlington

Those who will join the education staff in Arlington county are Virginia Manvell, Lucile Thompson, Nancy Walthall, Eleanor Weddle, and Nancy Lee Wood.

Catherine Karnes, Ann Mosley and Frances Thomas will teach in Roanoke next year.

Richmond will claim Virginia McLean, Ethel Straw, Betty Scott Borkey, and Ann Moody.

Teaching in Suffolk will be Vera Bryant, Ann Harding and Conway Rice. Chesterfield county will gain Mary Crawford and Novella Goode.

Teachers Winifred Murdock, Sara Creger and Marjorie Hood will be located in Covington. Marian Beckner and Mary Jo Smith will be found in Highland Springs.

Teaching in Kempsville will be Dorothy Gregory and Edith Kennon. Residing in Farmville next year will be Peggy Wilson and Audra Hawkins.

NOTICE

Registration for classes for the Fall semester will be held on September 18, for upper classmen.

Editor of College Magazine Reviews Year's Final Issue

by Betty Collier

The long-awaited and much inquired about spring issue of the Colonnade made its appearance last night at dinner. However , in a real sense of the word, it is not a "spring" issue, since the magazine does not have a theme this time. Such themes as "spring" and "graduation" for instance, have been much used in the past and are not only inhibiting as far as the gathering of material is concerned, but are also rather overworked.

This issue of the Colonnade features an article on Graham Greene. Although he is one of the most popular of present-day writers in his native country and on the Continent, Mr. Green, an English author, is just coming into public notice in the United States. This article should be of interest to anyone who enjoys discovering a relatively new "find" in the literary world.

Included in this issue is the second prize winner in the fall short story and essay contest and other literary efforts in poetry and prose of Longwood students. In addition to these, a poem written by an alumna, Mrs. Mary B. Isham Gordon, will also appears. Mrs. Gordon was editor of the first magazine ever published at this college.

In past years the Colonnade (this issue included) has had to adhere to a rather strict and limiting budget. However, to all appearances, the financial future of the magazine is a little brighter—thanks to a good management of the allotted funds and an expected increase in the state subsidy. The literary future of the Colonnade is still uncertain; it will remain so until Longwood students contribute to it more and beter examples of their creative work. They will have ample chance to do this by entering the fall prose contest and spring contest for poetry next year. With increased funds and better articles the Colonnade can become more worthy of the title of a college magazine.

Wendenburg Asks Students To Sign For Little Sisters

All freshmen, sophomores, and juniors who wish to have freshman little sisters next year are to sign up for them on the YWCA bulletin board this week, Ann Carter Wendenburg, chairman of the membership committee, has announced.

For those who have a preference, there will be a special list.

Ann reminded everyone to place her summer address beside her name so that she may be contacted during the summer.

The "Y" annually sponsors the "Big-sister, Little-sister" tradition. A formal reception is held in the fall for this group, to introduce the new freshmen and other students to the faculty, administration, and other college students.

College Drama Group Elects New Officers

In a recent meeting of the Longwood Players, officers for the coming year were elected.

Serving as president will be Barbara White from Roanoke. Marion Thompson will serve under her as vice-president with Gaynelle Edwards, secretary, and Ellen Porter, treasurer. Anne Parsons will act as a technical director.

At the meeting Ethel Straw, retiring president was presented a small gift as a token of appreciation for her work during the past year.

AKG Elects Hall As Pres. For 1952-53

Lucy Page Hall, junior from Front Royal, was chosen president of Alpha Kappa Gamma for the coming year at a recent meeting of the organization.

Other officers for the 1952-53 session were also chosen. Polly Brothers will act as vice-president, Bobby Obenshain as secretary, Ann Jones as treasurer, and Ann Keith Hundley as scrapbook chairman.

Jean Ridenour, past president of AKG, has announced that the 25th annual convention of the organization will be held at Longwood on October 17, 18, and 19. Representatives from five colleges in North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia will be on campus for the occasion

This convention marks the 25th anniversary of the founding of the fraternity, and a Founders' Day service will be held during the convention. It was begun on May 12, 1928, at Queens College, Charlotte, North Carolina. However, the earliest beginnings of the group were at Farmville in 1925. Miss Florence Stubbs helped a group of girls begin a leadership organization known as Alpha Delta Rho. This group later joined with other similiar groups to form AKG. In recognition of her pioneering spirit, national AKG dedicated this year's hand book to Miss Stubbs.

Jean also stated that on May 9 and 10 Polly Brothers, Lucy Page Hall, Miss Elizabeth Burger and she attended the spring planning meet which was held at Pawleys' Island, South Carolina.

Seniors Present Annual Assembly Tuesday, May 20

Class Elects Cook Honorary Member

Yesterday's traditional senior assembly was highlighted by Mary Helen Cook being announced as the "Honorary Classman" chosen by the junior class. Having received this honor Cookie will return next year to help lead the figure at the senior dance.

The senior assembly was opened with a talk by the Reverend James Kennedy, minister of the Presbyterian Church. He directed his message to the graduating class.

Betty Tyler, newly elected president of the A. A., then presented the color cup to the classes of '52 and '54.

Peggy Harris, senior class president, delivered a short farewell message, and a response was given by Polly Brothers, president of next year's senior class. This was followed by a medley of songs sung by the entire senior class. —all praising red and white or the class itself or bringing back happy memories of circuses and productions.

Following this presentation, Betty Scott Borkey, editor-in-chief of the 1952 Virginian, read the dedication of this year's annual. The Virginian was dedicated to parents of graduating seniors of the class of 1952.

After this the traditional senior chapel songs were sung as well as a song to their sponsor, Dr. Schiegel. "These Foolish Things", "College Days Are Almost Over," "We Bid You Good-Bye," "Tell Me Why," and other similiar songs were all sung. Then the seniors sang songs dedicated to each of the three lower classes.

Lastly the seniors formed an arch with their caps and the juniors marched out to the "Alma Mater" and officially became seniors.

Seniors Hold Dinner Tonight for Students, Advisors Are Guests

Tonight, the annual senior banquet is being held in the dining hall during the regular dinner hour for the student body.

Those in charge of arrangements are Marry Moore Karr, decorations; Joan Missimer, flowers; Jean Ridenour, programs; Marty Miller, menu; and Betty Barnes, gifts.

Each senior has a gift and a small poem placed at her table.

College Registrar Names Degrees To Be Awarded

Miss Virgilia Bugg, college registrar, has announced the names of the one hundred sixteen students who are candidates for graduation at the sixty-eighth commencement exercises of Longwood College. The seniors will receive their diplomas on June 2, 1952, at exercises to be held in Jarman Auditorium.

Think Twice

In only five more days, Longwood girls will have begun that week that is probably more dreaded than any other in the college year. Yes, amid the rush of packing to go home, trying to get all her bills paid, attending wedding showers and final school parties, arranging for a summer job, and saying a permanent good-bye to many of her friends, the Longwood student must find time to prepare for and take exams.

This week of examinations would be a trying one, even if it were not also crowded with those activities mentioned above and many more; how can a girl be expected to participate in everything that is going on and yet maintain some sort of a decent scholarship standing, which after all is her prime purpose for attending college? Which is more important—the examinations or the activities? And if the thought should occur or the opportunity arise, can a girl really be blamed for "Taking the easy way out"?

All of these questions, if they have not already arisen, will no doubt arise in the minds of many, if not the majority, of tired and unprepared students as they sit down to take a difficult examination. More than once will the temptation occur to glance just once upon the convenient paper of the girl who sits in the next desk or to take just a peep at those notes you forgot to remove from your notebook before coming to class.

This challenge to honor and conscience can only be prevented by being prepared well before the hour of the examination. Few people will argue that you have a great deal of spare time in which to do this. However, if you budget your time and avoid wasting it, you can get everything done. When you have a free hour between classes, spend it reviewing a chapter from one of your textbooks rather than sitting in the snack bar. Before you decide to go to the movies, think about those two exams you have next Monday.

Yes, these last few days of school are doubtless going to be a strain for all concerned, but remember, "A high sense of honor, in all her relationships and activities, should be one of a person's most cherished possessions." And if a student has spent her time well, been heedless to temptations, and truly studied for her examinations, her grades, no matter how poor, will mean more to her than they possibly could under any other circumstances.

See You Next Year

In just a few more days Longwood students will be leaving their Alma Mater amid a scramble of trunks and tennis racquets and another year of college life will be over.

Looking back a kaleidoscope of memories passes by; some of them wonderful, some not so pleasant; most are of the ordinary events of everyday school life.

The freshman, new and green in September, have come to take an invaluable place in the student body. The terrors of Rat Day were forgotten in the fun they had working on their successful production.

Their sister class of Green and White face the end of the year with memories of the "Basin Street" ball and Charlie Hop.

In the sophomore scrapbook go memories of a new dorm, old friends, and just being the "sagacious" sophomore of '54.

And for their sisters, the seniors, it was a very different and special year because everything was for the last time—from hall parties to student teaching.

This year has also been a year of real achievement for Longwood. The dedication of Jarman Hall marked a progressive movement, representative of the steps toward higher standards that the college is achieving.

It is fun to remember all the good times of the year and to look forward to another year of college life next September.

It is a sad time because we say goodbye to old friends. When school time comes again, we will miss familiar faces in the hall. There are some leaving to take jobs, some for other reasons, but the senior class will leave the greatest vacant spot. To them we wish the greatest of good luck and happiness—though you will not be here as our leaders we won't forget you and the place you've made at Longwood. To the juniors we say, Longwood is depending upon you to fill the vacant spot of the senior leaders.

To everyone we wish a wonderful summer and we'll see you next September.

The year of 1952 is election year and the news of main interest to everyone during the summer months and into the fall will be the nominating conventions of both leading parties. The primaries for both have been taking place for several months now, and the party leaders have by now acquired a fair idea of what the American people think of the men they have put up as possible presidential candidates.

The Democratic party has stated in so many words that its contest now is a three-man affair. The three men in top places are Senator Kefauver of Tennessee, Senator Stevenson of Illinois, and Vice - President Barkley. Kefauver has the backing of the people, but there are elements within the party who would be against him to the last stand.

Stevenson has said he will not run, but party members think differently and count him as the best all-round man.

There are those who would tend to disregard Barkley, yet other Democrats back his middle of the road policy and believe him a good person to tie the Democratic functions together.

The man who will go to the convention in Chicago July 21 with the most delegate votes is Senator Russell of Georgia. But, because of his unsuccessful efforts outside of the south to solicit sufficient support, his chances are not regarded as good. W. Averill Harriman believes himself capable, but other members of the party tend to disregard him.

The Republican Convention will be held two weeks earlier, and much speculation on the Democratic Convention will await the outcome of it. So far the party factions seem to be divided between Taft and Eisenhower, and since the two have divided the followers so closely some persons believe that there is a possibility of a "dark hourse."

The past four years have brought about a demand for change and housecleaning by the American voting public and the Republicans feel confident this year. The Democrats, however, know that something must be done, and I believe they are willing to put up a fight and attempt to give people what they want. The campaigns have reached the stage when each party is watching the other closely so that it won't make any false moves. It would not be unwise for use to learn a lesson from the politicians and also watch the candidates closely. They have not yet taken a stand, and their actions now may be the real story of what they will be like when in office.

"What Lies Ahead?"

Campus Cogitations

by Naomi Reed

Asked of the seniors, "As you look back over your four years at Longwood, what word of advice would you leave to the underclassmen?"

Frances Turner: "I'm afraid my advice wouldn't do you any good."

Nell Dalton: "Make the most of every minute. It passes too quickly."

Pritch Matthews: "Go West, young lady, Go West."

Christnie Davis: "Play it cool."

Gay Power: "Study like mad."

Peggy Wilson: "Don't sleep through 8:05's."

Betty Barnes: "Don't fall in love until your senior year, last semester."

Sue Nelson: "Play hard, study hard, and get up late."

Edith Kennon: "Get by with anything you can."

Eleanor Weddle: "Be strong and stay out of all water (hot, that is)."

Boots Russell: "Just keep the red and white colors on the cup."

Marian Beckner: "Have one field of special interest and stick to it."

Stokes Overby: "Avoid practice teaching."

Marjorie Hood: "Follow all rules to the letter and stick to it."

Maria Jackson: Always be connected with the House Council and you'll never get a call down."

Mary Brame: "Never live across the hall from the house president."

Laura Lee Fritts: "All history majors watch your step. Dr. Moss finds out everything!"

Ginny McLean: "Don't give up your fourth year! (Unless you have a good reason!?)

Virginia Manvell: "Live a well rounded Christian life — work hard and play hard."

Lucile Thompson: "Ditto Virginia."

Audrey Ramsey: "Get married? ?"

Mary Crawford: "Teach in the second grade."

Nancy Garbee: "Leave the door of senior rec open—you can hear people coming that way."

Olga Rodriquez: "Don't forget to take with you the Longwood biscuit recipe when you leave."

+ SENIOR SPOTLIGHT +

(Seniors in last week's spotligh t were Jean Ridenour, Ginny McLean, and Mary Jo Smith.

Our Miss Mystery this week is a "lady of the theatre." In fact, if you were ever over at the auditorium, you'd probably see her "hanging out" of the Battens. She is famous for making funny faces which are sure to make people laugh.

This little gal (and I do mean little) with a poodle cut is known to many of her friends as just plain "Etch" or "Bird Legs." This year she was treasurer of Zeta Tau Alpha Social Sorority, a member of Cotillion Club, and the Association of Childhood Education.

Still in the dark? Well, I'll try to put you in the light again. She is very interested in the University of Virginia and is an Elementary Education major. She is always giggling when going to and from breakfast. She hails from the great metropolis of Brookneal. If you don't know yet, I'm sure you will when I tell you this: she was chairman of the senior skit for Circus of this year and President of the Dramatics Club.

Quiet, sweet, and friendly are well known traits of our next Miss Mystery. Because of these traits and of her great leadership ability, she is a friend to all who know her.

Miss Mystery is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, Kappa Delti Pi, and was written up in Who's Who. This little brunette is one of those brilliant math majors. She is a resident of the little town of Farmville. Her friends say that this sweet gal is very suspectible to the power of suggestion and will develop a headache at the mention of the ailment.

This gal is known the school over not by her name but by a nickname which is composed of one letter of the alphabet.

Still looking for an answer to our Miss Mystery? Well, I can't leave you dangling, so here are a few hints.

She's a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha, social sorority. She's going to teach at Virginia Beach next year, and last but not least, she was President of Student Government this year.

Idiotic Interview

by Barbara Caskey

In memory of a sad day (the last paper of this year). I would like to present to you a bit of sad copy.

I predict that. . .

The chickens around Farmville will strike for more 'gravy'.

The swimming pool will be used exclusively next year by hair-washers, boats, and suicides.

The students will be using snuff.

'Pinning' will go out of style, and 'chaining' will take its place.

The bookroom and the snack bar will go bankrupt.

The song of the day will be 'You've got the Right String, Baby, but the Wrong Ho-Humm."

Sueshine Sun will return to pick up her feet.

One half of the student body will return married, and the other half will support our friend Kefauver in the election.

There will be four collapses on third floor Junior next year.

The jokes of the day will be sharp. For example, baby bear sat quietly on a cactus plant, and Mama Bear looked worried. "Papa Bear, do you suppose we're raising a Dead End Kid?"

The saying of the day will be: Old carpenters never die; they just lose . . . interest.

The two people in the news will be Princess Margaret and Golden Horseshoe Billy. Do you know what one Rose said to the other? "Hi, Bud!"

The Esteemed Society of Lily-of-the-Valley Pressers of North Africa, Southern France and Bolivar will have their annual convention here.

The agricultural department will have as their project of the year the raising of artificial flowers.

Someone will write her Phychology term paper on "I am Insane".

The laundry will be faced with a pressing problem: how to lose more sheets down the drain.

The Post Office will post posters on posts of people persued by protectors of protesting persons.

College styles will feature low bows and fewer buttons.

Pogo will soon announce his presidential aspirations for the forthcoming election. I Go POGO! ALSO!

The Academy Award winning movie will be a sequel to "When Worlds Collide"—"Nasty Break".

Finally, I predict that this year's seniors will return to next year's Senior Chapel to let go out their pent-up-for-a-year emotions.

So long. It's been real, quite, excruciatingly, terribly, horrid.

Red 'n White Classes Win Traditional A.A. Color Cup With Wide 35 Point Margin

The Red and White classes were awarded the coveted color cup yesterday in senior assembly by Betty (Termite) Tyler, newly elected president of the Athletic Association.

"The presentation of this cup," said Betty while making the award, "is more than a mere award for winning athletics. It has long been a tradition of the school, standing for the friendliness and spirit that has made our school famous."

The color cup battle was won by a wide margin of 35 points. The winning Red and Whites scored a total of 55 points while the defeated Green and White classes scored 20 points.

The color cup will be placed on the home office mantle. Red and white ribbons will replace the green and white ribbons decorat- green and white ribbons which decorated it this year.

Elizabeth Stone from Rustburg was chosen to lead the group as president. Anne Gray was elected vice-president; Nancy Purdom, secretary; and Rebecca Baird, treasurer.

Members of Beorc Eh Thorn were recently entertained at a picnic at the home of Mr. James Grainger, former professor of English at Longwood.

Red 'n Whites Win In Softball Match With Score of 8-7

The annual softball competition was won this year by the Red and Whites in the game played last Friday, May 16.

The sophomores and seniors, represented by Sanford, Wiatt, Poarch, Kennon, Parks, Russell, Ridenour, Peters, Baber, and Koch took the game with a final score of 8-7

Green and Whites playing were Hartis, Crowder, Bradshaw, Webb, Borum, Waitman, Morris, Castros, and Brown.

The A. A. softball manager, Mary Lou Barlow, explained that because so few people turned out for practices, the regular class teams could not be formed. Thus, as a result, there could be only one game competition this year. Softball gives ten points to the color cup.

Notice

Unlimited light privileges for the examination period will go into effect on Sunday night, May 25, Helen Castros, president of House Council, has announced.

Helen also issued a reminder to all students that they are expected to remain quiet at all times. One call down received during this period will result in a week's strict campus effective at the time the call down is given.

Two Juniors Take Decisive Tennis Match

Clara Borum and Helen Castros won the last round of the Spring double tennis matches on Monday, May 19 to give five color cup points to the Green and Whites.

The matches began the first of May with Boswick and Obenshain, Parkinson and Wente, and Hodges and Sanford winning the first round. Tyler and Crowder, Borum and Castros, Peters and Kennon, and Boswick and Obenshain took the second-round matches of the tournament.

The third round winners were Boswick and Obenshain, 3-6, 6-4, 6-0 and Borum and Castros 6-1, 6-1.

The final match between these two couples was taken 6-1, 3-6, 6-0 by Borum and Castros.

Ann Parkinson was A. A. tennis manager for the annual tournament.

Tennis singles were played earlier in the year. Green and White Clara Borum also won these.

by Phoebe Warner

As the school year comes to an end, the realization that the seniors whom we all love and look up to are leaving hits us with new force. The thought that the friends whom we have come to know so well are leaving puts a sad note on the joyous occasion of no more school for three months.

Parties and serenades have been given for our graduating class and at these celebrations a certain song has always been sung in praise of its members.

"S is for the senior class that we love." Well, seniors, I guess I don't have to tell you that each time this song was sung that phrase came from the heart.

"E is for their energy and pep." These characteristics of the seniors come forth with a bang when they won first place in circus for their skit on "The Devil Gets His Due." Madison McClintic was perfectly cast as the devil, while "Bootie" Poarch was a charming little angel. Remember how Maria Jackson reigned as queen of circus? Then there was the time the senior class came in first in the "Sing" contest with their humorous skit on student teaching. Lee Wood made a terrific little teacher's pet, while Edith Kennon did a wonderful job of portraying the ruffian of the class. Surely no one could forget May Day with Frances Turner as Queen.

"N is for the nice things that they do." Although the seniors can't remember all the little things that they did, they all seemed like big things when the Freshmen of each class were helped out of trouble they thought would never end. The seniors are the ones who have seen us all through our aches and pains, and we all are grateful for the many nice things that they have done.

"I is for the interest they've shown." For the hockey games, the basketball games, the swimming meets, and get togethers the seniors always appeared with plenty of good old spirit.

"O is for the Oh how we love them." All of us are proud of the senior class we love because of their many outstanding achievements. Many of our seniors were put among college students in "Who's Who" for their high scholarship and work on activities. We were all glad to see Maria Jackson win the Fulbright Scholarship which was quite a honor, and were equally thrilled at Jean Ridenour's representing Longwod at the Apple Blossom Festival.

"R is for the races they have won." Because of their athletic ability the seniors have beat many of their opponents and come up on top in many contests.

"Put them all together they spell SENIOR the finest we have ever known."

VOLUME NO. XXXII | Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Wed., Sept. 24, 1952 | NO. 1

Administration Announces Addition Of 7 To College Faculty and Staffs

New Professors Fill Dept. Needs

The addition of seven new members to the Longwood College faculty and administration for the 1952-53 session has been announced by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president.

Prior to coming to Longwood, Dr. Jack D. Burke, professor of biology, taught in the biology department of the University of Florida. Dr. Burke received his B. A. degree from the University of Tennessee, his M. S. from the University of West Virginia and his Doctorate from the University of Florida. He is a native of Charleston, W. Va.

Assistant Nurse

Miss Nancy Crymes, assistant nurse, is a native of Victoria, Va. She received her R. N. at Southern Baptist Hospital in New Orleans, La., after which she attended the Baptist Theological Seminary in New Orleans for one semester. She will also receive her B. S. degree in Business Education from Longwood in June.

Returning to her native territory in Prince Edward county, Mrs. Colleene Hudson is acting as sophomore hostess. Mrs. Hudson was a special student at Queens College in Charlotte, N. C., and at Lenoir-Rhyne College in Lenoir.

Miss Mildred Kelly, holding the position of assistant librarian attended William and Mary College where she received her B. A. degree, and George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn., where she received her M. A. degree in library science. She was formerly supervisor of school libraries in Campbell County, Virginia. She is a native of Lynchburg.

Mr. Wesley Laing, professor of history, comes to us from the University of Virginia where he taught during the summer session in addition to completing the requirements for his doctorate. He received his A. B. and M. A. degrees from Baylor University in Texas. Mr. Laing is originally from Port Arthur, Texas.

Dining Hall Supervisor

Coming from Norfolk, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Walker not only is acting as Supervisor of the Dinning Hall but is also working for her Bachelors degree in Elementary Education. She has obtained a years leave of absence from teaching in the elementary grades in Norfolk in order to procure this degree. She attended Longwood College.

Mrs. Meade Shackelford, a native of Virginia, attended Sweet Briar College for two years before transfering to Barnard College—where she recently received her A. B. She received her M. S. at the graduate school of journalism at Columbia. Mrs. Shakelford has served as a reporter for the Richmond News Leader and as public information director for the Virginia Military District. Here, she is the Director of Public Relations and will continue the operation of the college news bureau.

Steele Names Marsh, Taylor Co-Hostesses

Margie Steele, dining room hostess for the coming year, has announced that Margaret Taylor and Beverly Marsh will assist her as dining room hostesses. They will work together to enforce rules and regulations of the dining hall with the cooperation of the table hostesses and students. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Walker will serve as supervisor of the dining room, replacing Mrs. Blanche T. Beazley.

Dr. Molnar Tells Of Opportunities In College Music

Department Adds Band, Orchestra

Dr. John Molnar, head of the music department, has announced two additions to Longwood music opportunities. A band and orchestra are being organized this year. These groups, which will offer one-half credit each semester, are part of the development of a larger music program.

Dr. Molnar will direct the orchestra and Mr. Russell Hoier, a new part-time instructor on the faculty, will conduct the band. Orchestra rehearsals began yesterday afternoon and will be held every Tuesday at 3 p. m. The band will organize tomorrow, Thursday, at 3 p. m.

Dr. Molnar has remarked that the music department is completely equipped with instruments available for use, a band room, and music, and now lacks only one thing—that is, enough students interested in taking part as members of these organizations. It has been discovered that there are a number of students who play instruments and have participated in such organizations. They are urged to come to the first rehearsals.

Choir tryouts are also being conducted every afternoon during this week in Dr. Molnar's office. The choir, which will meet on Monday and Wednesday afternoons at 4 p. m., will also carry one-half credit per semester. Students are reminded that although tryouts are required, not much reading ability is necessary, emphasis being more on tone quality and a good ear. Those interested should try out as soon as possible.

Choir activities of the year will include fall and spring concerts, and at least one trip each semester. Election of choir officers will take place at the first regular rehearsal on September 29.

Another musical organization to be revived this year is the chorus, which requires no tryouts but will serve as a training and alternate group for the choir. Chorus will rehearse on Monday and Wednesday under the direction of Mr. Clarence Warrington, professor of music, and will also offer one-half credit each semester. All students interested should come to the music building Monday to begin organizing.

Douglas, Donaldson, Ward New Officers Of Sophomore Class

Dot Douglas, who was elected vice president of the Sophomore class last year will now become president to replace Georgette Puryear who will not return to school.

Martha Donaldson and Shirley Ward were elected as vice president and treasurer, respectively, of the Sophomore class last Saturday afternoon at a called class meeting.

Martha is a member of the Southwest Virginia Club, Cotillion Club, and Alphe Sigma Tau social sorority.

Shirley was not only elected by her class as treasurer but is also the sophomore representative on Student Standards. She is a member of Cotillion Club, Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority, Library Club, Rotunda Staff and French.

Office Says 587 Students Enroll at LC For '52 Term

Two New Foreign Students Register

The registrar's office reports that 587 students have enrolled for the fall session at Longwood College. Miss Bugg, registrar, added that all the students registered have not matriculated, and approximately 3 or 4 more are expected to arrive this week.

Freshmen and transfer students make up almost half of this enrollment, as there are 225 new students. Nineteen of this number are transfer students.

Foreign Students

Two foreign countries are represented by students at Longwood. Denise Renee Montagne, who is a transfer from Lycee Penelon, of Paris, France is studying here and assisting in the French department. Argentina Matute is a transfer from Colegie Maria Auxiliadera, Tegucigalpa, Honduras, and is assisting in the Spanish classes.

Mary Washington lost Frances A. Mattex to Longwood, and Dorothy Vernon Armstrong transferred from the Richmond Professional Institute. Diane Burgess came to Longwood from Sweet Briar College, and Jemima Lynn Cobb from Stratford College. Mrs. Carol Jean Dickerson is a former student of Illinois State Normal University, and Margaret Ann Felton came to us from the William and Mary, and V. P. I. extension in Norfolk.

Other Transfers

Naomi Mildred Foster came to us from Madison College, and Mrs. Sharon Ceffel Houser transferred from Rollins College, and formerly was a student of the University of Miami. Radford College lost Kitty Lee Jennings to Longwood and Mrs. Bennie N. Melnar transferred here after having attended Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, and the University of Cincinnati.

Mary Ambler Moncure attended George Washington University and Mrs. Margaret Hearwell Putney is a former student of Virginia Intermont and Randolph Macon. Billy Karen Warriner Stone came from Brenau College. Effie Virginia Snyder is a transfer from William and Mary and V. P. I. extension in Norfolk and James Nathaniel Watkins transferred from Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Greetings

May I make use of this space in The Rotunda to express in writing what I have said to all of you freshmen in person, that I extend you a warm welcome to Longwood and hope that you will soon learn to love the college as much as I have since I came to Farmville more than six years ago.

It is scarcely necessary for me to say to our "old" students that I am glad to have you back again but I am saying it anyway. I trust that all of us—students, faculty, and administration—will combine our efforts to make this the happiest and best session that we have had in all the sixty-nine years since the first girls arrived in 1884.

My best wishes always,
DABNEY S. LANCASTER, President

We are more than delighted to have our "family" back again at Longwood with the addition of the splendid freshmen and transfers. I am sure that you have discovered the happiness and friendliness of the Longwood students, and trust that you, too, already feel a part of the college.

We hope that all of you will take advantage of the many fine opportunities offered here and that you will give to the college as much as you receive—making the year 1952-1953 not only profitable but a very happy one.

With warmest personal regards to each one of you

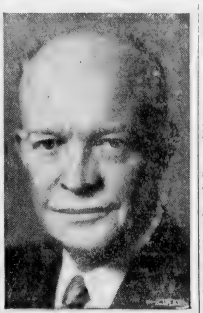
Collier Announces Colonade Contest For Prose Works

Competition Open To Every Student

Betty Collier, editor of the Colonade, has announced the opening of the Annual Prose Contest which begins today and will run until October 20 at 6 p. m. Essays as well as short stories may be entered in this competition for the best original works in prose of Longwood students.

A first prize of five dollars will be presented to Longwood's best writer. A second and third prize consisting of three and two dollars respectively will also be awarded. The prize for the three best examples of literary effort will be presented to their authors in the assembly period following the judging. Winning entries will be published in the Colonnade during the 1952-53 session.

Any Longwood student is eligible to enter any number of original stories and essays in the contest. Manuscripts submitted to the contest may be placed in the Colonnade box under the main bulletin board or they may be given to Betty or Helen Tanner, essay editor,or Eloise Macon, assistant editor.



Entries will be judged on the basis of originality, interest and literary correctness. The board of judges will consist of three faculty members, three students, and the Colonnade Contest Committee.

Any subject in short story or essay will be accepted. Betty and the Colonade Contest Committee wants to contribute to the contest.

Mistake

Dr. J. L. Blair Buck, Co-ordinator of Teacher Education of the State Department of Education, sent an article clipped from the Richmond News Leader to Dr. Lancaster with the note: "I see Longwood has gone international."

The headlines to the article about Longwood girls read, "Ten Frenchmen to Tell Plans in Broadcast."—The headlines should have been "Ten Freshmen."

Dwight D. Eisenhower will pass through Farmville Friday.

Editor Announces Rotunda Tryouts

Interested Girls Will Meet Tonight

Tryouts for a place on the staff of the Rotunda will begin tonight at the regular meeting in the publications office after dinner. Editor Janet Wiggins and all the members of the staff urge all interested students, new and old, experienced and inexperienced, to come and give the Rotunda a try.

Those interested in hunting out and writing factual stories will find a place on the news staff headed by Shirley Ward. Phoebe Warner heads the feature staff which involves creative writing. The sports staff, headed by Mason Moore, also needs reporters.

Another department of the paper needing workers is business, headed by Celeste Bishop. This group takes care of all money matters, circulation, and advertising. Typists and proof readers are also needed.

Each year students are invited to tryout for the Rotunda staffs. Those participating in the plan work on the staff in which they are interested for six weeks. At the end of six weeks those who have proven themselves interested and willing workers are given positions on the staff and their names are placed on the masthead.

Executive Secretary Explains Curriulum Revision In Courses

The only changes in courses offered at Longwood this year occur wholly in Curriculum I, according to Mrs. Mary W. Watkins, executive secretary.

This curriculum has been broadened and liberalized giving more opportunities for electives. Students will now be able to acquire enough credits through electives to enable them to teach any one subject in high school.

Tentative plans are being made for a class in journalism to be taught next semester under the instruction of Mrs. Meade Shackleford, new Director of Public Relations. The class will be a course in the practical application of journalism with actual stories, features, and interviews.

LC Students Hope For Whistle Stop

Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican nominee, will pass through Farmville on September 26, aboard his special campaign train. He will be in Lynchburg at 5 p. m., in Farmville between 6 and 7 p. m. and is expected in Richmond at 8:30 p. m.

Plans are being made for the students to be down at the station when the train comes through. Although a stop has not been planned, it is hoped that the train can be slowed down so that everyone wanting to wave to the general can do so.

The plans for a whistle stop tour which was to have included Farmville were abandoned, it was reported, when the General and his advisers decided that the time could be used more profitably in the "deep south". According to many experts, however, Virginia is included in the list of the four southern states that Eisenhower has the best chance of carrying in the November 4 election.

On his first visit to Virginia, the General will speak at Roanoke, Lynchburg and Petersburg before going into Richmond for a major speech there. His special train will enter the state from North Carolina and follow the Norfolk and Western tracks from Roanoke to Richmond.

Eisenhower's plans to come to Virginia were reportedly strengthened after the success of his first southern trip. Several weeks ago, he ventured into the democratic south and made major speeches in Atlanta, Tampa, and Birmingham. These cities, as well as several other cities and towns which he visited on that trip had the opportunity of greeting a presidential nominee for the first time in many decades.

Tentative plans concerning his visit to the capital city included a major speech from the south portics of the capital building after a motorised parade down Broad Street.

Eisenhower will arrive in Richmond in the wake of the Democratic presidential nominee, Governor Adlai Stevenson who spoke there last Saturday. Mr. Steverson motored down from Washington for his speaking engagement and included stops in Quantico, Fredricksburg and Bowling Green in his quick trip into the old dominion. Plans are now being made for a second visit by Governor Stevenson to Virginia.

Until the arrival of the two presidental candidates this year, Richmond as well as most other parts of the state, had seen presidential candidates but twice in the twentieth century.

4 Home Ec. Majors Start House Keeping

Four senior Home Economics majors have begun their nine weeks stay in the home management house directly across the street from the college.

This year Miss Fern Stamps, head of the Home Economics Department, will act as director of the house. She replaces Miss Margaret Sprunt Hall who has left the staff to become Dean of Women at Peace College in Raleigh, N. C.

The girls living at the house are Sarah Ann Jones, Helen Barrow, Harriet Byrd Minchan and Mrs.

Orientated?

For over a week now the 225 new additions to Longwood's student body have met with a barrage of welcomes and words of advice. Now freshmen and transfers, along with the "old girls," are expected to settle down to the routine of college life.

Though the strenuous orientation week is past, the test of the success of the program is yet to come. The classes, tours, and parties designed to acquaint the new with the old have given many of the new students a feeling of confidence and contentment. This is as it should be, but let us warn that there many be pitfalls ahead and offer a few word of sage advice and comfort.

As newly-made schedules are followed, the recent high school graduate will soon be faced with the fact that differences between high school and college classes are many. It will take most of the new red and whites a while to get used to the three day class schedule. Many who breezed through high school courses without "cracking" a book will find it necessary to spend much more time out of class in preparing lessons. Lecture style teaching which requires rapid note taking may be a new experience for many. However the art of getting good class notes is one that should be mastered and the sooner the better.

Another problem facing transfers and the class of '56 is that of extra-curricula activities. Longwood's various and sundry organizations will soon begin their clamor for the new students' attention and service. Freshmen should beware that dread undergraduate disease "joining fever." We don't advocate an "I want to be alone" approach, but we do suggest that each new student take care to go slowly and choose wisely the activity that appeals to her most. If she follows this advice, she will find herself the possessor of a well-balanced college life, acceptable grades, and good health.

Perhaps the most helpful hint we can pass on to the new girls is that they get out and make friends, because the best way to insure a happy college carer is to be friendly. It is easy to just stick with the other girls from one's home town, but the wise girl accepts the golden opportunity that college offers to meet girls from varied insure a happy college career is to be friend- backgrounds. Longwood has a long tradition of friendliness and it is up to each new student to uphold this reputation.

No doubt the freshmen will stumble upon many more problems other than the ones here cited. There is, however, the comforting thought that there are many to whom they can turn for help—the Dean of Women, their faculty advisor, their big sisters, or any upperclassmen. Good luck, new students, we're expecting great things of you.

Now's Your Chance

With the approach of election day, the election day to which many present-day college students have long looked forward to as their first opportunity to vote, cries of "I like Ike" and "We need Adlai badly" may be heard frequently through the halls of Longwood.

The ROTUNDA'S policy concerning such an issue has always been to remain a bi-partisan informant, and it will continue to be so. However, as an institution in which reside a large number of girls who are reaching the voting age, it becomes, to a certain extent, the responsibility of the college to aid those students in that understanding of politics which will enable them to vote intelligently. Vast opportunities present themselves to fulfill this responsibility. Having qualified members of both major political parties speak in assembly programs is one example which would no doubt be received with warm welcome by all those who are interested in the most pertinent question of the day. The obvious drawback to such badly needed activities on Longwood's campus is that the people who would help in such activities have been shown no indication of the number of persons interested in the presidential campaign or of the extent of their concern and determination that the best man be elected. Longwood students now have an excellent opportunity to make known the fact that they want to be informed of the political situation and will not let escape the chance to hear first hand a candidate's views.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, an admittedly great man even before his name was linked with the presidential race, will travel through Farmville by train this week. Whether or not General Eisenhower is the most desirable candidate is not for the ROTUNDA to say. However, as the newspaper of Longwood College, the ROTUNDA is vitally concerned with whether or not the students show the interest and enthusiasm that can and should be expected of a group of prospective voters.

There is a possibility that, if an impressive number of persons were present at the Farmville Railway Station, General Eisenhower would make a whistle-stop speech. Whether or not a person prefers Eisenhower, Stevenson, or even ones of the minor party candidates is important, but no more so than the fact that the seldom granted opportunity of hearing a speech by a candidate for the Presidency of the United States lies open to Longwood students. It is up to them whether this opportunity will become a reality.

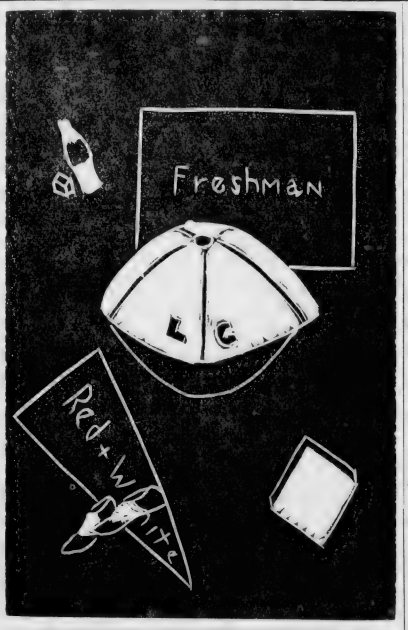
Open Letter

Dear Freshmen,



The spirit of Longwood is as old as our school itself and is not equaled in any other institution. It is an off-spring of our early founders and has lived here with each of us year after year. Maybe you wonder how it has lived so long. The answer to that is simple—we have never given it a chance to die. It is so much a part of our school and our daily lives that it is everywhere about us. It doesn't leave like our seniors do each year but it stays around all summer waiting for you, our freshmen, and incoming classes have yet to fail to pick it up and carry it through their four years.

The Longwood spirit meets each new girl at the entrance of the Rotunda. It begins with the cherry 'Hello" of the "Y" girls and is carried through by the administration and faculty and all upperclassmen who try so hard to make each new student feel that she is at home. Then, before you know it, you are at home.

We are all so happy to have you a part of our Longwood spirit and welcome you from the bottom of our hearts. You have already picked up the spirit and we know you will carry it with you through this year and those to come.

Sincere best wishes from all of us.

Definition of Orientation-- 'Tired Legs 'n Sleepy Heads'

by Margaret Dryden

For the past two weeks, 206 souls (including me) have been "dead to the world" at 5 after 11.

Yes that's us freshman. Orientation is a word we learned the hard way—without the help of Mr. Webster.

It all staretd on Sunday, September 14, when members of the "Y" met the Class of '56 at the door. Since there were so many orientation classes (and we freshmen remember them so well) we'll skip the minor details.

The main reason for my writing this article is to give a freshman's impression of orientation week. The thing the "Y" is essentially interested in is whether orientation is worthwhile or not. It took me a long time to think of a worthwhile answer.

Orientation classes ironed out all our little questions about House Council rules and the honor code. Working in such small groups, each individual could present her problem and get a good idea of what's right and wrong in college.

Of course, there were complaints. We freshman did get tired of walking back and forth to classes, but the nicer part came in the evening. The "rec" party on Monday, the picnic at Longwood on Tuesday, the "red and white" party on Wednesday, the capping service and church parties on Thursday and Friday all helped us freshmen to forget our aches and pains.

MISTAKES

By BARBARA CASKEY

I'm going to leave the usual topic of my column at rest tonight, go out of my way not to welcome the freshmen and jump right in. My collaborator for this week just happens to be the world reknowned lecturer, commentator and transfer from Radford college, Miss Judith Cox. We here at Farmville certainly hope you catch the Longwood spirit, Judy! At any rate, we appreciate the fact that the new freshmen and transfers need guidance in the 'do's' and 'don't' of university life. May you all profit by the gory details of our experience.

DO . . . get up at 7:60 so as to be sure to get to your eight o'clock class on time.

DON'T . . . forget to fall down the rotunda steps at least five times a day. It's Collegiate!

DO . . . be sure to thank the dining room staff for your lovely meals, especially commending them for their breakfasts of beet juice, celery, iced tea and chocolate pie.

DON'T . . . charge over $300 downtown at Baldwin's. It's Snoddy!

DO . . . be sure and learn how to play the trumpet. Remember, it's Femminine!

DO . . . rip up your sheets before you send them to the laundry. It's Helpful!

DON'T . . . at least twice a week, forget to wear your most exclusive mink out!!—run and trap.

DON'T . . . for the sake of an easy schedule, take basketweaving, landscape appreciation, star gazing, tree surgery and a physical activity, preferably Itching. However, 'TO ITCH HIS OWN'.

DO . . . take plastic surgery, bookbinding and harvesting. It's international. And who wouldn't want to be an International Harvester.

DON'T . . . forget that the thing to do nowadays is to be seen at Willy's. It's smart!

DO . . . be a joiner. (The following are paid political announcements).

Join the Athletes Athletic Association. Remember, it's a racquet to live in the Tri A house.

Join the House council and live in a cave

Join the 'Y' and live in the 'Y'hoke.

Join the Student Government Association, be crude and Live in the student council room.

DO . . . be controversial. Discuss political issues. Be heard giving your favorite candidate's slogan and above all, be original with these slogans. For Example . . .

"We need Dwight every night . . . and day."

or

"We want Adlai madly . . . and badly."

Personally, "We stick to Dick . . . Russell, of course."

DON'T . . . ever read this column again. We get worse every week.

According to my regular custom, I must pass on a thought for the week. This week I speak directly to the freshmen—If you and your new roommate can not find any thing congenial, if you seem singly congenial, if you seem to have no mutual feelings, remember that you still have one big thing in common

Social Notes

By CAROLYN STANLEY

Closed weekends ruin my business! Nevertheless, the summer has been far from dull and Longwood girls, especially last year's seniors, have been quite busy tying the knot and taking closer steps to the altar. So let me brief you in the latest gossip:

Spectra-Scopic Views

by Ann Marie Gray

The fall season of 1952 is being spoken of by news commentators and historians as being one of the most sensational seasons the people of the United States have seen in a long time. To say this is election year at this stage is like saying "I was born yesterday," but this is election year and the game of politics has become the most popular game even pushing King Football, NATO, and the Korean War into the sidelines.

If the readers of this column have spent the past summer in the United States they must know that the Republicans "Like Ike" and the Democrates "Need Adlai Badly". The nomination of these two candidates could not be called a surprise, but their nominations meant that the respective parties suffered splits which could not be overlooked by any intelligent member in either party.

To mend the splits both candidates have found themselves in the awkward position of standing on the plank upon which they rode to victory and appeasing the resentful "other half." This campaign is called for a wooing of all sections of the country with special emphasis on states which have here-to-fore been more or less solidly Democratic or Republican, and also the independent voter who has rather suddenly become interested in voting. Some of the subjects which give the most trouble are those of civil rights and the FEPC, and the Taft-Hartley law.

We in college are for the most part the independent voters who will play a big role in throwing the election this coming November 4. It is presumed that those qualified to vote will put forth the effort to do so. Perhaps we have decided for whom we will vote, and perhaps some of us are still on the fence.

We must remember that all the "mess" isn't in Washington, but even the fireball Senator Nixon has a stigma of questionable expenditures attached to his name, and Stevenson says things which don't always coincide with the true Democratic doctrines.

Campus Cogitations

by Naomi Reed

Question: Now that you've been here for over a week, what is your impression of Longwood?

Shirley Willhide: I just love it.

Colleen Goff: I just love Longwood but they keep you running so much.

Betty Moss: I think it's fine so far. I like it. We're having lots of fun now. I don't know how it will be when classes start.

Claudette Cross: I like it.

Helen Warinner:.. I think it's wonderful.

Nancy Sydnor: Every one was just as friendly as they could be. That was my first impression.

Joyce Clingenpeel: I love it. I've never seen a friendlier place in my life.

June Elder: It fun but it's a rush.

Liz DeHaven: When we have more time we'll enjoy it more.

Kay Petter: It's real—so far.

Joyce Dalton: Tired and sleepy but I love it.

Jean Edwards: I think it's a wonderful place and I love it here.

Audrey Owen: I like it fine now, but I dread classes.

Jean Mosely: I think it's wonderful.

Barbara Powell: "I love Longwood, I love my room and my roommate, and I love all the girls, but I'm hungry!"

Betsy Welbon: "My first impression of Longwood was that I hoped I wouldn't break my neck, when descending the Rotunda stairs in heels."

Beverly Taylor: "To be perfectly frank, I haven't formed one yet—I've been kept too busy."

Margie Harris: I am amazed at the friendly attitude of theupperclassmen to us freshmen."

Joyce Gilchrest: I love Longwood, but I hope I won't get seasick from walking over the warped floors."

Old Girls Hold Frosh Classes

Longwood College began the fall semester Sunday, September 14, with a week of activities to acquaint freshmen and other new students with life on the campus.

During orientation week, new students learned the customs and regulations of the college and met the faculty, upperclassmen, and administrative officials.

Each group of ten new students had an orientation leader from the senior class and an assistant leader from the junior class to conduct them on their round of activities. Leaders from the senior class were Betty Abbit, Celeste Bishop, Polly Brothers, Barbara Caskey, Helen Castros, Ann Crowder, Nancy Driskill, Challice Hayden, Ann Keith Hundley and Jean Jinnett, Anne Jones, Wanda Karlet, Jacquelyn and Natalie Lancaster.

Also serving were Caroline McDonald, Beverly Marsh, Ann Murphy, Mary Hurt Peery, Margaret Steele, Elizabeth Stone, Sarah McElroy Harvie, Helen Tanner, Margaret Taylor, and Janet Wiggins.

Assistant orientation leaders from the junior class were Patricia Altwegg, Lura Beavers, Mary Evelyn Bennett, Betty Benton, Barbara Blackmon, Jane Branch, Mary Ann Evans, Ann Edmonds and Betty Frances Gillette, Doris Horne, Elizabeth Islin, June Johns, and Elleanor Koch.

Mason Moore, Jean Pearce, Betsy Jean Robertson, Mary Elva Robinson, Patsy Sandford, Elizabeth Ann Thomas, Else Wente, Anne Foster, Elizabeth McClung, and Billie Tomlinson.

Those chosen as key custodians are Lib Boswell, Marion Parrish, and Patsy Sanford.

L. C. Library Exhibits Collection Of Bibles

The Longwood College Library will present a Bible exhibit from September 22 through October 11. The display is being held in connection with the publication of the New Revised Standard Version of the Bible which will be published September 30. The exhibit is shown in cooperation with the Farmville Ministerial Association and includes such Bibles of interest as a two volume French Bible illustrated with Dore engravings, a copy of the famed Thomas Jefferson Bible, and facsimiles of pages of the Gutenburg Bible in Greek.

The library will be glad to include in the exhibit old, historical, or foreign Bibles which any members of the student body or faculty would like to bring to the library.

Twelve Longwood students have been appointed to asisst on the library staff. The nine sophomores serving are Pat Bodkin, Mary Cowles, Shirley Lewis, Pollyanna Martin, Barbara Moore, Virginia Phelps, Joyce Pomeroy, Lucy Thwing, and Shirley Ward. Also on the staff will be one junior, Anne Foster, and two seniors, Jean Mercer and Bunny Gibson.

Athletic Association Plans Demonstration of Activities For Thurs., September 25

AA Managers Reveal Tennis, Hockey Plans For Fall Competition

The schedule for varsity hockey practices has been announced by hockey manager Sue Webb. Practices will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of each week.

Try-outs for the varsity team will be held on Wednesday and Thursday of this week at 4:00 p. m.

On Saturday, September 27, there will be a hockey clinic at Sweet Briar College. All those interested in going are asked to see Sue Webb as soon as possible.

Ann Parkinson, manager of tennis, has announced that the tennis singles will be played in the near future. Anyone interested in taking part in the competition should sign up on the notice which will be posted on the A. A. bulletin board.

These matches have become a tradition at Longwood. They are carried on each fall and spring. Winners of the matches contribute points toward the much coveted color cup.

Program To Begin In Modern Dance

On Thursday, September 25 the Athletic Association will present a demonstration of the activities carried on in the physical education department of this college. The demonstration, given particularly to acquaint new students with the sports program, will begin promptly at 4:00 p. m. in the gymnasium.

As announced by Betty Tyler, president of the Athletic Association, the program will be headed by a modern dance demonstration presented by the members of Orchesis. This is to be followed by volleyball, swimming, tennis, hockey and archery. Last on the program will be a softball game between the male faculty members and the junior and senior physical education majors.

At the end of the demonstration the blazer awards will be made. Blue and white blazers will go to seniors who have distinguished themselves in the sports program of the school.

To climax the events of the afternoon a picnic supper will be served in the circle behind Tabb Hall.

Wiatt To Post Time For Rec Swimming

Roberta Wiatt, A. A. swimming manager, has announced that recreational swimming periods will be held in the college pool every week. The day and time for these swims will be announced in the near future.

The seniors are reminded that they must pass their swimming tests before they can graduate.

Dr. Lancaster Makes Public Longwood Lyceum Program For 1952-53 College Year

Jack Kilpatrick To Open Series

The Longwood College Artists Series of five events for 1952-1953 to be held in the Jarman Auditorium was announced yesterday by President Dabney S. Lancaster.

Jack Kilpatrick, Editor of the Richmond News Leader, will open the series with a discussion of the political situation October 16. Othe revents to follow are Jean Erdman and Dance Company, November 6; Virgil Fox, organist, February 3; and the Mozart Chamber Orchestra, April 14.

Mr. Kilpatrick will discuss the stands of General Eisenhower and Governor Stevenson on both domestic and foreign issues and the candidates' chances of winning the election. A graduate of the University of Missouri, Mr. Kilpatrick was first a reporter and later chief editorial writer on the Richmond News Leader, before being named editor.

Jean Erdman will bring a company of six men and women dancers and a pianist to Farmville. Her compositions range from the humorous to the deeply serious and from the dramatic to pure movement design. Miss Erdman directs a school of dancing in her New York studio, heads the modern dance division at Columbia University's Teachers College, and is guest artist-teacher at the Creative Arts Festival of the University of Colorado, each summer.

The Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers will present a varied program, which will include the anthems of the Creek Orthodox Church, folk songs, regimental songs, and peasant dances. Gabriel Solodukhin will perform the famous dagger dance. Directed by Nicholas Kostrukoff, the group has given 1,700 concerts in the United States since 1939, when its members first came to this country as exiles from their homes in the Don River country of Russia.

Virgil Fox, who is the organist for the Riverside Church in New York City, has recently returned from a concert tour of Europe, where he represented the United States at the International Congress for Church Music in Bern, Switzerland. Mr. Fox plays the music of Bach, Mozart, Dupre, Mendelssohn, and others before thousands of listeners in more than 80 concerts each year.

The Mozart Chamber Orchestra, under the direction of Robert Scholz, will present a program of classic chamber music and a mixed repetoire. The orchestra's guest soloist will be Helen Kwalwasser, a young violinist who is noted for her purity of style and precision of performance. The orchestra is made up of 12 string instruments, two oboes, and two horns.

Virginian, Rotunda Name Staff Members

Mary Fleming Carter has been named assistant editor of the college yearbook, The Virginian, by the editor, Ann Keith Hundley. She will replace Liz Browning. "Fifi" a junior from Hopewell, was a member of the annual staff last year.

Serving as the new art editor of the Rotunda will be Margaret Steele of Roanoke. She was chosen by editor Janet Wiggins to replace Margaret Perrow. "Margie" is a senior and acts as head dining room hostess.

4 Longwood Girls Win Chicago Trips In 4-H Competition

Four Longwood girls, Evelyn Bowlin, Phyllis' Isaacs, Marian Ruffin, and Helen Marie Wood, were winners in the State 4-H contest last June.

Contestants were judged on their projects and their past 4-H experiences. As winners of the contest, the girls will go to Chicago fo ra week with all expenses paid. They plan to stay in the Conrad Hilton Hotel and during their stay in the city will visit such places as the Chicago Museum, the Merchandise Mart, and the International Livestock Show The group will leave for Chicago on November 4.

To win the division on Food Presentation, Evelyn Bowlin gave a canning demonstration in Blacksburg. She has since been taken in to the Virginia State All Star Chapter which is the highest honor obtainable in the 4-H Club.

Phyllis Isaacs won the Farm and Home Electrification division, which required intense study of the wiring and electrical appliances in the home. Making a wool dress and learning many different phases of sewing enabled Marian Ruffin to win the State Dress Review.

Marie Wood, for her project, redecorated her home. She won the State Home Improvement division an dis now a junior leader in her local 4-H Club.

"Give Our Reagrds To Broadway"

Cleo Returns for Week-End Visit

by Dot Douglas

"My new dark eye brows were dyed by the shaky hand of a fellow actor," said Cleo Holladay, Longwood's contribution to the theater, when describing her recent summer's experiences.

Last spring Cleo won the Barter Theater award for the best college actress in Virginia and as a result was on tour with the Barter Theater during the summer.

Cleo visited her Longwood friends last week end before beginning another tour with the Barter Theater which will end Christmas. I was anxious to know what she had learned this summer, and she told me a lot in a few words. "I learned a lot of different things from each director and I also learned how to get along with a concentrated group of crazy people."

When asked about her roles, she gave a dissertation on how her physical appearance is always crossing her up in her preference fo rtragic or sophisticated roles. She said, "Directors take one look at these freckles and dimples and then put me down as the kind of girl you see sitting on a stool in the drug store drinking a chocolate soda."

Last summer after a disheartening stretch of sweet-thing assignments, she landed the part of rich conceited Slade Kinnicott in S. N. Behrman's "Biography." She also had roles in "Curious Savage", "Good-bye, My Fancy", "Detective Story", (her facorite role was in this) and two original plays, "Poet and Seven" and "Sweet Fire."

When asked about recreation, Cleo laughed and recalled a time in August when the was rehearsing three shows a day and acting in a fourth at night. She said, "It was fantastic. I couldn't have stood it long." (However, she remembered a lot of fun after the show.)

Cleo expects to be as busy this fall on her five week tour of "Curious Savage." Most of the shows will be one night stands and this should mean a great deal of work and experience. We're anxious to see her when Longwood players will sponsor "Curious Savage" here around October 8.

I wondered how Cleo's parents felt about having an actress-daughter and she beamed) "My parents love the idea of my going into the theater. Mother pushes harder for me than I do for myself."

Last spring Cleo was granted admission to the American Academy of Arts but didn't go there because she wanted to stay on the stage and play. When I asked Cleo if she would consider coming back to Longwood, she said: "Longwood has only a few courses in Drama, but if it had a department, I would have stayed for eight years."

Harvie Reveals Theme Of 1952 AKG Big Top As "Carnivali Festivali"

AKG Chooses Tyler Ass't. Chairman

The big top of the annual Alpha Kappa circus will be unfurled Saturday night, October 25, at 8 p. m., in the Jarman Auditorium.

Carnavali Festivali has been chosen as this year's theme, it was announced today by Sarah Harvie, newly selected general chairman of the circus. According to Sarah and her appointed assistant, Betty Tyler, the theme will be carried out in the general decorations of the Auditorium and in the costumes worn by members of the Circus court.

The arrival of circus will be heralded by a parade through Farmville's main streets on Saturday afternoon. The parade will include the traditional class floats and cars decorated in "Green 'n White" and "Red 'n White."

The name of the sophomore animal trainer will be announced in a later issue of the Rotunda, and the identity of the ringmaster, traditionally a junior, will not be revealed until the circus performance on Saturday night.

Tickets for the circus performance will go on sale on Monday, October 20, and will be priced at twenty-five cents, according to Ann Keith Hundley, chairman of tickets and publicity for the circus. The other committee chairmen appointed to assist Sarah are: Betty Tyler, in charge of animals and costumes; Polly Brothers, chairman of the Parade committee; Lucy Page Hall, chairman of the Booth committee; and Anne Jones, stunt chairman.

The general chairman, Sarah Harvie, is a senior from Richmond. Besides her membership in Alpha Kappa Gamma, Sarah served for two years as President of her class, and is a member of Future Teachers of America, the Monogram Club, the Cotillion Club, the choir, and Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority.

Sarah Harvie, who will serve as general chairman of Circus, which is to be given Oct. 25.

Write The Editor

Many students here have often agreed or disagreed whole-heartily to many of the editorials written in the Rotunda. On the other hand many more have often had questions about certain points brought out in news articles.

The Rotunda staff encourages letters to the editor at all times. Yours might be published!

Calendar-Date Book To Appear In Dec.

A new publication, "The Splinter," will appear on the campus the first of December. "The Splinter" is to be a college calendar-date book and will be sold at the price of $1.50.

The Longwood Chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary collegiate journalism fraternity, will sponsor the publication. The group made plans for the calendar at their last meeting.

Members selected the name for the newest publication because it will be Longwood's smallest. The cover for the book will be of blue leather with white printing. Janet Wiggins is chairman of the project.

Barbara Caskey, vice-president, who presided in the absence of Harriet Byrd Minnichan, president, announced that the initiation of the new members chosen for the club last spring will be held in the near future.

Johnson To Head LC Choir Group For Coming Year

Winston Johnson, senior from Franklin, was elected president of the Longwood choir at the first rehearsal of the group. Other officers chosen at this time were Dolly Horne, vice-president; Dot Morris and Trianne Lampkin, secretaries, and Wilma Salmon, Treasurer.

Dr. Molinar has announced the results of the choir tryouts which took place September 22 through 26. Members of the choir include as first sopranos Nan Bland, Ann Dudley, Betty Goodson, Sarah Harvie, Phyllis Isaacs, Trianne Lampkin, Nancy Lawrence, Barbara Mays, Nancy McLawhorne, Sue McNeil and Jean Carol Parker.

Other sopranos are Audrey Powell, Judy Richey, Barbara Rickman, Elizabeth Stone, Lucy Thwing, Ester Acosta, Jo Burley, Virginia Cowles, and Mary Cowles. Jackie Curlee, Joyce Catling, Carolyn Giles, Fay Greenland, Carolyn Henderson, Joyce Hunt, Doris Horne, Shirley Mahanes, Billie Powell, Emita Smith, and Jane Branch complete the soprano section.

Altos will be Mary E. Bennett, Elizabeth Boswell, Betsy Anne Berry, Wanda Doll, Nell Copley.

Mr. Kilpatrick Will Appear Jarman Hall On October 16

News Leader Editor Will Discuss Politics

James Jackson Kilpatrick, senior editor of the Richmond News Leader, will open the Farmville Artists Series on October 16 with a discussion of current U. S. political issues.

Mr. Kilpatrick will be primarily concerned with the campaigns of Stevenson and Eisenhower and their stands on domestic policy and foreign relations. In his talk he will also consider each candidates chance of election.

Mr. Kilpatrick began his newspaper service with the Richmond paper in 1941, as reporter covering the State Capital and General Assembly news. He also wrote a sports column and during the war, edited a special one page news condensation sheet for Richmond servicemen. During this time he also wrote an article about Virginia for the Encyclopedia Britannica 1945 edition.

In 1949 he became chief editorial writer and, succeding Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, because fifth senior editor of the Richmond News Leader in 1951.

"Jack" Kilpatrick is a member of the National Conference of Editorial Writers and serves as editor of this organizations' quarterly, "The Masthead."

A native of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, he is a graduate of the University of Missouri.

Students may obtain tickets for the Artists Series from the President's office between the hours of 9 and 5 during the week of October 13.

Editor Announces Sale Of Virginians

The prices of the 1953 Virginian have been announced by Ann Keith Hundley, editor. Orders for this year's annual are now being taken by Virginian representatives.

Padded annuals with names stamped on the cover are $9.00, padded books without name $8.45, plain $8.00, and plain on credit $8.50. The only annual that can be bought on the installment plan is the plain with no name. Students may pay $1.00 down and $7.50 later in the year.

November 15 is the deadline for the purchase of annuals. After this date, orders can not be taken.

One Night Stand at Longwood Brings Barter's Presentation Of Play, "The Curious Savage"

Students Choose Two Girls To Fill Vacated Offices

Peery, Assaid Serve As '52-53 Officers

Two officers for the 1952-53 session were elected last Tuesday night September 30, at a student body meeting in Jarman Auditorium. Mary Hurt Peery, a senior from Grundy, was chosen vice-president of the student body, and Barbara Assaid, a sophomore from Roanoke, was elected treasurer of House Council.

At the beginning of her junior year, Mary Hurt transferred to Longwood from Marion Junior College, where she was President of the Student Government. Last year she was on the varsity hockey team, and this year, in addition to her recently acquired office, she is a member of the Cotillion Club, Orchesis, and is treasurer of Alpha Sigma Tau, social sorority.

During her freshman year Barbara was vice-president of her class, chairman of Freshman Production, and a representative on May Court. This year she is acting as temporary freshman house president, and is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau, social sorority, the Cotillion Club, and Student Standards.

Mrs. Cover Reveals Sorority Averages For Last Semester

Mrs. Kathleen G. Cover, adviser to the Pan-Hellenic Council, has released the academic averages for the eight social sororities at Longwood College for the 1951-52 session.

Kappa Delta sorority achieved the highest scholastic average for the sororities and will again receive the scholarship bowl presented by the Pan-Hel Council.

The academic average of the sororities for the 1951-52 session are Kappa Delta 1.995, Alpha Sigma Alpha 1.705, Delta Sigma Epsilon 1.70, Alpha Sigma Tau 1.665, Pi Kappa Sigma 1.655, Sigma Sigma Sigma 1.65, Zeta Tau Alpha 1.64, and Theta Sigma Upsilon 1.585.

AKG Fall Meeting Set At Longwood For October 18, 19

Alpha Kappa Gamma, an honorary collegiate leadership fraternity, will hold its annual fall convention at Longwood College, October 17 and 18. This convention will observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of AKG's founding here at Longwood in 1928.

Dr. Gillie A. Larue, Dean of Randolph-Macon Women's College will be guest speaker at the opening session on Friday night, in Jarman Hall. At this meeting, which will be open to the entire Longwood student body, the local chapter of AKG will hold a tapping ceremony for new members.

On Saturday various meetings will be held for the delegates and the convention will close with a banquet at Longwood House. Dr. M. H. Bittinger, Dean of Hampden-Sydney College will be speaker at the dinner.

Delegates from five southern colleges will be present. AKG chapters from the University of South Carolina, Queens College in Charlotte, North Carolina, Columbia College of Columbia, South Carolina, Lander College Greenwood, South Carolina, and the College of Charleston, in Charleston, South Carolina will be represented.

Cleo Comes Back In Featured Role

Tonight at 8:00 p. m. the curtain in Jarman Auditorium will go up on the Barter Theater's presentation of John Patrick's "The Curious Savage."

The Longwood Players have been responsible for bringing to the college this play, which was described by the New York News during its successful Broadway run as "An evening of gentle laughter, with a teardrop or two, plus a dash of wisdom."

The Barter Theater's new play will receive special interest at Longwood since Cleo Holliday, a former student at Longwood who won the 1952 Barter Theater's apprenticeship award, will be featured in the cast.

"The Curious Savage" is Ethel, who married into the redoubtable Savage family. The three other savages—one a crooked lawyer, the second an incompetent judge, and the third an adventuress—clamp their stepmother into a private mental institution, the Cloisters, because she likes to give vast sums of money away for foolish reasons. Once there, the impulsive lady makes friends with the mild cases who surround her and begins to love them. However, bedlam insues in the peaceful institution when the Savages of the outside world descend upon the Cloisters after discovering that their stepmother has had the forethought to hide all her money before being committed.

Dorothy LaVerne plays the role of Ethel, this delightfully daft and wealthy widow who, in her later years, makes a career out of doing all the foolish things she'd always dreamed of doing when younger. Miss LaVerne, as Ethel lends even more aptness to the title "The Curious Savage" by her choice of hair color. One of Ethel's realized whims is to dye her hair blue—"because it will go with everything."

Cleo, who is now a regular member of the Barter group, will play the role of Fairy Mae, the pathetically funny inmate of the Cloisters who believes that she is the "world's most beautiful woman."

Tickets may be purchased tonight at the box office. Admission price is $1.80.

Collier Announces Publication Date

December 1 has been announced as the date of the first publication of the colonnade, Longwood's Literary magazine, by Betty Collier, editor.

This issue will feature one of the prize winning entries of the short story contest which closes October 20 at 6 p. m. All contributions to the December 1 issue will have to be in by the latter part of October. Material may be given to the Editor, or dropped in the Colonnade box.

Three new members have been added to the staff. Molly Hersman will be the new Humor Editor; Libby Forest, Art Editor; and Barbara White, Short Story Editor. These girls have been named to replace those members of the staff who did not return this year. Betty Collier also added that anyone who wishes to serve as assistant on the staff may try out at Colonnade meetings in the near future.

Ratters Reveal Rugged Rules For Riotous Rodents Day

by Phoebe Word

Blow the bugles, sound the trumpets, for the time draws near for all lowly freshmen to beware. Rat Day will begin this Saturday at 6:30 a. m. and end at 4 p. m.

Rules for this memorable occasion are as follow.s:

1. All rats must be dressed as angels wearing no red but wearcasion are as follows:

a. a halo made of a coat hanger covered with green crepe paper.

b. a white crepe paper dress resembling an angel's gown. This must be worn over white gym suit, and the length should be just below the knees.

c. green wings made out of cardboard with the name of the rat painted with white paint on the wings d saddle shoes or loafers with green socks.

e. fifty-five green 55's painted or pinned on the white dress.

2. Learn the sign-off and be able to repeat it whenever requested by the sophomores.

Sign Off

I (name of rat) from (home town) am a seditious sciolistic freshman, and seem to sense that the sensationally sagicious sophomores surpass us scholastically and socially, for standard statistics state sophomores stand stable, steadfast and staunch since stratosphere started. Such singular stamina surely speaks splendid success. Sophomores should really sever all connections with the silly, shallow freshmen, since they are scraping in a sciamachy. PRAISE '55!

3. Each rat is to spend not over fifty cents on her costume.

4. Each rat is required to have at least five appointments with sophomores on Rat Day. Every rat will be checked after dinner the night preceding Rat Day to see that they have the required number.

5. Appointments with sophomores will be made the day preceding Rat Day. The first five appointments will cost a dime apiece and any extra appointments need not be paid for. The five dimes will be collected also by members of the rat committee the night before Rat Day.

6. Booths will be set up during the day near the Rec and the post office at which the Rats will be able to purchase a permit to get her mail or to go to the rec for anything. These permits will cost five cents.

7. During the appointments the rats will be required to do worthwhile projects such as cleaning a sophomore's room, shining shoes, running errands, or any other task that the sophomores may demand.

8. All rats who are notified, must report to "Little Rat Court." All rats must report to "Big Rat Court" wearing green and white.

9. All rats are to obey the sophomores and to call them by "Miss."

10. All rats are to report to the lawn in front of the entrance to Tabb Hall immediately after lunch.

11. All meals and classes must be attended. Ratting is confined to the campus.

12. All rats must report to the gym at 6:30 a. m. No appointments can be had until after breakfast.

Make It Meaningful

Last night the glow of many candles filled the darkened Rotunda with light. During this traditional ceremony, the Young Women's Christian Association welcomed the freshman class as members. Reflected for the first time in the faces of these new students and remembered well by the upperclassmen, the gleam of candlelight signified the dignity and integrity of young women who are striving toward the highest ideals of Christian living during college days. They follow the gleam in preparing for useful and happy careers in future days.

Coke parties, big sisters and little sisters, "the ladies in white" on that first day at Longwood; these may have been the student's first introduction to the Y.W.C.A. But there is definitely much to learn about this organization as aquaintance grows.

In the first place, every girl at Longwood is automatically a member of "Y", and all of its many events are planned to include her. There is surely an activity in which each person may find the security of belonging to and being a necessary part of a group. Prayers held after supper in the Episcopal Church may be an example. This period of quiet and meditation may bring new direction to the lives of always busy students.

Such an organization as this is certainly not all play and no work; but led by the energy and efforts of the "Y" Cabinet, the work of planning and carrying out the many events is kept to a minimum for any one student. But "for every collegian there is a committee." Some of these are the Prayers committee, a committee that plans Saturday night "sing", a committee that urges church attendance and cooperation, and social, music and publicity committees. Within a week or two every student will be given the opportunity to become a member of one of these groups. Students, why not take advantage of this opportunity? Although the "Y" officers can organize the activities, the interest and enthusiasm of its members are the means of making these plans successful.

In past years Longwood students have put themselves, their time, and their interest into the work of the Y.W.C.A. and it has consequently become an integral part of the college. This year, let "Y" stand for you in this organization and thus it will carry on the Longwood spirit of friendliness, responsibility, service and personal faith.

It's Not So Bad

October 11 is the date that has been designated as Rat Day, which is probably the most dreaded day in a freshman's busy year and on the other hand the day most eagerly anticipated by every member of the "steadfast, stately, and strong" sophomore class.

Few persons are unaware of the tremendous amount of controversy that has taken place in recent years in connection with the value of Rat Day as a means of helping Longwood freshmen to feel a part of their new college home. Some have argued that a freshman's first few weeks at school contain too many experiences of a bewildering and often humiliating nature. They have denounced the added burden of a day set aside to force freshmen to become the objects of ridicule and the recipients of commands to perform strenuous and often dangerous tasks.

Those who disagree with this attitude have met it with such questions as, "What better way is there to make the freshmen acquainted with large numbers of upperclassmen, particulary sophomores."

Throughout the past decade such an argument has been almost continuous, and a great amount of progress has been made. Regulations have been made to insure a mild initiation for a safe, short period. This year, for the first time, Rat Day will be on a Saturday, thus making participation a voluntary activity. Upperclassmen have expressed a desire that the freshmen be urged not to cancel important plans previously made simply because they feel that they should stay on campus for Rat Day. However, the upperclassmen hope that no freshmen will leave school because Rat Day is scheduled for October 11.

Whether Rat Day be valuable or detrimental to those who participate, it is a Longwood tradition, and participation in this tradition is usually fun for both "Stately Sophomore" and "Fearful Freshman."

Do You Vote?

Perhaps many of Longwood's November voters do not realize that the "red tape" involved in voting was not completed when they registered. In order to vote in Farmville, away from their home precincts, they must apply for absentee ballots.

What is the procedure for obtaining this necessary document? Just go down to the Farmville Furniture Store and ask Mr. H. L. Newbill, Farmville Registrar of voters, for an application for an absentee ballot. Then fill in this simple blank and mail it to the Registrar of Voters, your home town. Don't procrastinate because this application must be in five days prior to November 4.

Surely everyone will agree that this is a small task to perform to insure the right to vote. It won't take but a few minutes, so Longwood voters, send for your absentee ballots today.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1952

Missed You

It was truly a disappointing sight that greeted the eyes of those in charge of the student body meeting held last Tuesday night. Two important officers were to be elected for the coming year and yet only a small portion of Longwood's populace appeared to cast their votes.

Is the student body losing some of its much talked-about spirit and interest? Are Longwood girls becoming too lazy to walk a few extra steps to attend an important meeting? Have the students developed "I just don't care" attitudes? If any of these supositions is true, we should hang our heads with shame.

Each girl should stop and realize how lucky she is to be attending a college in which the students have a "say-so" and play an important part. Each girl should realize her good fortune and take advantage of it.

The next time there is a student body meeting, hockey game, or any activity that requires student participation, let's all be on hand to do our part and show our famous Longwood spirit.

Campus Cogitations

by Naomi Reed

Do you think that adequate facilities and opportunities are provided to enable Longwood students to become well informed politically?

Bunny Gibson: I think there is material available but not easily accessible. Dr. Moss is the best material at hand. Periodicals and newspapers are the best source for political information. I think there should be a more concious effort for forums. The students seem to be interested in the coming election.

Betty Bentley: If the students would read what there is they would understand the political situation a lot better. You have to look at all sides of the situation. I think the only thing you can do is read the ready material, and talk to your friends and get their ideas. I believe the students are interested in the coming election.

Virginia Phelps: I believe that any Longwood student can become politically well informed if she really wants to. Facilities are ample if she has the time to make use of them. Student or faculty debates as assembly programs would be informative as well as interesting. Yes, I think the students are definitely interested in the coming election.

Follyanna Martin: Yes, I think there are enough facilities for anyone to become informed politically if they want to. The school is certainly doing its share. There are lectures and exhibits at the library.

Wanta Make Dean's List? Here's Help From a Genius

by Dot Douglas

Now that you've read the dean's list we know that you're all interested in making A's too—well we've taken a survey and we've come up with some "fool" proof ideas of getting along with professors.

1. Look alert—take notes eagerly. If you look at your watch, just look—don't shake it unbelievably. Wait until the professor leaves the room to change the wall clock.

2. Laugh at his or her jokes. You'll know if he looks up from his notes and smiles expectantly that he has told a joke. (After all he did try!)

3. Ask for parallel books to read. You don't have to read them, just ask.

4. Bring magazine articles dealing with his subject to class If you can't find clippings dealing with his subject, bring in anything. He thinks everything deals with his subject.

5. Nod frequently and murmur "How true."

6. The front row is recommended to all students wishing to make an impression. (This applies only if you plan to stay awake.)

7. Ask any question you think he can answer. Avoid announcing that you found the answer to a question he couldn't answer.

8. Call attention aloud in class to any article your professor may have written. He'll surely remember your good taste.

9. If you are sleepy arrange to be called at the end of the class. You're rather conspicious dozing alone after the rest of the class has gone.

10. If you are planning to cut over seven classes in a row, arrange to have a friend who vaguely resembles you occupy your desk six of the times.

Well, we must go brush our teeth for "A" smile. As for you, it's up to you whether or not you want to do some work in addition to this. It's a controversial point.

See you on Dew Rd.

Swimming Practices To Begin On Oct 10

The first swimming team practice has been set by manager Roberta Wiatt for October 10.

All students interested in swimming are urged to come. Speed is not a requirement for the team membership because the aim of the practices is to develop both speed and correct form.

All who wish to venture into the deep should be at the pool at 5:00 p. m. Friday.

For aquatic athletes who prefer less strenuous sports rec swim periods have been set for 10:00 p. m. every Wednesday night and 4:00 p. m. on Friday afternoon.

ACE Picks Talley As New Chairman Of Publicity Work In First Meeting

At a recent meeting of the Association of Childhood Education Jean Talley was elected publicity chairman. Plans were made to insure bids to all eligible Juniors and Seniors sometime during October and to hold the initiation at the November meeting.

Also as a part of the October meeting, discussions were led by four of the members. Nancy Driskill talked on "What Can Be Done to Help a Student Teacher Before She Begins Her Teaching;" Caroline McDonald, "How Can She Be Helped After She Begins Her Teaching," and Ann Conley, "Value of Observation." Jean Jinnett spoke on "Should a Senior Be Required to Have a C Average Before She Begins Teaching."

The A. C. E. is an organization open to juniors and seniors who have a C average and are majoring in Elementary Education.

Public Relations Dir. To Visit High Schools In Several Counties

Mrs. Meade L. Shackleford, public relations director of the college, will leave on Sunday, October 12 for a school-sponsored trip through southwest Virginia. While on her trip, Mrs. Shackleford will visit the high schools in Buchanan, Dickenson, Russell, Smyth, Tazewell, Washington, and Wise counties.

During her visit to the schools she will talk with girls about entering Longwood College next fall. Mrs. Shackleford has stated that she would like to talk to any of the girls from the counties she plans to visit in order to obtain information about prospective students.

Longwood's New Students From Abroad Relate First Impressions of American Life

by Shirley Ward

"Longwood is very pretty! The girls are very nice, sweet and friendly," commented Argentina Matute, Spanish informant from Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

"Everyone is very nice, friendly and understanding and I feel that everyone wishes to help me," smiled Denise Montagne, informat in French, from Paris, France.

In an interview recently with "Tina" and Denise, it was found that both are very enthusiastic and excited about Longwood—its girls, instructors, life, hospitality, and friendliness.

Argentina expressed her interest in the United States to the American ambassador in Honduras. With her interest in mind he worked through the Institute of International Education in New York which enabled her to come to Longwood. Her courses here include sociology, English literature, speech, Spanish, swimming, and music.

It was amusing to watch her face when she told about her travel mix-up and her expectations of Longwood life. The mix-up came in Charlotte, North Carolina, where she got on the plane to New York and her bags were placed on the Richmond plane. As for the life at Longwood, she expected to see everyone wearing gloves and hats to classes since that seemed to be the style on Richmond streets.

The sweaters, skirts, and low-heeled shoes of the girls here seems to impress her ver much.

"Tina" attended College Maria Auxileadora where she received her certificate to teach, which she has previously done for five years in elementary schools. She also attended a secretarial school.

Denise, on the other hand, comes to America through the Fulbright Travel Grant. She was recommended to Dr. Dabney Lancester by her good friend Catherine Ollivary, former informant in French here. Her courses include English, Spanish, speech, and swimming.

She sailed from Cherbourg, France, August 28, on the Queen Elizabeth and arrived in New York on September 2. The skyline of Manhattan impressed her very much, but she remarked that life in New York was not so calm as her accustomed Paris life. She found an equal hustle in Richmond but was impressed always by their hospitality.

Denise attended the Lycee Fenelon in Paris where she received her "Baccalaureat" in 1949. (This is equivalent to a B. S. or B. A. degree here.) She majored in natural science and philosophy. Denise received her diploma from a secretarial school in 1951 after which time she worked as a private secretary.

with the Omega Watch Company in Paris.

Denise became very excited when she told of her impressions of domitory life. She commented that she found it very amusing to watch the antics of the girls.

Both "Tina" and Denise might be excited about Longwood but Longwood is surely excited and enthusiastic about them.

Art Department Announces Hanging of Student Works In Freshman Dating Parlor

Paintings Display Varied Interests

A number of paintings by one of last year's art structure classes has been hung in the freshman parlor. The artists were primarily freshmen who were not then majoring in art.

Each painting represents a different problem in color combination and composition. An interest in horses was displayed by Margaret Perrow, who used water color to enrich her pencil sketchings. She is now studying professional art at R. P. I.

Sally Via, Elizabeth Forest, and Nancy Franklin formed intricate leaf arrangements from colored paper. The medium of opaque water colors was chosen by Mary Jean Sandvig, who designed a setting of leaves in soft hues of brown and yellow and also a still life spatter painting of a water lily.

Each year the paintings will be changed so new freshmen talent can be exhibited. Next semester paintings of this year's class will replace the present selections. It is the desire of the art department to make the freshman parlor a permanent display room for freshman art.

Dr. Lancaster Plans Two Public Addresses

On Sunday, October 12, Dabney S. Lancaster, president of Longwood College, will speak at the annual meeting of the Directors of the Stratford Foundation. The group is meeting at the birthplace of Robert E. Lee in Westmoreland County.

Dr. Lancaster will speak to the group on "Lee as an Educational Leader." The address will be centered around Lee's philosophy of education as demonstrated while he was president of Washington College (now Washington and Lee.)

The Board of Directors of the Stratford Foundation is composed of a representative from each of the 48 states. The group bought Lee's birthplace, restored it, and is now operating the plantation according to old traditions. Each year the organization meets on the anniversary of Lee's death.

Dr. Lancaster will go to Harrisonburg on October 10 to address the annual meeting of District G of the Virginia Education Association which is being held at Madison this year. "Ideals for Public School Teachers" will be the topic of his talk.

Winfrey Announces Annual Production By Men Students

The Men's Student Government Association of Longwood is now making plans for a Men's Production according to an announcement by Charles J. Winfrey, president of the group.

A date has not yet been set for the production and the men may decide to give one both semesters.

The group has also been discussing plans for the organization of a men's basketball team. George Ogburn has been appointed to act as Activities committee chairman and will be in charge of investigating the possibility of starting the team.

Other officers of the Men's Students Government for 1952-53 are Herbert Goodman, Vice-president; Glen Vought, Secretary; and Eric Robinson, Treasurer. Dr. Wesley Laing, professor of history, is faculty advisor for the organization.

All Classes Elect Circus Chairmen And Start Plans

The forthcoming Circus was the main point of discussion and planning at the class meetings last week.

Beginning the Circus planning were the Seniors who chose Betsy Hankins and Barbara Caskey co-chairmen of Circus. Betty and Barbara are both Richmond girls.

The senior class also elected Jan Van Horne, Historian.

The junior class elected Mary Jean Carlyle from Bedford, Circus chairman. A Roanoke girl, Patty Derring, was elected Mary Jean's assistant.

Nancy Taylor and Nancy Nelson were elected sophomore co-chairmen for Circus. Both girls are from Newport News.

The sophomores also received house rules from house president Mary Dabney Langhorne and elected Joyce Quick hostess for sophomore building.

The freshman class elected as their co-chairmen for Circus, Anne Shuff and Norma Jean Croft. Anne is from Buffalo, New York and Norma Jean is from Marion.

Gillette Acts As Chairman Of Programs

Betty Frances Gillette has been appointed chairman of the chapel committee for the 1952-53 session.

Serving with her will be Barbara Casky and Judy Cox from the senior class; Nell Copley from the junior class; Barbara Assaid, and Nancy Tanley, sophomore class; and Norma Jean Croft and Ann Shuff, freshman class. This committee is advised by a number of faculty members headed by Miss Rebecca Brokenborough.

Dr. W. A. Smart will speak to the student body at the regular chapel hour. He will be presented by the Farmville Methodist Minister, the Reverend John Myers.

Dr. Smart is the Professor of Systematic Theology at Emory University at Atlanta, Georgia. According to Mr. Myers he is an active layman in his church and is a favorite among youth groups of the area. Mr. Myers also stated that Longwood was fortunate to have such a wonderful personality to speak at this chapel program.

NOSE, THROAT,

and Accessory Organs not Adversely Affected by Smoking Chesterfields

FIRST SUCH REPORT EVER PUBLISHED ABOUT ANY CIGARETTE

A responsible consulting organization has reported the results of a continuing study by a competent medical specialist and his staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfield cigarettes.

A group of people from various walks of life was organized to smoke only Chesterfields. For six months this group of men and women smoked their normal amount of Chesterfields—10 to 40 a day. 45% of the group have smoked Chesterfields continually from one to thirty years for an average of 10 years each.

At the beginning and at the end of the six-months period each smoker was given a thorough examination, including X-ray pictures, by the medical specialist and his assistants. The examination covered the sinuses as well as the nose, ears and throat.

The medical specialist, after a thorough examination of every member of the group, stated: "It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."

AKG Circus Comes to Town Saturday

Leadership Group Taps 9 Longwood Students

Dr. Larew Speaks On Noted Educator To Open Ceremony

Nine Longwood students were tapped by Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership fraternity, in a ceremony held in Jarman Auditorium last Friday night.

Y.W.C.A. Vice President

Betty Abbitt is vice-president of Y. W. C. A. and a member of The Virginian staff. She is also a member of Cotillian Club, and Pi Kappa Sigma. She has served as a member of the Athletic Association Council for three years, as Fire Chief in 1951-52, and she is acting as Assistant Fire Chief this year. During her freshman year, Betty served as class president, and she was elected vice-president of her sophomore class.

Pat Altwegg is business manager of The Virginian, president of the Granddaughter's Club, and Pan-Hellenic representative for her social sorority, Kappa Delta. She is also a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, Kappa Delta Pi, Cotillion Club, H2O Club, and the French Circle. Pat has served as Animal Trainer of the 1951 Circus and as chairman of freshman and sophomore circus floats. For the past two years she has also been active in the work of her class and has been a member of her class hockey team.

Business Manager

Celeste Bishop, business manager of The Rotunda, is also president of the French Circle, and treasurer of her social sorority Kappa Delta. She is a member of Pi Delta, Epsilon, Kappa Delta Pi, Beorc Eh Thorn, Pi Gamma Mu, and Cotillion Club. Celeste has also been active in the work of her class for circus and productions.

Barbara Caskey is vice-president of Pi Delta Epsilon and a member of The Rotunda staff. During the last three years, Caskey has been active in class work, serving as chairman for sophomore and senior class Circus stunts and as chairman of her sophomore class's production. She is a member of the Assembly Committee, the Richmond Club, Cotillion Club, and Kappa Delta, social sorority.

House Council President

Helen Castros, president of House Council, is a member of Student Government, Student Standards, the Athletic Association Council, the Monogram Club, Cotillion Club, and Alpha Sigma Tau, social sorority. Helen has also been active in the past as Fire Chief and Sports Editor of The Rotunda. She has always participated in intramural sports and varsity basketball. At present she is also a member of the varsity hockey team.

Ann Crowder is president of the Monogram Club, secretary of the Athletic Association Council, and vice-president of the Richmond Club. She also serves on the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, as secretary of the

Abbitt Announces Theme of 1952-53 For Longwood "Y"

Group Makes Plans For Use of Theme

"Christian Dynamics in a Shaken World" has been selected as the 1952-53 theme of the Longwood YMCA according to an announcement by Betty Abbitt, vice president of "Y". This decision was reached at the business meeting of the "Y's" fall retreat held at the college Friday, October 17.

This theme will be used in all phases of "Y" work duirng the coming year. Prayers held each night in the Episcopal church will be centered around this idea and it will be carried out during the annual college Religious Emphasis Week to be held February9-16. It is the aim of "Y" that this central theme may be carried out in the daily lives of Longwood students during the entire session.

During the retreat, the various committee chairmen met with the adviser of their committees to formulate plans for the year. It has been announced that the student body will sign up next week to work on these committees. Tables will be on second floor Rotunda and students are asked to fill out membership cards. In order that the freshment may fully understand the committee work, memographed sheets concerning the committees will be distributed to them prior to the time they will sign up.

There are nine "Y" committees on which students may work. The Chairman of these groups are membership, Ann C. Wendenburg; publicity, Carolyn Stanley; social, Helen Barrow; service, Nell Cake; and prayers, Faye Greenland. Other grops are church cooperative, Ann Crowder; music, Dolly Lorne; sing, Nancy Nelson; and public affairs, Bobby Assaid.

Longwood Faculty Visit High Schools

Members of the Longwood College faculty and administration are currently carrying out a program of visiting high schools throughout Virginia and talking to the girls who are seniors in these high schools about their choice of colleges.

Beginning October 27. Mrs. Meade L. Shackelford, head of the Longwood News Bureau, will visit the territory southwest of Roanoke, an area including Wytheville, Pulaski, Newcastle, and Pearisburg. Mr. Raymond French, professor of chemistry, will visit Reedsville, Wicomico, Heathsville, and Calleo in the Northern Neck of Virginia.

Last week Mrs. Shackelford visited eighteen high schools and junior colleges, including Marion High School, Virginia Intermont Junior College, Norton High School, Dickerson Memorial and Tazewell High Schools. On Oct. 17, Dr. Robert Brumfield, professor of biology, visited Altavista, Naruna, and Volens High Schools.

LC Dramatics Club Reveals Cast For 1952 Production Williams' 'Glass Menagerie'

Tennessee William's "The Glass Menagerie," a play in two acts, has been selected by Dr. C. L. S. Early and the Drama Club as the 1952 fall production of the Longwood Players. Performances are scheduled for November 20 and 21, in Jarman Auditorium.

Sally Wilson, a sophomore from Hopewell, will play Amanda, the mother, who struggles throughout the play for the good of her two children. Laura, her daughter, will be portrayed by Isabelle Karnes, a junior from Bedford. Her son, Tom, is Ed Stanfield a senior at Hampden - Sydney, and Tom Moore, a sophomore from Farmville will appear as the gentleman caller, Jim O'Connor.

The unrealistic story is narrated and unfolded by Tom, the brother. He tells of his delicate, lives in her own little world of the glass menagerie and of his devoted, somewhat cynical, domineering mother.

The director of the play is Dr. C. L. S. Early, professor of drama at Longwood. Stage managers are Nan Bland and Ann Carter Wendenberg. Marjorie Harris and Norma Jeanne Croft will be in charge of music. Tom Moore and Beverly Taylor will handle the lighting, while Tom and Betty Forest will direct the building of sets. They will be assisted by the play production class. Jean Baber, Matilda Creasy and Sarah Corr are working on props.

Admission prices will be fifty cents and tickets may be obtained from members of the club.

Sophomore Class To Use Halloween For Dinner Theme

The October birthday dinner will be held October 31 in the college dining hall. Halloween has been appropriately chosen as the theme to be carried out by the sophomore class.

Daniese Johnson and Lou Siebal have been placed in charge of decorations according to Dot Douglas, class president.

Decorations for the banquet will follow the Halloween theme. Plans are being made for centerpieces on each table.

The menu for the dinner will be country ham, large lima beans, sweet potatoe cassarole, Jack O'Lantern salad, olives, celery and carrots, hot rolls, coffee, Halloween candy, and pumpkin pie with whipped cream.

A committee has been appointed to lead songs in the dining hall. This committee, headed by Winton Johnson, is part of a campaign to add enjoyment to the evening meals. Members of the committee are Sarah Harvie, Billie Dunlap Powell, Lu Beavers, and Jane Branch. Also serving on the committee are Trianne Lampkin, Phoebe Ann Warner, Jackie Curlee, and Margie Harris.

Local English Group, Beorc Eh Thorn, Bids Six Upperclassmen

Beorc Eh Thorn, local honor society in English, has issued bids to six new members according to Elizabeth Stone, president of the organization.

Among those honored were Barbara Cotton, Celeste Bishop, Eugenia Korahaes, Ann Foster, Mrs. Julia Brown, and Helen Tanner.

The feature attraction of this month's meeting was Miss Mary Nichols, who spoke to the group on topics of literary interest in Scotland and England.

The next meeting of the organization will be held in the home of Mrs. Mildred Davis and will be open to all freshman English majors. College publications influenced by Beorc Eh Thorn will be discussed.

A program of interest to the entire student body is planned for the future.

Jean Erdman Dance Troupe To Entertain

The modern dance artist, Jean Erdman, and her dance troupe will be the next event in Longwood's lyceum program. Miss Erdman, with a company of six will appear in Jarman Auditorium on November 6.

Included in the concert program are numbers which will display a wide variety of technique and discipline and which should give an evening of modern dance from a theatrical approach.

"Miss Erdman possesses a dance vocabulary distinctly her own and one which is remarkably versatile for choreographic purposes. As a dancer, she has an impressive personality, flexible in mood, expert in technical means." This was the opinion voiced by Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, modern dance instructor at Longwood, when discussing the concert.

Mrs. Landrum added that for students interested in learning more about the approaching concert she will post photographs of Miss Erdman and excerpts of criticism from The Dance Observer on the bulletin board in the gymnasium.

Anyone who has not already secured her lyceum ticket for the year should do so after November 3. They may be obtained in Dr. Lancaster's office.

Educational Society Honors 17 Students

Seventeen juniors and seniors have received invitations to join Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary educational society, according to Sonia Kile, president of the local chapter.

Seniors receiving bids were Frances Andrews, Mrs. Carolyn Leffel Graham, and Eugenia Korahoes.

Patricia Altwegg, Lura Alice Loavers, Barbara Blackman, Elizabeth Gillikan, Fay Greenland, Doris Horne, Beverly Ann Johnson, Mary Ann King, Lucille Mann, Ann Moore, Betty Jane Newsom, Ann Thomas, Else Wente, and Sylvia West were juniors honored with membership.

To qualify for membership one must be a junior or senior, have at least six credits in education, and be in the upper quarter of her class.

Group Choose De Alba As '52 Animal Trainer

Joan De Alba, a sophomore from Hilton Village, has been selected by members of Alpha Kappa Gamma to be Animal Trainer for their coming Circus, "Carnivali Festivili," according to Sarah Harvie, circus chairman.

The Circus, an annual Longwood tradition, will take place this Saturday, October 25, at 8 p. m., in Jarman Auditorium.

The arrival of circus will be heralded by a parade through the streets of Farmville Saturday afternoon at 3:30 p. m. Leading the parade will be the freshman representatives carrying the United States flag and the circus banner, followed by the circus clowns and animals, the class floats, and the official "green 'n white" and "red'n white" color cars.

Parade Formation

The parade will form in back of the College dining hall at 2:45 p. m., and at starting time it will proceed down Pine Street by the library. From there it will move through High, Randolph, Third, and Main Streets, and then back up the High Street Hill to the Rotunda.

Tickets for the performance were put on sale at the beginning of this week. The cost for both students and visitors will be twenty-five cents. Tickets are being sold on second floor of Ruffner Hall after dinner each night.

Assembly Preview

A preview of each of the class stunts was presented in the assembly program yesterday.

Classes met last Thursday and elected representatives to the circus court. The identity of these representatives will remain secret until their appearnace before the audience on Saturday night. The name of the junior who will be Ring Master and who is selected by the members of Alpha Kappa Gamma, will also remain unrevealed until the night of circus.

AKG Chooses Hall As National Pres. For Coming Year

Formal Banquet Honors LC Prof.

Lucy Page Hall, senior from Front Royal, was elected national president of Alpha Kappa Gamma at the fall convention of the organization held at Longwood last week end. Lucy took over her new duties after a candle-light installation service held at Longwood estate Saturday night.

As president Lucy will preside over the spring planning convention and the fall convention next year. She will also be expected to correspond with the various college circles.

Besides her most recent honor, Lucy Page is president of the local circle of AKG. She is also president of student government and a member of A. C. E., F. T. A., and Kappa Delta social sorority.

Alpha Kappa Gamma, an honorary leadership society, was founded on the Longwood College Campus. At a formal banquet held at Longwood House on Saturday, Lucy Page Hall presented Miss Florence Stubbs, professor of sociology, with a certificate of her affiliation as a charter member of the organization. The banquet was held in Miss Stubbs' honor.

Annual Has Tryouts

Ann Keith Hundley, editor of the Virginian, has announced that all freshmen who are interested in working on the annual should sign up on the main bulletin board. Two of those signing up will be chosen to work with the staff on the 1953 edition of the annual.

Ann Keith also announced that pictures of all organizations will be taken the last of October or the first of November.

Professors Attend Annual Convention Of VEA in Richmond

Members of the Longwood faculty and administration will be journeying to Richmond all during this week to attend various sessions of the annual convention of the Virginia Education Association being held at the Mosque.

Three Longwood representatives will be attending the convention in an official capacity. Dr. Edgar N. Johnson, professor of education, is acting as program chairman for the Department of Teacher Education.

Mrs. Janice S. Lemen, professor of art, is president of the Art Section. Mr. Charles P. Lane, head of Longwood's geography department, is president of the Virginia Geographical Society.

This year's convention marks the golden anniversary of VEA. The group held its frist meeting in Charlottesville 50 years ago.

Freshmen Choose Laing As Sponsor

At a recent class meeting, Mr. Wesley Laing was chosen by the freshmen to be their class sponsor for the coming year.

A newcomer to the Longwood College history department, Dr. Laing is a native of Port Arthur, Texas. He is a graduate of Baylor University where he taught one year after completing his studies. He has studied at the University of Texas also.

During the second World War, Mr. Laing, who is an ordained Baptist minister, served as a chaplain with the United States Army in the South Pacific Area and in Japan. Prior to coming to Longwood this fall, he was on the faculty for the summer session at the University of Virginia, where he has completed requirements for his doctorate.

Mr. Laing is filling the position vacated by Dr. Francis Simpkins who is on leave of absence from the college for one year. While here, Mr Laing will instruct classes in American history, history of civilization, and government.

As sponsor of the freshman he will advise the class on all class afaifrs and projects. Mr. Laing is also serving as adviser to the Men's Student Government Association.

It's A Great Show!

Who of us does not anticipate the coming of a circus with excitement and impatience? Clowns, parades, a three-ring show, and pink lemonade—everyone is in a festive mood ready for fun and frolic.

Longwood is lucky, for here we have our own Circus, a beloved school tradition sponsored annually by Alpha Kappa Gamma. A Circus night is probably unique among college celebrations. In the past few years Circus has become the "big" week-end of the fall, long awaited and carefully prepared by the classes, booth chairmen, and float decorators. The entire student body waits in supense for the announcement of ring-master, animal trainer, and those chosen to be on the Circus court. Although we lack tents and sawdust, never has there been a lack of gay and noisy Circus spirit.

Circus is a lot of hard work. Time and energy go into the preparation of class skits. Somehow those ten o'clock rehearsals are always the night before one of these many tests that seem to come the week of Circus. For a while it almost seems that all else must be forsaken for the painting of scenery and making of costumes. But on the night that the "big top" opens for its performance the results are rewarding to all, and every girl who has taken a part, from locating the props to being the star performer, is thrilled by her class production.

In Circus, Longwood College has something of which to be proud. It has become part of the Longwood spirit, not an intangible something but real cooperation, sportsmanlike competition, and the responsibility of all. To those in AKG should go a "thank you" for their leadership; every class rates a special cheer for putting over the show; and Circus itself deserves the support of every student. "So, come one, come all, step up to the biggest, the greatest, the most stupendous show of all time, the 1952 AKG Circus!"

What Time Is It?

What time is it? At Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, it is impossible to answer this question accurately.

One has only to walk down the hall from the post office to the home office to be confused by three different "official times." The hands on the hall clock, the clock in the treasurer's office, and the clock on the home office mantel all point to varied times. Furthermore, during the course of a day, students hear the library clock chime one hour, see another time in the science building, and still another in the training school and high school.

Is time so unimportant, so irrelevant in the lives of college students that such laxness in the setting of clocks should be meekly accepted? No! The everyday actions of Longwood girls are based on a fixed schedule and surely a schedule can not be followed to the best advantage when there are discrepancies in the time on which it is based.

It is difficult for girls to be on time for classes and appointments when each professor appears to be running on a different time. No doubt it is equally inconvenient for faculty and administration staff to deal with students who never seem to agree with them on the hours.

We realize that Longwood could not well afford to set up a new staff position and pay the salary of an official clock-setter who would have as his sole duty the synchronizing of the school's many time pieces. However, we do think that something could and should be done about the mixup. What?

Perhaps the simplest solution would be to recognize one source of time as the authority and require everyone—students, faculty, and administration—to set their watches and clocks once a day by this time. The local radio station would be an excellent informant to use for this. Anyone in doubt about the correct hour would have only to turn on his radio to set himself straight.

Last year the ROTUNDA pointed out the need to regulate Longwood's time and our efforts were ignored. Surely the need is obvious. We hope that this year our pleas will be heeded. We want to know what time it is!

Were You There?

What excuse have Longwod girls to offer for the poor attendance at last week's lyceum program? Were we too busy to become well informed; did we consider a movie more profitable than an address by a noted speaker; or were we just too lazy to make the effort to attend? Surely all these alibis should cause us to feel embarrassed and chagrined.

Mr. Kilpatrick is in demand as a speaker all over the country. As editor of the Richmond News Leaders, he is well quailified to speak on topics of current interest. Thus, the lyceum committee considered themselves lucky when they were able to secure him for the Longwood series. He spoke Thursday on a topic that should be of vital concern to everyone—the two major candidates in the presidential race. Yet, only about forty students took advantage of the opportunity offered them.

To an outside observer such poor attendance at this worthwhile program must have seemed an indication that Longwood girls are isolationists—not interested in current affairs. To Mr. Kilpatrick the small audience must have seemed an insult to his capability. To students who failed to attend the program, the meager turnout should act as a barb to their consciences.

When we stop and think, we realize that many Longwood girls, like the ostrich, hide their heads and are happily oblivious to current events on the national and international scene.

It is too late now to make amends for the poor reception given Mr. Kilpatrick, but it is not too late to begin to take advantage of the opportunities offered us. It is our money that is being spent for the lyceum programs. Let's think twice before we miss another one.

Social Notes

by Carolyn Stanley

The popular and sweet ones always get around.

And Longwood girls hit every town!

MARRIED:

Last week-end Faith Smith was married in Suffolk to Sam Bickford.

This past Sunday night at eight o'clock Margaret Steele married Ed Sutphin in Roanoke.

Best wishes!

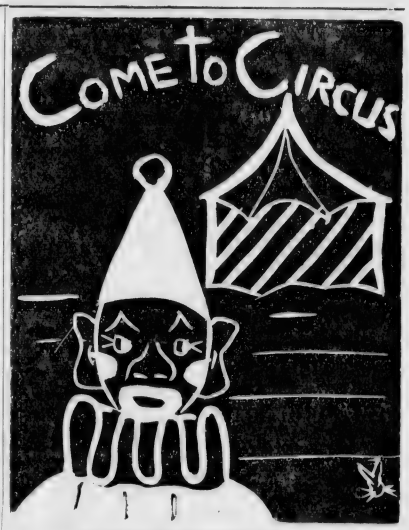
Also Betsy Nelson, Gail Dixon, Ann Wendenburg, and Pat Kelly.

Spectra-Scopic Views

by Ann Marie Gray

For the past six months the main item of news interest has been the 1952 presidential election and consequently the Korean War has been pushed into the sidelines. The American people have become accustomed to the war which just plods along, or more accurately just marks time. They resent the fact that our young men are being drafted and trained to take care of somebody else's business. They have grown tired of the so-called "peace conferences" and would like to get "that Korean Mess" settled once and for all.



Last week the Polish Foregin Minister, Stanislaw Skrzeszewski, proposed a new peace plan. This plan was supported by Russian Andrei Vishinsky, but hopes for a break in the war are still dim for the U. N. Command has already rejected the proposal. The proposals presented were:

(1.) The immediate cessation of hostilities on land, sea, and air.

(2.) Return of all prisoners of war in accordance with established international stipulations. (This was the segment which the U. N. Command stronely denounced.)

(3.) Withdrawal from Korea of all troops within three months, and the peaceful settlement of the war by the Koreans themselves with supervision from a commission made up of parties interested and including states which did not take part in the war. (It appears that this last point is just as objectional and maybe more so than any other.)

The fate of the Korean War will have great influence on this country no matter how it is settled. It has become a situation which seems to have no settlement, but we cannot just let it run itself out for its outcome will affect our lives far too greatly. The war and peace negotiations bear close watching now, for no matter who is elected in November, there is in all probability a change of some degree in store. It will be quite interesting to note the policies for settlement of the Korean question.

Hurry, Hurry, Hurry Here! Circus Day Is Drawing Near

by Phoebe Warner

All right, ladies and gentlemen, step right up. See the greatest show on earth. We have girls, girls, girls, nothing but lucious, luring, loving girls! They dance, they sing, and they act like the Barrymores.

Yes sirree, I am happy to announce to you lucky, lucky people that CIRCUS will be here this Saturday night for all to witness.

For an inside picture of the practices of this all-girl production, let us look in on them for a moment. As we quietly enter Jarman Hall we can hear a faint, feminine-voice screeching in lady-like tones, "Would you idiots shut your mouths and stop bickering, I kin't stand it," and in reply to this plea we hear an equally sweet refrain, "Nasty breaks."

Looking around the auditorium we see a charming young lady playing the bag pipes while another is gracefully dancing a Scottish jig. Much to my amazement I found the musical one to be Miss Barbara Caskey and the ballerina to be Miss Barbara White. This brings out the Scotch in them.

What is this coming on stage now? Why, it's Shirley Ward, the finest and most famous of all actresses as she delivers her well-known soliloquy. Here it is quoted word for word: "Well, by jove! This is a situation."

Ah! Take a look over by the piano; why, it's Patsy Sanford singing "Embraceable You." Get a load of that slinky dress: I never would have thought it.

Whom do we have over in the corner alone? It's Anne Shuff from Buffalo, New York studying fervently the foreign language of Southern dialect, so she can be a "Lil ol' Georgia Belle" in the Freshman interpretation of "Went with the Breeze."

Wait! These are just a few of the many hall-marks in spectacular drama you will experience, when the curtains open at Longwood's annual CIRCUS. So hurry, hurry, hurry . . . .

Campus Cogitations

BY BETSY WELBON

Now that the dreaded day is in the past, and you can look at it objectively, what is your opinion of Rat Day?

Mary Lou Phillips: It was fun but I'm glad its over.

Euphan Carter: A hard but successful way to make friends with sophomores.

Marion Ruffin: It could be done away with easily.

Gail Leonard: It is a fine tradition.

Susie Miller: Boy! Was I tired.

Kay Peiter: Real interesting experience—a day to be remembered always.

Sesquipedalian: Miss Kent was certainly irascible!

Norma Jean Croft: It was a riot.

Liz DeHaven: There's no substitute.

Marge Harris: I hated every minute of it!

Margaret Dryden: One of the best kinds of orientation.

Evelyn Hall: Why didn't they bury us after we dorpped dead?

Becky Fizer: Glad it doesn't come but once in a college life.

Marie Swecker: My opinion can't be put into print.

Church News

BY BETTY BARR

BAPTIST

All students are invited to the Revival being held at the Baptist Church the week of October 19-26. The Reverend R. T. DeArmond will be the guest speaker, with Mr. Alwyn Howell leading the song services at eight o'clock at the Baptist Church.

All Baptist students who have not signed up to attend the B. S. U. Convention, should do so before Friday, October 24th.

CANTERBURY CLUB

Mr. Wesley Laing will be the speaker at the Canterbury Club meeting next Sunday.

Last Sunday corporate communion was held at the church for the young people who were participating in this nation-wide celebration. Breakfast was served afterward in the Parish House.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship had its weekly Bible Study on Thursday, October 16. The topic for discussion was "What Does Sin Do to a Person." This discussion was lead by the president, Mary Perrow.

NEWMAN CLUB

The Newman Club of Longwood College and the Catholic students of Hampden-Sydney have reorganized their groups into a joint club.

Judy Cable has been elected to serve as chairman of this group for the 1952 session.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Jerry Spidel, the director of the Methodist Student Movement in Virginia, will speak at the Sunday evening meeting of Wesley Foundation at 7 p. m.

Longwood's Varsity Squad Scheduled for Participation In Va. Hockey Tournament

Chairmen Remind Girls To Practice

As the time for class hockey games approaches, students are reminded that they must have the required eight practices to be on the team.

Buzzy Hartis and Helen Waiteman chairmen of class hockey, have announced that some classes do not yet have enough players to complete their teams. All green 'n whites and red 'n whites should show their class spirit by coming out to practices.

During the week of the interclass games, the traditional color rush will be held. This is the annual race of the fleet of foot in each class to "capture" the various college buildings. The winning classes are rewarded by hanging their colors from the building they win.

The Longwood Varsity hockey team will leave on Friday afternoon, October 31, to take part in the annual state hockey toufnament.

The tournament this year is being held at Madison College in Harrisonburg, on October 31 and November 1. Teams from several Virginia colleges will meet for the competition. Game time is 2 p. m. Any student who can attend the games are urged to go and support our team.

Longwood Alumnae Meet. Make Plans For Current Year

The Washington alumnae chapter opened its year's activities with a luncheon in Arlington on October 4. Approximately thirty-five former students of Longwood from classes 1903 through 1951 attended.

Mrs. Ruth H. Coyner, executive secretary of the Alumnae Association, was present and spoke on "Why You May Be Proud of Your Alumnae Association."

The Richmond chapter, under the leadership of Mrs. Barbara Tripp Friend, has issued an invitation to all members of the Longwood College faculty and staff to a tea to be held tomorrow in Richmond. All alumnae attending the VEA at this time are to be guests of honor. Sue Garber, a freshman, is the recipient of their annual scholarship.

Miss Mary Oliver Ellington, who teaches biology at St. Mary's Junior College in Raleigh, is the new president of the Raleigh Alumnae Chapter.

The Norfolk chapter held the first of its monthly shoppers' luncheons on October 4, with forty girls attending. Three 1952 alumnae were welcomed as new members. Mrs. Mabel Edwards Hines is president of the group. Their annual scholarship was awarded to Jane Blake, a freshman here this year.

The Alumnae Bulletin has gone to press and will lbe mailed out in December.

Parkinson Urges Tennis Play Offs Before October 23

Ann Parkinson, the manager of the tennis tournament, has asked that the second round of the tournament be played off by Thursday, October 23. Third round must be played by Saturday, Oct. 25, and the fourth and final round will be completed by Monday, Oct. 27.

The necessity for completion of the tournament at an early date has been caused by a request that the winner's picture for the annual may be taken on Wednesday of next week.

Results of the various games in thcplay offs will be posted on the main bulletin board.

Swimming Team To Hold Practices

The varsity swimming team will hold regular practice sessions in the pool every Monday and Friday afternoon at 5:00 p. m.

Swimming managers Ann Crowder and Roberta Wiatt have urged all students interested in the team to come out for the practice sessions which are held especially for the purpose of developing speed and correct form. Members of the H2O Club will serve as coaches during these swimming periods. Girls are reminded that they definitely don't have to be Olympic champions to come out for the swimming team.

AA Chooses Murphy Head Cheer Leader

Ann Murphy, senior from Danville, has been chosen by the Athletic Association to serve as head cheer leader fo rthe coming year. Murphy was chosen at the last meeting of the AA council.

As head cheer-leader, it will be Murphy's responsibility to choose two girls from each class to complete the cheering squad. This group will be on hand at all college athletic events to lead songs and yells.

The girls chosen by Murphy will decide on the uniform they wish to wear. They will begin practicing in the near future.

HUMOR?

by Caronell Devine
Donnell Stanley, Donlyn Cake

Never do today what you can put off tomorrow or don't do tomorrow what you can put off on someone else.

We don't want to write this column—along with the soup at lunch it was shuffed at us—by a friend?

Sitting here and think up
A new kind of corn
Every thought seems dull
Our minds are forlorn
Who is it who invented
This thing called "wit"
We're sober as rails and he Must have been lit!

The problem of today is—
Is anything funny
In this drastic crisis
Of no saints and no money?
It makes for a laugh
To sing or dance
"Pardonnez-moi, s'il vous plait"
As they say in France.

The nation's problem is
A small one indeed
Compared to the one
Facing Longwood's need.
The love bird has captured our
"Wittiest one"
Believe us folks, it's all in fun
But, won't you be glad when
The next paper comes out
And Barbara Caskey comes back
And we move out?

Hobbs Heads WFLO "News and Views"

Jeanne Lynch Hobbs, a sophomore from Salem, heads her second year, "News and Views," Longwood's weekly WFLO radio program.

Asissting Jeanne Lynch in this year's broadcasting is Beverly Taylor, a freshman, also from Salem.

"News and Views" is a combination of college news and interviews of the students and their activities. This program may be heard every Monday at 4:15.

Orchesis President Reveals Tentative Plans For Recital

Tentative plans for the coming year have been made by Orchesis, Longwood's modern dance group, according to an announcement by Ann Murphy, president of the group.

Included in the dance club's plans are the annual recital which will be presented in February, a dance demonstration at one of the Richmond or Charlottesville area high schools and the sponsoring of a dance program for the Ruritan's annual convention to be held on the Longwood campus in November.

Recital plans include a tentative adaptation of Robert Ramsay's novel, "The Mocking Bird." The group will use this novel for the basis of either a dance drama or for a static family portrait study. The dance will recreate a setting seen through the eyes of th two main characters, a boy of seven and his sister of 15.

Edward Grieg's suite from Holberg's time is to be used for a light note in the program. Solo and group figures will follow the stylized tempo of the suite.

Another number being planned is "Exhibition." This too will be comparatively light and is to show dance as a space-time art interrelated with painting and music.

As is traditional students from Mrs. Landrum's modern dance classes will be included in the cast.

Tryouts for leads in the recital will begin early in November. Anyone interested in taking part in the presentation should see Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education, who acts as advisor to the group.

NOTICE!

The Alpha Kappa Gamma service was presided over by the president, Lucy Page Hall. Dr. Dabney Lancaster introduced the speaker, Dr. Gillie Larew, dean of Randolph Macon Women's College. The topic of her speech was "A Bird in the Bush Is Worth Two in the Hand" and concerned the life of Celestia Susanna Parrish.

Library Staff Edits Report In Pamphlet

A report entitled "Improving School Library Service" has recently been edited and mimeographed by the Longwood College Library staff.

The pamphlet contains a report of the proceedings of the workshop for school librarians held here this summer, July 14 through August 1. The cover design is the library clock tower drawn by Margaret Lee Duke, a member of the freshman class.

Copies have been sent to members of the workshop, to active librarians trained at Longwood, to selected library science departments, to state officers working in the field of school librarians, and to key school librarians in the state.

Honor Group Bids 14 Upperclassmen For Membership

On Monday, Oct. 20, eight seniors and six juniors received bids to membership in Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honor society, according to an announcement by Bunny Gibson, president.

Celeste Bishop, Barbara Caskey, Betty Collier, Barbara Cotton, Mary Ann Evans, Elizabeth Gillikan and Carolyn Graham were among those receiving bids.

Also honored were Eugenia Korahaes, Jean Southern, Dee Steger, Elizabeth Stone, Virginia Sutherland, Ann Thomas and Janet Wiggins.

To be chosen for membership girls must have a scholastic average of B in Social Sciences and must be closer to a B than a C in their other subjects. Girls are invited to membership on the basis of their abilities and the interest they have shown in study and service in the field of social science.

Business Club Talks of Plans

Plans for the year were discussed at the first regular meeting of the Commercial Club last Thursday, according to Joyce Cheatham, president of the organization.

Freshmen will be invited to membership in November when an initiation of new members will be held. Plans are also underway for a fall banquet and a Christmas party.

Dr. M. L. Landrum is the organization's sponsor for the 1952-53 session.

NOSE, THROAT,

and Accessory Organs not Adversely Affected by Smoking Chesterfields

FIRST SUCH REPORT EVER PUBLISHED ABOUT ANY CIGARETTE

A responsible consulting organization has reported the results of a continuing study by a competent medical specialist and his staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfield cigarettes.

A group of people from various walks of life was organized to smoke only Chesterfields. For six months this group of men and women smoked their normal amount of Chesterfields—10 to 40 a day. 45% of the group have smoked Chesterfields continually from one to thirty years for an average of 10 years each.

At the beginning and at the end of the six-months period each smoker was given a thorough examination, including X-ray pictures, by the medical specialist and his assistants. The examination covered the sinuses as well as the nose, ears and throat.

The medical specialist, after a thorough examination of every member of the group, stated: "It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."

'Who's Who' Will Honor Ten Longwood Seniors In 1953 College Edition

National Committee Approves Selection

Ten Longwood seniors have been chosen for the honor of appearing in the 1953 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities." Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president of the college, announced the names of these college leaders after receiving notice of the approval of their selection by a national board.

The girls chosen are Betty Abbitt, Celeste Bishop, Polly Brothers, Lucy Page Hall, Sarah Harvie, Helen Castros, Ann Keith Hundley, Anne Jones, Natalie Lancaster, and Janet Wiggins. These girls have been selected to represent Longwood because of their outstanding, all - around achievement during their years at this college.

YWCA Vice-President

Betty Abbitt of Madison Heights is vice-president of the Y. W. C. A. and a member of the Virginian staff. Recently tapped to Alpha Kappa Gamma, she is also a member of the Athletic Association Council, Cotillion Club, and Pi Kappa Sigma. Betty is Assistant Fire Chief of her building this year. She also served as Fire Chief of the junior building in 1951-52. President of her freshman class, Betty was elected to the vice-presidency of her sophomore class.

Celeste Wise Bishop of Danville is business manager of the Retunda, president of the French Club, and treasurer of her social sorority, Kappa Delta. She has attained membership in Alpha Kappa Gamma, Pi Delta Epsilon, Kappa Delta Pi, Beorc Eh Thorn Pi Gamma Mu, and Cotillion Club. Always active in her class and in extra-curricular activities, Celeste has also maintained a high academic average throughout her college career.

Senior Class President

Polly Brothers of Suffolk is president of the senior class and vice-president of Alpha Kappa Gamma. A member of Kappa Delta Pi, the Cotillion Club, and Future Teachers of America, Polly has in addition always been active in class work. Last year, Polly served as assistant business manager of the Virginian and as president of her social sorority, Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Lucy Page Hall of Front Royal is national president of Alpha Kappa Gamma, as well as president of the local circle of the honorary leadership society. She is also president of Student Government and a member of Association of Childhood Education, Future Teachers of America, and Kappa Delta social sorority. Last year Lucy served as secretary of Student Government. She has always been active with this work.

Former Class President

Sarah Harvie of Richmond served as class president during her sophomore and junior years and as vice-president of her freshman class. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, Kappa Delta Pi, the Cotillion Club, the College Choir, Future Teachers of America, and Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority. Sarah served as general chairman of the Alpha, Kappa Gamma Circus this year.

Helen Castros of Roanoke, is president of House Council. Recently tapped to Alpha Kappa Gamma, "Castros" is also a member of Student Government, Student Standards, the Athletic As-

Collier to Reopen Magazine Contest Until January 15

Staff Increases Value Of Awards

Betty Collier, editor of The Colonnade has announced that the annual short story and essay contest will be re-opened on December 1, and will run until January 15. Awards for the winning entries will be pyramided, so that the first, second, and third prize winners will receive seven dollars, five dollars, and three dollars, respectivey.

The original contest, which began shortly after school was opened and closed October 20, failed to draw sufficient entries of a quality set up by the standards of the contest. This fact prohibited the fair judging and awarding of prizes. The original contest did draw some good entries, however, and these will be considered for judging in the competition ending Thursday, January 15.

With the exeption of the prize awards, the re-opened contest will be continued along the same lines as formerly. Any student will be eligible to enter the contest on the basis of originality, interest, and literary correctness. As formerly announced, the board of judges will consist of three faculty members and the Colonnade contest committee.

The editor ended this announcement by urging all students interested in writing to enter their essays and short stories in the contest to be re-opened on December 1.

She and the staff hope that this contest, will give more students the opportunity to write good essays and short stories.

Jr. English Test Set For January

The junior English test (see page 89 of the college catalogue) will be given this semester on Thursday, January 8, from 7 to 9 p. m. in Rooms 29, 30, 31, and 32 of the West Wing, of Ruffner Hall.

The test will cover mechanics of expression, effectiveness of expression, and reading comprehension. All students of junior standing are required to take the test. Satisfactory achievement is a prerequisite for graduation in all curricula. Those failing to attain an acceptable standard on the test are expected to enroll in the remedial English class, or the equivalent, and are required to repeat the test at a stated time within a year.

The present junior class is the first class to take such a test.

Faculty Talks Begin

Dr. Charles F. Lane, head of the Longwood geography department has been appointed chairman of the 1952-53 series of faculty lectures. These lectures are sponsored annually by the local chapter of the Association of University Professors.

Mr. Boyd Coyner, professor of psychology, gave the first of this year's lectures last Wednesday.

Mr. E. Raine Will Address LC Students In Assembly

Miss Brockenbrough Describes Programs Of Next Two Chapels

Mr. Edgar C. Raine, an authority on Alaska, will speak to the student body in chapel tomorrow on "The Frontier of the World."

Mr. Raine is said to know more about Alaska, by actual contact with all parts of it, than any man in the world. He has resided in and traveled extensively throughout the territory during the past 33 years, ten of which he served as a representative of the United States Treasury Department. He has visited every town and village in Alaska and many villages in Siberia.

Next Tuesday the Y. W. C. A. will sponsor an address by the Reverend John S. Morrison, pastor of the first Methodist Church of Urbanna.

On November 18 Mr. Charles B. Shaw, an expert in the field of book selection, will speak on "Printers' Pleasantries."

Mr. Shaw has been librarian at Swarthmore College in Swarthmore, Pennsylvania since 1929. At one time he was professor of English at North Carolina College for Women and later became librarian at the same college.

After graduating from Clark University in 1914 with a MA degree, Mr. Shaw went to New York State University Library School and obtained his library degree. Mr. Shaw is being sponsored in a series of lectures during the week of November 17 throughout the state by the Richmond Area University Center.

Miss Brockenbrough has announced that all assemblies will start promptly at 1 o'clock. On the days when the Seniors march in cap and gown, roll call will be taken as soon as they take their seats. At all other times roll will be checked at 1 o'clock. During roll call the doors will be closed. Any students coming in after roll call will sit in the rear of the auditorium and resort to the checker who checks her row after the program is concluded. The checker, who will be in the back of the auditorium, will list her as tardy. If a student is tardy three times, it will be recorded as an unexcused absence.

Senior Class Select December 13 As Date Of Christmas Dance

December 13 has been selected by the senior class as the date for their annual Christmas dance to be held in the college gymnasium, according to an announcement by Margie Steele Sutphin, dance chairman.

Bette Safelle will serve as assistant dance chairman. Committee heads chosen by the seniors are Donna Kunkler, figure; Helen Castros, tickets; Caroline McDonald and Joanne Steck, program; and Billie Dunlap Powell, music.

Betty Abbitt and Anne Jones will serve on the clean-up committee; Sonia Kile, Wanda Karlet, and Jean Krienbaum, after dance party; and Ann Murphy and Natalie Lancaster, decoration.

Tickets will be sold at $2.40 a couple and $1.80 stag.

Margie stated that all underclassmen should remember that it is traditional that only seniors wear white formals for this dance. The theme and the orchestra will be revealed sometime in the near future.

Erdman, Modern Dance Group To Present Varied Selections Thursday Night In Jarman Hall

JEAN ERDMAN, who will appear with her modern dance group in Jarman Auditorium tomorrow night, November 6.

Jean Erdman and her modern dance troupe will be presented tomorrow night at eight p. m. in Jarman Hall as the second program in the Longwood Artist Series. Miss Erdman has chosen diversified selections for her concert which should appeal to the varied tastes of the audience.

The first work on the program is to be a solo composition, "Upon Enchanted Ground." In this dance the movement will be suggestive of primitive ritual. It is set to music by Hovaness which is rich in Oriental over-tones. Miss Erdman herself designed the costume which she wears for her solo.

Interpretations of Womanhood

"Daughters of the Lonesome Isle," a dance for three, is the next selection on the program. The three aspects of womanhood —the mother or creator, the virgin or youth, and the experienced one—will be shown in this abstract dance. The haunting, mysterious music of John Cage has been chosen as a background for this interpretation.

Another solo, "Creature on a Journey," will be presented next. This humorous dance deals with a cock's travels around a barnyard. Lou Harrison's music provides the score for this fantastic bit.

A composition for four, designed to show the special abilities and personalities of the company, follows the solo. "Sailor in the Louvre" is built around the classical theme of the Judgement of Paris or the myth of the Golden Apple. The theme has been modernized and the dance narrative concerns the adventures of a sailor who gets entangled with three statues in the French museum. Debussy's music sets the background for this composition.

"Ophelia"

A solo of great depth and dramatic conviction follows this light number. Miss Erdman will interpret in dance form Shakespeare's well-known character, Ophelia from "Hamlet". "Ophelia" is a dance that shapes a personality —tracing it through a sequence of disruptive experiences.

"Changing Moment," a trio of two figures against one, is next on the program. This trio will symbolize the breaking of an accepted tradition by some new force or element. It will show a progressive from mild irritation, to strong antagonism, to final destruction of the old pattern. This will be done with a give and take in the movement of one body against another.

"Portrait of a Lady"

A saucy, humorous theatre piece about a not too respectable lady of an ancient profession will follow the trio. "Portrait of a Lady" will be danced to a jazz satire of music by John Cage.

The final work on the program is one in which all the members of the company will take part. It is entitled "Running Thirst" and is a satire meeting with the chase of woman by man.

Miss Erdman was born in Honolulu. She came to New York to prepare for a career as an actress but became interested in the dance. She is a graduate of Sarah Lawrence College and a former

Editor Announces Three Appointees To 1953 Virginian

Three freshmen have been chosen to represent their class on the 1953 Virginian staff, according to an announcement by Ann Keith Hundley, editor.

The girls chosen are Helen Warriner of Amelia, Helen Marie Wood of Richmond, and Fannie Scott of Norton. Ann Keith selected the new members of her staff from a list of freshmen who signed up to indicate their interest. She based her choice on the girls' past experience on publications and their interest displayed since arriving at Longwood.

Ann Keith has also announced that the deadline for the purchase of 1953 annuals is November 15. A down payment of one dollar is necessary to reserve a Virginian. The balance of $7.50 may be paid when the annuals arrive in May. Beginning November 10, there will be someone selling Virginians in front of the faculty mailbox after dinner.

Fall Play Set In Dim World Of Unreality

by Beverly Taylor

When the curtain goes up on the Glass Menagerie November 20 and 21, it will reveal the dim and poetic atmosphere of a small apartment in the rear of a large dirty building. Because the story is told by Tom, the brother, as he remembers it, the scene of the play is laid in memory and is non-realistic.

This production is a difficult one to present and will be a test of the abilities of the Longwood players. It is an ambitious undertaking since the story is tinged with emotion. Each character seeks to escape reality in their own dreams. Because it is a play of memories, the events portrayed are warped—some details are omitted and others exaggerated according to the emotional value that Tom places on the moments found in his heart.

Not only is the story itself complex, but also the characters. They are all delicate individuals living in fragile, make-believe worlds. Amanda, the mother, lives in her past—constantly trying to bring back the days of her youth by imagining that her daughter, Laura, has all the beaus that she once had. But Laura is a cripple and lives surrounded by her own dreams and illusions. She has become as fragile as her beloved collection of tiny glass figures. Tom is a poet who is forced to work in a warehouse. To escape this monotonous life he forces himself to act without pity.

The theme of the play centers around the preparation for the visit of a gentleman caller whom Amanda has coaxed Tom to bring home to visit Laura. When the gentleman arrives, Laura realizes that he is the boy whom she secretly loved in high school.

Holliday Dates Set

Dr. Lancaster has announced that Thanksgiving holidays will begin on Wednesday, November 26, at eleven o'clock a. m., and classes will be resumed on Monday morning, December 1, at eight o'clock a. m.

Sectional Clubs Elect Jennings, Edmounds

Two sectional clubs chose new officers for 1952-53 at recent meetings of their organizations.

Betty Jo Jennings, a senior from Pulaski, was chosen president of the Southwest Virginia Club. Other officers chosen were Hilda Hartis, vice - president; Mary Ann Ward, secretary and Phoebe Warner, treasurer.

Ann Edmonds, junior from Accomac was selected by the Eastern Shore Club to head their group for the coming year. Frances Marker will act as vice-president and Joan Henderson as secretary-treasurer.

PTA To Meet Here

Longwood will act as host to the district P. T. A. on Thursday, November 13. The group will hold its annual meeting in the small auditorium of the college.

Over 50 people from the surrounding counties will be on hand for the meeting. They will make plans for the coming year. Dr. Edward Johnson, who is a member of the state P. T. A. association, will represent Longwood.

Opportunity Knocks

Tomorrow night Longwood students will be given an opportunity to see one of the nation's most outstanding dance troupes led by the noted artist and choreographer, Jean Erdman. This concert, the second program in the 1952 Artist Series, will give many girls their first taste of modern dance. An evening that should prove both entertaining and educational is in store for those who take advantage of the opportunity being offered them.

Longwood girls are interested in becoming better informed individuals with a well-rounded knowledge and understanding of all fields. Thus, they should welcome a chance to acquaint themselves with another form of art.

Many may ask, "Will this artists program receive only the meager response that was given a well known speaker in the first program of the series?" We would like to answer that question with a loud, firm, "No!"

We hope that no one will stay away from the concert merely because they don't understand modern dance. There will be few in the audience who do. An appreciation for and an understanding of any one of the arts grows only through experience.

However, all art forms — painting, music, drama, dance--appeal to the senses, and one can have an enjoyable sensory experience without actually understanding the medium he is witnessing.

Those who will be seeing modern dance for the first time tomorrw night should not try to look for too much and should not expect to fully understand what they see. Instead, they should enjoy the color, the costumes, the music, the beautiful movement. They should look for a movement theme similar to the theme one hears repeated in a symphony or the color note one finds repeated in a great painting. If the student body will attend the concert with open minds, seeking to develop an appreciation of another form of art, they will undoubtedly enjoy the experience.

We feel sure that Longwood girls will avail themselves of the opportunity to enjoy this nationally acclaimed dance group, so we'll see you there!

Congratulations Eisenhower

Yesterday the people of the United States went to the polls and elected a fellow citizen to serve for the next four years as President of their country. A few Longwood students were able to participate in the decision of this close race for the nation's highest office, and certainly far more than a few have been following closely the developments of the campaigns of either or both of the major candidates.

Now that the American people have indicated their choice of a leader, there is little expectation that the Electoral College will make a decision contrary to the popular vote. And so it is hoped that our happy new President elect will look upon his victory with humility and determination rather than pride and vanity.

America hopes that he will begin making plans of activity—activity that will hurry the many improvements and changes that are needed in our government. Perhaps, if America has chosen wisely, he will even be a man who can place nation before Party and thus overcome a great barrier to nation-wide progress.

Whether or not our new President was your choice in the election should now become a matter of no importance. Now is the time for all Americans to join voices and say the following words in unison to this man concerning his difficult task:

"Congratulations to you upon your victory! We are proud of you and have faith in your ability and determination to create for us a safe, prosperous, and happy four years under your administration."

Safety First?

Last week during the monthly fire drill, a sleepy freshman took a painful tumble down the rotunda steps. This accident reopened the eyes of the student body to the presence of a hazard that every Longwood girl becomes only too well aware the first time she walks up to second floor Rotunda. Right in the center of our college plant is a flight of stairs that would horrify any safety inspcetor!

These stairs with their worn and warped boards have caused countless falls in past years. To walk down them in heels is a dare-devil feat that causes one to take her life in her hands. Yet, despite the obvious evidence that they are dangerous, nothing has been done to improve their condition. It is almost as if some one were clinging to them like a treasured tradition.

Thus, we are happy to report that Dr. Lancaster is aware of the need for an improvement in this much-used flight of stairs. He was not able to secure an appropriation from the State last spring to have them completely replaced. However, he plans to remedy their condition with the aid of the carpenter shop.

It is gratifying to know that the administration is looking out for our welfare, and we hope that Dr. Lancaster will carry out his plans in the very near future—before anyone else takes a tumble!

A Vote of Thanks

Longwood students would like to issue a vote of thanks to those who instigated the plan of organized singing in the dining hall.

This college has long been noted for the spirit which is indicated in the spontaneity of its singing on various occasions. All students should be indeed proud of this distinction. However, there are certain occasions when loud and spirited song is definitely in poor taste. And so it is a genuine improvement to have a committee who will give some forethought to the desired atmosphere of certain special mealtimes, and plan a program of music that can be enjoyed by everyone in the dining hall (not merely those who are participating!).

Asked of the Seniors:

What has been your most interesting experience since you've started student teaching?

Challice Haydon "The little school patrol boy who flirts with me and calls me "baby".

Betsy Abbitt "The day I wanted to give them a short written test and they absolutely refused to take it. Said I didn't know what I was doing, so they handed in blank sheets of paper."

Betsy Hawkins "When I was giving a test the students complained that it was on college level and wanted to know how many years I spent in the senior class—'Four'?"

Anne Murphy "One day two students were talking and one was fussing about her schedule. The other one said, "Honey, that's nothing. I have Miss Murphy, who's student teaching".

Polly Brothers "When some of the students threw chalk at me."

Jean Jennett "'Ha-Ha. You couldn't eben do it' ".

Mary Evelyn Bennett "I was admiring one of the pupils rings (a cheap one with a big red stone she had gotten at the fair.) She stated, 'Yes, I think it is prettier than your old glass one (a diamond). She asked who gave it to me. "My boy friend." 'Oh, then, you'd better keep it."

Elba Cubstaner "When I had to pronounce my name for my students."

Miss Take

by Barbara Caskey

As it has been several months since the new calendar (1952-53 edition) made its appearance, the various departments and administration of the school have found themselves behind in publicity. Therefore, this week, this column will be devoted exclusively to the bulletins that these various departments want made known to the students. This is a public service feature . . . no doubt!

Notice The office of the Registrar is ashamed to announce that it has lost the grades and averages of all students entering since 1902. All students now enrolled are requested to report their past grades . . . you are on your honor!

Notice All students are requested to bathe between the hours of 8 and 8:05 in the evening. Infractions will be dealt with severely.

Notice The Student Government wishes to announce that it will convene regularly every Monday, Wednesday and Thursday night in order to take care of the great demand for their services. Also, they would like to announce that all students wishing to confess something are invited to write up their story and put it in the faculty mailbox.

Notice The Biology department would like to announce the births of several bouncing babies.

Notice The infirmary would like to pass on several tips to insure safe highway driving. "Keep eyes open, mouth closed and arms parted."

Notice The English department would like to announce that some extra outside reading has now been added to the curriculum. All students are now required to read the story on page 40 of True Passion magazine, entitled "I Was a Bubble Dancer Until The Big Blowout."

Notice The physical education department would like to announce several changes. The student who put "BB's" in the basketballs has been shipped. The swimming meet scheduled for Saturday has been postponed while the pool is dragged for three ex-members of the team. The department is desirious of beginning a football team. Tryouts will be held every once in a while for the tackle and guard positions in the forward line. The first game has already been scheduled with Notre Dame (here) and the second will be with Patrick Henry Grammar School (there).

Notice The dining room staff would like to invite the students to a special luncheon on Thursday afternoon at which time a delicious meal of roasted pebbles and sauergrass will be served.

Notice Gwendolyn would like to

Spectra-Scopic Views

by Anne Marie Gray

Many of us have noticed a certain gray haze in the air during the past week. At first some of us thought that the overcast might be a prediction of snow; however, the sky continued to be gray and we know now that it means something much worse — forest fires! To many of us forest fires are so remote that they leave us unconcerned. We should wake up to the fact that they do untold damage and leave their black scars on our once green countryside.

Fall is usually a dry season so it is only natural that fires will be ignited easily. This autumn Virginia and her neighbors have experienced more than their average share of forest fires. The hardets-hit areas have been the southwest and Dismal Swamp region.

The rains helped in curbing the current fires, but they alone are not enough. Help in saving precious timber, crops, homes, and lives must come from precaution on man's part.

Of course, we here in college are not responsible for and cannot account for some fire hazards, but we can heed the signs on the highways when we are driving to or from a football game or a weekend at home, by not tossing lighted matches or cigarettes from car windows. Let's keep Virginia green!

Longwood Hockey Players Defeat R.P.I. By 2-0 Score, Tie In Westhampton Game

Team Underfeated In State Tourney

In their first game at the annual state hockey tournament, the Longwood hockey team defeated Richmond Professional Institute by a score of 2-0. In the second game the Longwood team tied Westhampton, 1-1.

Fourteen members of the varsity team traveled to Madison College for the tournament which is sponsored by the Virginia Field Hockey Association. Ten colleges and state teams were entered in the competition and each played two games. Lacrosse and hockey exhibition games and teas for the visiting teams completed the calendar events.

Miss Elizabeth Burger of the Longwood Science Department is a member of the Richmond Team and goalie on the honorary Virginia State team. She played in the hockey exhibition Saturday afternoon.

Team members making the trip to Madison were Tyler, Borum, Webb, Greene, Wiatt, Wente Castros, Hartis, Waltman, Mallory, Sanford, Desportes, Koch, and Wilder. They were accompanied by Miss Iler and Miss Brockenbrough of the physical education department.

Teams from Madison College, Richmond Professional Institute, Westhampton, William and Mary, and Sweet Briar attended the annual meet. Other teams playing were the Campus Characters, the Richmond Club, Allied East, and Allied West.

Best players from the teams participating in this tournament have been selected to membership on the Virginia State team which will compete with teams from Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Maryland, and the state of Delaware.

LC Library Displays Exhibit About Dance

"Dance Has Many Faces" is the title of the exhibit now being featured in the main room of the college library.

The object of this exhibit is to show the close relationship that exists between dance and all the other arts—music, painting, poetry, and literature. Included in the exhibit are recordings of Swan Lake and Appalachian Spring, books about famous ballet artists, reproductions of well - known paintings and photographs of several of the members of the Longwood dance group, Orchesis. The theme of the display was chosen at this time in the hope that it would interest the student body in the modern dance concert being presented tomorrow night as part of the Artist Series.

Another exhibit on display this week is a group of prints loaned by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts on the Elizabethan period. The prints show a sequence of the historical events of the period.

Faculty Members To Attend Meets

Two Longwood history professors and members of the English department will attend southern meetings this week end, November 6 through November 8.

Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel and Dr. Francis B. Simkins associate professors of history and social science, will attend a meeting of the Southern Historical Association in Knoxville, Tennessee.

Dr. Simkins will lead a discussion on minority groups in the United States, especially concerning race differences as they developed during and after the Revolutionary War. He is currently working on a biography of Jefferson Davis.

Both Dr. Simkins and Dr. Schlegel are now writing textbooks on Virginia history for use in public schools.

The entire English department will attend a meeting of the regional College English Association, (Virginia, West Virginia, and North Carolina) in Greensboro, North Carolina at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

Dr. R. C. Simonini, professor of English, will serve on a panel discussing "The Impact of Certification Requirements on the English Major Program."

announce that she is ready again. Notice she has been purring, "Baby, It's Cold Outside."

Notice The organ department would like to announce that tryouts are now in session for a new page turner. The last one has graduated to pumping. This could happen to you if you act immediately as chances for advancement started.

Notice Mrs. Cox would like to announce that she is now buying back textbooks. Act now and avoid the June rush. Also, she would like to announce that all students expecting mail from the Soviet Union are to pick up their mail in the Home Office.

Notice Shuff and Welbon were a great help to you-know-who, finally. They will lead the cheers on this Wednesday evening for this column in the Rotunda.

24 Upperclassmen Become Members Of Cotillion Club

Twenty-four girls accepted bids to the Cotillion Club this week, according to an announcement by Janice Pinkard, president of the group.

Among the "goats" are Marlene Lucas, Jeanne Mercer, Nancy Callahan, Carolyn Michael, Barbara Allen, and Joyce Cheatham.

Shirley Roby, Wanda Doll, Marjorie Smallwood, Marjorie Fore, Trianne Lampkin, and Judy Cable also were named to membership.

Other new Cotillion "Goats" are Dot Vaden, Shirley Lewis, Hilda Hartis, Dot Douglas, Jackie White, and Nellie Lucy.

Mary Elizabeth Bennett Barksdale, Ann Mallory, Jeanne Lynch Hobbs, Dot Morris, Helen Barrow, and Barbara Rickman complete the list of girls receiving bids.

LC Representatives Continue Annual Plan Of School Visitation

Longwood's administration and faculty members are still carrying on their program of visiting high schools to interest seniors in their choice of colleges.

Dr. Robert Brumfield, associate professor of biology, will visit Halifax County; Mrs. Meade Shackleford, head of the Longwood News Bureau, the Tidewater area schools; and Mrs. Kathleen Cover, regional supervisor of guidance, the Alleghany and Bath Counties.

Also Mrs. Mary Watkins, executive secretary, will represent Longwood on College Day at Maury, Granby, Norview, Craddock, South Norfolk and Woodrow Wilson in Portsmouth on November 11, 12, and 13.

Miss Burger Will Attend Hockey Meet

Miss Elizabeth Burger, assistant professor of Science, will be present at the National Hockey Tournament taking place on November 27-30 at Sweet Briar College in Lynchburg.

Miss Burger, who is on the Virginia Hockey Team, is first vice-president of the United States Field Hockey Association. The Virginia team was chosen as a result of a tournament at Madison last week end.

During the National Tournament 20 selected teams from eight sections of the United States will play matches daily from nine o'clock to four-thirty. On the basis of this play the United States and United States Reserve Teams of '52 will be selected.

On Sunday at two-thirty an exhibition tournament between the United States Reserve Team and the United States Team will be presented.

The advance sale of tickets for this tournament is now going on and any person interested in obtaining a ticket may do so from Miss Burger at half price.

Dr. Landrum Speaks To FTA Members

Dr. M. L. Landrum, head of the Business Department, spoke to the members of the Future Teachers of America at their first regular meeting of the year Thursday night, October 30.

Dr. Landrum is president of the local branch of VEA for the coming year. He spoke to the group on his experiences at the VEA convention which he attended at the Mosque in Richmond last week.

Longwood Monogram Club Issues Bids Of Membership to 13 Upperclassmen

Group Honors Class Sports Participants

Two seniors and eleven juniors have recently been issued invitations to membership by the Longwood College Monogram Club. Membership in this honorary club is based on the interest and work of the student done in class athletics. Its purpose is the development of high athletic standards and sportsmanlike conduct in all phases of the sports program.

Ann Crowder, president of the club, has announced these girls have received bids. Betty Abbitt, Johanna Biddlecomb, Eleanor Koch, Patsy Sanford, Else Wente, Lib Boswell, Lucy Mann. Also, Roberta Wiatt, Mary Hurt Peery, Edith Prame, Ann Parkinson, Ann Mallory, and Mason Moore.

Seniors Make Color Points

The Green and White classes have made the first five points toward this year's color cup. They received the points by taking the annual tennis singles tournament. The winner of the tournament has not yet been determined because the final match has not been played. However, these girls, Clara Borum and Helen Castros are both members of the senior class, a green and white class, thus giving the points to their colors.

As the tennis matches are completed, results will be posted on the Athletic Association bulletin board in Ruffner Hall.

Play Class Hockey

All girls interested in playing for their class hockey teams must have their eight practices before the class games are started

Practices will be held every afternoon except Saturday from 3-5 p. m. Class games will begin in the near future.

Douglas Deals Out Dope On Dealing With Deadheads Or 'Roommate's Ruination'

BY DOT DOUGLAS

This is dedicated to your roommate—bless her tolerant, little pointed head. Since she lives with you, you owe it to her to make life as pleasant as possible. After a careful study and the losing of ten roommates, we've come up with these basic rules:

1. Start the day off right! Get up at five a. m., rip the blankets from her bed and yell merrily, "Rise and shine, merry sunshine!"

2. After this we suggest that you practice your scales. There's something about hearing "do, re, mi" sung over and over, and don't forget to blow your pitch pipe often. (Ukes will do in case you aren't a music student).

3. Every girl has an inate domestic nature; so give her the privilege of making your bed, sweeping and getting your laundry. She'll appreciate your thoughtfulness.

4. Flatter her. Tell her you like her new clothes and wear them (without asking her, of course). She'll know you're sincere.

5. Always, always invite your friends in to play bridge the night before she has three tests. She'll like the cheerful atmosphere before her doom. Of course, if your friends don't play bridge, practice your tap dancing; that will help almost as much.

6. Wait until Roomie is broke, then come back from the Snack munching a hamburger. She'll love the aroma, so be sure to let her smell it.

7. You can be a big help to your roommate when it comes to men. We suggest that you keep her letters from Virginia at least two days before delivering them to her. This way you'll save her two days worry about letter-answering. If she doesn't have a date Saturday night, tell her about yours, so she won't forget what it's like. If she doesn't get many phone calls, tell her that she has one anyway. She'll get a thrill running to the phone even when it is a false alarm.

8. Help her save time. If you have naturally curly hair, suggest that she stop wasting so much time rolling her straight hair.

9. See that she's healthy. Even if she is cold natured, keep the windows up full blast. If she doesn't die of pneumonia, she'll build up a strong resistance and learn to love fresh air as you do.

10. Make your roomie's life exciting—push her down the elevator shaft occasionally.

11. End her day right. Give your roommate a chuckle before she goes to sleep. If you don't have the energy to short-sheet her, the least you can do is to put cracker crumbs or pie in her bed. We suggest pie; it draws ants and she can be a more educated person by studying living biological specimens.

P. S. Do you know of anybody who's looking for a new roommate?

College President, Prof. of Education Will Attend Meet

On Friday, November 14, Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president of the college, and Dr. Edgar Johnson, professor of education, will journey to Richmond to attend a meeting of a committee appointed by the State Board of Education.

This committee will meet in the offices of the State Board to draw up recommendations on changes to be made in the curricula at Longwood and Madison. The recommendations will later be presented to the State Board of Education.

The committee is composed of Dr. J. L. Blair Buck, coordinator of teachers education for Virginia; Dr. Tyler Miller, president of Madison College; and Dr. Lancaster.

Both Madison and Longwood are represented on the committee in an effort to standardize the curriculum in state teachers' colleges.

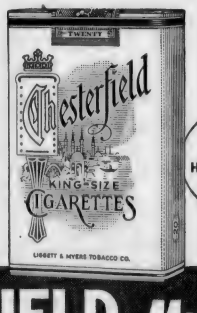
NOSE, THROAT,

and Accessory Organs not Adversely Affected by Smoking Chesterfields

FIRST SUCH REPORT EVER PUBLISHED ABOUT ANY CIGARETTE

A responsible consulting organization has reported the results of a continuing study by a competent medical specialist and his staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfield cigarettes.



A group of people from various walks of life was organized to smoke only Chesterfields. For six months this group of men and women smoked their normal amount of Chesterfields—10 to 40 a day. 45% of the group have smoked Chesterfields continually from one to thirty years for an average of 10 years each.

At the beginning and at the end of the six-months period each smoker was given a thorough examination, including X-ray pictures, by the medical specialist and his assistants. The examination covered the sinuses as well as the nose, ears and throat.

The medical specialist, after a thorough examination of every member of the group, stated: "It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."

Freshman Class Elects Curlee to Serve as Pres. For Remainder of Year

Girls Also Name Minor Officers

Jackie Curlee of Hampton was elected by the freshmen to serve as their president for the coming year. At a recent meeting the class also elected their other officers.

The new class president, a cheerleader and student assistant at Hampton High School, also served on the student government. Since coming to Longwood, Jackie wrote the class song for the freshmen and was elected freshman representative for the circus court.

Anne Snyder of Winchester was chosen to serve as House President. Anne was chairman of the freshman prop committee for circus.

Shirley Roberts from Christiansburg was chosen vice-president of the class.

At their meeting the freshmen also elected a secretary and treasurer. Louise Wilder from Williamsburg will serve as their secretary. Acting as treasurer of the class will be Jackie Marshall from Suffolk.

Gail Leonard of Richmond and Betsy Welbon of Arlington were chosen as freshmen representatives to the student government.

Ann Shuff and Jane Blake were chosen to serve on Student Standards Committee. Anne is from Buffalo, New York, and Jane is from Norfolk.

It was announced at the meeting that Jane Blake, Barbara Clark, Euphan Carter, Doris Harcum, Catherine Meeks and Ellen Thomas were chosen as cheerleaders for the freshman. Sue Upson, Peggy Layman, and June Elder will act as alternates. Jane and Barbara were named to serve as head cheerleaders.

Executive Secretary Journeys to Meeting For Summer School

Mrs. Mary T. Watkins, executive secretary of the college, represented Longwood College in Richmon last Saturday at a meeting of the Directors of Summer Schools in Virginia State College.

The meeting was held in the State Department of Education Offices and had its purpose the planning of curricula for 1953 summer sessions.

The group convenes annually for discussion of standards to follow, credits, courses, etc.

Caskey Announces Sale of "Splinter" Following Holiday

Pi Delt Sponsors College Calendar

The Splinter, a calendar-date book, will go on sale December 1, in the Snack Bar, according to Barbara Caskey, president of the local chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon, national journalism fraternity.

Because it is Longwood's smallest publication, this calendar-book has been named The Splinter. It will be similar to V. P. I.'s Sentinel. The cover will be blue leather with white lettering. On the title page is a picture of the clock tower on the library. The print is an original linoleum block done last year by Mary Need. Scenes of Longwood College will be placed throughout the book.

Pi Delta, the sponsors and initiator of the book, has felt for a long while that Longwood needed something of this kind. It will be useful to busy Longwood girls, as well as good advertisement for the college.

It is hoped that the girls will show their Splinters to prospective students.

Barbara added that The Splinter will make excellent Christmas presents. The price will be $1.50. Since there will be only 300 copies for the student body of 600, everyone is urged to buy her copy as soon as possible.

Hobbs to Direct Soph Production

Jeanne Lynch Hobbs of Roanoke was elected chairman of Sophomore Production at a recent sophomore class meeting.

Jeanne Lynch was chairman of the sophomore song contest. She was reporter for The Longwood Hour and is a member of the French Club and Cotillion Club.

The annual sopohomore production will be given on January this year. Jeanne Lynch has stated that she will begin plans for it immediately. Her committee chairmen will be announced in the near future.

Mary Campbell, Nancy Tanley, Martha Donaldson, Peggy Ilyus, Phoebe Warner and Ann Wendenburg have been chosen as cheerleaders for the sophomore class.

Government Recommends Open Results Of All Trials

Will Give Proposal At Meeting Soon For Student Vote

The Longwood Student Council will place before the student body a proposal concerning a change in its policy towards case results. Lucy Page Hall, Student Government president, announced that the new plan will be voted on at a student body meeting some time in the near future. (See editorial.)

The proposal, as passed by members of the council, calls for a posting of results of all cases brought before the Student Government. Lucy said that the bulletin board outside Miss Gleaves' office could be used for this purpose.

Included on the list would be the name of the girl, the offense, and the action taken on the case. Lucy added that instead of writing a description of the offense, the Council plans to simply state the rules broken by referring to pages in the College Handbook and to the number of the law or laws violated.

This proposal was passed by the Council at a recent meeting. In the near future there will be a called meeting of the student body at which time the students will have the opportunity to discuss and vote on the suggestion.

Longwood Players to Present T. Williams' 'Glass Menagerie' As First Production of Season

The cast of "The Glass Menagerie," plus a few members of the stage crew, stop their preparations for tomorrow's presentation to pose for a picture.

Curtain To Rise 8 P. M. Tomorrow

by Beverly Taylor

Thursday and Friday at 8 p. m. the curtain in Jarman Hall will rise on one of the most impressionistic plays of the American theater. This play, "The Glass Menagerie" by Tennessee Williams, has been selected by the Longwood Players for their first presentation of the season.

A play as abstract as "The Glass Menagerie", is difficult to preview. Naturally a story based on an individual's memories has an air of non-realism. The story is built around the emotions and reactions of the characters. Thus, actually there is little plot.

The scene of tomorrow night's performance is a small old-fashioned apartment located in a large building of St. Louis. The room has a dim romantic atmosphere.

The action of the story centers around a gentleman caller. The mother has forced her son to bring the caller to dinner. She wants the dinner guest for her crippled daughter's beenfit. The daughter discovers to her dismay that the guest is the boy she secretly loved in high school. Having lived in the ragile world of her glas smenagerie so long she finds herself completely incapable of coping with this real-world situation.

Small Cast

The cast of four is small for a college production and each actor will play a leading role. Sally Wilson, Isabelle Karnes, Tom Moore, and Ed Stanfied compose the cast.

Sally Wilson, a sophomore from Portsmouth, will interpret the role of the domineering mother, Amanda Wilson. Upperclassmen will remember Sally for her performance in "Ladies in Retirement." In talking about her newest part Sally said, "Amanda is a loveable yet demanding character who is violently ambitious for those she loves."

The whimsical, crippled daughter, Laura, will be portrayed by Isabelle Karnes, a junior from Bedford. When asked to comment on her role, Isabelle said, "I hope I can portray Laura as the beautiful, shy, and fragile person that she is."

Gentleman Caller

Playing the gentleman caller will be Tom Moore, a sophomore from Farmville. Tom is also familiar to Longwood audiences. He appeared last year in "Light Up the Sky." "I find Jim one of the most interesting characters I've attempted to portray," commented Tom.

Tom Wingfield, the brother who narrates the tale, will be played by Ed Stanfield, a senior at Hampden-Sydney. This will be Ed's third appearance in Longwood productions.

The stage crew for "The Glass Menagerie" is composed of members of Dr. C. L. S. Early's Play Production class and members of the Longwood Players. Anne Carter Wendenburg and Nan Bland will act as stage managers. Props will be handled by Jean Baber, Tilly Creasy and Sarah Conn, Norma Croft and Margie Harris are in charge of music. Tom Moore and Beverley Taylor will handle lights. In charge of publicity is Barbara White. Libby McClung is acting as costume mistress and Edmond Rice is the prompter. The play is under the direction Dr. C. L. S. Early, professor of English and dramatics.

Seniors Announce Hawthorne Group To Play for Dance

Bill Hawthorne and his seven piece orchestra, The Knights of Rhythmn, will provide the music for the Senior Dance to be held December 13 in the college gymnasium. At a recent class meeting the seniors chose this orchestra for their annual dance.

Mr. Hawthorne is from Roanoke and organized the orchestra during his college career at VPI where he played for several dances. He now plays at a local night club.

Margie Steele Sutphin, dance chairman, has stated that this year's Senior Dance promises to be unique in many different ways. Several surprises will be announced in the next issue of the Rotunda. Others will not be revealed until the night of the dance.

Tickets for the dance will go on sale after Thanksgiving at $2.40 a couple and $1.80 stag. They will be sold after meals on second floor rotunda.

An informal after-dance party for the seniors and their escorts is tentatively planned to be held at Longwood House. This is an annual privilege to be enjoyed by seniors only.

Don Cossack Chorus To Appear at College

The Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers will appear here December 9 as the next program in the Longwood Artists Series.

Following the Russian Revolution in 1917, the present director of the dancers formed the chorus from refugees of the war. All of the members are from the Don country in Russia and sing and dance to music of their native land. An outstanding number on their program is the famous Russian Dagger Dance.

Paper To Give Talent Show To Get Funds

by Jean Jinnett

Members of the Rotunda staff will present a Faculty Talent Show on Friday, December 5, in Jarman Auditorium.

In a lively, hilarious, nonsensical script that has been written by Barbara Caskey with the assistance of Phoebe Warner and Betsy Welbon, various members of the college faculty will be cast as pantomime actors and actresses.

Mrs. Mildred D. Davis of the college English Department will read the script, which has been written in a manner that will give the participants an opportunity to display their discovered talents as well as their ability to interpret and exaggerate phrasiology a la Caskey and Assistants.

Admission for the gala event will be ten cents.

History Association Honors Dr. Simkins

Dr. Francis Butler Simkins, associate professor of history, was elected vice - president of the Southern Historical Association at its recent meeting in Knoxville, Tennessee.

Under the provisions of the constitution, Dr. Simkins will automatically become president of the association in 1954. Serving in this capacity, he will deliver the annual address at the fall meeting of that year.

Dr. Simkins has taught at Longwood since 1927 with the exception of the years 1948-1951 when he was at Louisiana State University. During the current academic year, Dr. Simkins is on leave of absence from Longwood as the result of the award of a Guggenheim Fellowship to allow him to work on a biography of Jefferson Davis.

French Journalist Refutes Old Legend: Is Joan of Arc Worthy of High Tribute?

by Margaret Dryden

In the October issue of Life magazine there appeared a short article entitled "Debunking of a Saint" by a French ex-newspaper man, Jean Grimod.

Mr. Grimod claims to have unearthed documentary proof that the Saint Joan of Arc legend is false. He goes on to say that Joan was not a peasant girl but an illegitimate member of the royal family. She never had any visions but was built up as her country's savior by the king's propaganda-conscious advisers. Another woman was burned at the stake in her place, and she married a country squire named Robert de Harmoises and lived happily ever after.

Jean Grimod, we feel sure, has no idea that there is a college in Farmville, Virginia, which has Joan of Arc as its patron saint. For years, the development of characteristics such as hers has been the goal of Longwood women. For that reason we will present both sides of the question so you may form your own opinion.

Your writer read in ten sources and after consolidating the information found that they all agreed with the following statements. Jeanne d'Arc was born in the small town of Domremy, France in 1412. During her teens, she heard heavenly voices commanding her to go to the aid of her country.

At first Joan was regarded as insane, but eventually she found her way to the king and his counsellors, persuaded them of her sincerity and received permission to hasten with Dunois to the deliverance of Orleans in 1413. She was burned at the stake for her beliefs.

Though such authoritative sources as A History of France and The World Book, Americana, Britanica, and Comptons encyclopedias support these facts, there is also some evidence that Grimod may have a basis for his attack.

This is not the first time the legend has been ridiculed. Voltaire in "La Pucella", a notorious burlesque about Joan, led those of his time to believe he also doubted her saintliness.

Read Grimod's thesis when it is published in book form and then compare it with historical sources. Decide for yourself whether Joan was a saint or just another maid of France.

It's A Good Idea

As announced in this issue of the Rotunda, the Student Government is proposing the initiation of a policy which has been long needed on this campus. The Council is considering the adoption of a plan to post outside Miss Gleaves' office the results of all cases brought before them.

Naturally their proposal has resulted in some differences of opinion among the student body. Good arguments have been presented both for and against the measure. However, the Rotunda feels that the good points of the new system would far outweigh its fallacies.

In the past, when Student Government actions were kept in strict secrecy, many malicious rumors spread concerning the cases. By the time campus gossips got through spreading their tales, the individual involved in the case often appeared more guilty than she actually was. The new system would make the real circumstances known and kill all the "wild stories."

Another advantage of the proposed measure is that it would standardize the Councils' policy.. Students have expressed disapproval of the fact that in the past the Student Government has made public the results of some of its trials and kept others in secret. Posting all of the results would do away with what appears to be irregularity or favoritism.

Since Student Government meets in private and keeps all its business confidential, few girls really understand how their government functions. The bulletin board will serve as a means of helping Longwood to better understand its governing body.

The Council does not mean its new system to be a chastisement to the girls involved. It is rather for their benefit since it would do away with baseless rumors. However, such a measure might cause many girls to think twice before breaking a rule. Some indiivduals do not consider the "campus" they might receive for the infraction of a rule much to worry about. But they would dislike their names as law-breakers being made public—for faculty and students alike to see. Thus, the newly proposed system might terd to strengthen Longwood's government

The proposal does give the student body something to think about. Each girl should give the proposal serious consideration—weighing its pros and cons—and then attend the student body meeting ready to vote as she feels is right. We think the new policy is a good idea. Do you?

See-Worthy

The audience waits in hushed anticipation, lights dim, and the curtain rises on the first Longwood Players' dramatic production of this year.

Breaking away from traditional forms and periods of drama, the Players have this year undertaken the difficult and emotional "The Glass Menagerie." This is in acordance with the policy developed by the drama group to experiment with modern writers and their works, plays which are a challenge to both actors and audiences. In this play by Tennessee Williams they have delved into the realm of symbolism where three people must play make-believe with their lives.

In the past several years, college dramatics have come to the foreground in Longwood activities as an outstanding form of art and of entertainment. The quality of dramatic work here has continued to improve, and the undertaking of this play may mark a milestone in the efforts of the Longwood Players to do work of the highest calibre.

Certainly it has been a test of the skills and resources of both cast and stage effects. It has required many, many hours of just plain hard work to create the poetic world of unreality in which the play is set. What this work has accomplished will be presented to the college tomorrow night.

And yet actors and staff members cannot assure the success of a play. It is the response of the audience that completes their efforts. If we of the college are as proud of achievements of the dramatic organization as we claim to be, then to every production we should and must give our full support. We can attend the play simply to be entertained; we should go also to show our school spirit.

But some will say that they cannot understand the symbolism and illusion of modern drama. Seeing such works performed on the stage is the best way to approach an understanding of them.

This production is the result of the hard work of many students. They deserve our support and we owe it to ourselves, for many reasons, to give it to them.

Open Letter

It is the never-ending lament of any editor of any publication that good writers are few and far between. Perhaps this classic complaint is "a custom more honored in the breach than in the observance." Past evidence has proved that articles on this subject either of the pep-talk or grumbling variety—have seen little actual gain as their ultimate result. This letter is meant to be neither of the varieties mentioned above. It is an attempt to state a few apparent, although apparently overlooked facts.

One of these facts is a rather unusual one. It is this: Longwood College, as an institution of what we term "higher learning," attempts to imbue its students with all that is considered good in the way of education. And yet, this education, which consists of relatively new ideas and broader outlook, seems to plant no seed capable of reproduction. While it seems that students would use this knowledge as the basis of their own new ideas and outlooks, it appears, in actuality, that this knowledge is as closed and done with as is the text book when studying is finished. Students voice few opinions; they certainly rarely write about them. Granted it takes a good degree of literary talent—but it also requires a little interest in something beyond one's own small world of everyday activities.

The fact that life at Longwood is so filled with these everyday activities has already been deplored by student and faculty member alike. In the midst of this overabundance of societies, clubs, groups, "ad infinitum," however, are certain organizations such as publications, which if properly built up, could enhance and repay the college which fostered them. Furthermore, the publications could lay the groundwork and provide training for personal careers in literature and journalism.

But such a great number of people have such a little amount of time. It is unfortunate that the often-mentioned Longwood spirit, which is called forth to display itself in sports, serenades, circuses . . . and meetings, cannot be channeled into more creative currents. It is true that many of these latter activities make college life what it is to us; it is equally true that the printed page represents Longwood in a more widespread and lasting manner.

The publications of a college reflect the interests, activities, and ideas of the student body. And the nature of the student body denotes what the calibre of its publications will inevitably be.

Now that the election is over the citizenry has breathed its sigh of relief and has promtply begun to forget the details of govment organization, but the job of reorganization and adjustment has just begun. All of us, whether or not we voted for Eisenhower, want to believe that he will have the good intelligence and judgment to place capable men in the positions which will be vacated.

Anyone who reads the newspapers, magazines, or listens to the radio is aware of the fact that future history is being plotted now. Mr. Truman has invited Mr. Eisenhower to confer with his this week on matters of state. We sincerely hope that real progress can be made toward a reorganization of our federal government which will comply with our American tradition.

Mr. Eisnehower must have a new cabinet in January, but it is certain that he will not wait until January to choose these most important men in our government. Mr. Eisenhower said in his campaign speeches that he will show no favoritism, but he will select men of capability and integrity. From what he has shown of himself in matters of political and international affairs there is much faith to be placed in him.

Today the president-elect meets with Mr. Taft in New York. Mr. Taft is a powerful man in the Republican Party, and he is in line to head the Senate. The outcome of the association between these two commands close witness, since there may still be some doubt as to which one will really be the spokesman for the programs to be initiated in the next four years.

The question of who will receive cabinet posts is one which all political analysts are venturing to answer. Since anyone can take a stab a tpredictions, perhaps these men are a few who might be considered. Party support and ability play an important part in the possible futures of Dewey, Dulles, Hoffman, Dodge, McNider, Ingalls, Cutler, Eccles, Driscoll, Summerfield, Lodge, Hope, Adams, and Stassen.

"No more chicken, no more hash"—Yes, gals, it's in the book and we're all singing that sweet refrain—but:

Did you ever stop to think of the things you're gonna miss from Wednesday at eleven a. m. to Monday at 8 a. m.?

These are a few things that may make you have a little yearning for dear ole Longwood College.

1. A ferocious looking little boy with a feather sticking up out of his curly red hair, pressing his nose to the window pane of the history building and peering at his "old man" as he lectures to a very interested and attentive group of scholarly young ladies and Betty Collier.

2. Waking up each bright, cheery morning to the sound of Longwood's chimes peeling out the sweet music of "Now is the Hour."

3. Coming back from a long, wonderful week end, feeling happy, jolly, gay, chipper, great, wonderful, to find a person with the initials of B. C. selling headache tablets of the same name. To those who don't know it, Barbara Casky invented B. C. Headache Tablets after her either lost or last week end at Tech!

4. Running to your mailbox at nine - ten-eleven-twelve - three, only to find a card from your faithful fan Miss Library telling you to fork-up your weekly contribution or bring back the book you love so well that it has been renewed from September to November.

5. Writing in with your fellow classmates to the "True Story" magazine and receiving the first volume of a series dealing with matrimony. The first is entitled, "How To Get a Man in Twelve Easy Lessons." If this doesn' work, you can send for the second volume which is entitled "Nasty Breaks." or "How To Be An Old Maid Respected or??? Otherwise!"

However, I know despite these many pleasures we indulge in and enjoy at Longwood College, we also long for home cooking, and just plain old home; so here's to a great time to all—See ya' in two weeks to continue with our many joys of college life.

The fad nowadays seems to be that of writing a letter to the editor. Everybody that is anybody does—and as the Rotunda cannot print all the material it receives, it is only fair that these people should receive some kind of recognition for their opinions.

Please print in continued form the article referred to in your last paper, entitled 'I was a Bubble Dancer Until the Big Blowout.' We have heard that the second installment is entitled 'I Am Now a Jack-of-All Trades Because I've Gotten a Spare Tire.' Is this true?

Dear Editor:

Why does not the Rotunda take sides in a political issue? It is a well-known fact that the college generation of our country are well able to carry an election. After the students have been indoctrinated so long and so earnestly (three times a day) it seems almost certain that this institution would throw its entire support to the Vegetarian Party.

Annual Hockey Competition Underway Between Classes; Winners Gain Color Points

Final Game Thurs. Climaxes Series

The annual intramural hockey competition, awarding 15 points towards the color cup, got underway last Thursday. At the time the paper went to press, the classes were tied for points.

In the first class game of the season, the seniors defeated the sophomores by a score of 1-0. The second game found the juniors battling the freshmen to a 0-0 tie. On Monday the series continued with the seniors defeating the freshmen in the third meet. The score was 2-0.

Yesterday, the juniors beat the sophomores. The score was 2-0. This afternoon the juniors and the seniors competed and the final game of the tournament will be played tomorrow with the freshmen against the sophomores.

Cheerleaders for the various classes have been chosen and will be present at every game to lead the class cheering sections.

Dear Editor:

Why can't we have a lesson in card playing in each issue? Something like "Cox on Hearts" would be nice. She can explain simply and directly the intricacies and neccessary deprivations of 'the Superme Sacrifice.'

Dear Editor:

Let's have some library news. Also, more news about the Southwest Virginia Club would be appreciated.

Dear Editor:

Personally, I like to read the ads but we never have any of them.

Dear Editor:

Isn't your interenational news just a little bit stale? There is really no need to keep urging the signing of the League of Nations Pact. As a matter of fact, your whole paper seems to be rather behind. There is really no need to continue running the ad on Zippo Gaslights. Also, it is no longer necessary to begin each editorial with 'Heil Hitler!'

This was a public service feature.

Dear Editor:

Is it absolutely necessary for you to run a public service feature every week?

Campus Cogitations

by Naomi Reed

The Student Government Association is proposing that the results of all cases brought before the Council be posted on the bulletin board outside Miss Gleaves' office. What do you thing of this system?

Lillian Lee: "I think if the decisions were posted, it would influence others in not breaking the rules".

Shirley Wilbourne: "I think fewer rules would be broken".

Geraldine Lucy: 'I don't think so really. I think something like that should be done in secrecy even though the girl should be punished."

Ann Poole: "I think it's just between the girl and the Student Government. Everyone will know about it anyway".

Jean Carol Parker: "I think it would discourage gossip if the decisions were posted".

Louise Minson: 'I think they should since people always add something to the decision anyway".

Patty Kappes: "It would probably hurt the girls involved. Everyone would look down on them."

Mary Davis: "I feel it would be embarrasing, but then it would depend on what they had done. If the offense wasn't too bad, it would prevent people from making too much of it".

Lib Boswell: "I think it really might be a good idea because it would make you more rule-conscious".

Emilie Eggert: 'I don't think they need to. It gets around fast enough. At Virginia they just put a notice in the school paper saying what was done but no names".

Betty Barr: "No. I don't think so because I think it's a personal matter between the girl involved and the Student Government".

Jackie Lackey: "I think it's a good idea. It would save the time involved in calling a student body meeting".

Orchesis Members Will Present Show For Ruritan Club

On Thursday, November 20, Orchesis will present an after-dinner show for the local Ruritan Club, an organization for rural businessmen. The program for the entertainment has been announced by Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, professor of modern dance and advisor to Orchesis.

The first number planned for the show will be two tap duets by Ann Murphy and Mary Elva Robinson. Their first dance is entitled "Hard to Get" and is a tap-waltz routine based on the old boy meets girl theme. "Shag-Along" is their other duet. It is a variation of the familiar "Chug-Along" and is done to shag rhythm.

Next on the program will be a comical take-off of the "roaring 20's." Mary Ann Wright, in modern-day costume, will sing "Five-foot Two" while Nancy Lawrence, in flapper costume, struts around and does the Charleston.

The last number on the program will be a direct contrast to the first two. It is entitled "Lovely to Look At" and emphasizes fluff and femininity. Nancy Tanley will use ballet forms for interpretations to "You and the Night and the Music."

A finale in the form of a medley will bring the three acts together. Jean Partridge will act as accompanist.

The show is being presented to the annual dinner meeting of Ruritan in the colege dining hall.

NOTICE

All girls are urged to support their colors and attend the final intramural hockey game tomorrow at 4 p. m.

Classes Meet In Traditional Banner Races

At 4:40 on Thursday afternoon of this week the traditional color rush between the red 'n white and green 'n white classes will be held. This an an annual event in which the fastest runners from each class compete in races held on the athletic field. The winners of these races put their color banners on the front of the various college buildings.

Try-outs for color rush were held on the athletic field Monday afternoon. Competing for Red 'n White will be La Reve Mallory, Nancy Hartman, Roberta Wiatt, Patsy Sanford, and Edith Frame. Nell Bradshaw Green, Clara Borum, Beverly Marsh, Ann Crowder, and Betty Tyler will be the contestants for Green 'n White.

Banners will be posted on Student Building, Ruffner, Library Hall, Junior Building and Senior Building.

Betty Tyler, president of the Athletic Association, has asked that the banners be taken down by Saturday afternoon.

Publication Representatives To Attend VIPA Convention At Blacksburg December 5, 6

Representatives of Longwood's three publications will be journeying to Blacksburg on the week end of December 5 and 6 to attend the fall meeting of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association.

This convention, which was held here at Longwood last fall, brings together the staff members of college publications throughout this state. The purpose of such meetings is to provide an opportunity for discussions of common problems and to set up and help maintain high journalistic standards.

Virginia Tech is the host school this year and Jack Denton, managing editor of "The Virginia Tech," is the convention chairman.

All members of the staffs of the Virginian, the Colonnade, and the Rotunda are eligible to attend provided they can pay the cost of convention which is not known as yet.

There is a contest in which the colleges enter their newspapers, yearbooks, and magazines. Judging will be done by the journalism faculty at the University of North Carolina, and awards will be made at the banquet Saturday night.

Included in the week end convention will be a play, a dance, critiques, business meetings, and an award banquet.

More definite details will be announced later.

See Book Exhibit

In connection with National Book Week, November 17-22, the library now has on display several exhibits that emphasize books.

One display is "How a Book is Bound" which was prepared in cooperation with the Ruzicka Bindery Company, of Greensboro, North Carolina. This display shows the many processes through which a book passes as it is being made.

Even a Boy Can Fight Communism With Truth

Kids on Radio Free Europe send hope to pals behind Iron Curtain

Twelve-year-old Karel Paces, a young Czechoslovakian found in a German refugee camp, is broadcasting over Radio Free Europe to his friends behind the Iron Curtain. He is telling them familiar children's stories in their native tongue—stories now denied them by their Communist masters.

Karel Paces is giving his friends the truth of their own country and the free world.

Day and night, Radio Free Europe is exposing Communist lies and propaganda, and sustaining the hope of oppressed millions that some day they will live in a better world.

Your contributions to the Crusade for Freedom will help to continue and expand the gallant work of Radio Free Europe. Just send whatever amount you can afford to: Crusade for Freedom, c/o your local postmaster. Do it today.

Girls Elect Slate Of Pi Gamma Mu

At a recent meeting of Pi Gamma Mu, three new officers were elected to serve during the coming year.

Bunny Gibson, president of the group, announced that Eugenia Korahaes, a senior from Norfolk, was elected to serve as vice president of this national social science honor society.

Chosen to serve as secretary for this year was Jean Southern, a junior and native of Roanoke. Completing the slate of new officers is Ann Gray, senior of Richmond, who will serve as treasurer.

At this meeting eight new members, who were recently invited to join the group, were initiated into the society.

'Y' Sponsors Drive For Filling Baskets

Following the tradition of past years, the Y. W. C. A. has started a drive to fill Thanksgiving baskets for needy families in Farmville. This year the drive is in the form of a competitive contest between the classes.

Two baskets ,a green 'n white one and a red 'n white one have been placed outside the dining hall to be filled with food and clothing. Since the drive has been underway this week, many contributions have been made.

Pi Delta Epsilon Elects Officers For Coming Year

Barbara Caskey, a senior from Richmond, has recently been chosen to take over the office of president of the local chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon for the remainder of the 1952-1953 year, replacing Harriet B. Minichan who has resigned. Caskey assumed her duties at a reorganizational meeting held last Thursday evening in senior kitchen.

Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel, associate professor of ehistory, was selected by the group to serve as advisor this year. Dr. Schlegel is an honorary member of the fraternity and has served as sponsor several times in the past.

At the same meeting Nancy Lawrence was elected to act as secretary, and Pat Altwegg was appointed to be publicity chairman of the Splinter, a college date book being published for the first time this year by the chapter.

LC Magazine To Come Out In December

Betty Collier, editor of 'The Colonnade, has announced that the first issue of the magazine will appear early in December.

This issue will not have any particular theme, but it will contain articles on subjects such as music and college activities. It will also include a literary critique of Wallace Stevens, a well-known poet whose works at one time incurred a great deal of controversy.

This issue will not feature the prize winenrs in the short-story and essay contest. It will, however, contain several articles which will be considered in the judging of the contest after it is re-opened December 1.

The editor ended her announcement by stating that the cover and one of the artices will be something of an experiment in the attempt to make the magazine more directly reflect the interests and activities of Longwood.

Altwegg To Head Granddaughters

At a recent meeting, members of the Granddaughters' Club elected officers for the coming year. Patricia Altwegg will serve as president with Sylvia West as vice-president, while Lucy Thwing and Jo Burley will take over the duties of secretary and treasurer, respectively. Edith Frame has been selected historian for the group.

As part of their activities for this year, members of the Granddaughters Club will act as hostesses on Founders' Day and also help in the Alumnae Office on that particular day.

NOSE, THROAT,

and Accessory Organs not Adversely Affected by Smoking Chesterfields

FIRST SUCH REPORT EVER PUBLISHED ABOUT ANY CIGARETTE

A responsible consulting organization has reported the results of a continuing study by a competent medical specialist and his staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfield cigarettes.

A group of people from various walks of life was organized to smoke only Chesterfields. For six months this group of men and women smoked their normal amount of Chesterfields—10 to 40 a day. 45% of the group have smoked Chesterfields continually from one to thirty years for an average of 10 years each.

At the beginning and at the end of the six-months period each smoker was given a thorough examination, including X-ray pictures, by the medical specialist and his assistants. The examination covered the sinuses as well as the nose, ears and throat.

The medical specialist, after a thorough examination of every member of the group, stated: "It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."

Artist Series Attraction

The Don Cossack Dancers and Chorus, who will appear in Jarman Hall, Tuesday, December 9, as the third performance in the Longwood Artist Series.

Russian Dance Chorus To Perform at College

Dagger Dance Featured Number

Celebrating their 14th transcontinental tour this season, the Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers will perform in a Longwood Artist Series presentation on December 9, at 8 p. m., in Jarman Hall.

Featured in their Longwood recital will be the traditional dagger dance performed by Gabriel Soloduhin. The featured number begins with the sad lilt of a peasant song and concludes in a wild dance of jubilation.

During the past 14 years the Cossacks have made over 1,700 appearances within the United States. Sixty-four other countries have also been covered in their past schedules, and they have appeared on all five continents.

Nicholas Kostrukoff

The group was organized while the men were exiles from the Don River country. They were gathered together by Nicholas Kostrukoff who left Russia during the Revolution. As White Russian emigrants, they fought Communism in Russia and might be considered the pioneers in the fight against World Communism. All the men are now American citizens and some of them served in the ranks of the U. S. Army during World War II.

Prague Concert

Since their first concert 22 years ago in the Cathedral in Prague, Czechoslovakia, the Cossacks have entertained thousands with their concerts.

Eight hundred and eighty-five of their programs have been devoted especially to church music and one of their largest church performances was held at the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris before an audience of 10,000 and attended by the Archbishop of Paris, Cardinal Verdier.

Following their most recent New York concert, the New York Times printed, "Still stands among the best choral groups now to be heard in our concert halls."

Joint Choirs Set Yuletide Concert For December 14

Program Features 'Messiah' Selections

The annual Christmas Concert, presented by the combined choirs of Longwood and Hampden-Sydney Colleges, will be presented on December 14 at 8:30 p. m. in Jarman Hall as was recently announced by Dr. John W. Molnar, head of the music department.

The concert will feature selections from Handel's "Messiah" and carols and Christmas songs from many countries and ages.

Mrs. Sarah Harvie will appear as soloist in Dickinson's "The Shepherd's Story," and in the solo passages of the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah," Winston Johnson, the president of the chour, will sing the famous "O, Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion," also from the "Messiah," Dolly Horne will sing the solo part of the Katherine Davis arrangement of "Blessed Day of Joy," a Czechoslavakian carol, and Elizabeth Stone will sing the solo part of "The Carol of the Birds," by the American contemporary composer, John Jacob Niles.

The Longwood Instrumental Ensemble will accompany several of the choir's selections, and Mr. Clarence Warrington, instructor of organ, will perform the "Christmas Suite" by Alec Templeton. Lu Beavers will accompany the chorus and solo parts.

The entire concert is under the direction of Dr. Molnar, conductor of both organizations. This concert is open to the public.

'Theater' On Exhibit

On display in the library now is an exhibit on the theater called "From Ritual to Broadway." It can be seen between the third and fifteenth of December.

The display is being lent to the library by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts which is located in Richmond.

It consists of twenty-five panels from Life magazine and their titles.

These loans appear at least once a month and are used with local exhibits in the Browsing Room.

Buy Your Splinter

Barbara Caskey, president of Pi Delta Epsilon, has announced that The Splinter, a college date book, will arrive this week. The exact date of their sale will be announced by Barbara as soon as they arrive. These leather-bound calendars will be sold in the Snack Bar by Pi Delta members at $1.50 a copy.

Yule Pageant December 16 Will Portray Jesus' Birth

Students to Select Madonna for Scene; Banquet to Precede

The Christmas program sponsored annually by the YWCA will be given at 10:30 p. m. on Dec. 16 in Jarman Hall. The pageant will present the story of the Nativity through Christmas carols and pantomine. Following the precedent set last year the Madonna will be chosen by the student body from the senior class.

This girl will be elected by the students on a date to be announced later. Students are urged to vote for the senior whom they consider to have personal qualities most like those of Mary.

At the close of the pageant the heads of all college organizations will take part in the traditional "White Christmas" offering. Each head will bring her organizations' donation to the platform. These gifts will be used to help needy families in the Farmville area.

The pageant is being held this year at 10:30 p. m., in hope that the girls will return to their rooms in a reverent, prayerful mood.

Fay Greenland, chairman of the 'y prayers committee is in charge of the pageant and has asked that all students who are interested in taking part in the pageant see her as soon as possible.

At 6 p. m. on December 16 the Y will sponsor the annual formal Christmas banquet held in the college dining hall. The newly elected Freshman Commission will have charge of entertainment and decorations for the dinner. Members of the faculty and administration will be guests of the student body at this Christmas banquet. Following dinner will be the traditional Hanging of the Green in the rotunda followed by the singing of Christmas carols.

Newspaper Gains 15 Staff Members

Fifteen Longwood students have successfully completed the two-month tryout period as Rotunda editorial staff apprentices. The names of these students will be added to the publication masthead this week.

Anne Shuff, Norma Jean Croft, Gail Leonard, Gail Patrick, Charlotte Pitts, Louise Wilder and Marion Ruffin have been named to the news staff.

Also among those successfully finishing their tryouts for this staff are Beverly Taylor, Carolyn Henderson, Marie Swecker, Gloria Anderston, Pat Cantrell, Joanne McLelland, Carolyn Giles and Dorothy Armstrong.

Margaret Dryden and Dorothy Armstrong have been named to the feature staff.

Anne Weatherholtz, Virginia Cowles, Gail Moon, and Karen Spencer are permanent staff typists aiding Joyce Pomeroy, copy editor.

Additions to the business staff will be revealed at a later date.

The Rotunda invites all interested students to try out for one of the newspaper staffs: news, feature, copy, business, and sports. Proof-readers and headline-writers are also needed.

Such try-outs are held by the newspaper every fall particularly for the benefit of the freshman class.

Seniors Choose "June In Dec." As Theme for Christmas Dance In Gymnasium December 13

Committee For Visitations To Evaluate College Phases

On December 8 a visitation committee from the American Association of Colleges of Teacher Education will arrive at Longwood for the purpose of evaluating all phases of this educational institution. The committee will be on campus for three days.

Dr. Florence Stratemeyer, professor of education at Columbia University, will serve as head of this visitation committee. Other members of the committee will be Dr. Claire S. Whiteman, president of State Teachers College, Patterson, N. J., Dr. Francis B. Langford, professor of education at the University of Virginia and Mr. Robert Williams, of the Virginia Education Association.

The evaluation is based on standards set in seven different phases of college organization. The first of the standards is the "General Purposes of the Institution". The second standard is "Student Personnel Services". This includes guidance, records, and all non-cariicula facilities.

The third phase considered is 'Faculty Qualification. The fourth phases is "Teaching Load of the Faculty" and the fifth phase is "Curricular-instructional Patterns." The sixth standard is "Professional Laboratory Experiences". This refers to the student teaching system. The last standard evaluated is "The Library."

There are 250 colleges and education departments of universities holding membership in the AACTE. Each of these member colleges studies its own college for a period of months and compiles a self evaluation which is given to the committee. The committee in turn studies the institution and decides how it compares with other member colleges.

The purposes of the visitation program is to keep the standards of the member colleges of the AACTE high and to provide for an inter change of ideas through the passing on of ideas.

While here the committee will study every detail of Longwood College life. The committee will have meals in the dining hall and Doctor Stratemeyer will stay in the dorm. The men will stay at Dr. Lancaster's home.

Dr. Lancaster will serve as head of a similar visitation committee which will visit the University of Georgia this spring.

Jones Announces Frosh Commission For Coming Year

Names of the twelve girls that will serve on the Y. W. C. A. Freshman Commission this year have been revealed by Ann Jones, president of the Y. W. C. A.

The girls chosen are Betty Huzek, Anne Shuff, Mary Ann Wright, Barbara Clarke, Louise Wilder, and Georgia Jackson. Other members of the new commission are Margaret Duke, Betty Maas, Garland Webster, Patsy Abernathy, Jane Blake, and Muriel Boswell. These twelve girls will represent the Freshman Class in the Y. W. C. A.

The girls serving on the commission were chosen by their classmates from a list of 29 candidates submitted to the class by the Y. Following the tradition of past years, the commission will decorate the Christmas tree in the rotunda. Tentative plans have been made for sponsoring a juke box dance in the near future.

The purpose of the Freshman Commission is to work with and for the Y. W. C. A. striving to aid the purposes of this organization in any way possible.

Clubs Initiate Girls

Two college Curricula organizations have recently initiated new members into their groups.

Fifty-three business majors were initiated as new members of the Longwood Commercial Club. All freshmen majoring in business plus any upper-classmen who had not previously joined were eligible for membership at this time.

The American Childhood Education Association also recently initiated new members. Twenty-nine junior and senior elementary majors possessing a C average were taken into the club.

Faculty Show Set For Dec. 4 In Auditorium

Tomorrow night at seven o'clock the Rotunda staff will present a production featuring members of the college faculty and administration.

The production, written by Barbara Caskey and Betsy Welbon, will be presented in three acts. Teh first is a take-off on the Broadway play "Arsenic and Old Lace;" the second, a scene in a mental institution; and the third, a skit entitled "A Date With Judy."

Musical accompaniment for the show will be supplied by Dr. R. C. Simonini and Mr. Clarence Warrington. Mrs. Mildred Davis will be the narrator for the show which will be presented in Jarman Hall.

Admission for the production will be fifteen cents.

Language Clubs Plan Yuletide Celebration

French and Spanish yuletide customs will be depicted at the annual Christmas party to be given by the French Circle and Spanish Club, December 12.

The party, which will be given in the "Rec" at 8 p. m., will feature songs, dances and skits from the countries of the two languages. They will be explained in English for the benfit of guests.

Nancy McLawhorn will sing the traditional French solo "Cantique Pour Noel". Santa will make a surprise appearance and refreshments will shower down from the colorful Spanish pinatas.

The party is open to all students and tickets for the Fete may be purchased for 25 cents from any member of the foreign language clubs.

Seniors To Carry Identical Flowers

"June in December" has been chosen as the theme for this year's Senior Dance to be held in the college gymnasium December 13 at eight o'clock.

The gymnasium will be decorated with green and white, the class colors. Decorations will carry out the "June in December" theme and will center around a surprise feature. Seniors will carry identical bouquets of green carnations with long green streamers.

Honorary Classmen

Each year a member of the graduating class is asked to return the following year as an honorary classman to lead the figure. The honor this year goes to Mary Helen Cook better known as "Cookie." A similiar honor to the sister classmen is being introduced this year. An honorary sophomore who will also take part in the figure will be selected by the senior class. She will be chosen on the basis of her merit and contribution to the college. This representative is to be announced the night of the dance.

A party after the dance is being planned for the seniors at Longwood House. It is an annual affair and is open to seniors only.

As announced in the last issue of the Rotunda, Bill Hawthorne and his "Knight sof Rhythmn" will provide the music.

Chaperons

Chaperons will include Miss Ruth Cleaves, Miss Nancy Chambers, Dr. and Mrs. Merle Landrum, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Laing, Dr. and Mrs. George Jeffers, Dr. and Mrs. Dabney Lancaster, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Brumfield.

Also Dr. and Mrs. Marvin Schlegel, Dr. and Mrs. Jack Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Coyner, Mrs. Caroline Eastham, and Mrs. Katherine Tabb. In recognition of their work with the class Miss Elizabeth Burger, and Mr. Thomas McCorkle will be special guests.

Serving in the receiving line are Dr. and Mrs. Lancaster, Miss Cleaves, Miss Chambers, Polly Brothers, Joanne Steck, Barbara White, Helen Barrow, Margaret Sulphin, Mary Helen Cook, honrary classman, and Mr. R. H. French.

Longwood Magazine To Choose Writings For 1952 Anthology

The editor and staff of the Colonnade have been asked to choose several original works by Longwood students which they consider the best writing of this school. These examples will be submitted for possible publication in an anthology of the best undergraduate writing of 1952.

Work is now under way on this anthology which is to be published under the sponsorship of the English Department of the University of North Carolina.

This book, to be edited by a committee of Woman's College writers and teachers, will be an effort to bring before the general reading public the best work to appear in American College literary magazines during the calendar year 1952.

The Colonnade has been invited to join the board of editorial advisers and to provide a file of all issues of the Longwood magazines for this year.

Manners Matter

Did you ever imagine yourself as the guest speaker at a Tuesday assembly of Longwood College students? You could be a world traveler, perhaps to Alaska, or a lecturer on books or maybe a well known educator or clergyman. That is probably stretching the imagination a little too far but such a figment of illusion serves the purpose of this editorial.

As a guest speaker you would stand on the platform, with address prepared, and gaze down into the beaming, attentive faces of 600 Longwood College students. That is, you would see these faces if their owners were not bent over a pair of argyles, or slumped sleepily down on the end of their spines or deep in the preparation of a last minute assignment for their 2:05 class.

The auditorium is quiet as you begin to speak; quiet except for the low murmur of all those who couldn't hear very well in the first place and seem determined to keep as many others from hearing as possible.

Such action could hardly be taken as expressions of interest, enthusiasm, and good manners on the part of any audience. But in the past few weeks the attitudes of nonchalance and boredom have been generally cultivated at one o'clock on Tuesday in Longwood assemblies.

There must be some reason for these poor attitudes but the blame can hardly be placed on the assembly committee. So far this year the 1952-53 assembly committee has presented interesting and timely programs by speakers whom Longwood should be proud to have as its guests. The hard work and consideration of this committee certainly deserves the support and thanks of the student body. Assemblies at Longwood are held only once each week for one hour; in many colleges compulsory assemblies are held several times during the week. Is it so hard to be interested for only one hour a week?

"Longwood ladies" is a familiar term we use in our conversation. But it should be taken seriously in this matter of combining assemblies and sleeping. Our assembly manner serves as an advertisement of the character and spirit of the students of our college. Our actions before speakers in an assembly may be a guest lecturer's only way of judging our student body. All of us can at least be polite. Ordinary common courtesy demands that we at least give attentive appearances; an attitude of interest can develop into real interest.

Suppose you were the speaker at one of our assemblies. Which would give you the better impression—textbooks and kitting needles or the attentive faces of interested students?

A Change for the Better

It has been suggested by several members of the senior class that the traditional procedure for graduation be changed. The proposed suggestion is to have the Baccalaureate sermon on Sunday morning at the regular church hour, and, on the same afternoon confer the degrees to the graduates.

The changes involved therein would not do away with any of the activities formerly used, but would merely condense these activities into the week-end without spilling over the following Monday.

The original reason behind such a proposal was to facilitate the February graduates' return for the exercises, as well as to enable more friends of all graduates to attend. Since the length of time would be shortened, expenses for room and meal accommodations would also be lessened. The argument on the other side is the deploring of a change in tradition.

Since the senior class almost unanimously approved the suggested plan, let us hope that faculty and administration will not hold back on making a change for the better, merely for the sake of the out-dated tradition now standing. Other colleges have found such a plan to be very effective; our hope is that Longwood can improve its procedure and have graduation this year on Sunday, May 31.

Kill That Thief

"Procrastination is the thief of time." This is an oft repeated but little heeded quotation. Yet so very true!

A college girl's life is naturally an intense one. Studies could be a full time pursuit. Yet, girls, almost without fail, realize that "all work and no play make Jill a dull girl." Thus, they plunge into a myriad of extra-curricula activities and social doings.

To get everything, or an acceptable percentage of everything, done one has to be an excellent budgeter of time. Hours wasted are paid for with low grades or disapproval from the persons who were depending on us for a job well done.

In face of all the pressure it is often a temptation to put off one job to get a more urgent one done. And slowly girls find themselves drifting into a "don't do today what you can put off until tomorrow" philosophy of life. Such an outlook shows weakness and is dangerous in that it jeopardizes the calibre of one's work.

Procrastination means that instead of working along as tasks are assigned, one waits until she must crowd into a short time work that should have been done slowly. It is not surprising that the finished product is not an example of the girl's best work.

Each Longwood girl has now received her estimates and knows the results of a half semester's work. Many realize that some of the grades which disappointed them were caused by procrastination.

Every student has before her a clean slate and a chance to bring up low grades. Procrastinators can make steps in the right direction by deciding to kill the "thief of time" and keep up with their tasks and assignments from day to day.

Miss Take

by Barbara Caskey

There are a lot of excuses I can make for my "Mistakes" this week. All in all it amounts to the fact that I didn't have time. To enumerate:

1. On Mondays I always write my weekly letter to my great grandfather in Afghanistan.

2. Last Tuesday I had to take a tennis test, which, contrary to popular opinion, is not crip. It took me all afternoon. Example.

TRUE-FALSE

a. The utensil employed in hitting the ball is known as the rake.

b. The plot upon which the game is played is known as the courthouse.

c. The shot employed when the ball comes to the left of the player is known as the red-hand.

3. Wednesday morning I began taking an English Grammar test. Example.

a. What is wrong with this sentence . . . . Read carefully.

They waved goodbye to their parent's behind.

At the age of 12 their father died and left all four of them orphans.

b. Correct . . . . He found her lips and hardly even noticed them in the corners.

c. Diagram . . . . He wore a smile, which wore well.

4. Wednesday afternoon I went downtown. By the time I got across the street with the red-wait -yellow -wait -walk -wait-green-wait light it was Monday morning and I was fifteen minutes late to English class. Things like that certainly do discourage hit and run drivers.

5. Finally, as you all might know, the Rotunda is giving a show this Thursday starring members of the faculty. What you might not know, however, is that "the hilariously funny script written by . . ." (Rotunda, November 19) has not been done as yet. No doubt you will excuse me for such a worthy purpose.

Spectra-Scopic Views

India, one of the member nations of the United Nations, recently offered a peace proposal to end the Korean treaty problems, and, although any sincere proposal is warmly welcomed, the American public is being heard to mumble to itself, "Well, what is this latest cure-all?"

To most the latest effort to present a satisfactory settlement of the war appears to be little different from those which have recently been presented. If one is optomistic, it can be said to be another step along the road to peace. In brief, the text of the proposal asks that the repatriation commission turn over to the political peace conference the remaining prisoners.

The British have strongly backed the plan, but one must remember that they desire to remain in the graces of the Indians in any way left for them, and perhaps under other circumstances England might feel differently.

The Americans praised the resolution because of its stand against forced repatriation of prisoners. She feels, however, that some definite stipulation should be made concerning a time limit required for this.

Then there is Russia. She wants an amendment for the immediate cessation of hostilities and forced repatriation. She believes prisoners are government property and should have no voice in stating whether or not they desire to return home.

We can only watch for further developments and hope that our leaders will make the right decisions.

There is, however, an encouraging factor. The U. N. is politics on a big, international scale, and it is like a game of chess in many respects. All nations make decisions, not by simple will, but according to the reactions which result in dealing with other nations. There is a "why" and "wherefore" to all these actions, and to follow them closely will give some insight into human unuerstanding, and that is, after all, the basis of the United Nations.

Flash — Bulletin — 588 girls leave Longwood for Thanksgiving holidays! Everybody enjoy themselves? I tried to get around to all the games in Roanoke, Williamsburg and so forth to see everyone whowas there, but my plane connections were close so I might have missed someone.

Sensational Plus—V.P.I. vs V.M.I.

Cheering the Tech boys on to their first victory over V. M. I. since '47 were Pat McLemore, Nancy J. Jones, Nancy Stark, Nancy Inge, Nell Copley, Bonnie Moore, Peggy Laymore, Shirley Garst, Dot Baldwin and Martha Donaldson, also Lois Childress, Molly Harvey, Beverly Taylor, Gail Leanord, Garland Webster, Mary Denny Wilson, Mary Elva Robinson and Fannie Scott, also Betty Abbitt, Chalice Hayden, Nancy Driskill, Shirley Ward, Joyce Jenkins and a few thousand other people.

Sitting on the other side—and also attending the V.M.I. Ring Dances were Donnie Devine, Kay Peiter, and Katherine Manse.

William and Mary—U. Va.

Visting the quaint little town of Williamsburg and seeing the last game of the season for both teams were Joan Steck, Jean Talley, Sara Leatherman, Betty Frances Gillette, and Nell Copley.

The New Yorkers

Among the plutocrats that went to New York for the holidays were some girls who managed to jaunt over to the West Point Dances. The ultra-ultra plutocrats included Marlene Lucas, Katherine Miller, Gail Moon, Kitty Jennings and FiFi Carter.

Army-Navy Game

Those that were on hand in Philadelphia for the game of the year were Gail Dixon, Pat Kelley and Trianne Lampkin.

U. Va. Openings

Waltzing to the music of Ralph Flanagan and enjoying the usual atmosphere of U. Va. last weekend were Hattie Poffenbergen, Joyce Quick, Shirley Ward, B. J. Staples, Joan Curles, Lucy Thwing, Billie Miller and Diane Burgess. Also Margaret Duke, Jane Lohr, Jane Blake, Flip Blake, Jean Krienbaum, Betty Collier and Wanda Karlett.

Letters To Editor

The next three weeks would be wonderful, joyous days filled with activity and the Christmas spirit, except for one thing—there is too much to do. Besides all the activities and presentations themselves, there are many rehearsals for them. All these take up so much time that not much is left for daily assignments, term papers, parallel reading, etc. which simply must be done.

One activity that could easily be held at a different time is the water pageant. A little more than one week remains to work up the entire show and hold all the rehearsals. By having it, say in February, there would be a great deal more time for planning and rehearsals, and a better show would result. Also, the theme could be varied from year to year. It would be a greater attraction, because at Christmastime, there are so many other Christmas programs that it is lost in the hustle.

Please let's do something to relieve the heavy load of activities of the next three weeks so that we can enjoy them instead of dreading the strain of an overloaded schedule.

Campus Cogitations

by Naomi Reed

"What Did You Enjoy Most in the Big City?" is the question of the week, asked of some of the girls who made the Thanksgiving trip to New York.

Louise Minson: The prettiest place was inside the theatre of Radio City. The U. N. building was very nice, too. An interesting place was the Chinese temple.

Kitty Jennings: Gail Moon, Catherine Miller, Marlene Lucas, and I all went to West Point. That was my most exciting experience.

Barbara Mitchell: I think the most impressive part of the trip was Radio City Music Hall. The worst thing was the Negro fight in a subway station.

Jeanne Lynch Hobbs: When they dedicated a set of numbers to me and dancing with Guy Lombardo.

Follyanna Martin: I liked just to walk along the streets and be among the people. Of all the shows I saw I liked LIMELIGHT with Charlie Chaplin best. New York is really a wonderful city.

Ruthie Van Houiten: I liked the Village Room in Hotel Taft.

Ernestine Johnston: O la la! the men! And the thrill of SOUTH PACIFIC.

Red 'n White Banners Deck Four Buildings Taken In Color Races

Green 'n Whites Win Soph Dorm

The red 'n whites won a sweeping victory in the annual color rush which was held on the A. A. field Monday afternoon, December 11.

Four of the five buildings competed for were captured by runners from red n' white classes. Clara Borum saved the green 'n whites from total defeat by winning student building for her colors.

For the red 'n whites Patsy Sanford raced and won senior building. After a hard fought battle Roberta Wyatt added junior building to the red 'n white victories.

The freshmen contributed more than their share to the winning of the buildings. Nancy Hartman captured the rotunda and LaReve Mallory won library hall.

Runners in Color Rush were selected from competitors of all four classes after try-outs held before the Thanksgiving holidays.

Basketball Manager Announces Practices For Varsity Tryouts

Tryouts for the varsity basketball team will begin this week according to an announcement by Nell Bradshaw Green, varsity basketball manager.

Practices will be held in the gym Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at 4 o'clock. In order to enable more girls to complete the necessary number of practices, tryouts will continue through next Thursday.

The varsity team chosen as a result of these tryouts will be posted on the A. A. bulletin board. Nell has urged that anyone interested in playing come out for practices.

H2O Makes Plans For Water Show

Ann Crowder, president of the H2O Club, has announced that the organization's annual water pageant will be held within the near future.

The setting for this year's presentation will be Santa's workshop on Christmas Eve. Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus will be presented making last minute inspection of toys. Among the toys that will be on parade are jumping jacks, stuffed dogs, rag dolls, snowflakes, mechanical dolls, a jack in the box.

The program will be concluded with the traditional finale, the formation of the letters H2O by members of the club.

Ann added that students should watch the bulletin boards for the exact date and time of the presentation.

Hockey Postponed

Hilda Hartis and Helen Waitman, chairman of class hockey teams, have announced that the remaining intramural games will be played as soon as the weather permits. The last two games are between the senior and junior classes and sophomore and freshman classes and will be played off on the same afternoon.

Orchesis Reveals Casting Underway For Dance-Drama

Casting for "The Mocking Bird," the dance—drama to be presented by Orchesis in February, has begun. According to the announcement made by Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, advisor of the modern dance club, tryouts for solo leads should be completed by the end of this week.

The drama will be based on a series of disruptive experiences which unfold through the two main characters. One is David, a boy of seven and the other is his 15 year old sister, Drusilla.

Drusilla has two completely opposite sides to her personality and thus her role is filled by two dancers. Anne Murphy, a senior from Danville, will portray Drusilla a vixen full of hatred for everyone. Nancy Tanley, sophomore from Newport News, will dance Drusilla as a romantic, emotional starving — eager for love and understanding.

The role of David has not yet been filled.

Jacqueline Sell will interpret the role of Miss Anne, the governess.

Barbara Blackman and Marian Parrish will assume the roles of two fighting cocks which play a part in David's struggle for love and undertanding.

The other supporting roles in the drama will be filled by members of Orchesis and all the members will have some part in this recital.

"The Mocking Bird" is the dance club's second attempt at dance drama. The group successfully presented "The Plum Tree" three years ago.

Heroic Heroines Have Hectic Hike

by Dot Armstrong and Phoebe Warner

We, bein gnew to the thriving little community of Farm—ville, began strolling slowly down that stretch of territory known to inhabitants of this wilderness as Main Street or "the street."

Halting at the College Saloon, we saunter in upon a motley crew of tender Longwood chicks and rough "Ham'n Kidneys." As we make our way through the many sleezy characters, we find an empty table. This table is situated below a sign which states "Wanted — Duke Hampden — slaughtered five men for saying the words Randolph Macon (men's college, that is). Warning, be on the lookout. This man is dangerously well armed. (If you know what we mean.") But wait—that looks like he in the far corner chug-a-lugging a "Green River" with his favorite tomato, Belle Longwood.

As the broken down juke box blares forth "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead, You Rascal You" the entire shebang reaches a peak of merriment. Then suddenly Slim Sydney and his Willis Mountain Boys invade the dim atmosphere and stalk toward the table occupied by the Duke—Will they have it out? Will good triumph over evil? We couldn't care less!

With a bored yawn we leave the scene of turmoil and strike out for the moving picture palace across the street, known as the "Fabulous Flea." However, as we start across Main Street noticing vaguely a silly looking sign which reads in green letters "Wait," we become aware of a rival establishment known to the uppercrust of the town as the "Superb State."

A babble of sounds issues forth from the theatres and mingles in the middle of the street. While dodging hot-rods, we meditate upon whether it would be best to go slumming to the Hillbilly Jamboree or to suffer through the soap opera. Finally deciding that the sobs and screams of the tormented heroine sound far more interesting than the whines of Sunshine Sadie and her Highland Hoedown, we accordingly jump out of the line of fire into the dim atmosphere of the movie.

As we stumble to our seats we give a great sigh of relief to be out of the wild life and traffic of roaring, raring Farmville.

Dr. Simonini Speaks At Florida Meeting

Dr. R. C. Simonini, head of the Longwood College English department, gave an experimental lecture on poetry last week end at the meeting of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association held at the University of Miami, Florida, November 27-29.

Speaking on "The Auditory Power of the Divine Comedy." Dr. Simonini sought to prove to his audience that great poetry in a foreign langauge can make an impression on English listeners even before it is understood.

Six Longwood Journalists To Journey to Blacksburg For 1952 VIPA Convention

Longwood College will be represented at the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association this week end by six of its publication staff members.

Journeying to Virginia Tech for this convention will be Betty Collier and Janet Wiggins, editors of the Colonnade and Rotunda. Anne Keith Hunley, editor of the Virginian, along with staff members Lou Kitts, Mary Ann King, and Fifi Carter will be representing the annual.

Awarding of citations to the top three entries in newspaper, magazine, and yearbook competition will highlight the meet which gets underway with registration Friday afternoon. Other trophies to be bestowed at the convention banquet Saturday night include an award for excellence in newswriting, a magazine trophy for outstanding art work and photography, and a trophy for excellence in yearbook design.

Judging at the University of North Carolina School of Journalism will replace the former practice of ratings by judges near the host school, Cadet Jack Deaton, of VPI, convention chairman, has announced.

Professor Duke Baird, faculty member of the Virginia Tech Publications Board, will be the after-dinner speaker Friday night. A dance for convention delegates will follow. Saturday morning the students will exchange ideas on editorial and business problems at critique sessions led by professional newspapermen and publishers throughout Virginia.

Exact cost of this convention is not definitely settled but it is expected to be less than fifteen dollars. Staff members of the various college publications are still eligible to attend, provided they can meet this expense themselves.

LC Representatives Attend College Days At Va. High Schools

In connection with the faculty program for visiting various high schools in Virginia, College Days are being attended by different members of the administration during November and December.

In the latter part of November, Mrs. Mary Watkins, executive secretary of the college, attended College Day at Jefferson High School in Roanoke and William Byrd in Vinton; Dr. Robert Brumfield, associate professor of biology, attended Hopewell College night November 25; and Dr. George Jeffers, professor of biology, traveled to Warren County for College Day at Front Royal, November 26.

Mrs. Meade Shackleford, college publicity director, visited Fairfax and Arlington, and will attend Frederic and Park County College Days this Friday. Miss Virginia Wall, assistant registrar, will represent Longwood at Orange County next week, on December 11.

Each year faculty and administration members visit high schools all over the state in an effort to interest high school students in attending Longwood.

Regional Club Chooses Thaxton As Pres. of Group

A new sectional club, consisting of Mecklenburg, Halifax, and Nuilenburg counties, has been recently organized, according to an announcement made by Miss Nancy Chambers, its sponsor.

Anne Thaxton, a sophomore from Halifax, has been elected by the group to serve as president. Other officers are Jackie Palmer from Halifax, vice-president; Patricia Cantrell from Mecklenburg, secretary - treasurer; and Marilyn Thompson from Mecklenburg, publicity manager.

The purpose of the club is to give the members an opportunity to become acquainted with the students from their home counties and to influence high school seniors to attend Longwood College.

This group's application for recognition as a campus organization has been approved by Student Standards.

Hobbs Names Soph. Show Group Heads

Jeanne Lynch Hobbs, chairman of Sophomore Production has announced the heads of the various committees for the show which is to be presented January 16 in Jarman Auditorium.

Working on the set and backdrops will be Patsy Waite, Ann Wendenburg and Libby Forrest; costumes, Lou Seibel, Dainese Johnson and Dot Armstrong; make up, Nell Cake, Patsy Waite and Betty Bentley and dances, Nancy Jane Jones and Nancy Tanley.

Also named are publicity, Audrey Morse, Marlene Lucas and Shirley Ward; music, Karen Spencer; program and tickets, Betty Jane Stanles and Donnie Devine; lights, Tom Moore; props, Bobbie Assaid; business manager, Joyce Jenkins and prompter Nancy Taylor.

The script for the production has been completed by Dot Douglas, Phoebe Wanner and Martha Donaldson but the theme will not be revealed until a later date.

Tryouts for the various parts are being held this week.

Jeanne Lynch stated that she hopes that most of the work on the production will be completed before Christmas vacation begins. According to Jeanne, "Sophomore Production will be one of the most unusual feats ever to be attempted in Jarman Hall."

Dr. Earley's Drama Class To Present Assembly Program of One-Act Plays

By Patricia Cantrell

Three one-act plays will be presented in assembly December 19, by Dr. C. L. S. Earley's Play Production class.

The first play to be given is, "The Blue Tie" by Beulah Jackson Chormley. It is a tragedy based on the theme of a wandering son who returns to his home. Mrs. Knapp, the mother, will be portrayed by Marjorie Harris. Norma Jean Croft will be seen in the role of Dora Knapp, her daughter, and Mrs. Johnson, a neighbor will be played by Beth Kent.

The second play will be "The Boon", by Chekov. Centered around the theme of two Russians who fall in love, this skit is a comedy. The character, Greek Stephononick, will be portrayed by Elwood Rice. Helena will be played by Nancy Tanley and, Lukan, by James Parker.

A tragedy by Tennessee Williams will be presented last. "At Liberty" is a pathetic story based on the actions of a consumptive girl, Gloria La Greene. This role will be interpreted by Florence Blake and her mother, Mrs. Green, by Ellen Porter.

THEY SATISFY—AND HOW!

"I always smoked Chesterfields in college just like my friends" says New York secretary, Elizabeth Lydon, "and here in New York it seems like almost everyone smokes them."

Elizabeth Lydon DUKE '51

AND NOW—CHESTERFIELD FIRST TO GIVE YOU SCIENTIFIC FACTS IN SUPPORT OF SMOKING

A responsible consulting organization reports a study by a competent medical specialist and staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfields. For six months a group of men and women smoked only Chesterfield—10 to 40 a day—their normal amount. 45 percent of the group have smoked Chesterfields from one to thirty years for an average of ten years each.

At the beginning and end of the six-months, each smoker was given a thorough examination including X-rays, and covering the sinuses, nose, ears and throat. After these examinations, the medical specialist stated . . .

"It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."

Steck Reveals Project Of Student Standards As Campus Fund Drive

Chest To Replace Separate Drives

An organized college community chest drive was recently selected by the Student Standards committee as the group's main goal for the 1952-53 session.

This drive will be an all inclusive effort to raise money for the various college - sponsored funds such as Red Cross, March of Dimes, I. C. U., and W. S. S. F. In the past the college has had separate drives for each of the charitable organizations. The present plan will concentrate the many drives into one all-out effort. The money raised will be divided equally among all the participating funds.

Joanne Steck, president of Student Standards, also announced that of the school problems discussed, many solutions have already been reached.

Lights will soon be installed at the back steps of junior building and the library. As the result of many student's pleas, the committee is working on a plan to keep the library open on the Sunday preceeding exam week.

As a service to the student body, the daily menu of all dining hall meals will be posted on a bulletin board in the main hall.

Meetings to be held in the school building which do not deal with school activities will now be listed in a schedule book to be kept in the home office.

Student Standards, which acts as the clearing house for problems between the student body and the faculty and administration, is composed of class representatives and the heads of leading campus organizations.

A standing activitiy of the committee is to check on the number of offices a student is holding and to see that organization heads keep a C average or and academic average required of her according to her class.

A suggestion box has been placed by the main bulletin board and all suggestions, criticisms, and problems concerning the school's physical and academic plant will be welcomed.

Future Teachers Bid 25 Education Majors

Twenty-five students were initiated into the Future Teachers of America last Friday, according to an announcement by Nancy Lawrence, president of the organization. Those honored were Helen Barrow, Betty Hoffman, Lillian Shelton, Nancy Crymes, Anne Lumsden, Jeanne Mercer, and Anne Murphy.

Also Marguerite Smith, Joyce Cheatham, Nell B. Green, Anne Conley, Eugenia Korahaes, Joyce Richardson, and Mary Evelyn Bennett were initiated into the group. Margaret Stables, Sophie Urso, Gwendolyn Bain, Lou Jamison, Lee Wingfield, Margaret Steele Sutphin, Virginia Hansel, Lola Frances Lang, Clara Borum, and Betty Tyler also received the recognition.

Those students in teacher education recommended by the heads of the various departments are eligible for membership.

VIPA Elects King Officer At Fall Meet

Mary Anne King, junior from Rescue, was elected secretary-treasurer of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association at the annual convention held on the week end of December 5 at V. P. I.

Longwood was also honored by the judges' award of third place to the 1952 Virginian in the yearbook competition. The Virginian tied with Bridgewater in this decision.

William and Mary was awarded first place in the group while V. P. I. ranked second.

Randolph-Macon won both first place in the judging of magazines and the trophy for excellence in art work and photography. Virginia Tech won second place while V. M. I. placed third.

In the newspaper competition William and Mary received first place; University of Richmond, second; and Stratford College, third.

Henry Hulme of V. M. I. was chosen president of the 1953 convention. Completing the slate, Margaret Dowdey of Lynchburg College was appointed to the newly-created post of publicity director and William H. Rawles, VPI, was elected vice-president.

Nancy Baumgardner of Westhampton College was named to the executive committee and Sally Flournoy, Randolph-Macon, was appointed convention secretary.

Delegates selected Randolph-Macon Woman's College as the site for the VIPA convention next year.

Rotunda Apprentices Finish Tryout Period On Business Staffs

Several students have successfully completed the two-month tryout period as Rotunda business staff apprentices. Their names will be added to the masthead this week.

Barbara Powell has been selected to replace Lucy Thwins who resigned as circulation manager. Barbara will take over her new job with this issue. Other additions to the circulation staff are Muriel Boswell, Nancy Saunders, and Nancy Hartman. Betsy Welbon has been named to the advertising staff.

Writers who have been added to the news staff in addition to those announced in the last issue of the Rotunda, are Martha Donaldson, Betty Barr and Jackie Lackey.

Holiday Dates Set

Christmas holidays will begin Dec. 19 and classes will be resumed on Jan. 5, according to Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president of the college.

Exams have been scheduled to begin Jan. 26 and to end Jan. 30.

Season's Greetings

To the Students of Longwood:

May I extend to each and everyone of you my sincere good wishes for a happy Christmas season. We shall miss you all and wish for you a safe return on January 5th and a New Year filled with fine accomplishments and enduring satisfaction.

Sincerely,
Dabney S. Lancaster, President

Greetings from the Home Department Staff:

In your homes this year on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, in the midst of the festivities, there is one thought that I hope you will keep in mind: that this is the one time in each year when over all Christendom there is a feeling of brotherhood and a hope for peace. When you return from the holidays it will be 1953, a new year we are all looking forward to with hope mingled with some apprehension. It will be a year of great decisions, to be made under a new administration. We hope that a new outlook may bring a solution to some of the great world problems facing us. In our small college world we shall have our decisions to make. May we make them wisely is my New Year wish. My Christmas wish for you: for the past, happy memories; for the present, good fortune; for the future, peace on earth.

Sincerely,
Ruth Gleaves—Dean of Women

Art Dept. to Give New Type Exhibit

This year the art department is initiating a new plan for exhibiting student art works according to an announcement by Miss Virginia Bedford, head of the college art department.

The plan is to have the students of the oils class exhibit their best works in the rotunda. The wall by Mr. Graham's office has been chosen as the spot for the featured works to be hung. The paintings will be changed frequently to give each member of the class an opportunity to exhibit her work. At the end of the semester, there will be an exhibition of all the featured paintings in the library.

Florence Blake, Nell Bradshaw Green, Molly Hersman, Lou Jamison, and Margaret Steele Sutphin are the students taking the oils class this semester.

The art department is also exhibiting freshman art work in the freshman dating parlor. These pictures will be changed each semester.

Miss Bedford stated that the art department would like to stress the fact that few of these paintings were done by art majors. The classes from which the works on display were taken are open to all students and require no prerequisites for enrollment.

Registration Begins Jan. 24

Registration for second semester classes will be held on January 14 from 1 to 5:30 p. m. in the library, according to an announcement by Mrs. Mary W. Watkins, Executive Secretary of the College.

All students, particularly freshmen, are urged to consult their college catalogue to become familiar with the courses they will be taking the next semester. Any girl planning to change her major should check with the catalogue in regard to new courses to avoid any conflict.

If a student desires or needs to see her advisor or major professor in regard to schedules for the second semester, she should see him sometime during the week of January 14. Specific information concerning the time and method of registration will be announced.

LC Prof To Lecture

The topic of teacher education in English will be discursed by Dr. R. C. Simonini, head of the English department, at the annual dinner meeting of the College English Association in Boston, December 28.

Speaking also on this general topic will be English professors from Harvard, Chicago, Michigan, and Kenyon College.

Comm. Makes First Report Of Visitation

"I never met with a finer group of girls. Their attitudes were professional and their suggestions constructive." This was the opinion expressed by Dr. Florence Stratemeyer, professor of education at Columbia University, after her three-day examination of life at Longwood.

The unofficial impressions of the visitation committee from the American Association of Colleges of Teacher Education were on the whole favorable. After examining all phases of this educational institution, the committee of three called a meeting of the faculty to present their preliminary report.

Dr. Stratemeyer, as head of the committee, presented the group's impressions. According to Dr. Lancaster, president of the College, she was surprisingly complimentary. She stated that in her opinion the faculty had underestimated itself in the self-evaluation drawn up before the committee's arrival. The committee did have several suggestions to make. They felt that student teaching should be on a full-time basis without other classes to interfere and they thought that underclassmen should have more contact with the elementary and high schools. These suggestions will be brought out more fully in the committee's official report.

Dr. Lancaster has stated that this official, written report will arrive sometime after the holidays. He added that the administration will make a careful study of the committee's report in an effort to follow the suggestions.

A summary of the report will be printed in the next issue of the Rotunda.

Class Chooses Duke To Head Commission During Coming Year

Margaret Duke of Richmond is the newly elected Chairman of Freshman Commission, chosen by the members of the group to head their work during this year. She and the commission have already begun their activities by participating in the college Christmas festivities.

Margaret attended Thomas Jefferson High School, where during her senior year, she was recipient of the DAR Good Citizen award. Active in many school activities, she was secretary of the senior class and served on the newspaper staff, holding the position of news editor.

Already getting into the swing of things, the Commission was in charge of the carol singing and Hanging of the Green at last night's Christmas banquet. The banquet menus and favors were also made by the Commission and other members of the freshman class.

At the Senior Dance, members of the Commission sponsored a concession stand, selling cokes and nabs during the intermission. Further plans for the year are only tentative.

Music, Tableaux Tell of Nativity

Betty Abbitt, a senior from Madison Heights, portrayed the Madonna in the annual YWCA Christmas pageant held Tuesday night in Jarman Hall. Following the tradition established last year, the Madonna was chosen by vote of the student body.

The pageant presented the story of the Nativity with Christmas music and tableaux. The pantomines were presented as shadow pictures against soft, muted lights. Used as background for the pageant was Fred Waring's "Songs of Christmas". The Waring Pennsylvanians provided the music while the Christmas story was narrated by Don Craig. Six scenes were shown against the continuous musical background.

The first tableau presented the annunciation scene with the Madonna and the angel Gabriel played by Donna Kunkler. In the next scene, Jan Van Horn as Joseph, and the Madonna were seen on the journey to Bethlehem. The third pantomine showed Loretta Brooking as the angel appearing before the shepherds who were portrayed by Patsy Abernathy, Malin Johnson, Jane Hall, Shirley Roberts, and Ann Cress.

Jo Ann McLelland, Jean Jinnett, and Georgia Jackson were the wise men in the fourth scene. Two other angels played by Ann Thomas and Barbara Clarke completed the cast of the pageant.

The final scene was of the entire nativity group. During this scene, the presidents for all campus organizations brought their gifts for the White Christmas fund to the stage. White Christmas is the traditional offering raised by the students which helps bring Christmas to the underprivileged homes of Farmville. This year the drive raised a total of $194 for the cause.

Longwood Will Offer Journalism In Spring

Plans are now being formulated to open a new class in journalism during the spring semester. The class will be the only new course offered at Longwood next semester.

Mrs. Meade L. Shackleford, Longwood's public relations director, will serve as instructor of the class. Principles of journalism, story and feature writing, and newspaper techniques and criticisms will be included in the course. It will be open to any student who is interested in the field of newspaper and journalism work and wishes to be in the class. Mrs. Shackleford has announced that on Thursday, January 8, at 1 p. m. there will be a meeting called for all those who may be interested in registering in the new class to discuss plans for it.

As yet, the scheduling committee has not definitely set the time the class will be offered.

A Child Is Born

"For unto us a child is born,
For unto us a son is given."

And this Child's birthday, more than 1,900 years ago, is called, by all those who know it, Christmas. It is celebrated with joy, and happy festivities and traditions that have been passed down through all of these past centuries.

In our modern day it has become a season of a thousand things to do, with glaring advertisements of "just 10 more days 'till Christmas" ever present to remind us of the rush. It is a whirl of gay parties and Christmas shopping, anticipation and excitement. It should be a time of happiness and laughter and a cheery "Merry Christmas" called to friends.

More than these things, however, this season brings to us the joy of remembering others and forgetting the petty grievances of the past year. It is a time for giving gifts, for then we have not forgotten that He was a gift from God.

Christmas bells and songs of fun and hymns of worship should echo in our land because:

"Suddenly there was a multitude of the heavenly host praising God . . . "

He is called Prince of Peace. But many are they who in these troubled times mock the very word peace because the world is restless and man struggles against man. Yet there is the undeniable evidence of real peace in the lives of those individuals, throughout history and our present world, who know this man named Jesus.

We celebrate Christmas for only a few weeks each year and although they are short days crowded with countless activities, in the hearts of men they can become endless years. Three wise kings worshiped many years ago when they found the new-born Child. In the commemoration of the life of Him who was born on Christmas, the world in worship can renew its joy, its desire to give, its love, its peace and its faith.

Caution Means Life

The screech of brakes, the crash of fenders, the grinding crunch of a shattered windshield, the heart-rending screams of someone in pain—all these are sounds that any driver hopes he will never experience. And, yet, motorists continue to go their merry way—breaking speed laws, taking dangerous chances, failing to think of what the consequences may be.

Longwood College will be "evacuated" in just a few more days for the Christmas holidays. Carloads of excited, happy girls will stream forth from Farmville down the various highways that lead to their destinations. In the cars there will be singing and laughter and an air of anticipation. Eagerness to get home will cause many drivers to go just a little faster than they know is wise and to take foolish chances to pass vehicles in their way. Few, if any, will have a thought in their head about so unpleasant a subject as traffic accidents. Statistics, however, show that the gay holiday season is just the time when drivers should think more than ever of safety precautions. Traffic is heavier and motorists more careless. Thus, casualties are higher.

If each Longwood girl will only stop to think of the serious threat of reckless driving before she starts home, perhaps she will drive more carefully. If she is not the driver, she can prevail upon the person at the wheel to think more of the lives in his hands than of a few minutes more at home.

We do not feel that we are being melodramatic when we say, "It is better to arrive home late but safe than never to get there at all."

Room For Improvement

During the first three days of last week, Longwood students donned their very best manners to be hostesses to a group of evaluators who visited our campus. The purpose of this evaluation, as understood by the majority of the college students, was to present to these visitors as true a picture of the college as is possible to do in a short time; they, in return, would make suggestions for improvement.

Such a purpose cannot be questioned by any student who sincerely desires to obtain the best possible education while attending this institution. Nevertheless, some students have been heard to complain that too many preparations were made to allow the evaluators to get a true picture of the college. To such statements only one reply can be made, and that in the form of a question: How many families, when expecting some special company to arrive, fail to give the house a thorough cleaning, prepare special food, and display their very best manners as hosts and hostesses?

Those Longwood students who are truly proud of their Alma Mater wish at this time to thank the college administration and all others who were responsible for making the evaluation a successful activity. They wish also to say that they truly appreciate the interest shown in THEM by bringing the educators here, for they realize that any improvement that is made in any phase of Longwood college life is a definite improvement in their educational opportunities.

Bravo, Cossacks

Every Longwood student looks forward to the Artist Series programs that are planned for her entertainment. However, seldom have programs been presented that have met with the overwhelming approval of every atendant to such an extent as did the Don Cossack Chorus last Tuesday night.

A few weeks ago an editorial was written in this paper concerning the fact that so few people had attended the previous programs. It was hoped that those who read the editorial would realize that the programs are planned for the entertainment of the college students and that as a result they would take more interest in the programs. The Don Cossack Chorus, attended by almost the entire student body, proved to be the committee's best choice thus far. Beautiful sacred music, patriotic songs, and miscellaneous melodies of humorous quality combined to form an evening of entertainment that is still being talked about.

The students wish to thank the committee which is responsible for bringing this group of entertainers to Longwood's campus.

Miss Take

by Barbara Caskey

So far this year, this column has torn apart just about every feature of a newspaper. How wonderful life will be when the new year comes in and it can turn over a new leaf. Still, the year would not be complete without a few well chosen words about the advertisements. Any resemblance to any actual product, living or dead, is purely coincidental.

FIDO'S FLEA SOAP for well groomed fleas. (Say this with a song in your heart.)

I'd walk a mile for a MOM'S PATENTED CORNPLASTER!

(Music) OXYDOL'S own, (pause) Jack the Ripper.

Are you troubled with unsightly holes in the skin and blemishes caused by dimples? Do your friends shy away from you because of this defect in your complexion? If so, go immediately to the emminant plastic surgeon, Dr. John Pock, alias "Jail" Byrd. Remember, a stitch in time will save you years of embarrassment.

"I didn't believe in myself, so I tried the LUCKIES test. I took an unopened pack and removed one cigarette. Carefully I tore the paper down the seam, removed it and took out the tobacco. I was quite overjoyed to see, just as I had been told, that the tobacco still formed a perfect cylinder, with no loose ends hanging out that would make the cigarette burn unevenly or clog the smoke. Then, much to my chagrin, I discovered that it was an OLD GOLD."

PEPSI COLA, in a pot,
Sixteen gallons, that's a lot,
Serve this Pepsi in a stew,
PEPSI COLA, Boo Hoo Hoo . . .

Use STABLEBERRY SADDLE SOAP for the skin you love to touch.

Are You In The Know?

Driving manners are so very important in this day and time. If you were driving down the street, the light was with you, and an old lady started to cross the street in front of you, would you . . .

1. honk your horn and scare her to death
2. run up on the curb to go around her
3. bump into her but be ready to offer the use of your car to take her to the hospital?

Of course everyone knows that you would just go on and hit her, but it would be a nice gesture to offer her a ride. However, on those 'certain days' in every month, be sure to make your monthly insurance payments to HIKERS INSURANCE COMPANY.

Do you want to make a good impression on the guests you have for dinner, breakfast and lunch? Do you want them to go away with a good report of your meals? Then serve OUR OWN DOBBIN'S HASH WITH SOURCROUT AND EGGPLANT ADDED. What peoples wouldn't want to have something special for their guests? What peoples wouldn't want to have something special for their guests? (Repeated so that even those who don't read every word will get the point.)

(To whom it may concern . . . I am a traitor.)

This column hopes to present the incentive that will make everyone get the Christmas spirit. The "get away from it all" spirit.

Open Letter

To the Student Body,

We want to thank the student body for the splendid support they gave to the Rotunda faculty-administration show, "It's in the Book." The newspaper made a profit of $67.20 from the show, and this large amount of money means a great deal to us. The Rotunda has a high publication cost to meet with every issue and the money appropriated by the state, plus that received by subscriptions and advertising is inadequate. We, therefore, must sponsor such projects in order to balance our books. Without the loyalty you show to the newspaper and its projects, you would not have this student publication. Therefore, it was most encouraging for us to see such a large number of students at our show, and we want you to know how much we appreciated your patronage.

Lest We Forget

Rotunda Responds to Tiger By Refuting HS Arguments

Recently, there appeared in the Hampden-Sydney Tiger an editorial written to point out the "gripes" Hampden-Sydney men have about dating Longwood women. The article created much talk at Longwood and we feel our neighbor college erred a few times in its denunciation of our regulations.

The week end parties in November seemed to be the chief topic of discussion. It was pointed out that Longwood dates could attend the frat parties only during intermission. Those of us who went understood that the dances were the chief attraction. We can't help but mention that the dance floor was crowded and there were only around thirty Longwood dates present. Therefore, it seems to us that the frat parties were not all-important. We were not the only ones who remained at the dance except during intermission.

Another point expressed in the article was that frat houses must have chaperones approved by Longwood. The opinion has been expressed that if Hampden-Sydney men could learn to properly manage their parties, chaperones from the elder set might not be necessary.

It seems, also, that Hampden-Sydney doesn't realize that other colleges have restrictions, too. Sweetbriar, Mary Washington, Westhampton, Hollins and Madison women must comply to regulations of their respective schools while in their vicinities. The reason for these rules is the responsibility that the administrations have while students are under their care. Longwood women have fewer restrictions than women of many other institutions.

And why should we ride to movies at the State and Lee theatres when they are only a block from here? It seems that we are thereby eliminating the parking prolem. (The editorial also stated that if you rush, you may have time to stop by the College Shoppe for a coke after the movies. Dates usually begin at 7:00, the movies are over at approximately 9:10, which leaves a "rush" of 50 minutes.)

We agree with the statement, "Neither of the schools is co-educational and there would be a definite advantage for both if better relations were established." However, we feel that the entire blame cannot be attributed to either school, but instead, the fault lies with both. We only hope relationships will improve.

Campus Cogitations

by Naomi Reed

Since everyone is so filled with the Christmas spirit, this week the question asked was, "What would you like most to find in your stocking on Christmas morning?"

Judy Cox "I'd like to find a written statement signed by all the faculty saying that I wouldn't have to student teach."

Frances Marker "Herbert Ames with a note saying 'I'm yours.'"

June Wilmoth "A ticket on the United States to France."

Nellie Culpepper "I'd like a paper from Longwood College saying I had received a B. S. degree in Elementary Education."

Sue McNeil "A grand piano and a black Persian kitten."

Betty Oakes "I'd like to find my brother who is in Korea in my stocking Christmas morning."

Betty Myers "I want a firecracker to put under the man I've got."

Jean Anderson "Burt Lancaster."

Ester Acosta "A ticket on a plane to go home."

Katherine Miller "A certain fellain fellow from M.C.V."

Nancy Birdsall "A diploma from Longwood College."

Lorene Allen "An Oldsmobile convertible wouldn't be too bad."

Jo Debnam "I'd like to find all A's."

Joyce Wall "A diamond ring."

Nancy Hartmann "A baby blue cashmere sweater."

Nancy Saunders "A fountain pen to write my exams when I get back."

Elizabeth Sutherland "A certain guy from Emory University."

Shirley Wilkinson "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

JoAnn Steck "Gold-plated ash trays for the green Cadillac convertible Jim's giving me."

Ann Thomas "Many, many, many people who are just dying to spend Monday and Tuesday nights, every other week, working on the Rotunda!"

Green Announces Basketball Players Of Longwood Team for Coming Year; Also Gives Year's Tentative Schedule

Manager Names 22 For Varsity Squad

The 1953 varsity basketball team was announced yesterday by Nell Green, varsity manager. Twenty-two girls were named to the team including six freshmen, seven sophomores, four juniors and four seniors.

On the team are Dot Baldwin, Clara Borum, Eleanor Koch, Mary Ann Ward, Virginia Burgess, Dale Brothers, Sue Webb, Else Wente, Nell Crocker, Mary Lou Barlow, Roberta Wiatt, Betty Tyler, Dot Edwards, Nell Bradshaw Green, Patsy Hamner, Hilda Hartis, Shirl Roberts, Eleanor Long, Patsy Sandford, Ann Snyder, Mary Jane Lohr, and Doris Harcum were also named.

After the holidays the team will begin intensive practices for the opening of their season schedule.

Nell Bradshaw Green has announced a tentative schedule for this year's games. On February 6 a game will be played with Roanoke College in Roanoke. On the 13th the team will travel to Williamsburg to meet William and Mary.

February 21 the team will meet Westhampton, and on the 27 it will play Bridgewater College here. The schedule will continue in March with a game against Madison on the 6th. On March 24 William and Mary, Norfolk Division will be played by the freshman and sophomore members of the team.

Plans are now under way for the Longwood College team to play Panzer College in New Jersey sometime in March.

Students are reminded that this list of games is subject to change.

Managers Announce Volleyball Practices

Caroline McDonald and Jean Baber, class volleyball managers, have announced that volleyball practices are being held every Tuesday and Thursday at 2:00 p. m. and on Wednesdays at 4:00 p. m.

Basketball practices are being held on Monday and Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. and on Tuesday and Thursday at 4:00 p. m. All students interested in playing on their teams are urged to complete their eight practices in order that they may compete in class games.

Social News

With thoughts of Christmas now foremost in our minds, events of the past week-end and Senior Dance are to most of us becoming memories, but to some of the more fortunate, it will long be remembered. Mary Helen Cook, honorary classman and leader of the figure, stole the limelight as she received a diamond from Bill Blair.

Engaged:

Margaret Taylor received a diamond from Joe Barlow of Smithfield.

Margie Harris is engaged to Jack Massey from Fairfax.

Pinned:

Chalice Hayden to Bill Parsons, VPI.

Jemima Cobb to Howard Glenn, Wake Forest.

In spite of all the "goings-on" here at Longwood, a few people found time to go visiting.

Davidson:

Among the few who have journeyed to Davidson in the past two week-ends are Nat Lancaster, Betty Maas, and B. Beth Cheatham, who attended the Phi Gamma Delta party and Mary Ann King, the Beta Party.

Virginia Tech:

Five of our girls went to Tech last week-end to attend the VIPA Convention: Ann Keith Hundley, Lou Kitts, Mary Ann King, Carolyn Stanley, and Ann Carter Wendenburg.

Virginia:

Those attending Christmas parties at Virginia this week-end were Pattie Poffenberger, the SAE Party, and Diana Burgess, the Sigma Nu Party.

Flip Blake journeyed all the way up to Princeton and New York City for a few parties this past week-end.

University of North Carolina:

Gail Dixon traveled down to the University of North Carolina for a week-end of partying.

Hockey Season Over; Seniors, Juniors Tie

Hockey games were completed last week with the seniors and juniors battling to a 0-0 deadlock and the sophomores beating the freshmen 1-0. The games were played after a series of postponements, and the results netted the winners 15 color cup points.

Points for the color cup now total 20 for Green and White, and nothing for Red and White. The Green and Whites earned their points in tennis and hockey.

Hood To Fill Leading Role In '53 Recital

Peggy Hood, junior from Newport News, has been cast as David, the leading role in the dance-drama to be presented by Orchesis in February. The rest of the cast for "The Mocking Bird" has also been announced by Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, advisor of the modern dance club.

Peggy was chosen as a result of tryouts that began the first of December. As David she will play the part of a seven year old boy who is confused by a series of disruptive experiences.

Aiding Peggy in her interpretation of the bewildered little boy will be Nancy Tanley and Ann Murphy who portray Drusilla, David's fifteen year old sister. David's governess, Miz Anne, will be danced by Jackie Sell.

David's father, a quiet unobstrusive man, will be played by Ann Crowder and the spirit of David's deceased mother by Nan Bland.

Helen Waitman is to dance the part of a sea captain who influences David's life. Loosh and Vinnie, a colored man and woman who give David some of the affection he craves, will be portrayed by Mary Hurt Peery and Ilia DesPortes.

Two fighting roosters who play a part in David's struggle for love and understanding will be portrayed by Marian Parrish and Bobbie Blackman. Mary Elva Robinson will dance the little boy who fights with David.

Other members of Orchesis will take part in two or three group numbers being planned.

Emma Cures Your Shopping Woes

by Martha Donaldson

Well, I can't remember when I've seen girls who look more browbeaten than you do. Christmas rush gotcha? Feet sore? Headaching? Back tired? Eyes strained? Elbows bruised? If so, why not just forget your shopping for a while.

We don't mean forget it entirely, but why not let some one else lend you a hand—yes, this is Emma, your intimate shopper, speaking to you from "Sacks and Company" on Main Street in Farmville and giving suggestions for those packages of joy which you have been smuggling in for the past few weeks.

Now to get down to business. Who is first on your list? Why of course, it's that loveable 'roomie" of yours and "Sacks" has something that he—oops, pardon me (I broadcast to Death Valley you know she will love. Straight from Paris and the House of Dior comes the gayest little number of them all — a black canvas straight jacket with a built in sag. If she isn't too fashion wise and you don't think she would like the jacket, we can turn to perfume. Perfume is something every girl will adore and "Sacks" has something very special called "Three Nights in the Gutter" or "I Shoulda Stood Home."

That boy friend of yours certainly deserves a nice gift and "Sacks" men's department is just loaded with gifts that your O.A.O. will adore. Popular among college men this year are the knee length cashmeres with the built-in hanging out shirt tails. This is a new idea to cut down on all the work of stretching.

Or if you were going to knit him argyles and just couldn't find the time "Sacks" has solved your problem. Get one of our argyle sets. Each set is equipped with a pair of white socks, brushes, and plenty of paint for the diamonds. He'll never guess and they will look simply fetching, unless of coures it happens to rain.

We also provide gift certificates for him. Why not be a little selfish and give him a gift certificate for a haircut in our men's "Saloon."

For younger brother and sister "Sacks" carries a fine array of gifts. For little brother there's a real ten - ton tractor to play around with at home or a chemistry set with a real atom splitter and H-bomb. He'll enjoy using these for practical jokes on his little playmates.

Little Sis will love a Dagmar Doll with real skin, real hair, real eyes and real Victorian neckline. What's more she can say "Hello Mommie" in 20 languages.

A Marilyn Monroe tie for Dad and an album of famous love scenes by Rudolph Valentino for Mom finishes out our little tour of "Sacks."

Back on your feet again, chin up, eyes forward—let's go. And any gift problems, drop by and remember if you get stuck, see me on the 48th floor of "Sacks" right on Main Street in downtown Farmville.

This is Emma, your intimate shopper, wishing you a merry Christmas and happy hunting.

Juniors to Take Test

The junior English test (see page 89 of the college catalogue) will be given Thursday, Jan. 8, form 7 to 9 p. m. in rooms 29, 30, 31 and 32 of the west wing of Ruffner Hall.

Dr. Lancaster Attends Meet Of Virginia School Officials; Reviews Teacher Shortage

On Saturday, December 13, Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president of the College, journeyed to Richmond to attend a special meeting of high school and elementary principals and superintendents of schools.

The committee met with Dr. Lancaster and President G. Tyler Miller of Madison College to discuss ways and means of securing teachers. The meeting was necessitated by increasing school enrollments plus the shortage of qualified teachers.

Statistics presented at the meeting showed that by 1960, conservatively speaking, there will be an increase of almost 50% in school enrollments. Furthermore, the supply of teachers is not increasing accordingly. Out of the 21,000 teachers in Virginia, three or four thousand are not qualified for regular teachers' certificates.

Programs to alleviate the situation were discussed. Plans are being made to organize Future Teachers of America clubs in high schools throughout Virginia. Qualified teachers who are not teaching at present will be encouraged to return to the school system.

Collier Asks Writers To Re-enter Contest

Betty Collier, editor of The Colonnade, has reminded the student body that the annual short story and essay contest which was reopened on December 1, will be concluded on January 15, ten days after the Christmas holidays are over.

Awards for the winning entries were increased, so that the first, second, and third prize winners will receive seven dollars, five dollars,and three dollars respectively.

These entries should be turned in to Betty Collier, Barbara White, or Helen Tanner.

YWCA Will Sponsor Community Caroling On Thursday Evening

The YWCA will sponsor its annual Christmas caroling on Thursday, December 18, after prayers. The itinerary will include the hospital and homes in town. Anyone who cares to go is invited to join the group.

On Wednesday, December 17, Dr. Marvin Schlegel, professor of history, will lead prayers by reading the story, "The Other Wise Man." It has become a custom for this story to be read during the Christmas season every year.

Class competition in presenting Sing skits after Saturday night supers will be held during January. Nancy Nelson is in charge of this contest and she will contact the class presidents about participation in the yearly event. A $5.00 prize will be awarded to the best skit.

In this contest each of the different classes will present an original skit telling about some phase of college life or some event influencing the lives of the students. Judges are a special faculty committee selected by the YWCA, and the winner will be announced following the final skit. Last year's winner was the Senior Class. Their skit depicted the experiences of a student teacher.

LC Alumnae Plan For Busy Holidays

by Marie Swecker

During the Christmas holidays, Longwood Alumnae groups plan to be very active. The Washington, Norfolk, and Richmond chapters will entertain Longwood girls home for the holidays and also prospective students of Longwood.

The Richmond Alumnae Chapter, in cooperation with the Richmond Club here at school, is sponsoring a tea at Miller and Rhodes. The tea is being planned to entertain local girls interested in Longwood. This chapter has been especially active this year.

Other chapters which have been active are Lynchburg, Baltimore, and Farmville. Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster spoke at the recent luncheon meeting of the Lynchburg chapter, which was attended by Mrs. Lancaster, Mrs. Meade Shackleford and Mrs. Ruth H. Coyner, secretary of Longwood Alumnae Association.

Mrs. Lois Barber Patillo presided at a luncheon meeting of the Baltimore chapter on November 22. Mrs. Ruth H. Coyner was the guest speaker.

Mrs. Fannie Haskins Withers, president of the Farmville chapter, presided at their first fall meeting which was held in the small auditorium of the college. Dr. Lancaster spoke on "Some Future Plans for Longwood College." Tea was served in the Student Lounge following the meeting, and the new members of the Longwood faculty were the special guests.

Frosh Groups Sponsor Teas

Miss Gleaves' orientation class gave a tea from four to five on December 12. The tea honored high school seniors from Farmville and Cumberland.

Doris Kvasnicka was in charge of refreshments and Mary Lou Phillips and Nancy Hartman were in charge of decorations. Invitations were sent under the direction of Patricia Cantrell. Hazel Benn headed the reception committee and Calvert Owen planned the program.

Entertainment for this tea was provided by Mary Ellen Hawthorne who rendered piano selections during the tea and Judy Richie who sang "White Christmas." The group joined in an informal singing of Christmas carols.

The orientation class taught by Miss Chambers also gave a tea. Their's was held on December 13 for visiting high school students. Seniors from Richmond, Pulaski Kentsville high school were the honored guests.

Chairmen of the various committees were Betty Pat Rodgers, invitations; Nancy Hartmann, decorations; Margaret Franklin, refreshments; and Ann Poole, reception.

The program for this tea consisted of a violin solo by Betsy Welbon and a vocal solo by Nancy McLawhorne. Joyce Clingingpeel played various piano selections during the tea.

Another class will sponsor a tea on January 10 and 16. The teas will honor visiting high school students and faculty members.

Miss Patterson Plans Richmond Trip On January 17 for Horowitz Recital; Feb. Concerts Include Piano Quartet

On January 17 Miss Jesse Patterson, professor of music, will take a bus-load of Longwood girls to Richmond to hear a recital by Vlodimir Horowitz, famed concert pianist. The performance is to be given at the Mosque.

The concert program has not been announced to the public yet, but it will include a variety of classical selections.

Mr. Horowitz is recognized as one of the two finest pianists in the world today, ranking along with Arturo Rubinstein. Horowitz is the son-in-law of Arturo Toscanni.

Miss Patterson also plans to sponsor a trip to hear the First Piano Quartet. This group will give its first Richmond performance on January 30.

Miss Patterson has already taken a group to one Mosque concert this year. This performance was the New York Civic Opera Company presentation of "Carmen", which was given in October.

Tickets for these performances will go on sale the first week after Christmas holidays. The cost of the trip is $4.00. This includes transportation and a seat in the mezzanine.

The Boston Pops Orchestra, directed by Arthur Fiedler, is coming to Richmond February 11. Miss Patterson also has the tickets for this program. She will put them on sale February 1.

Miss Patterson sponsors four trips to Richmond a year. She tries to plan to take in a variety of programs that will appeal to different students. The number of seats available is limited. Anyone interested in going should have their money ready after Christmas.

College Executive Sec. Reveals Dates, Classes For '53 Summer School

Graduate Courses Will Be Offered

The 1953 summer session at Longwood will begin June 15 and end Aug. 9 ,according to an announcement by Mrs. Mary W. Watkins, executive secretary of the college. Four week, five week, and eight week classes will be included in the program.

In addition to regular classes three workshops will be held during the session. A dance workshop will be directed by Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of physical education, June 29-July 11. From June 29 to July 27 Mrs. Dorothy S. Watson, director of the Roanoke Public School libraries, will hold a workshop for school librarians. Dr. John P. Wynne, director of teacher education, will conduct a workshop for teachers.

Demonstration School

A demonstration school will be operated in connection with the summer session for a six week period beginning June 22. This school will be held in the Farmville elementary school.

Graduate courses as well as undergraduate classes will be offered during the session. The two graduate courses will be Advanced Educational Psychology and Special Problems of Classroom Teachers. Graduate work was first offered at Longwood last year and is carried on as an extension program with the University of Virginia.

Regular session students who wish to accelerate their program, make up credits, or raise their average are urged to apply for admission to either the five week or eight week session.

Graduate School

Those who are graduating and wish to begin work on a Master of Education degree at the University of Virginia can complete six semester hours of graduate study toward this degree during the summer session.

Visiting members on the summer-school faculty will include Mr. M. H. Bittenger, Dean of Men at Hampden-Sydney College; Mrs. Mary P. Dupuy, a former member of the summer school staff, and Miss Eleanor Weddle, a teacher of physical education at Jefferson High School in Roanoke.

The catalog for the summer session is now at the printers. It should be ready for distribution some time in February. Anyone with questions about the summer session should see Mrs. Watkins.

Project Chairman Announces Start Of Landscaping

To Finish Work By Early Spring

The re-landscaping of the Longwood campus will be completed by early spring according to Dr. Robert Brumfield, professor of biology, who is in charge of the project.

During the week before the Christmas holidays the project got under way. Plans call for the planting of evergreen shrubbery around the three new buildings which were dedicated in 1951. Boxwood, holly trees, and flowering trees such as Dogwood will be used.

Watkin's Nurseries of Midlothian was chosen to do the landscaping because they were the company submitting the lowest bid.

President Dabney S. Lancaster said that the General Assembly has appropriated $30,000 to Longwood for equipment. $7,500 is for the landscaping project. Dr. Lancaster added that the college will also use some money from the fire insurance which was received when the old auditorium burned.

In connection with the project, last spring the alumnae of the Alpha Chapter of Kappa Delta Sorority planted boxwood around the memorial bench in front of the Colonnade. This memorial honors the founders of the sorority.

Also assisting in the project were the alumnae of the Alpha Chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha. They placed boxwood in the Joan of Arc Court after the completion of Tabb Hall.

Faculty Advisors To Assist In Drive

At a recent meeting of the Student Standards Committee, Miss Elizabeth Burger, Professor of Science, and Mr. Raymond French, Professor of Chemistry, were chosen to represent the college faculty in the coming campus chest drive.

As faculty representatives, Miss Burger and Mr. French will act in an advisory capacity to Student Standards and the YWCA in their joint attempt to combine all the campus philanthropic drives into one campus chest.

Also at this meeting, the Committee decided to return to the past practice of placing paper napkins in the dining room because of the many complaints of students who have had to eat at tables other than their own and do not wish to use soiled linen.

A book with the time and place of outside meetings not concerning the students will be placed in the Home Office. The purpose of this is to prevent the confusion of many outsiders when inquiring as to the time and place of meetings scheduled by persons unaffiliated with the college.

Student Standards will also place a suggestion box under the YWCA Bulletin Board for the use of any student who desires to suggest, criticize, or compliment any phase of college life.

Castros Announces House Council Rules For Exam Period

Beginning Sunday, January 18, freshmen and sophomores will be allowed to keep their lights on until 12:00 p. m. This added hour is to be used for study purposes only.

Unlimited lights for all classes will go into effect on Sunday, January 25. At 6:00 p. m. on Sunday 25, "silence" begins. From this time until Friday afternoon, January 30, quiet is to be maintained at all times.

One call down given at any time during this week will result in one week campus, effective on receipt of the call down.

Helen Castros, president of the House Council, has asked that all students remember that even if they do not have an exam on a certain day, there are others who will have them. She has urged that everyone remain quiet.

Pres. Reveals 1953 Seniors To Graduate Sun., May 31

Early Graduation Sets Precedent

This year the usual activities of commencement week-end will be condensed into two days according to an announcement by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, college president.

The graduation activities will begin Saturday, May 30 with the traditional senior class day exercises. During this program the class will and prophecy will be read. Immediately following the class day exercises the formation of the daisy chain will take place.

Saturday evening Dr. Lancaster will entertain the graduates at his annual senior reception. The lantern parade will also take place that evening.

On Sunday morning at 11 the Baccalaureate service will be held in Jarman Hall. Commencement exercises will be Sunday afternoon at 3:30. Baccalaureate and Commencement speakers will be announced at a later date.

In past years the graduation activities have extended over three days with commencement taking place Monday morning. The administration is instigating the condensed program this year for several reasons.

Dr. Lancaster stated that a shortened graduation week end will enable more parents and friends to be present and will cut down on the expense involved.

Senior Musicians Will Give Recital Sunday Afternoon

A student recital will be given Sunday, January 18, at 3:00 p. m. in Jarman Hall by Billie Dunlap Powell and Sarah McElroy Harvey as announced by Miss Emily Clark, piano instructor.

Billie has studied piano for fifteen years. While in high school she studied at the Rollins College Conservatory of Music. Upon graduation she attended Wesleyan Conservatory of Music before transferring to Longwood. Included in her program are "To Catherdrole engloutie and Minstrels" by Debussy, "The White Peacock" by Griffes, "Ballade in G minor" by Chopin and "The Lorelei" by Lisyt.

Sarah studied music for two years with Mrs. Helen Crawford of Richmond before entering Longwood.

Accompanied by Billie, she will sing: "Fiocca la Neve" by Cimara, "Mists" by Respighi, and "My Heart Ever Faithful" by Bach; "After a Dream" by Foure, "Were My Song With Wings Provided" by Hahn; Aria from the opera "Alda," "Return Victorias" by Verdi; and "By a Lovely Forest Pathway" by Griffes, "A Memory" by Ganz, and "A Very Ordinary Story" by Haydn.

Kile Announces Plans For K D Pi Banquet

Kappa Delta Pi, national honor sorority, will hold a banquet in the tea room tomorrow night at six o'clock, according to Sonia Kyle, president of the organization.

Dr. J. V. Cunningham, English professor at the University of Virginia, will speak on the subject of Modern Poetry.

Nomination Committee Selects Five Seniors As 'Personalities;' Students Will Vote Tomorrow

Stone Ends Year's Work For English Honors Course

By Ann Thomas

Fear and trepidition could well fill the heart of at least one senior tonight, as she faces an examination for which she has done a whole year's preparation. But Elizabeth Stone, in discussing this prospect, said, "I suppose that tomorrow after my honors course examination is over, I will feel relief more than any thing else. However, I really have enjoyed taking the course."

"Liz", as she is better known, is a senior from Rustburg. She has the distinction of being the first student to take an honors course at Longwood within the past several years. In talking more about the year's work, Liz said, " I really don't know how I became interested in taking the course. Last spring I couldn't work any other English into my schedule so I decided to "fill in" with the honors course. Now, I am considering going on into graduate work in this same field." Commenting on the research itself she noted how valuable it had been in connection with other classes.

During the past two semesters and the intervening summer Liz has taken the honors course in her major field of English. Such a course entails individual study, research, and creative writing on a topic relating to the students major field. The writing of a final paper and an oral examination are required for the completion of the course.

The topic undertaken by Liz was "Concepts of the Italian Rennaisance in Modern Fiction". Last spring she started research on the period of the Rennaisance, reading from standard histories of the period and from contemporary authors such as Machiavelli and Cellini. From her background work she went on to read twenty modern novels during the spring and summer. Her fall semester was spent in the writing of an 83 page thesis describing her research and discussing her conclusions concerning how modern novelists have been influenced by the ideals of the Italian Rennaisance.

Culminating this course is the oral examination which Liz will take tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The examining committee is composed of Dr. Cunningham, of the University of Virginia, Dr. Ghigo, of Hampden-Sydney, and Mr. Grainger formerly of Longwood. Dr. R. C. Simpartment, has served as Liz's adviser for the courses.

Although there are no formal classes, all honor work is under the supervision of a faculty committee. The course is open to students interested in some special field of study. They must have a "C" average and be approved by the faculty committee. Six hours of credit are offered for taking the course.

Srs. To Visit Our Campus

Senior girls from various high schools throughout Virginia will arrive at Longwood this Friday and Saturday to spend the week end.

The high schools that will be represented are Thomas Jefferson, Hampton, Oceana, Creeds, Radford, Hermitage, Waverly and Deep Creek. Others include Highland Springs, Chukatuk, Dispatanta, Churchland, Smithfield and Buchanan.

Plans are being made to entertain those girls who are considering entering the college next fall.

On Friday night, Dr. C. L. S. Earley's Play Production Class will present three one act plays as part of the entertainment for the visiting students. These are the same three plays that were recently presented at assembly. After this presentation a juke box dance will be held in the rec sponsored by Freshman Commission.

Saturday's activities include a tea, given by freshman orientation classes, and a tour of the campus and Longwood Estate. Tentative plans have been made to divide the tour in half, so that one group may go in the morning and one at 2 p. m., in the afternoon.

Finish Registration

Students who failed to complete their registration for next semester's classes in the time allotted today will do so Saturday morning, January 31, in Mrs. Watkins' office.

Art Students Plan "Rec" Hall Decor

Murals to replace those already in the rec are being designed by the beginning and intermediate drawing classes according to an announcement by Miss Virginia Bedford, head of the Art Department.

These murals are to represent various student activities. Included in the scenes being considered are Circus, the hanging of the greens, a dorm room and activities in the rec. The murals will be done in the colors chosen for the furnishings for the rec.

In connection with the project, the freshman art classes are creating designs to be painted directly on the shades in the rec windows. These designs are to symbolize the various sections of Virginia that Longwood students call home.

Library Will Remain Open on January 26

Doors of the library will be open on Sunday, January 25, from 2:00 p. m. to 5:00 p. m., for those wishing to study before exam week, according to an announcement by Dr. Beverly Ruffin, Head Librarian.

No books will be charged out or returned, but a reference librarian will be on duty for consultation.

This action answers many requests that students have made to the Student Standards Committee.

Winners' Identity To Remain Secret

Five seniors have been nominated by a committee of students and faculty members as candidates for Senior Personalities. Students will vote tomorrow for two of these candidates who will be featured in the 1953 Virginian.

Barbara Caskey, Betsy Hankins, Billie Dunlap Powell, Joanne Steck, and Betty Tyler are the girls chosen for candidates, according to an announcement by Ann Keith Hundley, editor of the annual.

Ann Keith stated that the candidates were chosen on the basis of four qualifications. The girl should have displayed originality, should have made a place for herself in the hearts of her classmates, should have shown herself ready to help her class, and should have not been previously recognized by Who's Who. Students are urged to consider these qualifications when they vote tomorrow.

Circus Chairman

Barbara Caskey was chosen by the nominating committee because of the originality she has displayed in such work as class productions and circus skits.

Betsy Hankins was selected for her ability and enjoyment shown in entertaining her fellow classmates, and for the spirit with which she enters into the college activities.

For her cooperation and pleasant manner in lending her musical talent for the betterment of school programs and activities, Billie Dunlap Powell has been nominated by the committee.

Joanne Steck was chosen for her display of friendliness to all, her outstanding school spirit in activities requiring leadership and her individually shown in class programs.

Athlete

For her leadership ability not only in athletics but in other phases of school activities, and for her willingness to contribute to class functions, Betty Tyler is a candidate for Senior Personalities.

Voting will take place at the table in the main hall by the faculty mailboxes. Mimeographed lists of nominees will be provided for voters. Freshmen votes, however, will only count one-half.

The identity of the Senior Personalities is kept a secret until the arrival of the annual.

Sophomores Postpone Annual Production To Indefinite Date

The annual Sophomore Production which was originally planned for this Friday night, has been postponed to a later date.

Jeanne Lynch Hobbs, head of Production, announced that a faculty scheduling committee has consented to the change and that the new date will be announced as soon as it is decided upon.

With extended time allowance, the sophomores believe that they can present a better, more polished show which will be enjoyable to all.

Another reason for the change is the fact that exams are two weeks away and the students need to give studies their undivided attention.

Company Is Coming

Longwood has extended an invitation, not one formally engraved with third person singulars, but sent by word and writing from both the administration and student body. Many of the recipients of this invitation will soon be here on the campus, for we have invited a number of high school senior girls from many parts of the state to visit our college on the week end of January 16.

During the past weeks, in accordance with previous practices, members of the faculty and administration have been speaking at various schools all over the state, acquainting girls with our college, its academic standards, its customs and traditions and all the other composite parts of Longwood life.

But seeing is better than telling, so the college has asked interested girls to come and get a first hand glimpse of Longwood.

And that means us. Almost everyone likes to entertain guests at a party, for a week-end, or at just a get-together. High school visitors on the campus offer us an opportunity to entertain guests and to be hostesses just as we would in one of these ways. We are proud of Longwood, we talk about the "famous Longwood friendliness"; then surely we want to interest these visitors in becoming part of our student body after graduation from high school. Every Longwood girl is, therefore, asked to be a committee of one to welcome our visitors, make them feel at home, show them around and tell them all about our college. Although there are many planned activities such as teas and tours for the girls, we are the best and most natural means of acquainting them with the college.

This week-end should not be the only visitors' week-end. The administration urges that members of the student body ask high school girls whom they would like to interest in the college to be their guests at any time. The college welcomes these girls and will provide rooms and meals for them. Ask in your home area and around your high school what girls are planning to go to college and write to these girls inviting them to come to Longwood. We are the college's best means of showing that we are interested in and proud of being students here. We want others to be so interested, and by cordially welcoming our visitors we can help accomplish this.

It's Personality

Tomorrow, Longwood students will elect two persons to be featured in this year's annual as outstanding members of the Senior Class. The students will make their selections from a group of five seniors who have been nominated by a committee which consisted of two faculty members and one representative from the Student Government Association and each of the college's publications.

This committee has tried to choose wisely and hopes that students will keep certain qualifications in mind when voting tomorrow. It is hoped that the seniors chosen will be girls who have been unacclaimed workers for the class and for the school. In order to achieve this aim, it has been decided that no senior who was named in Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities may receive the honor of being a featured senior.

There is little doubt that college students, when electing their roommates to cetrain honors, are prone often to select their best friends, roommates, or to do what the majority of others seem to be doing. However, in this selection, whose purpose is to honor seniors who have worked diligently for their class for four years, it is hoped that the girls chosen will reflect the purpose of the election. If a girl's best friend or her roommate is deserving of the title "Senior Personality," of course, a student should not hesitate to vote for her. These girls should reflect the personality of the Senior Class; that is the prime factor to consider in making your decision.

Let's Resolve

The beginning of a new year is traditionally the time to think of turning over a new leaf—of making a fresh start—of becoming a new and better person. Thus, it is natural that many Longwood girls have returned from the Christmas holidays with resolutions to buckle down to serious study.

In spite of good intentions, however, it is hard to return from two weeks of fun and freedom and settle down immediately. Students find it hard to adjust again to the routine of study and are tempted to sit and chat and relive the magical hours of the holidays.

The realistic student will awake to the fact that exams are a little less than two weeks away. This "bug-a-boo" of college days is enough to make almost anyone scurry for her books.

Actually two weeks before exams is a little late to do much about this semester's work. It is impossible to cram into such a short period of time work that has been neglected for a semester. It is not, however, too early to start thinking about next semester.

Today Longwood girls filled out new schedules and registered for next term's classes. With these new schedules in mind and with a new year before us, there could be no better time for all to make some resolutions for the new semester.

While still enthusiastic about new courses and while there is not a back-log of work to discourage us we can stop to think of improving ourselves.

Naturally, different people have varied faults which they need to do away with, but almost all of us could profitably resolve to take studies more seriously and to stop the practice of getting by with as little work as possible. Thus, let us make a "new semester's" resolution to this effect and let's have strong enough characters to live up to our resolution.

Miss Take

by Barbara Caskey

As you can see, this is a wonderful time to try and make some people hate me. Me, I'm urging that all of you hurry through your Christmas 'thank you' notes. Everybody uses form letters anyway and so, because I'm not financially able to distribute carbon paper, I would like to do my share by sharing with you a few choice morsels in the 'thank you' note line, all the time hoping that they will be a great help to you.

Dear Edna,
Thank you so much for the lovely hose. Really, $1.27 was too much to spend when all I got for you was that silly, real, pure, genuine diamond tiara. Oh, Edna, I almost forgot to tell you. We're moving to the Mojave Desert! Don't know when I'll be able to get in touch with you.
Sincerely,
Mary

Dear Cousin Joan,
Thank you so much for the money. I can always use money you know. I guess you do know. I do.
Let me tell you what I got for Christmas. Red hat and red pocketbook to match, $1.27 stockings, purple sweater, initial necklace, Skotch cooler, stick cologne, wallet with a dollar in it, three pair of false fingernails, and a box of candy. Also, jar of mints, and two Klenexes.
Love,
Mary

Dear Aunt Marie,
Thank you so much for the lovely present. I was so much impressed by the beautiful carving on the handle. Still, what really impressed me the most was the gracious, flowing lines of the whole piece. Whereas it was big enough to really be helpful, its daintiness was still preserved. You were so clever to think of it. I will always wonder how you knew that I have always wanted my own butter churn.
Love,
Maybe

Dear Santy Claus,
Thank you so much for the beautiful 'Splinter' and the Longwood glass and ashtray. I hadn't ever heard a word about their being on the market so I was naturally very much surprised.
Love and Kisses,
Janet.

Dear John,
Thanks.
Jim

Dere Marian—I like thank you for nice pocketbook hanger. I like aske you please send pocketbook next year. You aske me is my asthmus still bad. Yes it is still bad and now I have bronchitits two. The climb is no good here in Daytonia beach. Must close now and get dressed as I am lazy and eat my lunch.
Love,
Bedie

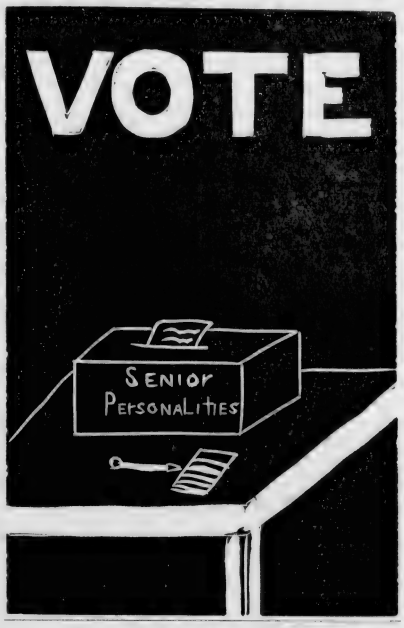
Y-LINES



by Jo Ann McLelland

The next big sing event is the competitive class skits which are sponsored annually by the YWCA. The skits will be gotten up by each class and will depict some phase of life here at the college. This year they will be held on the last two Saturday nights in February and the first night in March. Judges for these will be three faculty members and two representatives from each class. The identity of the judges will remain a secret. A $5 prize will be awarded the best skit.

No doubt you sophomores, juniors, and seniors have seen how attendance has been slacking during the past few years for the weekly sings. Now that they're being held in the small auditorium again, only once a month, more attendance and co-operation is urged.

Something else has had a large decrease in attendance recently and that's prayers. Many complain that it's too cold to go and they've forgotten their coat. It's only a few steps to run up and get one. And it's certainly well worth it, don't you think?

Tomorrow Is The Day!

Social Notes

By Betty Jane Staples

Engaged

The Christmas holidays seem to have been one mad social whirl for Longwood girls and some lucky ones returned with souvenirs in the form of diamonds. Among those returning with stars in their eyes were Challice Haydon who received a diamond from Bill Parsons, Barbara Caskey engaged to Jim Hopkins, Mary Meade Robertson to Walter Edwards, Natalie Lancaster to Yancy Robertson, Mary Ellen Booth to Swanson Harnsby, and Buzzy Hartis to Ellis Stone.

Other lucky girls are Jean Southern engaged to Walter Lindsay, Ann Parkinson to Dick Wagner, Suzanne Roberts to Donald Long, Judy Richey to Dean Weihe, and Billie Dove Van de Riet to Manning C. Merritt.

Pinned

It seems that those who didn't receive diamonds got pinned. Those who are sporting new jewelry on their sweaters are Pattie Poffenberger who received a Sigma Alpha Epsilon pin from Standy Cronch; Karen Spencer pinned to a Carter Coates, a Pi Kappa Alpha; Ilia DesPortes to Barby Brown, a Phi Gamma Delta; Barbara Powell to Walter Eckbreath, a Lambda Chi Alpha; and Dot Douglas to Bill Norcross, a Kappa Alpha.

Kappa Alpha Dance

Quite a few of our girls journeyed to Hampden-Sydney Saturday night to attend the Kappa Alpha dance. Among those attending were Barbara Assaid, Dot Baldwin, Barbara Blackman, Flip Blake, Muriel Boswell, Dale Brothers, Mary Campbell, Pat Cantrell, Elizabeth Cheatham, Anne Coleman, Betty Connell, and Norma Jean Croft. Also seen enjoying the dance were Betty Davis, Joan DeAlba, Patty Derring, Ellen Dize, Martha Donaldson, Dot Douglas, Gaynelle Edwards, Charlotte Fitts, Martha Francisco, Shirley Garst, Ann Glenn, Evelyn Hall, Joyce Hunt, Jo Hutchinson, and Betty Islin.

Others journeying to Hampden-Sydney included Wanda Karlet, Isabel Karnes, Jean Kriebaum, Donna Kunkler, Doris Kwasnicka, Nancy Lawrence, Marion Lowery, Ambler Moncure, Denise Montagne, Jean Mosley, Betty Ann Myers, Nancy Nelson, Betty Jean Oakes, Dorothy Orr, Kay Peltier and Silvia Reames. Others on hand to see the new KA Rose were Mary Elva Robinson, Betty Pat Rogers, Marion Ruffin, Fanny Scott, Joy Sommons, Katherine Miller, Barbara Southern, Carolyn Stanley, Marie Swecker, and Beverly Taylor.

Louise Turner, Doris Underwood, Shirley Ward, Ann Watkins, Ann Westmoreland, Jo Ann Wilson, Mary Ann King, and Joyce Dalton also attended.

Spectra-Scopic Views

The United States is a country born of treason to the English crown, and it has never dealt too harshly with persons who attempted to sell out to another country. There has not been an outstandingly large number of cases of treason, yet it is interesting to note that the United States has never executed a civilian for this crime.

Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, a couple tried and convicted on the charge of espionage, are making a last plea for their lives. They are due to be executed next week for stealing atomic secrets for the Kremlin. Their case has been reviewed, and clemency has been refused by all authority outside of the President. Last week a final plea for a stay of execution was filed with the Department of Justice for executive clemency.

The outcome should be of interest to all, since if their plea is denied, they will be the first civilians to die for their crime of espionage. Should their sentence be refuted? Federal Judge Irving Kaufman said when passing sentence that they could possibly have altered the course of history by giving away their nation's top secret.

To be sure, the Communists and even some non-Communists have urged mercy. Why is it that they have to pay the supreme sacrifice when no others have paid it? Of the recent persons convicted of espionage, why didn't men like Harry Gold, Morton Sobell, and David Greenglass receive capital punishment? Did the Rosenbergs give more information to the Kremlin, are they being used as a warning for others, or are the Justice Department and the gov-

College Modern Dance Club To Travel To Woman's College In North Carolina To Convention Of Annual Arts Forum

Meeting To Occur March 19, 20, 21

Orchesis, college modern dance group, is tentatively planning to send representatives to the annual Arts Forum being held at the Women's College of the University of North Carolina this spring.

Ann Murphy, president of the club, stated that the girls are waiting for Dr. Lancaster's approval before making definite plans to attend the meeting which will be held March 19, 20, and 21.

Dance events planned include a program of dances choreographed and performed by students, a class in techniques, and a dance concert given by the W. C. dance group. A guest artist in the field of dance will highlight the forum.

Besides dance the forum will have sections for people interested in music, painting, sculpture, creative writing and drama.

The forum is an annual event and brings together college students and faculty members interested in the creative arts. Representatives from all the southern states will be present.

Drama Class Plans To Give Three Plays In Jarman Hall Fri.

Dr. C. L. S. Earley's play production class will present three one-act plays on Friday night at 7:30 in Jarman Hall.

The plays were given before Christmas holidays at assembly. They are "The Blue Tie" by Beulah Chamely with a cast of Margie Harris, Beth Kent, and Norma Croft; Tennessee Williams' play, "At Liberty", with Flip Blake and Ellen Porter; and "The Boar" by Anton Chekov with a cast of Nancy Tanley, Jim Parker and Woody Rice.

Also on the program are a choral reading "Tarentella" presented by Speech 101 and the poem, "Balled of the Hemp Weavers" read by Hilda Hartis.

Feb. Artist Program To Feature Organist

Virgil Fox, world renowned organist, will be featured in concert in the Jarman Auditorium February 3, according to an announcement by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster.

The concert will be presented in co-operation with the Longwood Artists Series and will be given on the Jarman Memorial Organ.

ernment in general really cracking down on a condition which has been deplorable to Americans for quite sometime? Although the Rosenbergs are parents, it seems only just that they pay for their indiscrepencies. But if the program is not followed through, does it appear fair to give the capital punishment instead of a prison sentence when other collaborators are freed to walk the streets and even attempt the same crime again?

Prof. Announces Plans of May Day

Tentative plans for May Day 1953 have been revealed by Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, professor of physical education, who is in charge of this annual festival.

This year's May Day will be the first of three or four with themes centering around American folk lore. The pageant this year will deal with the earliest origins of American folk literature.

Since legends and tales from England, Scotland and Ireland are the chief sources for American lore, the dances and songs for this year's May Day will be derived from these countries.

Mrs. Landrum stated that she plans to carry out the English, Scottish, and Irish theme by using each country's national colors in the traditional may pole. The court's costumes will also make use of the nationality theme.

"Ballad Tree" is the tentative title for May Day. A slate for the general chairman and committee will be presented at the next student body meeting.

Orchesis Postpones Recital Until March

The dance drama "The Mocking Bird" which was scheduled to be presented Friday, February 27 has been postponed until March 15 according to an announcement by Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, professor of physical education.

Orchesis members voted to postpone their recital in order to give them more time to prepare their production. Also they wanted to have it nearer the time of their tentative trip to the Arts Forum.

Another reason for their decision was the fact that Jackie Sell, who had a leading roll, is not returning next semester. Her part will have to be filled.

Juniors Plan Dance

This year the annual junior dance will be held February 14, according to an announcement by Mary Denny Wilson, president of the class.

The dance, which is formal, will be held in the college gymnasium. Music will be provided by Ronnie Bartlett and his orchestra, as revealed by Mary Ann King, music chairman.

Other chairmen for the dance are Betty Islin, dance; Ann Mallory, tickets, Libby McClung, decorations; Elleanor Koch, publicity, and Edith Frame, floor.

Class Games Next Event On Calendar

The next events on the Longwood intra-mural sports calendar will be class volleyball and basketball games.

In preparation for the organization of class teams' practices have already gotten underway. Volleyball practices are held Mondays and Wednesdays at 3:00 and Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4:00. Practices for basketball are held on Tuesday and Thursday at 2:00 and on Wednesday at 4:00.

Although the games will not begin until the second week in March, class basketball managers are reminding girls to remember that 8 practices are required in order to make the team. Students are urged to come out to support their class and get in their class games early.

Orientation Classes Will Sponsor Teas For Visiting Seniors

Two teas will be given in honor of the visiting high school seniors on January 16 and 17. These will be sponsored by Miss Gleaves' and Miss Chambers' orientation classes.

Heading committees for the tea on the Friday are: decoration, Shirley Mallory; refreshments, Peggy Colonna; reception, Dianne Hanson; invitations, Betty Maas; and entertainment, Mary Ann Wright.

For the tea on January 17, Ann Snyder heads the decoration committee; Joanne McClellan is in charge of invitations; Ann Westmoreland reception; Betty Huzek Bailey, refreshments, and Jackie Curlee heads the program committee.

On January 9 and 19 two teas were held in the Student Lounge of the College. The first was sponsored by Miss Gleaves' orientation class and the second, by Miss Chambers'.

Members of the junior class of Farmville High School were the guests of honor at the tea held on January 9. Eight from the class attended.

Buy a Splinter

Copies of The Splinter, Longwood's new date book, are still on sale, according to Barbara Caskey, president of Pi Delta Epsilon, the group which is publishing the book. Faculty members may secure their copies from the Treasurer's Office, and students may purchase their Splinters from any member of Pi Delta Epsilon at a cost of $1.50 a copy.

Hopeful Help for the Hapless Herd

Armstrong Aims Amorous Arrows

by Dorothy Armstrong

Well, Christmas is over, the New Year has begun, and throughout the halls of this institution the results of leap-year can be seen in the form of certain Longwood ladies sporting diamonds, pins, school-rings, and other evidences of their prowess at the good old feminine art of attracting the opposite sex. Now for all you unfortunate ones who lost out in this game of chance, don't despair yet. Leap-year is over, but don't let that bother you—every year can be leap-year if you apply yourself and stick to it grimly.

And now, straight from the horse's mouth, we bring you this formula for the capture of the helpless male.

The first step is always to sight your objective. Then a little detective work is in order to discover his likes and dislikes, how he behaves in his native habitat, and what he does with his spare time. You can consult people he knows on these points, then locate his favorite haunts, and begin to haunt them too.

If he likes to play tennis, you are really in luck, for the tennis courts offer excellent opportunities for the chase. Incidentally, it usually helps to drag along a male cousin or brother whom you can rehearse beforehand so that he will act very attentive and make appropriate remarks such as, "You dropped your tennis ball, darling," or "Tired, dear?" Tell him not to overdo this to the point of being sickening, though, or your victim may get the idea that you are already spoken for.

After you are situated, you can begin to aim coy glances and clever remarks. As soon as you have established a toe-hold, throw a signal to the male relative, who then evaporates into the background. From this point, there are many cute tricks you can pull; for example, knocking your ball into his court, and hopping gaily in front of him in order to recover it. If this doesn't work, you may have to resort to more drastic measures, such as faking a sunstroke and fainting gracefully. If you happen to be lucky enough to be at the top of a hill, you can roll down and land limply at his feet.

If these don't work, or if you should become black and blue in the process, don't become discouraged, for he may eventually offer to escort you home. But don't become too sure of yourself. Remember Scarlett O'hara's policy of making him think you're playing hard-to-get. Whatever you do, don't let him find out you're chasing him or he may shy away. Be subtle at all times and keep him guessing.

After you have had several dates with him, invite him over to your house for dinner and cook it yourself, so he can see that you are the domestic type.

When you have known him long enough, you can begin to argue and disagree, which adds spice to any romance. A few well-placed kicks will keep him in line.

Well, there it is girls—and if you run into any obstacles or become dead locked, you may want to consult my authority. She lives on the outskirts of Farmville in a small shack and specializes in love potions. Good Luck!

1952 Alumnae Bulletin Features 'Public Relations' Article By Department Head

Outstanding Grads Sketched In Bulletin

by Gail Leonard

"Public Relations Comes to Longwood" by Dr. R. C. Simonini, English Department Head, is the featured article in the 1952 Alumnae Bulletin which was recently mailed to its subscribers.

Dr. Simonini's article introduces Mrs. Meade L. Shackelford, new Director of Public Relations and explains the practical and vital reasons for instituting an effective publicity program at Longwood.

One of the periodical's human interest articles sketches three former students who have recently reflected honor on their Alma Mater. Maria Jackson, winner of the Fulbright exchange scholarship to study in France for the academic year, 1952-53; Nancy Camper, who was awarded the Dorothea Buck Fellowship to study in Chile; and Cleo Holladay, Barter Theater Apprenticeship Award winner for 1952 are the outstanding alumnae.

An article about the latest addition to the Longwood collection of paintings by Virginia artists is also included. A photo of "Kathie with Pearls" is incluued with the story.

A tentative schedule of the 1953 Founders' Day program is printed in the magazine and the annual message from President Dabney S. Lancaster appears on the first page.

Dr. Lancaster's letter reviews outstanding events of the school year 1951-52 such as the Virgil Fox Concert, dramatic performances, May Day and Commencement exercises. He also appeals to all alumnae to interest as many high school graduates as possible in attending Longwood in September.

The cover pictures a scene of Ruffner Hall and the inside back page gives a calendar of college events from September to June.

Alumnae in the Orient; Chapter Reports; Faculty News; Alumnae Fund Report; birth, death, and marriage announcements; and Class News from 1884 to 1952 comprise the copy found regularly in the publication.

Pi Delt Will Initiate Eight New Brothers

Eight upperclassmen will be initiated into Pi Delta Epsilon on Friday night at 7 o'clock in the Honors Room, according to Barbara Caskey, president.

Jeanne Mercer, Helen Tanner, Betty Collier, Barbara White, Pat Altwegg, Nancy Lawrence, Anne Keith Hundley and Barbara Caskey will become official members of the group at that time.

Members of the national honorary fraternity are selected for excellence in the field of journalism.

Class of '53 Presents Psychological Drama In Assembly Program

In assembly January 12 the senior class combined music, dance and drama in a presentation of the psychological story, "The Yellow Wallpaper", by Charlotte Perkins Gilliam.

Nancy Nelson portrayed the part of the narrator. The lady in the wallpaper who caused the narrator to lose her mind was interpreted by Anne Murphy. Recordings of "Spellbound" and "Lost Weekend" furnished the musical background throughout the play.

Bette Safelle and Barbara Caskey were joint chairman for the assembly.

Dr. McInar will sponsor assembly January 19. Two of his senior students, Billie Powell and Sarah Harvie, will present a joint recital. Sarah will sing and Billie will play the piano. The selections which they will present will be announced at a later date.

Longwood Prof Attends Meeting In New York City

Dr. John P. Wynne, professor of education and philosophy, journeyed to New York City during the Christmas holidays to attend a meeting of the Eastern Division of the American Philosophical Association.

The meeting was held at City College, New York City, and nearby Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, New York. This conference, held the week end of December 29 to 31, was one in a series of regional meets to discuss teacher education and professional standing.

One of the main topics of interest at this conference was a discussion on "Was Socrates Philosophy His Own or That of Plato?"

Dr. Wynne was also on hand for the National Committee on Teacher Education and Philosophical Standing which held its annual conference from January 2 to 3 in New York City.

Mrs. Coyner To Take Part In Convention

Common problems relating to alumni work is the main topic on the agenda of the District American Alumni Association meeting, which Mrs. Ruth Coyner, Longwood Alumnae Secretary, will attend.

This convention will take place in Columbia, South Carolina, on January 18-20, with the University of South Carolina serving as host. Delegates consist of officers of alumni associations in various colleges and universities throughout the southern states.

United States and Canada Associations meet together annually for a mass convention during the summer months.

Mrs. Coyner plans to stop in Charlotte, North Carolina, upon her return trip to address the Longwood Alumnae in that city. Mrs. Frances Armentrout Irwin serves as president of the Charlotte chapter.

The December 1952 Longwood Alumnae Bulletin was mailed to its subscribers on December 31.

Revolting Changes You'll Surely See If You'll Follow These Rules For '53

By Dot Douglas

There I was with a D minus scholastic average, campused for too many messy-room call downs. I sat in my room woefully RULING my STATE of depression, when I happened to read Miss Boast's daily column of advice and self improvement. She had New Year's resolutions for the college girl. I decided not to take them myself, being a child prodigy—or is it prodical child—but I thought I'd pass them on to some of you less fortunates.

Resolve—To wash your hands before taking apple sauce out of the dining hall to your Roomie.

Resolve not to loose any more pounds, especially in America where we loose dollars.

Resolve to eat everything put on the table. Anyone for an ivy leaf? They're good for that Ivory complection.

Resolve not to send any more Kleenex to the laundry.

Resolve to replace noisy metal knitting needles which keep dropping in assembly, with plastic needles.

Resolve not to throw any more paper over the Rotunda. Something more deceiving would be more alluring. That's not a false statement!

Freshmen, resolve to roll Pepsi bottles from now on (contributed by the Coca Cola Co.)

Sophomores, resolve to keep all lights off in the parlor. (Cupid.)

Juniors, resolve to study harder—that is if harder is taught next semester.

Seniors, resolve to break away from the training school by 11 p. m.

Resolve to save your class cuts next semester and take them during spring exam week.

Virgil Fox Will Appear February 3 in Contest Through Artist Contest

Program to Include Classical Selections

Virgil Fox, virtuoso organist, will appear in concert in Jarman Auditorium, February 3, at 8 p. m.

Mr. Fox, who is known as a complete master of his instrument, will give a concert of the world's greatest classical music in co-operation with the Longwood Artist Series.

Now in his thirties, he has given concerts in such reknowned churches in Europe as Westminister, Lincoln and Durham Cathedrals, and the St. Thomas Church in Leipzig. During the summer of 1950 he gave a series of concerts in Paris, Canterbury, Edinburgh, and London in addition to a British Broadcasting Company program.

Concert Series

At the close of his army career, Virgil Fox played a series of concerts at the Library of Congress. These were under the auspices of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation. He has also appeared as soloist with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra and the National Orchestral Association of New York City. He is now a recording artist for RCA Victor and Columbia labels.

"Zest, color, and elegance" mark the Fox recitals according to Hartford critics.

Jarman Organ

The concert will be given on the Jarman Memorial Organ, which was dedicated at a concert given by Mr. Fox on October 20, 1951. The four-manual organ is one of the most complete instruments in the state. It was built through funds amounting to $25,000.00 raised by the Alumnae Association in memory of Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, president of Longwood College from 1902-1946.

At present, Mr. Fox is organist at the Riverside Church in New York City.

VIRGIL FOX, renowned organist, who will appear in concert February 3 in Jarman Hall.

A Farewell Poem From Mrs. Walker

It was on the 14th of September,
That day I surely will remember.
The skies were clear, the air was mild,
My own thoughts were running wild.

Should I run, or should I stay
What should I do—just what to say—
The bell began to ring so loud
Good heavens—here comes the crowd.
I stood aside to let you pass,
Each girl looked prettier than the last.

The days went by as days will do
I learned to know each one of you.
Each day I liked you more and more
The daily meals were no chore.
My thanks to all and each of you
For all the times you helped me through
And now I'm leaving you must know
How much I really hate to go.
All I can say is "Thanks" again
To every student and my friends,
To those I worked with every day,
There's nothing too good that I can say.
So, I'll just have to end like this
You've helped to make the time pure bliss.

Elizabeth B. Walker

(Ed.'s note—Thank you, Mrs. Walker, for everything you've done—We'll all miss you.)

Students To Elect May Queen, Court Thursday, Feb. 5

Nomination and election of the 1953 May Queen and her court has been set for February 3 and 5, according to an announcement by Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, advisor the May Day Committee.

Nominations will be received at the table in front of the faculty bulletin board in Ruffner Hall. Each student will nominate one person for queen and ten other girls for members of the court. Each list of nominations should include at least one girl from each class, Mrs. Landrum stated.

Representative beauties from each class receiving the greatest number of nominations will promenade in formal dress before the student body on Thursday night at seven. This final selection will take place in the auditorium. After the promenade, the final vote to select the court will be taken. It is traditional that the queen and maid of honor be seniors.

Mrs. Landrum has reminded the student body that Longwood's May Court not only reigns over the festivities but also has a part in the dancing. Students should remember this when voting.

The queen, her maid-of-honor, and the court will be announced in the following issue of the Rotunda.

Tryouts for Rotunda To Begin in February

Tryouts for editor-in-chief, managing editor, business manager, and staff positions for the next during February and the first of March.

During this trial period, members of the staff who sign up with the editor may try out for any position they desire. Each person trying out for a new position will assume the regular duties of that position for one issue of the paper.

Members of the student body who are interested in writing or learning to write will be allowed to do so during this period. Those who would like to try out for placement on the business staff will also assume duties on these issues. All students interested in taking part in these tryouts are urged to come to the Rotunda Office tonight after supper to sign up for the position in which they are interested.

New Campus Welfare Fund To Hold Drive February 2-6

Student Standards Group Funds to Aid Four Philanthropies

Monday through Friday, February 2-6, has been designated for the College Welfare Fund drive, which is a combination of four charitable funds.

This one condensed drive is being instigated this year upon the request of the student body. In former years students have been asked to contribute to four separate funds and have felt that this was too big a demand for their pocketbooks. The College Welfare Fund will be divided equally among the World Student Service Fund, The Internation Christian University Fund, The March of Dimes, and the Red Cross Drive.

The World Student Service Fund to be included in the C.W.F. is for students from all over the world to give aid to fellow students who need financial help. This fund is also designated for the reconstruction of libraries and other college buildings in war-torn countries.

The International Christian University Fund is a drive put on by over 200 American colleges and universities for the building of a University in Japan. The university will be open to students of all races and creeds and will be supplied with educators from all over the world.

The March of Dimes fund for research and help for polio-stricken children will also be included in the drive.

The last of the four drives to be represented in C.W.F. is the Red Cross Drive. The Red Cross gives innumurable aid to both civilians and service men in times of disaster or need.

A committee is made up from Student Standards and the Y.W.C.A. with two faculty advisors to approve all drives carried on at Longwood. This committee has set a goal of one dollar per student for C.W.F. College organizations are also asked to contribute to the drive.

Representatives will visit each student some time during the week. This canvassing of the halls replaces the old policy of collecting contributions at a central place.

Va. Superintendents Will Visit Longwood To Interview Seniors

Again this year, superintendents from all over the state will be visiting the campus during the spring term to interview prospective teachers.

Mr. Charles G. Walsh, Assistant Superintendent in charge of personnel of Arlington County Schools, will visit the college February 15. Mr .Walsh will want to interview elementary majors and seniors who have a major in library science .

Mr. H. C. Paxton Jr., Assistant Superintendent in charge of personnel of Norfolk County Schools also plans to visit the college in early February.

The first of these visits was made on January 15 by Mr. E. L. Lamberth, Assistant Superintendent in charge of personnel of Norfolk City Schools. Mr. Lamberth was interested primarily in teachers for elementary schools, but also had vacancies in mathematics and commercial education.

YWCA Reveal February 9-14 As Religious Emphasis Week, Rev. Edwards to Visit Campus

Group Plans Discussions

"Christian Dynamics in a Shaken World," will be the theme of the annual Religious Emphasis Week sponsored by the College Y.W.C.A., during the week of February 9-14.

To carry out this theme, the Reverend Mr. Al Edwards of the First Presbyterian Church in Harrisonburg, has been invited to lead discussions and lectures during the time.

Mr. Edwards attended elementary and high school in Edinburgh, Scotland. In 1935 he came to the United States to take up studies at Georgia Tech. Upon graduation, he attended the Presbyterian College in South Carolina.

Doctorate

He received his Doctor of Divinity Degree from the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond. Upon receiving this degree, he accepted a call to Orange. After serving as chaplain in the United States Army during the Second World War, he returned to Orange. In 1947, he went to Harrisonburg where he still resides.

On Monday night, Mr. Edwards will be introduced by the "Y" Cabinet to the faculty and administration, heads of organizations on campus, and to Farmville ministers and their wives. This informal reception will be held in the student lounge at 8 p. m.

Assembly Speaker

Serving as guest speaker for the week, Mr. Edwards will talk to the student body in a chapel program on Tuesday. Further expounding the theme, he will hold a discussion in the Student Lounge at 5 p. m. that afternoon. This discussion is open to all students.

That night, Mr. Edwards will lead prayers. On Wednesday night at 8 p. m., an address will be given by Mr. Edwards for all students and people of Farmville in Jarman Auditorium.

Programs for the entire week will be printed and given to each member of the student body.

Betty Abbitt, vice-president of the "Y", who is in charge of "Religious Emphasis Week," has worked with other cabinet members on the planning of this schedule.

11 Students Will Graduate, Begin Teaching In February

Eleven seniors will complete the requirements for their diplomas at the end of this semester and are candidates for graduation in February 1953 according to Mrs. Mary W. Watkins, Executive Secretary. Those eleven graduates will return to Longwood to receive their diplomas at the commencement ceremony in June.

Jean Talley of McKenney and Nancy Purdum from Danville are planning to teach in Danville. Both will receive a B. S. degree in Elementary Education.

Frances Andrews of Norfolk, Sarah Anne Conley of Remo, Katherine Hamlet of South Hill, Margaret Alice Stables from Wilson, and Lelia Ann Wingfield from Roanoke will also meet the requirements for their B. S. degrees in Elementary Education.

Frances Andrews has accepted a position in Norfolk; Sarah Ann Conley, in Hampton; and Lelia Ann Wingfield, in Roanoke. Margaret Alice Stables is still undecided. Katherine Hamlet will be married in February and teach in Dinwiddie.

Completing work for a B. A. in Secondary Education are Elba Castaner of New York City and Sarah McElroy Harvie from Richmond. Elba plans to enter graduate school, while Sarah will teach in Henrico County and live in Richmond.

Billie Dunlap Powell from Portsmouth is planning to enter the teaching profession in New Jersey after earning a B. S. degree in Music Education.

Virginia Hansel of Monterey is eligible for a B. S. degree in Secondary Education. Virginia will teach, but is still undecided as to where.

Freshmen Reveal Production Heads As Wright, Duke

Mary Ann Wright and Margaret Duke, both of Richmond, were elected co-chairmen of the 1952 Freshman Production at a recent class meeting.

Due to the coming examinations, no plans concerning either the production's theme or committees will be made until after exam week. The date of the program has been announced as Friday, March 27.

Mary Ann, a graduate of Hermitage High School, was a member of Beta Club, a national honor society, and an active participant in the dramatic and glee clubs. During her senior year, she held a lead in the operetta, "The Belle of Bagdad."

Margaret graduated from Thomas Jefferson, where she presided as vice-president of her senior class. She was on the staff of both Thomas Jefferson publications, serving as news editor of the Jeffersonian. Property designer for all productions during her high school years was Margaret's chief accomplishment.

Assembly to Feature Films on Music, Art

A series of films concerning art and music will be shown during the regular assembly period Tuesday, February 3.

Mr. Charles A. Patterson, associate professor of education, is in charge of the program. He hopes that the films will foster an appreciation of art and music among the students.

Mr. Patterson has stated that the titles of the cultural "shorts" to be presented will be announced later.

Juniors Announce Theme For Dance As "Cupid's Beau"

Bartlett's Band Will Set Mood

"Cupid's Beau" has been revealed as the theme of the Valentine dance to be given by the junior class. Betty Islin, chairman of the dance has announced the date, the time and the place as February 14 from 8 to 12 p. m. in the College gymnasium.

Music by Ronnie Bartlett's orchestra will furnish the melodies for dancers and their dates. The group is part of the Mutual Broadcasting Company recording orchestra and is on tour under the direction of Bill Cully. Many well known spots such as the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans, the Statler Hotel in Washington, and the Tantilla Club in Richmond have featured the dance orchestra on several occasions.

Valentines, bows and arrows, and shades of traditional red and white will set the decorative stage for the formal dance. Silhouettes of hearts and cupids will adorn the walls and plans are being made to arrange the tables in cafe style around the edge of the dance floor.

An invitation has been extended to members of the student body of Hampden-Sydney College to attend the dance. "Boop" has urged that Longwood girls begin making plans for the big night now, either stag or drag. "Remember, too, that this isn't just a junior dance. It's a Valentine dance for the whole school, sponsored by the junior class," was the comment she added.

Dance tickets will go on sale the week after exams with the price set at $2.40 drag and $1.80 stag.

An added feature of the dance will be a picture making concession sponsored by the the Athletic Association council. Girls and beaus who would like to have a souvenier photograph of the dance will be asked to sign up before the dance night with Elsie Wente who will be in charge.

Members of the administration and faculty have been invited to be chaperones of the dance and guests of the class.

"Silence" to Begin

Students are reminded that at 6 p. m. on Sunday, January 25, "silence" begins. From this time until Friday afternoon, January 30, quiet is to be maintained at all times.

Drama Group Brings Barter Theater Here

"The Virginian", a historical drama of the old west, will be presented by the Barter Theater Players February 20, in Jarman Hall.

This play is taken from the novel "The Virginian" by Owen Wister. Many students will remember the moving picture by the same title which was also an adaptation of Mr. Wister's novel. The leading role will be played by Robert Porterfield, founder and director of the Players.

Dr. C. L. S. Earley, Professor of English, has announced that the Longwood Dramatic Club is sponsoring this presentation. Student tickets may be purchased from members of the Longwood Players for $1.00. The regular admission price, $1.80 will be charged to town people.

Hold To That Which Is Good

And now comes the pay-off! Examinations are upon us. All of our wishing can no longer postpone this disagreeable interlude in an otherwise pleasant year. To some, examinations are a nightmare; to a fortunate few they are a 'breeze;' to all they are a challenge.

Regardless of the advice of parents and teachers ,students will fret over the very thought of examinations. We may be sure that everyone will be keyed up next week, especially those who will be facing the ordeal for the first time. So much depends upon the outcome, and there are so many expecting us to give a good account of ourselves!

Now, before tensions reach the breaking point, is a good time to take thought. Now is a good time to remind ourselves that there are some things of more importance than grades, important as good grades are. There is, for example, this matter of honor—something that we have come to prize very highly here at Longwood. We can rejoice in the fact that there has not been a single black mark against the Honor System this year. That is something about which any college can well be proud.

Because we are proud of this record, and because we desire, above all else, that this record remain unsullied, we urge each student to "hold to that which is good." No matter how emotionally wrought up you may be, no matter what opportunity presents itself, nor what temporary advantage might be gained—allow no temptation to get the better of you. Ask yourself he question that a very wise man asked before you: "What is left when honor is gone?" — Dr. George Jeffers.

Only One Week

Only for one week—but to be remembered throughout the coming year!

For one week, February 9 through 13, the Y. W. C. A. will again sponsor Religious Emphasis Week. For one week, students and faculty will take time out to become aware of religion through a series of discussions and lectures.

Expanding the topic "Christian Dynamics in a Shaken World," the Reverend Mr. Al Edwards, excellent speaker and religious inspirer, will be on campus to advise, instruct, and guide both students and faculty members.

Students are encouraged to feel free to ask questions and to discuss their problems with Mr. Edwards, for we feel that he will be understanding and wise in his guidance.

The discussion groups have been diminished to one this year in hopes that this reduction will encourage more people to attend. In years past, these discussions have proved helpful and interesting with much student participation.

In the daze of school activities many of us let religion slip from a prominent place in our minds. It is hoped that this emphasis on religion will renew our interest and bring back a truly religious spirit that will last all year. For as Christ is not forgotten after Christmas and Easter, neither should religion play a secondary role after this inspiring week.

Yes, only for one week—but to be remembered throughout the year!

Thoughts Of Spring

Thoughts of spring bring thoughts of May and thoughts of May bring thoughts of royalty—traditional May Court royalty.

To choose the loveliest representatives of our college would be difficult for even the most highly qualified judge of feminine beauty. But we must soon undertake to do just this and select a May Queen and her court to reign over our May Day festivities.

There are three considerations we should make before putting that "X" on the ballot.

First, there is beauty—an attractiveness of face and figure, a natural, healthy comeliness. Grace would be the second on our check-list. The carriage and stateliness of May Court members are always on display as she is presented to an audience. And third is poise—that self-possession and awareness that assures ease in appearance.

Many people would add another requirement, that intangible quality called personality. Some say that this is irrelevant because other honors are bestowed upon the most popular and the best leaders. But perhaps personality is a logical factor, for from a pleasing attitude and a winsome manner, there usually ensues a real beauty of expression.

A May Day celebration begins with it the choice of the court. Choose your representatives with an "eye to beauty" . . . plus grace and poise.

Improvement Needed

"I hope I don't have to go through that again for a long time." "It took me over two hours to get through that mess." "I'm so worn out I feel like I've been plowing all day." These and similar comments could be heard in dorm rooms and snack bar after the ordeal of registering for next semester's classes last Wednesday.

What can be done to improve the system used? Is it possible to have more orderly signing up for classes? We think that something can be done and offer the following suggestions.

A definite time should be designated for freshmen to see their advisors before the day of registration. Many girls arrived at the library last Wednesday without a schedule planned. Thus, they had to take up valuable time discussing a schedule amidst all the confusion.

The gym has proven to be a satisfactory and practicable place in the past. Since the library is small and congestion resulted when it was used, we suggest a return to the policy of using the gym for registration headquarters.

If some arrangements could be made whereby the time for students to register would be staggered rather than having everyone arrive at once, some of the confusion would be eliminated.

Perhaps some time could be saved if schedule cards were given out before registration day. Also department heads could have office hours the day before registration and give their required approval to schedules.

Finally, in order to do away with the biggest bottle-neck of registration, there should be more people giving final approval.

We realize that a certain amount of confusion is to be expected in such a complex routine as signing for classes. However, imporvement is needed and is possible in our present system. Humbly we offer our suggestions in hopes that registration next year will be easier on students and faculty alike.

Exams Here, Students Blink Oh, It's Later Than I Think

by Dot Armstrong

A stranger, innocently entering one of the Longwood dormitiories during the week of January 25-30 would walk into a scene of mental turmoil and general frustration. Groans of despair will soon be heard ecohing up and down the halls of this venerable institution as exam week rears its ugly head, and ghostly figures will roam to and fro, seeking information and black coffee far into the night.

Although we are continually being informed that exams are just a system of discovering how much learning has registered on us in the course of the semester, and nothing at all to get upset about, this kind of pep-talk seldom does much good. Of course, there are always the few far-sighted geniuses who have been studying diligently and keeping their assignments up-to-date since September, and who will have little to do during exam week except to attend movies and gloat. However, to the majority of us, realizing too late the wisdom of keeping an eye to the future, will have to go through the horrors of cramming. Oh well, such is the price of procrastination.

Now, from a very unreliable source, here is a plan which we hope may help you through this painful period.

1. First, situate yourself in a comfortable position, with your feet propped up and your head dangling over the edge of the bed. Your book, of course, is placed on the floor. The object of this is to allow the blood to rush to the head, and nourish the brain cells.

2. Be sure the radio is on full-blast, and tuned to one of those unique little programs, peculiar to the air-waves around Farmville, and seldom heard anywhere else. Those who know claim that the monotonous twang of an electric guitar is surprisingly conducive to study.

3. Invite your friends from surrounding rooms to come in and keep you company, for the psychological effect of a group of great minds operating at once is remarkable.

4. After about two hours of intenseo concentration, your brain cells will probably be partly well torn down, so you had better take a break for about fifiteen minutes and give them a chance to rebuild. There are a number of relaxing little activities you can fill this time with, such as blowing bubble-gum, pulling taffy or simply yodeling at the top of your lungs.

5 When the dawn begins to break, and you finally decide to throw salt over your left shoulder, utter the magic words, and place your book firmly under your pillow before going to bed.

Campus Cogitations

by Naomi Reed

This past week end Longwood had as her visitors, seniors from high schools throughout Virginia. The entertainment provided for these guests included a tour of the campus and Longwood estate, a tea, a series of three one-act plays, and a juke box dance. We thought it would be interesting to find out the impression of Longwood that these girls had received by following their busy schedule during the days of Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Interviews were held with several of the seniors, and they were asked to give their opinions of the college.

Jean Evans had the opinion that Longwood has a friendly atmosphere. "I think the girls act like everyone is equal." When we inquired what she disliked, she stated: "I was disappointed with the rest rooms." When asked if she would make Longwood her alma mater, she was uncertain.

In answer to the question, "What will you consider in your choice of a college," Amy Riggins stated: "I think you have to like a school and the people there in deciding to what college you will go. Yes, I believe I'll come back," she added.

Betty Watson remarked about the rooms. "I think they are nice." She is undecided about her choice of a college.

Commenting on the program for the week end, Connie Goode said she felt they were left alone quite a bit. "We didn't get to see the class rooms," she stated. "I'm still uncertain where I will go next year," was her answer when asked where she planned to attend college.

Several girls said they had never seen such a friendly campus and all that we interviewed spoke of the nice time they had over the week end.

Miss Take

This week, this column will deal with the gossip about town. And it's dedicated, by the way, to N.H.D., and G.R.P., two of America's most foremost authors and biographers.

All the non-swimming seniors have caused a terrible shortage of water wings in the downtown stores.

These mermaids are signing a petition that would assure them, in case of disaster, of a choral reading of the Aquamaids handbook, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," in commemoration of their bravery and courage.

Due to the great popular demand, the Dorothy May Store has finally consented to sell those ever-popular articles, Broncho Bill Cowgirl Holsters.

Because registration day is such a joy to all, the college has decided to go into the sixteenth system.

And speaking of registration day, rumor has it that on this day, two girls were so swarmed under that they got caught between the card catalogs with their drawers open. When last heard of, these poor girls were sandwiched between Beard's "History of the United States" and "General Burnside, Soldier, Statesman."

Many are quick to predict that the newly established senior book club will enjoy unexcelled popularity. The purpose of this club is to reward its members for reading the great literary pieces of the ancient and modern world. Personally, I'm selling subscriptions to "Classics Illustrated" (besides Splinters).

Attention freshmen: The Native Will Return. It's in the Book!

Overheard in a meadow: Well, I'll be Dammed, said the little creek when the fat lady fell off of the bridge.

So you have heard it, so what. There's more than one creek in this world with personality.

Overheard behind the counter in the Post Office . . . "Kiss me, kiss me, come on and kiss me." A flighty sort, those two.

This month, don't forget to . . . give blood, play hopscotch, get dressed in the morning, yodel, cough, choke, and gargle.

Be sure and don't roller skate, wash your windows or glasses, get caught cheating, smile, melt, or finger paint.

Yesterday a new president was inaugurated, and he can now begin to fulfill the prophasies which were made and also carry out his own plans. The citizens are now waiting to see how the new administration will cope with problems of cutting taxes, ending the Korean War, keeping peace in Europe, and almost any other problem imaginable.

One of the most difficult problems facing Eisenhower will be that of maintaining economic stability. There should be no drastic change in the economy for about one year, but by that time the newly-formed policies of the administration will begin to have some effect.

Eisenhower has won an election against the administration of expanding economy, but he realizes that immediate reduction of taxes, spending, controls coupled with labor strife and farm price drops would have severe effect. It appears, however, that the main point in maintaining stability is a wise defense program. The defense production in this country today serves as the main integrating factor for all economy.

The president has selected Charles E. Wilson to assume the leadership of the Defense Department, but there is discontent in Congress about confirming Wilson. The reason is that Wilson as ex-president of General Motors still holds considerable stock in that corporation. It appears that both Republicans and Democrats are concerned more about the practice of allowing him to hold stock in such large corporation and at the same time letting him represent the government in dealing with that firm than they are

Student Body Elects Webb Chairman, Announces Other Committee Heads For Traditional May Day Celebrations

Sue Webb, senior from Danville, was elected general chairman of the 1953 May Day festivities at a special meeting of the student body held last Thursday in the college dining hall.

Chosen to serve as chairmen of the May Day committees were Marguerite Smith, business; Jean Hodges, staging; Anne Murphy, dance; Isabelle Karnes and Libby McClung, costume; Mary Hurt Peery, transportation and Betty Goodson, music.

Chairman Sue Webb has been active in May Day productions since her freshman year and because of all she has done for past May Days has been made an honorary member of Orchesis. Sue is also a member of H2O, Monogram Club, Cotillion, and Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority. She has served on the A. A. Council four years and played varsity hockey for the past four years. Sue also held a position on the varsity basketball squad her freshman, sophomore and senior years.

Marguerite, who is serving as business manager, is a business major and acts as president of the commercial club.

Dance chairman, Murphy, is well known for her own talent as a dancer and serves as president of Orchesis, modern dance club.

Physical education major, Jean Hodges, is in charge of staging. Jean is serving as fire chief this year.

Two home economics majors Isabelle Karnes and Libby McClung will act as co-chairmen of costumes. Both girls have worked on costumes for past May Days.

Transportation chairman, Mary Hurt, has appeared in several Orchesis presentations. She is now serving as vice president of student government.

This is the second year that Betty has served as music chairman. She is a music major and acts as accompanist for Orchesis.

Production work on May Day has already begun and the committees are busy forming plans for the spring festival. The theme chosen is "Ballad Tree".

Two Upperclassmen Investigate Chances For Graduate Work

Celeste Bishop and Fay Greenland traveled to Chapel Hill yesterday to investigate the graduate school program at the University of North Carolina.

The purpose of the trip was to meet with Dr. S. A. Stoudemire, head of the Romance Language Department ,to discuss graduate work in this field. They also met with Dr. A. G. Engstrom, professor in the same department.

Celeste, who will graduate in May with majors in French and history, is interested in continuing her education in French with a minor in Spanish. Fay, a junior majoring in Spanish,plans to do further study in the same field with a minor in French.

Arrangements for the trip were made by Mrs. Marvin Schlegel. She has also planned a trip to the University of Virginia later in the year.

K D Pi Names 2 Attendants To Convention

Sonia Kile, a member of the senior class and Mary Ann King, a junior, will represent the Beta Epsilon Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi at the National Education Fraternity's Regional Conference. The convention will be held at the Madison Hotel in Atlantic City, New Jersey on February 17.

The program announced for the convention includes conferences, group discussions, and a banquet. The morning activities begin with group discussions on "Improving World Understanding Through the International Exchange Program," "The Values of Cooperation with Social Agencies to Teachers in Training and in Service," and "The Teacher's Role in Public Relations."

After a luncheon, there will be a conference of all Kappa Delta Pi chapter presidents to discuss problems of the national organization.

The evening session will feature a banquet to conclude the day's activities. The guest speaker will be Dr. Ordway Tread, chairman of the Board of Higher Education in New York City.

Dept. Analyzes Test

The English department has announced that all students who took the Junior English Test on January 8 may see Dr. Simonini for an analysis of their test scores.

Warrington Plans Trip To New York For LC Students

Past excursions have proven so popular that another trip to New Work for Longwood girls is being planned for the Easter Holidays. This trip is being sponsored by Mr. Clarence R. Warrington, professor of music.

Plans are being formulated to make this tour one that will give those making the trip an opportunity to enjoy New York's musical highlights as well as drama events.

The Metropolitan Opera Company's annual presentation of 'Parsifal" on Good Friday is one of the high marks of week-end plans. Mr. Warrington has stated that there is some possibility that the girls will be allowed back stage after the performance.

Another treat tentatively planned for those spending Easter in New York is the Sunday afternoon concert of the Philharmonic Orchestra in Carnegie Hall.

Mr. Warrington hopes to be able to secure tickets for the group to hear the Saturday night concert of the NBC Symphony Orchestra. This concert will be the last in a series of six conducted by the renowned Arturo Toscanni.

Besides the musical events the group will also see two current Broadway productions — one Thursday night and one Saturday night.

The group will leave Longwood early Thursday and return Monday afternoon. Expenses, excluding meals, have been figured at $40.

Five Upperclassman to Live In Home Mangement House During Early Spring Term

Home Ec. Club Plans Cookie Sale

Four seniors and one junior will begin their nine weeks' stay in the home management house at the first of next semester, according to Wanda Karlet, president of the Home Economics Club.

The senior girls who will move into the house across the street from the Rotunda include Lillian Shelton, Betty Hoffman, Anne Dudley, and Wanda Karlet. Elizabeth McClung will be the only junior living in the management house.

The purpose of the plan is to provide a home environment for the girls. They will gain practical knowledge in cooking, cleaning and entertaining without the guidance of their parents. All home economics majors are required to live in the home management house sometime before their graduation.

Ann Watkins and Betty Davis were chosen at the last meeting of the Home Economics Club as co-chairman of the cookie sale that the club has planned to take place the week after exams.

The freshman will be in charge of the sale of the cookies and the upperclassmen will divide the other work.

The cookies will be made by members of the club. Other details, including the date, will be announced on the bulletin board.

Faculty Members Will Attend Meet

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president of the college, and several members of the faculty will attend the thirty - ninth annual meeting of The Association of Virginia Colleges. The meeting is being held this year in Roanoke on February 7 and 8.

The purpose of the meeting is the discussion of problems and projects common to the colleges of Virginia.

Representatives from all the colleges of Virginia have been invited to the convention which will be held at Hotel Roanoke.

Valentine Theme Sets Mood of Junior Dance In Gymnasium, Feb. 14

Bartlett Orchestra Provides Melodies

Hearts and arrows of red and white will set the mood for the "Cupid's Beau" dance Saturday night February 14. The Valentine dance is sponsored by the junior class and the gymnasium, transformed into a Valentine is the place; 8 to 12 p. m. is the time.

To carry out the dance theme in decorations, there will be the traditional valentine colors and silhouettes of cupid and his target, and of course, big red hearts. Tables where dancers may "sit one out" will be arranged around the gym floor. And to remember that big night, plans are now underway for favors for members of the junior class. Those wishing to have pictures made are reminded to sign up with Elsie Wente before Saturday.

An after dance party at Longwood estate for juniors and their dates will conclude the evening festivities for members of the junior class.

As announced in the last Rotunda, girls and their beaus will waltz to the music of Ronnie Bartlett's orchestra. The orchestra is part of the Mutual Broadcasting Compay recording organization. Currently on a tour of many dance spots, it is directed by Bill Culley and features a girl vocalist.

Members of the college faculty and administration have been invited to be guests of the juniors and serve as chaprones of the dance. They include Dr. and Mrs. Dabney S. Lancaster, Miss Elizabeth Burger, sponosr of the junior class, Miss Ruth Gleaves, and Miss Nancy Chambers. Also, Mrs. Caroline Eastham, Mrs. Katherine Tabb, Mr. Raymond French, Dr. and Mrs. M. W. Schiegel, and Dr. and Mrs. Ray A. Moore.

Catalogues for the summer session are now available in the Registrar's office. Those interested in taking graduate or undergraduate courses in summer school should refer to this bulletin to make preparations for the sessions.

AATE Committee Completes Report Of Dec. Visitation

Longwood Receives Satisfactory Rating

The official, written evaluation report of the visitation committee of the American Association of Teacher Education has been received by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, college president.

From December 8-11 the committee was at Longwood to examine and evaluate phases of this educational institution. All their opinions have been compiled and Longwood has been rated on the basis of a pre-set up schedule of standards.

The committee found that the general objects and organizations of the college and the preparation of the faculty had "more aspects satisfactory than unsatisfactory." Their rating of the student personnel services, the teaching load of the faculty and the curriculum instructional pattern was "most aspects satisfactory."

"In general satisfactory" was the committee's rating of Longwood's professional laboratory experience. The phase receiving the highest rating was the library which has "all aspects practically satisfactory."

Dr. Florence Stratemeyer, chairman of the committee, was most complimentary in her letter of evaluation. She stated, "Two features of the college will long remain in the thinking of the committee as outstanding. First the spirit of general friendliness pervading the institution, and second the sincere, objective, forthright approach of the staff and administration toward self evaluation and their general interest in program improvement."

The evaluation is a very complete and lengthy document. Faculty committees will study the recommendations it contains and make reports from time to time. In future issues the Rotunda will present various aspects of the report.

Drama Group Reveals Cast Of Next Play; Chooses Date

Nelson, Stanfield Get Lead Roles In Tragi-Comedy

Nancy Nelson and Ed. Stanfield have been chosen to head the cast of the spring play "Death Takes a Holiday." The curtain will rise at 8 p. m. on March 19 and 20 on the Longwood Players and Hampden-Sydney Janglours production of this three act tragi-comedy.

Nancy Nelson, a sophomore will portray the role of Grazia, a young romantic maid who falls in love with death.

Ed Stanfield a senior at Hampden-Sydney will portray the role of Death, or Prince Sirki. This is known as one of the most remarkable roles written for the modern theatre.

The audience will see Sarah Leatherman as Cora, Josh Billings as the Duke, Betsy Hankins as Alda, Sally Wilson as Stephanie and Ellen Porter as the Princess. Bill Mounts will portray the Baron and Nancy Tanley will play Rhoda. The cast will be completed with Elwood Rice as Corrado, Charles Dunn as Whitread, Ray Kelley as Eric and James Parker as Fedele.

Tom Moore will head the staffs for the play as stage manager. Sets will be designed by the Play Production Class. Heading the various staffs will be publicity, Barbara White; costume, Libby McClung Ann Shuff; music, Margorie Harris; and lights, Beverly Taylor.

Hobbs Announces Soph. Production

Jeanne Lynch Hobbs, head of Sophomore Production has announced that production will be given February 27 at 8:30 p. m. in Jarman Hall.

A special section of the auditorium will be roped off in Green N' White for the seniors. The production is dedicated to them by the sophomores.

Announcements of production have been sent to each of the fraternities at Hampden-Sydney, the oresident, and other members of the Hampden-Sydney faculty.

The cast and plot of production will be announced in the next issue of Rotunda.

Webb to Reign Over May Day; '53 Spring Festival to Present Murphy, Taylor as Attendants

Queen Sue Webb and maids of honor Margaret Taylor and Anne Murphy will reign over 1953 May Day festival.

Eighteen Beauties Named To Court

Sue Webb, senior from Danville, will reign as queen of the 1953 Longwood May Day celebration this pring. At Sue's side will be two maids of honor, Anne Murphy of Danville and Margaret Taylor from Suffolk.

The May Queen and her maids of honor were elected by the student body after the presentation of candidates last Thursday. A court of eighteen Longwood beauties were chosen at the same time.

Representing the senior class on the May Court will be Betty Abbitt from Lynchburg; Jean Drewry, Boykins; Nell B. Green, Suffolk; and Margie Sutphin, Roanoke.

Elected to represent the junior class this year were Pat Derring of Roanoke; Ann Foster, Farmville; Mary Ann King, Rescue; Jeanne Lafoon, Farmville; and Sylvia Reames, Petersburg.

Sophomore beauties include Barbara Assaid of Roanoke; Martha Donaldson, Roanoke; Beth Kent, Richmond; Frances Motley, Sharps; and Nancy Tanley, Newport News.

Ann Cress of Lynchburg; Peggy Layman, Roanoke; Marie Sweckler, Wytheville; and Shirley Willihde, Roanoke were the representatives chosen from the freshman class.

"Ballad Tree" has been selected as the title of this year's May Day pageant. The festival will be divided into three sections, Irish, English and Scottish, which trace the development of American folklore.

Carrying out this tri-country theme the queen will represent one country and the maids of honor the other two. The court will also be divided into thirds to represent each of the three countries.

For the first time this year the festival will have a narrator in the form of a minstrel wandering on the green. Betsy Hankins, a senior from Richmond, will fill this role.

Rotunda Tryouts For Staff Heads Start This Week

Tryouts for staff positions for next year's Rotunda have begun tihs week, with Ann Thomas trying out for the position of editor-in-chief.

Other persons trying out for positions on the staff are Shirley Ward, managing editor; Dot Douglas, news editor. Also assuming circulation trial positions are manager, Barbara Powell; and desk editor, Gail Leonard.

This week Betsy Wilson is acting as advertising manager and Margaret Dryden is handling the position of feature editor as well as writing the social column. Marlene Lucas is trying out for the art editor's position.

The sports column in this week's Rotunda has been written by Helen Waitman and Louise Wilder; the humor column by Phoebe Warner; and a new arts column is by Joyce Gilchrest.

Tryout issues of the Rotunda will continue during the month of February and the first of March. Shortly after that time, the staff appointments will be made.

Collier Tells Awards Won By Students

Jean Jinnett, Jackie Marshall, Margaret Ann Felton, and Georgia Jackson have been chosen by a board of judges as winners of the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and honorable mention awards respectively in the Colonnade Prose Contest, announced Betty Collier, editor of the Longwood Magazine.

Jean Jinnett winner of the first prize award will receive $7.00 for her short story, "Stained," Jackie Marshall won the second prize award of $5.00 with her short story, "The Old Man of the Streets." Third place and a $3.00 award was won by "The Lost Soul's of Devil's Inn," a short story by Margaret Ann Felton. These three stories will appear in future issues of the Colonnade. "Twin Oaks"; a story by Georgia Jackson which has already appeared in the first issue of the magazine, won honorable mention.

School Art Contest To Begin Tomorrow

Students are invited to participate in a poll to choose the most popular work in the Student Art Exhibit now on display in the browsing room of the library.

A box will be placed in the browsing room, and students are requested to write their choice on a slip of paper and drop it in the box. This poll, which will be held February 12 to 18, is being sponsored by the Rotunda to encourage interest in the exhibit.

Miss Lemen's intermediate drawing classes are sponsoring the exhibit of oil paintings.

The exhibition includes works by Nell Green, Margaret Sutphin, Lou Jamison, Phoebe Warner and Margaret Duke. Also Fae Jernigan, Florence Blake, Mollie Herssman, Jean L. Hobbs, and Barbara Rickman have paintings included in the exhibit.

These paintings have been on display since January 29 and will remain until February 28.

M & R Offers Senior Business Scholarship

Miller & Rhoads, Inc. in Richmond is offering, again this year, a $1,000 scholarship to college seniors for a year of professional graduate study in New York.

This year of training will lead to a degree of Master of Science in Retailing from the New York University of Retailing. The winner will engage in a program of advanced study and work experience in this field.

All graduating seniors who are interested in retailing are requested to see Dr. M. L. Landrum in the Business Education Department where booklets and application blanks for this scholarship are available.

Entries must be submitted to Miller & Rhoads, Inc., Scholarship Committee, on or before April 18.

Religious Week Ends With Prayer Service Tomorrow Morning

As the closing feature of Religious Emphasis Week, an early prayer service will be held Thursday morning in the Episcopal Church. At 6:30 a. m., the rising bell will ring and at 6:40 a. m., the service will begin. The program will be led by students and centered around the Religious Emphasis Week theme, "Christian Dynamics in a Shaken World." This service was very successful last year, and it is hoped that students will again support it.

Tonight at 8 p. m. in Jarman Auditorium the Rev. A. L. Edward's of Harrisonburg, will again speak to us in connection with Religious Emphasis Week.

Fay Greenland, chairman of the prayers committee, has announced that a policy chanage is being made. Each committee member will be in charge of prayers for one night. They will be in charge of prayers and see that it is announced both on the blackboard and in the dining hall.

The Freshman Commission is selling cocoa and do-nuts every Sunday morning on Tackey Alley.

Barter's Presentation of 'The Virginian' Brings Old West to Stage of Jarman Hall

by Barbara White

On Friday, February 20 at 8:15 in Jarman Auditorium, the Longwood Players will present the Barter Theatre in its production of Owen Wister's famous novel, "The Virginian."

The granddaddy" of the "horse-opears", "The Virginian," is essentially the old West—where men are men and women love 'em, and no villain is ever going to get to first base. One of America's most outstanding novels, actually it is more than a best seller. When Mr. Robert Porterfield, as "The Virginian," says, "When you call me that, smile," he will be repeating the most famous line in American romantic literature.

And who could be more appropiate for the lead than Robert Porterfield, somewhat of a Virginian himself. With exactly one dollar and twenty-two actors plus the kind of courage that Wister admired, Mr. Porterfield hatched his famous Barter Theatre down Abingdon way. In choosing young actors and actresses for training in his inimitable theatre, Mr. Porterfield has become a patron saint for many young hopefuls.

Student admission to the play will be $1.00. Townspeople and the faculty members will have to pay $1.80. Tickets may be obtained in the home office, at the box office which will be opened every afternoon from four until six, and at the door.

Robert Owen Phillips, Robert Porterfield, and Lucy in the Barter Theater's production of "The Virginian".

Action Speaks Louder Than Words

During this past week, Longwood College has been disturbed by several unexpected and troubling events. What has occurred involves every student and faculty or administration member who is interested in the honor and welfare of Longwood College and who is also concerned for the girls who have violated our honor code.

The student body of this college is responsible for the election of its governing council. The students have also agreed upon the constitution and honor code by which this council operates. According to these factors, it seems only logical that our duty is to uphold the decisions which they make.

Yet we feel that certain aspects of the week's events must be brought into discussion. This can be a time for students, faculty, and student council reevaluation of the system and procedures used in the operation of college government.

We have these seven points to present to the student body and faculty as subjects of thought and action.

1. The only action and the only views that can improve an unsatisfactory situation in any democratic system are those which are based upon clear consideration of every side of the issue, and not a biased or emotional view.

2. When there is disagreement over some actions of the council, the student body must be willing to express opinions, as should have happened in the student body meeting last Thursday.

3. Many members of the student body feel that they do not know enough about the student government organization. Our first step should be to examine and become familiar with the constitution and honor code, and discuss their operation and value. What has occurred here this week, presents evidence that the student body and the student government need to cooperate in examining and clarifying the procedures of handling cases that have been in effect.

4. Since there was created among the faculty much controversy over the procedures used in government cases, we feel that the faculty should make an effort to know how these cases are handled, why, and what their position is in them.

5. We believe that much of the misunderstanding and rumor aroused last week would have been avoided if the cases had been presented to the student body through a complete report of the council at the called assembly on Thursday.

6. This entire week was a surprise and shock to each of us. We are rightly concerned for the girls involved and what they now face. However, we know also that prolonged arguments over the decisions accomplish nothing at all. These girls made a tragic mistake; it's time to forgive and forget.

7. To remember that we are a democratic self governing body and to endeavor to uphold our government is the aim we present in concluding this editorial. If students are interested, and if the faculty is concerned the results of these events, of all the talk, and of the bitter feelings, can be a better college government. The Rotunda is willing to act as a channel for discussion by students or council. This is not an invitation to tear down; it is a call for thoughtful action which can make our student body, our government, and our faculty—in other words, Longwood College—a stronger, more loyal school.

Spring Cleaning

With spring cleaning in mind, there is no better time to wipe away old cobwebs of confusion and disorganization than at the beginning of a new semester when everyone is given the chance to make changes and begin anew.

One should mentally file and yet keep in active reserve, all important notes of past information. Consider your mistakes of last semester and try to use them as a guide against further errors. Budgeting of time is an absolute necessity and needs to be arranged early in the semester if one wishes to start on the right foot.

Academically you may have been placed on the dean's list, but as far as your attitude goes there might still remain a feeling of dissatisfaction and resentment towards the school's rules and regulations. If you do not desire a college education, it would be well to drop it while you are ahead because you will never progress with a lack of interest. If you really desire a higher degree of knowledge, drop your complaints and approach your work earnestly.

In many cases, one's qualities need a spring cleaning. Petty grievances, jealousies, and malicious comments need to be replaced with true friendship.

This job of spring cleaning your thoughts is one that requires ambition and interest but will reap satisfaction for you, your family, and your instructors. Good Luck!

A Worthwhile Privilege

It will soon be time again for the curtain to rise on a stage filled with candidates eligible for major and minor offices next year.

Individual organizations will be holding elections also. Even though it is still somewhat early, an air of excitement and suspense is being created over the outcome of these pending elections.

Likewise, the three publications, the Colonnade, Rotunda, and Virginian, will choose next year's editor, business manager, and fill other staff positions. Tryouts are being held to provide a basis for selections, and to give the less experienced knowledge of the functioning of the annual, magazine, and newspaper. These tryouts serve as a stepping stone to higher positions.

As the winner of any election recognizes the honors conferred, why shouldn't the staff member on a publication have the same feeling toward his position? For some the answer may be that they do possess this feeling of pride; but for others, a staff position means only a great deal of work with little reward.

Using "reward" as the keyword, let's explore a little. People who are interested have a satisfied feeling at seeing their work in print, or at knowing that even through their smallest contribution the publication was made possible.

These persons also get a thrill from being among the first to know of an important event, or the first to see the pictures taken for the annual.

Maybe the lack of interest stems from the higher staff members on the publications. Maybe they have failed to keep up enthusiasm — maybe they have failed in their obligations to explain and talk over vital matters with the less important staff members.

The question is one that is not easy to answer. During the tryout periods of your publication, think of this worth-while privilege; remember that your publication is the college's eyes and ears. Without YOU your publication will become blind and deaf!

Happy Talk

by Phoebe Ann Warner

All of us are human and on hearing a little tale we are obliged to add a few more facts to it. Well, a few of the little stories I have heard I will pass on to you with the understanding that you will not add anything to what I have already dug up. (Not that this is dirt, just a little dusty.)

While in psychology class the other day one of our professors noticed a bridge game going on in the back of the room. When he called down one of the girls for playing, she said, "It's all right sir; I'm dummy."

I feel that after hearing the conversation I will relate to you in a moment, we have not only May Court material but also some fine specimens of the "It Pays To Be Ignorant" type. When walking out the door of Student Building a girl was called by her classmate to find out her reason for going downtown. The girl turned around seriously and stated "They're having a sale on girl's clothes at Baldwins—I'm a girl!"

As a result of grades, girls forgot their writing of letters to U. Va., Tech, and VMI and concentrated on home. They were preparing their mothers for the shock of informing them when they would be home. I heard by way of the grape vine of the contents of a few of these letters.

Dear Mom,
Got my grades today; everything was fine except got one F. I failed history again, but it's all for the best in this for all possible worlds. Just think, by the time I take it this fourth time I'll be eligible for a Master's Degree in it.

Sincerely,
Candide

Dear Mom,
Please meet me at the station; will arrive on the ten o'clock train.

As ever,
Ida Tried

Dear Mom,
Sure am gonna miss Caskey's column, but we all can't be funny.

Yours truly,
Rotunda

What is education in its broadest sense? Not merely the knowledge to be obtained from books or from the mouths of the learned. In its broadest sense education should be an awareness of what is around us. The current everyday happenings are the ones which have the most immediate effect on our lives; thus they should be keenly perceived. Included in these daily occurrences are the opportunities the arts present.

Obviously of great interest to Longwood students is the forthcoming production of "South Pacific' to be persented at the Mosque, March 2-7. The producers Richard Rogers and Oscar Hammerstein II have created a musical play that is the greatest of all time. It will go down in theatre history as a masterpiece. Janet Blair and Webb Tilton of the original Chicago cast are now starring in the national company production which will be seen at the Mosque.

Spring and the awakening of the Boston Symphony Orchestra are synonymous to Bostonions.

The winter repertoire is replaced with Strauss Waltzes, the "Warsaw Concerto," Marches and Overtures, and even music that may be on the current top ten list.

The Boston POPS Tour Orchestra will be under the direction of Arthur Fiedler who is widely known for light music.

Arthur Fiedler is famous for his ability to put a spark into music which ignites a fire in the heart of the listener. It is almost ironical that Fiedler has long been a habitual fire fighter. He is a member of the Boston Fire Department as well as the Pollece Department. He holds the position of Honorary Fire Chief in over twenty cities.

"Cupid's Beau"

Cupid, Cards, Candy Plus Sent to All of You From Us

by Naomi Reed

I doubt if St. Valentine ever thought his day would be remembered with hearts (paper, candy and otherwise) and cards with sentimental verses.

The theories about the origin of Valentine's Day are many. Popular in Europe was the idea, expressed in Chaucer's "Parliament of Foules."

"For this was Seynt Valentine's Day
When every foul cometh to choose his mate."

Another notion developed from the similarity between the Norman word "galatin" which means "a lover of women" and the name of the saint.

Also the Romans used to have a pagan custom of a feast of the Tupuealia at which names of young men and women were put in a box and the couples would be paired off in this manner. The idea of gift-giving grew from this custom. When the Romans became Christians, names of saints were substituted.

Our tradition of the exchange of Valentine's became popular at the turn of the century. From the one cent comic, ones suitable for anyone, Valentine's have become specialized so that now you can send them to those who have birthdays on Valentine's Day, who are sick on Valentine's Day and of course you can run the gauntlet with cards for friends. There is even one for "the mother of the one I love."

They vary in all degrees of size (some open up to the size of a towel) and sentiment. You are now able to send Valentines to "My one and only" (be sure to get at least five of these), friends, and even to enemies.

A word to the wise in making correct selections. Don't buy the card that has an exterior caption that states "To someone who can sure kiss" unless you've read the inside. Your boy friend would prefer to kiss you to "his foot".

Meandering With Margaret

by Margaret Dryden

All eyes at Longwood are pointed toward this Saturday night when the Juniors will hold their mid - winter dance, "Cupid's Beau". Look for lots of new and colorful gowns. Excitement is running high now, for the big night is only three days away.

Twenty-three Longwood coeds showed up for Tech "Mid-Winter's" weekend before last. Dancing around the floor were Bev Taylor, Betty Islin, Gail Leonard, Chalice Haydon, Patty Deering, Pat McLemore, Dale Brothers, Ellen Thomas, Betsy Berry, Jane Lohr, Doris Kvasnicka, Shirley Garst, Pat Taylor, Nan Picinich, Billie Van de Riet, Phyllis Isaacs, Ann Watkins, Ann Carter Wendenberg, Ann Cress, Helen Crowgey, Nancy Calahan, Ann Mallory, and Mildred Parker.

Jean Coghill and Nancy Stark from Tackey Alley went to a dance at MCV the same weekend. Jean was the guest of James Patterson and Nancy with Rollie Garrett.

At W & L's "Fancy Dress Ball", also held that weekend, were Nancy Brown and Shirley Lewis. No doubt it—Longwood really gets around.

Washington scoop — Peggy Colonna, Irene Looney, Juanita Dayberry, Joyce Dalton, Shirley Rocha, and Eleanor Long from Library stormed the nation's capitol during their "between semester" vacation. Next time, Washington will have itself all prepared for a Longwood invasion.

Ann Cress has been sporting Buddy Jennings Tech German Club pin for some time now. (Just thought I'd mention it in case somebody besides poor little me hadn't noticed it yet. A pinning that we overlooked was Carolyn Giles to Bill Wright, a H. S. PIKA. Carolyn received Bill's pin in August. PIKA left another Longwood girl pinned recently when Sylvia Reames received Bill Donovan's pin. Ruth Gilliland recently received Frank Slayton's DKE pin.

Wedding bells are just around the corner for four more of our coeds. Jackie Curlee is engaged to Johnny Terry of Hampton and Calvert Owen to David Carter of Norfolk. Both received their diamonds the weekend following exams. Edna Mae Trader, a sophomore, is engaged to Charlton Caine and Joyce Richardson received her ring from James A. Pemberton, Jr., of Warsaw.

"Butch" Langhorne and Peggy Illyus attended the Pi Alpha dance at the University of Richmond over the weekend.

Varsity Team Opens Season With Victory Over Roanoke

Longwood's opening basketball game ended in success with a 56-48 win over the Roanoke College team on Roanoke's own home grounds.

The Roanoke team got an early lead in the game and managed to sink the first few baskets, leaving Longwood slightly behind. It didn't take our girls too long to stir up their pep and spirit, and by the end of the first quarter Longwood gained the lead which they held for the rest of the game.

The game was officiated by Miss Mary Thompson and Miss Jeanne Beamer.

Those who went on the trip were Nell Green, Betty Tyler, Sue Webb, Patsy Sanford, Eleanor Koch, Dot Edwards, and Hilda Hartis. Mary Ann Ward, Shirley Roberts, Doris Harcum, Jane Lohr, Dot Baldwin, Mary Lou Barlowe, and Else Wente were also among those traveling to Roanoke.

Longwood's basketball team will play its next game with Bridgewater, Friday night, in the Longwood gym. Everyone is urged to support their school team and cheer them on to victory.

Apply For State Aid

State Teaching Scholarships will be available through the next academic year according to a recent announcement from the State Board of Education. Regular term scholarship applications for 1953-54 must be made on or before July 1, 1953.

Application blanks and information may be obtained from the President's office.

Orchesis Inducts New Apprentices

Orchesis, Longwood's modern dance club, has recently issued bids to eleven new apprentices according to Ann Murphy, president of the group.

Among those receiving bids were Mary Cowles, Mary Davis, Gail Dixon, Faye Greenland and Nancy Lawrence. Other girls honored with an invitation to membership were Shirley Lewis, Betty Newsome, Jean Carol Parker, Sylvia Reams, Shirley Roby, and Carolyn Van Ture.

These girls were chosen on the basis of interest and talent which they have displayed in their modern dance class. In order to qualify for full membership these apprentices must participate in two major dance events of the college year.

Department Offers Rhythm Add Course

Mr. N. O. Myers of the business department and instructor in office machines has announced a special 12 hour course in Rythmn Add being given this week in the department. Mr. Myers has invited all college students to observe the demonstration which will be given daily in classroom 33.

Rythmn Add is a scientifically developed method of touch addition designed to give a high degree of skill in electric adding machine operation.

From the Bleachers

by Helen Waitman and Louise Wilder

January brings basketball to Longwood once again. The Longwood gals started out on the right foot for a winning season by their 56-48 victory over Roanoke College last week end. By the way, we hear that the spectators numbered many — including twenty eight Hollins girls.

Bridgewater is Longwood's next opponent. The game will be played in our gymnasium on Friday of this week. Ladies, this is our first home game—let's support the team all the way! Grab your "roomie" and bring lots of pep and steam to the gym at 7:30 p. m. Let's help make this our teams' second victory (with your support, who knows?)

Games are also slated with Westhampton, Norfolk Division and Madison. Two teams will travel to Westhampton on February 21. The first game will begin at 2 p. m. Records show that Longwood defeated the Westhampton green and gold last season 50-38.

A combined team of freshmen and sophomores will journey to Norfolk Division on February 24 for Longwood's second contest away from home. A home game with Madison is scheduled for February 27.

Along with the varsity players, the freshmen team has been practicing hard too. They want to live up to the standards set by last year's team. It is probable that they will schedule games with high schools or other college freshmen teams.

1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8 practices are all you need to be able to support your class colors as a member of your class basketball or volleyball team. The color cup is at stake! We can't depend on the varsity players this time—the rules state that they cannot participate in class games. Who will win the color cup this year? Our participation in class games will determine the winner.

Longwood men seem even more scarce than usual on Tuesday's between 5 and 6 P. M. Just ask Dr. R. C. Simonini. Swimming for men students is provided at this time each week but Dr. Simonini often finds himself swimming alone. Come on over boys the H 2O is fine!

Mr. Camp To Teach Instructors Course For Longwood Girls

Mr. Howard Camp, Red Cross Field Representative, will instruct an advanced swimming course, here, during the week of March 23 through 27.

Classes will be conducted from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. for this entire period.

The only requirements necessary for receiving instruction are having previously passed life saving.

Teaching girls how to teach swimming is the purpose of this instructor's course. The girl who successfully passes is qualified to teach swimming anywhere in the state.

A water demonstration is being planned for Saturday afternoon at 4 p. m. to entertain visiting high school seniors.

Ann Crowder, one of the student instructors, is in charge of arrangements for both the swimmers instructor's course and the water demonstration.

College Registrar Discloses Eleven New Underclassmen Register for Second Term

Eleven new students including three juniors, three freshmen and one sophomore registered for the second semester according to Miss Virgilia I. Bugg, registrar.

In addition to these new boarding students, four new day students also have registered for classes.

The juniors are Mrs. Vila D. Hill from Broadnax; Paula Dovel, from Cristobal, Canal Zone; and Patricia Loving from St. George. Paula and Patricia are both former students.

New freshmen students are Shirley Ann Adams of Blairs, transferring from Mary Washington; Margaret Miller from Portsmouth; and Winnie Hope Lauhoff from Greensboro.

Entering the sophomore class, Nancy Dawn from Staten Island, New York has transferred from Greensboro Woman's College, North Carolina.

New town students are Frances Elizabeth Armistead, Mrs. Mary Scott Harwood, Mrs. Kathryn Newman Bageant, and Mrs. Billie Stebbins Hubard.

High School To Give Program Of Music

The Farmville High School Band and Glee Club will present a musical program in assembly next Tuesday.

According to Mr. Russell Hoier, director of the 28 piece band and the 40 member glee club, both groups will present a program of varied numbers.

The band has played in concerts for assembly programs at the high school this year.

Dr. Simonini Reveals English Test Report

Results of the Junior English Test and the Standard Test given to Freshmen last month have been revealed by Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr., head of the Longwood English department.

On the Junior English Test the local median on mechanics of expression was 56 as against the national mean of 55.4. The local median for effectiveness of expression was 57 compared to the national mean of 56.3. Juniors show a significant weakness in reading comprehension, however, in that the local median was 56 while the national mean is 60.9.

On total Junior English Test scores the Longwood median was 56.3; the national mean 58.7.

Longwood freshmen showed themselves to be somewhat stronger in English than students nationally. The local median for the freshmen test was 53.5 as compared to the national mean of 51.3.

One must recognize in making comparisions, however, that the national means were derived through testing done about 15 to 20 years ago and that the level of literacy in this country has been declining ever since.

Va. Drama Council For High Schools To Meet Feb. 19

A drama council for Virginia high school teachers who sponsor forensic events will be held February 18, in Jarman Hall. The clinic will begin at 4:30 p. m., and again at 7:30 p. m., after dinner.

This clinic sponsored by the speech and drama departments of the University of Virginia, will be divided into three sections. The subjects to be discussed are drama, reading, and speaking.

The program is being planned by Dr. Jeffrey Aver of the University department of speech and drama. Dr. C. L. S. Earley, professor of speech and drama at Longwood will participate as a leader for the drama group.

Sophs to Present Saga of the Seas

Ralph Marterie to Play At Cotillion Spring Ball

Ralph Marterie and his band will furnish the musical note for the Cotillion Club's annual formal dance to be presented in the college gymnasium on April 11. This marks the first time a name band has played at Longwood since Claude Thornhill in 1950.

Before originating the band on the West Coast, Ralph Marterie made his reputation among musicians while playing under bandleaders like Paul Whiteman, Percy Faith, Frank Black, Ray Shields, and other top radio and music business names.

Having the distinction of being "a musician's musician" for his instrumentations, Raiph Marterie began his professional trumpet playing career at the age of 14 in Chicago. After serving in the navy during the war, Marterie had his own show with the American Broadcasting network, and in 1940 signed a long term contract with Mercury recordings.

The band, still very new, will present the newest styles in music on April 11. Through Mercury recordings and tours to the East Coast to such schools as the University of Virginia, and VPI, he has established his reputation and band successes here on the East Coast.

"Everyone is excited over his coming and is looking forward to and dance, for we feel that in bringing Ralph Marterie to Longwood we are bringing the best new band," commented Janice Pinkard, president of Cotillion.

Cotillion Club has also announced that 84 freshmen and transfer students have accepted bids and have become official "goats" of Cotillion Club, 1953. Goat Day will be held on Saturday, March 28.

Executive Secretary Aids College Seniors In Finding Positions

To facilitate the placing of Longwood graduates in teaching positions, a college placement bureau is operated under the direction of Mrs. Mary Watkins, college executive secretary.

This service is offered annually for both seniors and alumni of the college. After interviewing seniors and receiving applications from alumni throughout the state, Mrs. Watkins compiles records for use in recommending reliable teachers to different areas in Virginia. Mrs. Watkins commented that a majority of Longwood's graduates have used the bureau in applying for professional positions.

The bureau has also been in charge of the visits by various school superintendents who come to the College to interview seniors.

Superintendents will be on campus in the near future as part of the bureau's services. On Thursday, February 26, Mr. J. Winston Milam, assistant superintendent of Hampton city schools and Mr. William J. Story, Jr., superintendent of South Norfolk schools, will both be interviewing seniors.

Mrs. Margaret F. Winder, director of instruction in Warwick and York County will be here on Friday.

Today, Mr. S. C. Morgan, superintendent of schools, in Green and Madison Counties, and Mr. J. L. Dierhol, of the Richmond schools, were here to talk to interested seniors. Other areas that

Mercer Schedules Major Elections For '53-'54 Session

Announces March 9 As Tentative Date

March 9 has been set as the tentative date for nominations of major officers for the 1953-54 session according to Jeanne Mercer, chairman of nominations.

At this time memoers of the student body may vote either for one of the girls whose name has been submitted by the Nominating Committee, or for another person by writing her name on the ballot. On Wednesday, March 11, students will elect from the list of nominees, those girls who will be presidents of the major organizations.

Jean Mercer who was elected by the student body to head the committee is from Kilmarnock. She is Business Manager of the Colonnade staff, vice-president of the Commercial Club, and Treasurer of Pi Delta Epsilon, journalism fraternity. Jean is also a member of the Cotillion Club, F.T.A. and Northern Neck Club.

Ward Edits Paper For Tryout Issue

Tryouts for staff positions on the Rotunda are continuing in this issue, with Shirley Ward trying out for the position of editor-in-chief.

Other positions filled on this trial issue are managing editor, Ann Thomas; desk editor, Norma Jeanne Croft; news editor, Gail Leonard; and feature editor, Dot Armstrong.

Gloria Anderton assumed for this issue the duties of exchange editor. Circulation and advertising managers were Barbara Powell and Betsy Welbon, respectively.

Margaret Dryden and Carolyn Stanley handled social notes. "Dashes by Dot" or the humor column was written by Dot Douglas. Phoebe Warner is trying out for art editor.

Again this week, there appears a sports column. "From the Bleachers", by Lou Wilder and Helen Waiteman. Lou, also, is trying out for sports editor. Anne Shuff has written a current analysis of the flood cuisis.

Ann Weatherholtz has taken over the duites of copy editor.

This issue marks the final tryout newspaper.

Drive Totals $305

Ann Jones, President of the "Y," announced today that a total of $305 was contributed by the student body to the Welfare Drive sponsored jointly by the "Y" and Student Standards Committee.

This was a little over half of the goal set up by the two organizations. The majority of the student body contributed, but the senior class took honors for having the highest percentage.

Ann stated that the drive as a whole was a success.

Phoebe Warner, Tom Moore, and Nancy Tanley, members of cast of forthcoming Sophomore Production, watch on-stage antics of Mermaids.

Girls Journey To University For Conclave

Mason Moore, Dot Vaden, Betsy Welbon, and Gail Leonard traveled to Chapel Hill, North Carolina, Saturday, February 21, to represent the Longwood Student Government Association at the regional Student Association convention.

The conclave was held on the University of North Carolina campus. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss and make suggestions toward various school problems. Clinics were arranged for discussion of honor systems, racial prejudices in school life and within social fraternities and sororities, and punishments given for academic and social offenses.

Dr. George Jeffers, advisor, drove the group to and from the convention.

Committee Names Abbitt As Member Of Festival Court

Betty Abbitt, senior from Madison Heights has been selected to represent Longwood College as a Princess in the court of the twenty-sixth Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester, on April 30 and May 1.

An outstanding leader on campus, Betty is vice-president of the YWCA, and a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, women's leadership society. She is also a member of Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority, a senior representative of the 1953 May Court and assistant fire chief.

Longwood's Apple Blossom Princess is chosen annually by members of the faculty and administration. This celebration is visited by tourists from every part of the country and appears in nationwide newsreels and television programs.

Friendly Producer Chats

by Margaret Miller

"Come back stage and I'll show you my gorgeous legs!" retorted Robert Porterfield with a twinkle in his blue eyes. And this comment is just a small glimpse into the off stage personality of one of Virginia's most prominent actors.

Longwood College is far from "strange country" to Barter Theater's director and founder. Upperclassmen will be quick to recall his amusing and informative assembly speech made last year.

His Longwood experience, however, dates back even further than this. As he glanced back at what used to be a dating parlor, he slyly stated, "I spent many an hour in that dimly lit room while I was a student at Hampden-Sydney!"

Since Mr. Porterfield was on campus to portray the title role in "The Virginian," I turned the conversation to this subject. In his opinion Owen Wister's novel of the same name has been very successfully adapted and staged by Margaret Perry. He added that the Virginian is his favorite role.

When asked how to go about becoming a member of the Barter group, Mr. Porterfield said that he auditions those who are interested, and college students have a good chance to work with them.

Mr. Porterfield highly praised Dr. C. L. S. Earley and the work he is doing at Longwood. He also remarked both to this reporter and to his audience that Jarman Auditorium is the best in the state.

At this point our interesting chat was abruptly interrupted by Owen Phillips (the narrator of the "Virginian") who urged Mr. Porterfield to hurry to the auditorium as there were only 45 minutes 'til curtain time.

And since his cow boy costume wouldn't reveal his "whistle bait" underpinnings his final words were, "Come back stage and I'll show you my gorgeous legs."

Hobbs Reveals Theme, Cast of 'North Atlantic'

Friday night, the Sophomore Class will transport its audience, by stage magic, from Jarman Hall to the "North Atlantic", when it presents its production of the same name.

Tom Moore with an ensemble of assorted fish, sharks, sea horses, shrimps and lobsters will open the first act with "I'm Only a Crokeyed Octopus." Tom Moore is an octopus who is "immature and inexcusably green."

Nautical Dive

A "Nautical Dive" is the staging for the second scene where we find an assorted mob of sea crooks and other "speakeasy" characters having a wonderful time, led by card sharks Nancy Brown, Dot Baldwin, Shirley Ward, and Betty Bentley. Beth Kent as seahorse gun moll enters followed by the "Carps," Mary Anne Ward and Gaynelle Edwards who raid the dive.

"Bloody Mary"

Evidently, the "Carps" don't have much effect on the crowd for soon the place is filled with fish sailors who dance to the tune of "Bloody Mary." Bloody Mary, Nancy Tanley, slinks in and dances with the sailors, Dot Douglas, Anne C. Wendenburg, Nancy Jones, B. Beth Cheatham, Peggy Worthington, Nancy Inge, M. Lou Barlow, Barbara Mitchell, Betty Anne Myers and Barbara Assaid. Mermaids Nancy Taylor, Jean Carol Parker, Helen Short, Frances Tompkins, Mary Cowles, Dot Morris, Joyce Hunt, Joyce Jenkins, Carolyn Stanley and Wilma Salmon try to entice the fish sailors but they like only "Bloody Mary" so the mermaids wail brokenheartedly "There is Nothing Like a Fish."

Silver Mermaids

The second act of "North Atlantic" opens with four silver mermaids played by Joyce Quick, Shirley Lewis, Nancy Jane Jones and Buzzy Hartis, dancing to "Ball Hai". Mary D. Langhorne and Nell Cake combine talents as a whale who is fed-up with men and sing, "I'm Gonna Wash that Fish Right Out of my Scales", as she takes a bath with assistance from three gloomy fish.

As marine characters fill the stage again, Donnie Devine as a school master gives them some advice on how not to be hooked as a tempting hook appears.

"I'm in Love With a Flatheaded Flounder" is the cry of poor little Mary Hundley, but it seems that Margie Smallwood has been more fortunate for she's got "Honeybun" played by Phoebe Warner.

Shipwrecked Sailor

Herb Goodman a shipwrecked sailor observing the happiness of the underwater kingdom sings "This Nearly was Mine", joined by Mermaid, B. J. Staples.

The cast closes the audience's trip to "North Atlantic" and also gives some good advice to all as they sing their version of "Some Enchanted Evening."

The audience may expect something entirely new and different in costumes and staging in "North Atlantic". Jeanne Lynch Hobbs, head of production, says "We have had to overcome a lot of obstacles. This is not just slap-stick; it is a clever well-polished show."

Miss Nancy Chambers, sophomore class sponsor, after seeing the rehearsals says, "South Pacific", was nothing like this—they only had Martin and Pinza and not Longwood's talented Octopus, lobsters, star fish and whales. You'll miss the chance of

AAUW Considers Longwood College As New Member

Dr. Vickery Here As Campus Guest

Membership of Longwood College in the American Association of University Women will be determined by an evaluation made of the college last week. Dr. Katherine Vickery, a representative of AAUW was guest on the campus February 17 and 18 to evaluate all phases of the college.

The AAUW is an organization composed of women graduates of American universities and colleges. There are representative chapters of AAUW all over the United States and alumni of any institution on the AAUW approved list is eligible to become a member of the group located in her community.

AAUW was organized under that name in 1923 with the consolidation of two similar but sectional groups. The two chief purposes are to provide a concentration point of women interested in higher education and to stimulate vocational opportunities for women with college degrees. AAUW is part of the International Federation of University Women.

Blake Painting Wins First Place Honors In Artists' Contest

by Marie Swecker

"Portrait of Sally" by Florence Blake won first place by the popular vote of the students in the recent art contest sponsored by the Rotunda.

Runners up in the competition are Lou Jamison's oil paintings "Wandering Jew" and "School Street", and Margaret Sutphin's "Choir Girl."

Although "Flip" is majoring in French, she has been interested in art all her life. Last year she enrolled in a general art course; and the past semester she took oil painting. This class exhibited all their pictures, including four of Flip's—a still life, the now famous "Portrait" and two others depicting variations in her ability.

Flip says that oil painting is rather difficult but admits that she completed the winning painting, her first portrait, in four hours. When Sally Wilson, the subject of the painting, was told that Flip had won, she cried, "Oh, Flippy!"

Flip's only comment was, "I've been offered $1000, but I've decided not to sell. It's a gift to Sally." Congratulations, Flip!

Equipment Bids Open

Bids for the completion of the Science building equipment were opened yesterday, Tuesday, February 24, according to an announcement by Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, college president.

Dr. Lancaster stated that insufficient funds have prevented the complete furnishing of the building prior to this time.

Choose Wisely

Elections at Longwood College do not involve speech making or campaigning for major offices. The campaign, which is the fulfilling of the necessary requirements and possession of certain qualities, has been going on over a period of years. Thus, the girls at Longwood, who will be nominated for major offices in the near future have already done their campaigning. The office of president of an organiaztion is an important one. Each letter is significant as it designates a desirable trait for a president to have—

P is for prudence — the ability to conduct ones self wisely and judiciously. One who can not conduct herself well is not expected to be able to lead others.

R is for reverence — the feeling of honor and respect for others and for greater knowlege.

E is for enthusiasm — an ardent interest in or zeal for the activities in which the group she is leading participates.

S is for stamina — a capacity for enduring the share of the work which is placed in her hands as the leader, and at the same time, maintain her scholastic record at its average level.

I is for imagination and ideas — a group with clever leaders is never without a project, a program, or an interesting goal.

D is for debonaire — good and gentle in disposition, affable and courteous, graceful and gay. With these qualities a leader would be a good representative.

E again, is for emphasis — stressing the important things; being able to distinguish between them and the trivial matters.

N is for neatness — being free from what is unbecoming. This could include habits and actions as well as being able to keep organized and neat records.

T is for tact — the peculiar ability to deal with others without giving offense.

We ask you to remember these things and to choose the girls whom you believe will give their best to lead you.

The Best Yet

Better than we've ever had before!

The student body well deserves to be commended for its splendid support of Religious Emphasis Week sponsored by the Y.W.C.A. three weeks ago. The enthusiasm and interest shown by students in the discussion groups, speeches, programs and especially the early morning prayer service well earned the complimentary remarks and pleasing words expressed by the Reverend Mr. Al Edwards, guest speaker for the week.

We feel, however, that Mr. Edwards, himself, was a sparkling inspiration to students and was responsible for such beneficial enthusiasm created here during the four-day period.

Also members of the faculty were drawn more closely into the activities of the week by inviting Mr. Edwards to attend and speak to their classes.

Even though Religious Emphasis Week was so successful, improvements are needed and helpful suggestions are to be encouraged. The evaluation board of campus organizations has offered suggestions for the betterment of the "Week".

It was suggested that the guest speaker come on Sunday night to hold a service preceding the beginning of Religious Emphasis Week on Monday.

More discussion groups with specific topics to be expanded in each group are needed. Local preachers and student secretaries should be included in these discussion groups.

Another suggestion has been made for the extension of the "Week" with a period for general discussion at its conclusion students can feel free to ask questions.

A designated place should be selected for the guest speaker to be stationed when a scheduled meeting or speech is not on the program of activities. Students again could take this opportunity to talk over their problems.

In conclusion, an invitation should be extended to more than one guest during this period—a woman, to discuss personal problems, and a man to speak to students in groups.

With this year's wholehearted response, it is hoped that the thoughts and reflections of Religious Emphasis Week 1953 will be carried with each person throughout the year - - - - yes, better than ever before!

Measure Up?

Aims, objectives, and evaluation are everyday words to student teachers. And since a maority of Longwood students are enrolled in some phase of professional education, these important words have become as familiar to our vocabularies as 'a', 'the', and 'is'.

But these three words have meanings important in more situations than just teaching. We can easily apply them to our campus organizations and extra-curricular activities.

Aims and objectives probably require little explanation. At the beginning of each year every one of the groups on this campus sets up certain goals which it wishes to achieve. Probably the constitution of some clubs, honor societies, and sororities; the nature of publications; and the character of athletic, dramatic, and music groups have somewhat determined what these particular groups expect to do. Aims and objectives are both specific and general, such as putting out a certain number of publications or upholding the ideals of the college.

Everyone knows what an aim is; surely every group has one. The next important step is to accomplish some of these goals.

This is where that third word, evaluation, comes in to use. At some time during the year we like to know just how much has been achieved. Exams are supposed to show how much we have done academically; but we have no grading system for organizations. This seems a good time of year—when groups are starting spring activities, perhaps electing officers—to evaluate what progress we have made so far during the year.

Such an evaluation would have to be an individual thing for each group but it could have three general purposes for all organizations. First, it would help renew interest in the groups' basic aims and objectives. Second, it would help members find out how much they have done and how closely they have adhered to their principles; and in the third place it would determine what actions and activities should be planned for the remainder of the year.

Such an evaluation would help us to determine the importance and purposes for having each campus group. It is an old complaint that we have too much to do. By the self evaluation of every group, perhaps ways could be found to avoid extra meetings and too many involved activities. At any rate we could come to appreciate our organizations more and make them more worthwhile.

Organizations are set up to get things done. How much is yours doing?

Curtain Calls For 'North Atlantic'

Social Notes

by Margaret Dryden and Carolyn Stanley

Once again, Longwood dominated the dance floor, this time for Hampden-Sydney's Mid-Winters. On hand to make the party a fine affair were Nancy Andrews, Jane Bailey, Joan DeAlba, B. Beth Cheatham, Dot Baldwin, Stephanie Bauder, Barbara Blackman, Muriel Boswell, Anne Coleman, and Joyce Dalton.

Also Patty Deering, Martha Donaldson, Dot Douglas, Charlotte Pitts, Martha Francisco, Betty Islin, Nancy Jane Jones, Pat Kelley, Doris Kvasnicka, Nancy McLawhorn, and Pat McLemore were at the festivities.

Lareve Mallory, Sylvia Reams, Beverly Marsh, Julie Moncure, Betty Ann Myers, Betsy Nelson, Dorothy Orr, Nancy Stark, Betty Pat Rogers, Marion Ruffin, Bette Saffelle and Betty Shackleford were seen on the dance floor.

Joy Simmons, Ellen Thomas, Sue Upson, Carolyn Vaniure, Helen Kee Wilson, Jo Ann Wilson, Irene Looney, Claire Krienbaum, Marie Swecker, Phyllis Campbell, Pat Altwegg, Dolly Horne and Diane Hanson also attended the dances making a total of 45 of our Longwood Ladies who attended.

Here's hoping we didn't miss anybody.

Virginia

Seen singing Virginia's praises were Shirley Garst, Shirley Roberts, Lucy Thwing, Peggy Layman, Wanda Karlet, Joyce Quick, Betsy Hankins, and Jean Krienbaum. Mollie Harvie, Jane Lohr, Juanita Dayberry, Betty Staples, Diana Burgess and Liz DeHaven were among those present at U. Va midwinters.

Joyce Gilchrest, Dot Armstrong, Billie Miller, Ann Marie Grey, Margaret Duke, Dale Brothers, Pattie Poffenberger and Mary Elva Robinson also attended.

Phyllis Nurney and Fannie Scott traveled to National Business College for their week end festivities.

Euphan Carter attended a dance at R. P. I. Friday night. Also leaving for greener pastures were Kay Pelter, Nat Lancaster and Denise Montagne who went to Davidson to join the merry throng.

U. of Md

Attending Sigma Nu Fraternity parties at U. of Md. were Nancy Brown, Shirley Lewis, and Carolyn Stanley.

Saving the best 'till last Stephanie Bauder came back from Hampden-Sydney Mid - winters pinned to Syd Settle, a PIKA—and Charlette Pitts sported Tom Stewart's Kappa pin.

Also receiving pins from Hampden-Sydney were Betty Pat Rogers who received a Lamba Chi pin from Jimmy Freeman, and Marie Swecker who received a Sigma Chi pin from Cary Harrison.

Doing even better were Lucy Page Hall who received a diamond from Ted Kennedy, a Duke University graduate; and Shirley Wilkinson, who received a diamond from Bryant W. Roland—Best Wishes!

Time, Place, Babble, Crew - All Here For You to View

by Dot Armstrong and Margaret Felton

Time—7:00 Monday night
Place—Jarman Hall
Setting—One big bleak stage, one easy chair-right back, one piano-right front, two chairs—center stage

Dr. Earley — "Let's get this thing under way." Ra-ta-ta-ta (small dance accompaniment) Strains of "Bali Hai" play accompaniment to shuffling chairs.

Director—"All the sea animals on stage!" Seven little fish make their way slowly to the center of the stage—and floop.

Middle of "I'm in love with a flat-headed flounder" (Mr. Warrington—Ha Ha Ha!) (Slight titters—song is interrupted slighty)

Honey Bun renders "Honey Bun" (That figures.)

Honey Bun's sweetheart bounces out. (Wicked laughter as three kleenexes drop from bathrobe: Dead silence)

Dr. Earley—"Animate! Animate!"

Somebody squeaks out a line—(Scream from back "No-no-can't hear")

Dr. Earley—"No dear, keep your feet still. Poor dear, two left ones no doubt."

Lovers come wandering idlely out ,leaning on each other for support. Mr. Warrington—"After all they're only friends." Dr. Earley—"Oh Frankie, spit on me I'm in the third row!"

A few choice samples of dialogue—

"Move it!"
"Where?"
"Here!"
"There?"
"What are we talking about?"
"Animate!" "Animate!" "Enjoy yourself." "Let's live it up!"
"Nope."

A voice from center. "I'm sorry, I didn't know."

And so on into the night. And now, dear reader, you see what you'll miss if you don't see "North Atlantic."

News In a Nutshell

by Anne Shuff

Tragedy is an ever-ready crusader, and recently it struck in the form of a flood—the worst in six centuries.

Although Britain and Belgium were affected, Holland was by far the hardest hit. One sixth of its entire land surface, including most of its 23 islands, has been covered.

The financial consequences are equally as high as the land destruction and the loss is expected to be between $200,000,000 and $500,000,000. Obviously the situation will be handled on a national basis. Holland has announced that it will not cut down on its defense commitments. However, the government is expected to cancel the long awaited tax cuts, although it may be protested in Parliament.

At an emergency session of Parliament, Premier Villem Drees reported that the post-war reconstruction of the Netherlands has suffered greatly. He also stated that flood victims will receive disaster payments on the same basis as the payments to the war victims.

As usual, the Communists have a different outlook on the whole situation. They claim the evaluation and relief programs are not being handled properly and feel that the military relief units of the United States and Britain have sinister purposes.

Although the flood has dealt a harsh blow to the economy, of these countries, the survivors are uniting in an all out effort to restore their land.

Care, a national American welfare organization, is doing its part in the restoration by making pleas for funds to send relief packages to stricken people.

Basketball Varsities Meet Westhampton In Two Games

Other Scores Also Reported

A win and a loss was the record of the Longwood varsity basketball team when they met Westhampton College in two games on the Richmond team's home court last Saturday.

In their third game of the season, Longwood suffered a 39 to 27 defeat at the hands of the Westhampton varsity.

The second game of the day, resulted in a 30 to 28 win for Longwood. This nip and tuck battle was played between the second teams of the two schools.

Seventeen team members journeyed to Richmond for the games including Nell Green, varsity captain, Patsy Sanford, Doris Harcum, Betty Tyler, Mary Anne Ward, Roberta Wiatt, and Eleanor Koch. Also Virginia Burgess, Dot Baldwin, Mary Lou Barlow, Jane Lohr, Sue Webb, Hilda Hartis, Elsie Wente, and Patsy Hamner made the trip.

Last night marked the first appearance of the Longwood freshman and sophomore basketball team on their home court. They met the William and Mary-Norfolk Division team on the local court. Final score of the game was 55-14 in favor of the Longwood junior team.

Opening the home game season on February 13, the varsity team met Bridgewater College in the Longwood gym. Bridgewater defeated the local team 35 to 28.

The next game on the Longwood schedule is with Madison College in the Longwood gym Friday, February 27 at 7:30 p. m.

The schedule of remaining games has been posted on the Athletic Association bulletin board so that students may keep posted on the time and dates of the games.

From the Bleachers

by Lou Wilder and Helen Waiteman

The time is short! Class games start soon. A reminder is sent to all students to get eight basketball and volleyball practices before it's too late. Don't let your class team forfeit due to a shortage of players! Practicing is fun and we all need the exercise. Green and White is in the lead now. How will things stand after class games are over? We may not have class games if nobody gets in enough practices.

Like to swim? Need brushing up on some of your strokes? Need to learn to float to pass your swimming class? Come to Rec Swim on Wednesdays at 10 p. m. and Fridays at 4 p. m.

Is Saturday night the loneliest night in the week for you? Come to the card party sponsored by the Athletic Association on Saturday night at 7 p. m. in the A.A. room. The price will be $1.00 per table. (Don't get excited—that's only 25 cents each and cheaper than the movies!) Bring your own cards. You don't have to play bridge if you prefer Old Maid. P. S. Refreshments will be served.

We cheered the team on at the home basketball game with Norfolk Division yesterday, but they still need our support on Friday when they meet Madison in our gym.

A swimming meet and tennis match will be held at William and Mary on April 18. Details about these will be disclosed later. Keep on the watch for them. Don't forget varsity swimming practices at 5 p. m. on Mondays and Fridays.

ELIZABETH STONE

L. C. Senior Receives Honors For Research On Thesis In English

Elizabeth Stone, a senior from Rustsburg, was awarded by a faculty committee "Honors in English" for superior achievement in completing the scholarship requirements of the Honors course.

Successful completion required preparation of a thesis on her subject, "The Concept of Rennaissance in Modern Historical Fiction," which had to be approved by a faculty committee. In addition, she had to take an oral examination before a committee of visiting professors.

The college honors courses opened to students of superior ability who wish to carry independent reading and research in graduate study levels, were re-activated two years ago. Longwood was one of the first Virginia institutions to offer such work, starting the program about 1930.

Elizabeth plans to take graduate study in her chosen field next year at the University of North Carolina.

McNeil Gives Weekly Show

"Songs by Sue" featuring Helen Sue McNeil, a Longwood junior, is a new presentation of Station WFLO in Farmville.

Each Thursday afternoon, at 3:45 p. m., Helen Sue plays a fifteen minute program of her own piano interpretations of modern classics, popular hits, and jazz numbers. Helen, who is from Rocky Mount, is a music major. She plans to make a career of music, particularly in the field of entertainment.

Margaret Dryden, a freshman, is anouncer for the program. The series which began in February, will continue through May.

High School Girls To Arrive Friday

High school girls from various schools throughout Virginia will arrive at Longwood this Friday to spend the weekend.

Those schools which will be represented are John Marshall High School, Crozet, Onancock, South Hill, and Front Royal. Other schools have been invited but have not yet made known whether or not they will be able to attend.

Friday night's entertainment for the visiting students includes a basketball game between Longwood and Madison at 7 p. m. and the Sophomore Production "North Atlantic" at 8:30 p. m.
